Cohasset continued to pour on pressure after Buick's penalty kick tied the game at 1-1, with the best chance coming when a Buick corner kick caromed out of a scrum in the center of the goal box to Cohasset senior John Grimm 12 yards out from the right post. He hit just a hair under the bouncing ball, however, and it flew over the cross bar.

A few minutes later, at the other end of the field, Kitchen ran down a long pass into the right corner and very nearly chipped a tough angle shot in over the head of Busk, but wound up catching the cross bar.

A wonderful solo effort by Henry very nearly got the Clippers the lead again two minutes after that, as the freshman maneuvered past both the Cohasset sweeper and keeper after collecting a long pass from Healy, but his momentum carried him too far toward the end line to the right of the net, and his shot went into the side of the net.

The late Norwell pressure finally paid off, however, with Kitchen converting on the direct kick with five minutes to play.

Cohasset's last best chance to retie the game came on a scintillating rush by Buick, as he got by three defenders going right up the gut, but his attempted left-footed blast from 25 yards out was softened a bit by Valencius getting a foot on it, and Caldwell was able to smother it with relative ease.

The Skippers have fallen on a bit of hard times since the loss. A last minute goal on Saturday salvaged a 1-1 tie with Scituate in non-league play Saturday and they lost a 2-1 decision to league rival Mashpee at home Tuesday, dropping them to 3-4-2 on the season, one game under the all-important .500 mark.

Coach Leary is hoping to get his team back on track with a series of hard practices over the coming week. The Skippers do not play again until next Wednesday, a big SSL showdown at Abington (6:30 p.m. start).

Cohasset quarterback Crandon Leahy spots a hole to run through during the Skippers 30-6 Homecoming win Friday night over Pembroke. The senior signal- caller finished his night after one half with 83 yards on six carries, including two TD runs, and also completed all three of his passes for another 21 yards.

Skippers scuttle Titans

Durkin carried three times on the push for 35 yards, the final 14 coming on a draw play well disguised by Leahy, as Durkin took the ball straight up the gut and streaked untouched into the end zone. Leahy carried twice for 11 yards on the drive and hooked up with fellow senior D.J. Silvia on a cross over the middle for another 15 yards. 210-pound fullback Ted Straughn then followed 275-pound tackle Nick Arment into the end zone for the conversion to give the Skippers the lead for good, 8-6.

The Titans offense did manage to move the ball sporadically over the remainder of the first half against the vaunted Cohasset defense, a unit that returned eight starters and was top ranked among all Div. 5 teams in Eastern Mass. in 2003.

"I really thought our offense played pretty well," said coach McIntyre. "Coach Forbes did a great job of studying film and getting our guys ready."

Speedy Pembroke sophomore tailback Eric Krasowski finished with 58 yards on nine carries and junior Ryan Mann added 48 yards on nine carries of his own. Mucci, an undersized fullback, finished with 23 hard yards on seven attempts.

"No, that didn't surprise me at all," said Cohasset head coach Tony Rolfe of the Titans relative success against his lauded defense. "(Pembroke) has come a long way in a short time. We've seen them on film, so we knew they ran a pretty good offense.

"You can just go back and look at some of the films of Whitman-Hanson football from the 90s. That opening drive looked a lot like what you'd see there."

This too was hardly a surprise. Pembroke head coach John McIntyre, was a former assistant under legendary Panthers coach Bob Bancroft, and McIntyre brought old W-H offensive coordinator Pat Forbes out of retirement to run his offense.

The problem was the extremely young and inexperience Titans players kept coming up with new ways to shoot themselves in the foot.

After the Titans had picked up a big first down on their second possession, Cohasset junior defensive end Dave McKenna had no trouble getting into the Pembroke backfield to stuff an attempted sweep for a three yard loss. Then, three plays later, McKenna again found no resistance on his way to punter Derek DeAndrade and stuffed the attempted boot just as it left the foot.

The recovery set the Skippers up at the Pembroke 27-yard line. It took Leahy only one play to cash in, as he got just about the entire Pembroke defense to bite on a fake handoff to Straughn up the gut and then raced around right end with not a single defender within 10 yards of him. From there, the Cohasset QB did not even have to turn on the jets to win the race to the cone. This time, Straughn went over 230-pound sophomore guard Justin Alexander for the two-points, making it a 16-6 game with eight seconds to play in the first quarter.

Anxious over the previous block, the Titans punt team tried to hurry things on the next forced boot. This time the snap sailed well over DeAndrade's head and McKenna and senior Kelvin Ferreira swarmed the punter under at the 18-yard line.

After Leahy hit tight end Dan McCarthy for a couple of short gainers, the QB called his own number and again went untouched around end for the TD, this time from six yards out.

Pembroke marched to midfield on their ensuing possession., The push died there, but at least DeAndrade was able to get a punt off this time…not that it mattered much.

Durkin went 12 yards on a pitch right on play one. Leahy went all the way to five-yard line on play two, breaking one tackle after another to pick up the last 15 yards. A holding call on Cohasset brought that back to Pembroke's 23. Again, though, it did not matter. Durkin covered that distance on the third play of the drive on another quick pitch-out.

Cohasset's young but large offensive line of freshman Arment, Alexander, Jake Cuneo (6-2/245 pounds), sophomore Nick Cambi (5-10/185) and senior Leo Clougherty (5-10/195) were dominant in the trenches all night, and the defense—led by McKenna, Ferreira, sophomore Jeff Brown and seniors Matt Baroudi and Matt Casey—adjusted well after Pembroke's opening score.

The second half featured a smattering of Cohasset reserves holding their own against Titans starters. For Cohasset, freshman tailback PJ McGraw was able to pick up a few first downs on the ground, finishing with eight carries for 24 yards, and freshman QB Brian Hill did a solid job of running the offense. Of course, like the Skippers backups, most of the Titans starters are underclassmen.

"I can see progress every week," summed up McIntyre. "This is only the third time these guys have ever played together. We don't have the luxury of playing a JV schedule like a lot of first year programs. We've been thrown right to the wolves. But the kids are starting to get it. They're playing hard and they're playing tough. That's all I can ask at this point. There's plenty we can build off from this one."

Seventh grade booters romp, 7-1

Cohasset's undefeated 7th Grade soccer team continued their strong Cranberry League play with a solid team effort and a 7-1 victory on the road in Sharon on Saturday.

Andrew Littauer surprised Sharon in the first minute of play taking a nice pass from Ollie Forrer and blasting a towering 25-yard shot into the upper corner for a quick 1-0 advantage. Sharon had a chance to tie the game minutes later with a penalty kick award, but goalkeeper Will Evans deflected the shot up over the crossbar to protect the slim lead.

Minutes later speedy forward Brendan Doonan streaked in off a Jodi Rosano pass for his fourth goal of the season to put Cohasset up 2-0, but Sharon came right back, working the ball in deep and scoring on a nice passing play to make it 2-1 midway through the first half.

From there it was all Cohasset. Ollie Forrer continued his excellent midfield play setting up JoDi Rosano and Nick Cannon for scores. Jackson Dean and JoDi Rosano worked the ball in nicely to Brendan Doonan for his second goal of the game. Joe Leighton played another solid game at the left midfield position, sending JoDi Rosano in cleanly for his second goal of the game. Sam Game played very well from the right midfield position, and Andrew "The Leg" Littauer blasted another long shot into the upper corner for his second goal of the game midway through the second half.

Smart play on defense by James Earle, Andrew Graham and Justin Yeager kept Sharon's scoring chances to a minimum in the first half. Then with Will Evans, Nick Cannon and Brendan Doonan rotating in defensively, and Earle and Graham splitting the goalkeeping duties, Sharon failed to score at all in the second half.

With three road wins and no losses, the team's next league play will be on Saturday, October 16th at Milliken Field versus Plymouth.

winning goal with 10 minutes remaining in the first half. Junior Katie James re-directed a kick to junior Brooke Allen for the score.

Junior Aaron Bigley had six saves in the first half for Cohasset.

The Skippers made it 2-0 with five minutes remaining in the game when the team of James and Allen scored again, James assisting and Allen scoring.

Bigley made four saves in the second half for a total of 10 and his second shutout of the season. Cohasset played Carver to a 0-0 tie earlier in the season.

Against Scituate, Cohasset scored first midway through the first half. This time James did the scoring and Allen the assisting. With two minutes remaining in the opening half, Scituate's Melissa McGinley scored unassisted to tie the game.

The second half was something to see, with both teams playing superb defense.

The Hull win just seemed to explode into the net, according to coach Boswick.

"We never saw it coming," she admitted.

With nine minutes to go, a Hull player took a free hit and redirected it past Bigley for the lone score of the game.

"Our juniors have been coming along," declared the coach. "Obviously, we need a lot more scoring, but that's coming. The kids have shown tremendous potential and are now getting the varsity experience needed. We have been getting great play from people like Vanessa Plante, Alli Dean, Lizzie Condos, Allen, James, Bigley, Remy Lee and Allison Flutter, to mention a few."

Cavicchi proves one man wrecking crew for NHS golf team

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Cody Cavicchi: Skipper slayer

Don't expect to see Cody Cavicchi getting many invites to social functions in Cohasset any time soon.

This Norwell High freshman has been the difference in both showdowns this season between the Norwell (6-2) and Cohasset golf teams, taking 14.5 of 18 holes in matches determined by a combined total of just eight holes. Thus, in essence, the frosh phenom almost singlehandledly destroyed the Skippers (5-2-1) South Shore League title hopes while keeping his team's alive.

Cavicchi shot a day's best two-over 37 on the Skippers home Cohasset Golf Club course, last Friday, to capture 6.5 of a possible nine holes out of the number two spot for the Clippers against Skippers top player Kevin Barber (41), to lead his team to a surprising 29.5-24.5 victory.

"To be honest, that's not a match I felt real confident going into," said Norwell coach Ken Camerota. "But Cody just played out of his mind again, and we got strong play across the board.

"I don't know what it is about Cody and Cohasset, but he's played his best two rounds of the year against them, and it's proven huge for us."

Cavicchi also won eight of nine holes in go round number one between these teams, a match played on the Clippers' home Scituate Country Club course on Sept. 21, with a spectacular round of 36 to lead the charge toward handing the Skippers their first loss of the season, 28.5-25.5.

Of course, the freshman had plenty of help on Friday.

Senior captain Mike Dempsey won the last two holes to halve his match with Cohasset's Colin Magruder 41 out of the number one spot, 4.5-4.5, and both golfers wound up with matching 41s.

"That was a great clutch finish from Mike," lauded Camerota.

Norwell senior Bryan Shannon also came up big out of the fourth spot, shooting a 39 to earn a lopsided 7-2 decision over his Cohasset senior captain Tim Pilczak—the margin in the match, as it turned out.

"Bryan is really starting to come on with his driving," noted Camerota. "The rest of his game has been pretty solid all season, but now he's hitting his driver much more consistently than he was early on, and that's making a big difference for us."

Perhaps the most noteworthy improvement of late, however, has come out of the six hole and freshman Mike White. He shot a 41 to win his match, 5-4, on Friday over Coahsset's Dave Bouchard, and also hit a team best 40 at Strawberry Valley to help knock off Abington 24 hours before that.

Norwell sophomore Ryan Sweeney has actually been a pretty steady force out of the fifth hole all year, compiling a 5-1 record. His first loss of the season came at Cohasset, where he shot a 46 and lost seven of nine holes to CHS senior Ricky Lordan.

The sixth member of the Clippers starting squad, sophomore Brendan Gilligan, started the season red hot, topping the Clippers scoring chart on a few occasions. He'd gone into a bit of a slump for a few matches after that, but Camerota sees signs that he's coming back out now, with solid rounds of 43 and 45 against Abington and Cohasset, respectively, losing the first by a 4-5 margin and halving the other.

The win improved the Clippers to 6-2, while dropping the Skippers to 5-2-1, essentially out of the SSL title chase. If Cohasset beats Harwich (7-1) next Wedenesday at Cohasset, a feat it already pulled off on the road earlier this year, Norwell would win the league title by virtue of the tiebreaker.

The Clippers still have to play SSL rival Carver twice to keep this chance alive, but most would agree that shouldn't prove too tasking for the Norwell golfers. Still, Camerota is taking nothing for granted, especially yesterday's trek to the Crusaders sometimes tricky Southers Marsh course.

"Stranger things have happened," the veteran coach observed. "Sometimes certain courses just prove huge advantages. We play the matches for a reason."

The day wasn't a total loss for the Skippers, however, SSL rival Abington was in town to make it a tri-match. The Skippers had little trouble conquering the Green Wave, as the 40-14 final clearly indicates.

Skippers 29.5, Mashpee 24.5

Senior captain Tim Pilczak shot a season's best 39, Thursday, on Mashpee's par 35, Willowbend Golf Course to pace this SSL road win.

crisp second half. We were passing well through four or so passes then again just giving it away. Mashpee was not all that fast, so the defense had an easier game than the past few. Christine Lovallo, Danielle Hajjar, Charlotte Sida and Katie Bolger have been doing the brunt of the work back there and I feel for them, being a former sweeper myself, when the offense doesn't take advantage of all the hard work they do."

Beal was not criticizing the work ethic of her offensive players, but it's clear she think the execution should be better at this stage of the season.

"Offensive people are doing their job, but they are not scoring, and we need to figure out why," she said. "I have been swapping people around and trying new combinations, which has provided a little bit more comfort up front, but ultimately they need to finish to win games. I have been trying to tell them that a scoring opportunity has different meaning and value to different positions. Forwards score, that is their job and defenders move the ball up and defend their goal. The value of a goal to each is different. I sometimes think that the offense takes the defense for granted and vice versa."

And this is what she will address at length in practice over the next week.

"Can I teach them that scoring is team effort and each section of the field has a job to do in order to achieve the team goal?" she posed. "I am trying. Practice needs to change. Defenders need to play offense to be in their shoes and offense needs to experience the pressure that defenders feel every game. The midfielders are trying to keep the field balanced and are getting it. They understand their dual roles and execute them very well. Their positions are the most physically demanding. Nicole Whitney, Mackenzie Holway, Rachel and Carin Garber, Emily Coggins, Lara Novak and Molly Kirk are working hard to be opportunistic and supportive to offense and defense.

"Up front, Casey Anderson, Lauren Rizzotti, Lindsey Kennedy, Lindsay Durkin, Emilie Shea and Christina Pinkus are striving to perfect their shots, crosses and passes to create more scoring opportunities. Some junior varsity players have been reported as really improving their games and hopefully, come tourney time, will peak and help us out."

JV coach Carla Gigon reports that Colleen Richardson, Cassie Rosano, Molly Trahon and Jen Dinger have all been playing well.

Keepers Melissa Crowley-Buck and Cecelia Chapman continue to split time in net. With tournament time slowly creeping up, though, Beal anticipates a duel for the slot.

"Speaking of tournament play, though, we need to get there first," said Beal. "With eight games remaining and sitting at a little over .500 now, we need to maintain this pace and pick up the winnable ones."

The coach figures there are winnable opportunities" this coming week, with a trip to Holbrook tomorrow, a hosting of SSL rival Abington Wednesday and a trip to Carver next Friday.

"Let's see what we can get done in those three and move on from there," she concluded.

Beal was much more unhappy with this tie than she was over the two shutout losses—both at the hands of two of those aforementioned "monsters"— that preceded them, a 3-0 loss to red hot Scituate (5-3-1) on Saturday and an 8-0 loss to unbeaten league powerhouse Norwell on Wednesday.

"We lost to Scituate Saturday in a game that I thought we played very well," said Beal. "Considering we got thumped by Norwell and only had one day of practice to regroup we pulled off a good game."

The ladies of the Broad Cove barbershop quartet (from left: Sally Davenport and Lynn Anderson of Hingham, Anne Reel and Betts Murray of Cohasset) are already in the spirit of Gala, the 26th annual harvest of song to be presented by the Unicorn Singers and Broad Cove Chorale at Norwell's Cushing Center on Friday and Saturday, October 15 and 16 at 8 p.m.

Gala Harvest of Song at Cushing Center

Director Margo Euler of Hingham and the 40 area singers and musicians of the Unicorn Singers and the Broad Cove Chorale will present their 26th annual Gala at the Cushing Center in Norwell on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 15 and 16 at 8 p.m.

This year's event will feature jazzy standards, men's and women's barbershop quartets, the elegant choral work "From An Unknown Past" by Ned Rorem and some humorous political satire. Arrangements created by two of the group's own singers, Rich Jensen and Bob Ruplenas (both of Weymouth) will also be performed and range from a racy lute song to hits from the swing era and the 60s!

For the evening's finale the group's accompanist Lenae Badger of Scituate will be joined at the piano by Marcia Babcock of Norwell, for a four-hands medley of Rodgers and Hammerstein's Carousel. The singers will perform in costume. Soloists include Jeanne Scammell of Norwell, Ed Bartholomew of Hingham, Jo-An Heileman of Cohasset, Rich Jensen of Weymouth and Dave Clinton of Hull.

An elegant wine and hors d'oeuvre reception follows the concert. Tickets for Gala are $25 or $15 for students and will be available at the door. Kings and ekdesigns team up for breast cancer awareness

As calendar pages turned to mark October's arrival, King Jewelers again welcomed Elizabeth Kissick and hosted an ekdesigns jewelry show featuring the Fall 2004 Collection. In keeping with tradition, the event held on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 2, heralded the beginning of Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Kissick, Cohasset resident and designer of the stylish and elegant jewelry line, was at the store to visit with customers and discuss her newest fall and holiday pieces. Kings, the first fine jeweler to offer Kissick's works is pleased to show case the creations of this community member and talented artist. The store offers one of the largest assortments of the collection in the region.

Among the new items introduced in the fall collection are "candy necklaces and bracelets" of deliciously pastel hand blown beads and fresh water pearls. "Sandy Beach" jewelry and the "Cranberry Bog" bracelet pay tribute to beautiful treasures of the New England Coast. Kissick's latest signature piece is a breathtaking bracelet whimsically named, "Take It In" to symbolize the inspirational message it conveys; "The present is a gift....take it in."

Val King, Treasurer of King Jewelers said, "We are happy to welcome Elizabeth to the store once again to be part of our Breast Cancer Awareness Month activities. ekdesigns is a wonderful addition to our jewelry assortment. The Fall 2004 pieces are imaginative and beautiful and every bit as lovely as we anticipated."

This season, Kissick has expanded her "jewelry with meaning" collection to include pins for both survivors of the disease and those who support them. Sleek and understated, these pins are engraved with the word "survivor" or "supporter" and adorned with a simple pink crystal or pearl. Each piece is hand tied and the drop is suspended in an exclusively crafted silver bead frame. Everyone touched in any way by cancer can wear this hopeful symbol to represent the determination to find a cure for this disease. Also available are awareness ribbon earrings in sterling silver and a breast cancer bracelet fashioned from silver, crystal and varying shades of pink hand blown beads.

Elizabeth Kissick, left, and Valerie King wear ekdesigns "supporter pins" as they prepare for a jewelry show at King Jewelers in Cohasset Plaza. The show began fundraising efforts for Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

This season, Kissick has expanded her "jewelry with meaning" collection to include pins for both survivors of the disease and those who support them.

"This pin is being worn by so many people who care and want to help in the battle against cancer," stated Kissick. "It is subtle but its message is clear. To people fighting the disease, it is so encouraging to see others wearing Breast Cancer Awareness jewelry. It says that support is widespread and that we are united in the hope for a cure."

Val King explained Breast Cancer Awareness holds particular importance to the Kings. "Our mother is a 15-year survivor of breast cancer. We are so fortunate to have her with us today as a vital part of the family and the business. Another member of our company is a survivor of almost five years. We have been touched in so many ways by this disease as have so many people in our community.

"This event with ekdesigns has become such a meaningful tradition. With each sale, we know we are serving those both known and unknown to us who are confronting this devastating illness. Also, we are optimistic that this event will encourage all women to visit their doctors regularly and remember that early detection is a key to survival."

King Jewelers will make a donation from ekdesigns sales in the store during October to benefit programs for those touched by breast cancer. For more information, call 781-383-1755, or visit King Jewelers, 380 Route 3A, Cohasset.

St. Stephen's hold faith-based classes

St. Stephen's is announcing a new contemporary series of faith-based classes called Via Media. The program is open to anyone who has ever been curious or interested in the Episcopal/Anglican tradition. The objective is to create an open and inclusive environment that appeals to people wondering about the Episcopal church or St. Stephen's as well as its existing congregation members. People are encouraged to bring their ideas and questions. Informational resources and a place to exchange your thoughts and voice your opinions will be provided.

Over a period of eight weeks, St. Stephen's invites those seeking a spiritual community to enter both the journey and the conversation. Using a combination of learning styles which includes video, written materials, small group discussion and large group forum, a group of people encounter the basic principles of Christianity through the Anglican approach of Scripture, Tradition and Reason. All people are encouraged to ask questions, and to learn how to answer their own questions of faith.

There is no charge for this course and dinner is included each week. Please contact Rev. Beth Wheatley-Dyson at 781-383-1083 for more information or to sign up to participate.

Glastonbury Abbey lecture series to start

The Benedictine Monks in Hingham announce the Glastonbury Series, "Listening to Other Voices: The Roots That Feed Us — How the Stories of Our Past Continue to Give Meaning and Direction to Our Present ."

This is the sixth year for the abbey's lecture series, which offers an opportunity for people of all denominations and faiths on the South Shore to participate in inter-religious conversation.

The theme this year explores how various religious traditions continue to nurture one today. This year's speakers represent Native American, Buddhist, Jewish and Christian traditions and use poetry, war, dance, science, tradition and the ancient art of storytelling as invitation to listen to their voices in dialogue with one's own particular religious tradition.

The series begins Thursday, Oct. 14 at 7:15 p.m. at Glastonbury Abbey Conference Center with Dr. Mark Burrows, professor of Andover Newton Theological School. His theme is "Poetry as a Path to Wisdom and_Contemplation." Dr. Burrows is an acclaimed expert on mysticism, poetics and spirituality. He is an Oblate-novice of Glastonbury Abbey and an ordained clergyman in the United Church of Christ.

The series will continue with:

- James Carroll, Nov.18, "The Moral Legacy of War from Vietnam to Iraq"
- Nikki Hu, Jan. 20, "Dances By a Buddhist Descendent"
- Dr. Joan King, Feb. 17, "Our Bodies—Inner Teachers of Wisdom"
- Ven. Dhyani Ywahoo , April 7, "The Dance of Wisdom Arising"
- Nehemia Polen, May 5, "The Inner Wisdom of Hasidic Tales"

Temple welcomes Cantor Steven Weiss

Congregation Sha'aray Shalom in Hingham has expanded its religious, educational and spiritual leadership with Cantor Steven Weiss. This is the first time Congregation Sha'aray Shalom has an invested Cantor who has full rights and privileges as a spiritual leader. Weiss will work closely with Rabbi Shira Joseph to enrich every aspect of congregational life through Jewish music, youth and adult educational programs, adult and youth choir, service leadership, Bar and Bat Mitzvah, community outreach, and more.

"Cantor Weiss brings a wealth of musical talent, experience and profound insight into Judaism to Congregation Sha'aray Shalom," said Rabbi Shira Joseph. "He will provide another very critical and deeply meaningful dimension to our Congregation's religious and spiritual leadership, allowing us to offer a more comprehensive center and resource for Jewish study and worship on the South Shore."

Before joining Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, Weiss was the Cantor at Temple Kol Emeth in Marietta Ga., a congregation of 900 families. He was responsible for music programming, leadership of services, education planning, implementation and teaching, officiating life-cycle events and counseling. Cantor Weiss trained 100-125 students per year for B'nai Mitzvah, co-lead Sabbath, Weekday, High Holy Day and Festival Services, conceptualized and organized religious services, and introduced new and innovative music to worship experiences, including the use of instruments. He was also involved with synagogue management and fund raising, serving as director of education, overseeing extensive building expansion, and establishing an annual golf tournament and other fund-raisers.

Cantor Weiss earned a master's degree in sacred music, Cantorial Investiture from Hebrew Union College, Jewish Institute of Religion. He received a bachelor of science in human resource management/opera performance from Ithaca College.

From Friday Oct. 15 through Oct. 17, there will be a special weekend-long celebration at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom where the Cantor will be formally installed, and he will perform with colleagues from throughout the country in a Cantor's Concert, "From Bible to Broadway." The Cantor's Concert, Saturday, Oct. 16, at 8 p.m., will be open to Congregants and the greater community. Tickets will be available at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom: 781-749-8103.

Nevis Nirvana

Little to do and a lot to love on tiny Caribbean isle

By FRAN GOLDEN NEVIS

Why did the sheep cross the runway? To get to the other side. "Do the sheep know to stay off the runway?" a concerned passenger asked a cabdriver, as sheep blocked the roadway. "Sometimes," the cabbie replied with a hearty laugh. Low-key Caribbean can be defined by this round little British West Indies island, 200 miles south of Puerto Rico. Only seven miles long and five miles wide, Nevis is big on natural attractions. There are stunning green mountains and lush rain forests. There are white sand beaches fronting shallow ocean water. There are green monkeys (they came over with British sailors from Africa centuries ago). And there are sheep, lots of sheep, and goats, too; more sheep and goats than the 10,000-person populace. There are also pigs, as a friend and I witnessed while walking down to the beach one day from our bungalow digs at Nisbet Plantation Beach Club, a pretty, small resort, once a sugar plantation, where the great lawn of the 1778 Great House leads to the sea.

We had chosen Nisbet (named for Fannie Nisbet, wife of Admiral Horatio Nelson) because we wanted a real getaway from hectic work schedules and family obligations: Give us sunshine, ocean, potent fruity drinks and a chance to unwind. The property's beachside hammocks, strung between palm trees and slowly rocking in the constant breeze, proved a big bonus. A hammock, a good book and a pina colada: Nirvana. We got the added bonus of friendly general Don Johnson (no, not that Don Johnson) and his wife, Kathie, a native of Wilbraham. There seemed to be a theme on the island, as the resort's drivers were Marlon Brando and Calvin Klein — the former grew up near a movie theater and the latter took the name so people would remember him. Nisbet's 36 guest rooms are located in 15 cottages spread across 30 acres. They are being renovated, but the design theme is comfortably casual, tropical nice. Since unwinding is the thing, there are no TVs. (You can have a VCR or DVD player upon request.)

Sit outside and you'll hear the sounds of wind, birds, farm animals and ocean. You won't see many other people on the half-mile-long beach or on the tennis court. And even though I was here with a girlfriend, I can tell you the place spells romance, a great destination for couples looking for a low-key, togetherness getaway. Meals at Nisbet are taken in the fine dining room of the beautifully restored Great House or next to the beachside pool at the open-air Coconuts bar/cafe. Rates include breakfast, dinner and afternoon tea. The big resort crowd on Nevis heads to the Four Seasons, an expensive property that pretty much put this island on the map when it opened in 1991. Twenty-five percent of the island's population works at the Four Seasons, where 60 percent of the island's visitors stay. It's a big luxury player with 196 rooms, a Robert Trent Jones II golf course, million-dollar villas, a celebrity crowd, all the expected resort amenities, the best beach and, when we were on the island, 200 kids among the guests. Not that there's anything wrong with any of that. It's a matter of what you're looking for. (Jimmy Buffett stayed at Nisbet. Need I say more?)

Still, visitors must stop next to the Four Seasons at Sunshine's, a shack on the beach where the likes of Britney Spears, Kelly Ripa, Sarah Jessica Parker, Whitney Houston and Bobby Brown (to name a few of the celebrities whose photos are on the wall) have learned the sting of the "killer bees." Have one of the lethal rum drinks and you'll feel the buzz; have two and you'll be staring at the ceiling. Sunshine is from St. Kitts and don't let his Rasta locks fool you — he lives in a villa at the Four Seasons. The grilled seafood here is pretty darned good, too. Those who can tear themselves away from Sunshine's and the beach long enough to explore the island will find Charlestown, the capital, exceptionally sleepy. The town is most noteworthy as the birthplace of Alexander Hamilton, the first secretary of the U.S. Treasury and the man killed in a duel with Aaron Burr. Look in your pocket or pocketbook and you'll probably find Hamilton there; his face is on the $10 bill. Today, Hamilton's former abode is the island's House of Parliament and downstairs is a small historical museum that's worth a look. Also of historical interest is the Old Jewish Burial Ground dating to 1679. It's hard to believe in the late 17th and early 18th centuries the value of exports from Nevis surpassed those from the colony of New York. In the early 19th century, Nevis actually led the world in sugar production. Today, the main business other than tourism is offshore banking. Religion is big here, too. The island is home to more than 55 churches, including the oldest in the Caribbean still in use — the 1643 church is on a hillside near the Four Seasons.

Nisbet Plantation Beach.

Alexander Hamilton's home in Charlestown.

Like Nisbet, other plantations have been turned into inns, including Montpelier, located high in the mountains, where Princess Diana was once among the guests. (Packages are available that combine a mountain stay at Montpelier with a beach stay at Nisbet.) A trip into the mountains at least for a day is highly recommended. Jim Johnson, the island's naturalist (an American, he first came here with the Peace Corps), leads a variety of reasonably priced tours and is an encyclopedia of scientific, regional and local names of the various flora and fauna. "I will let you eat termites if you like," he told our group of four on a two-hour Jessup Rain Forest Hike ($20 per person). We saw a 700-year-old Burn Fig tree and a rare bridal quail dove. We passed on the termites, but did try lemony tamarind (an ingredient in Worcestershire sauce) and fat pork fruit, which makes you pucker. On the way to meet Johnson, we passed a troop of monkeys in the road. And we saw a Rasta guy with a machete heading into the forest. On this island there is no fast food. There are no casinos. There is little shopping. But there are other delights. If you go. . .

STAYING THERE: From Oct. 15 to Dec. 15, stay six nights or longer at Nisbet Plantation and save $600. With the discount, the starting price for a six-day visit is $1,140 to $1,440 per couple including breakfast and dinner. High season rates are from $575 per couple, per night, including the meals. Book through Island Resort Reservations, 800-742-6008, or go to www.nisbetplantation.com. GETTING THERE: American Eagle recently increased service to Nevis, and during the high season, beginning Nov. 15, will offer two daily flights from San Juan. The flying time is one hour. For reservations, call 800-433-7300 or go to www.aa.com. You also can fly to nearby St. Kitts and get to Nevis by boat.

With "Gem of the Ocean," Tony- and Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright August Wilson ("Fences," "The Piano Lesson") presents his ninth work, and the first chronologically, in a stirring 10-play cycle dealing with the life of black Americans in the 20th century. The story takes place in 1904, when slavery was still a living memory. It is set in Pittsburgh's Hill District, where Wilson himself later grew up, a predominantly black neighborhood which grew out of the massive migration of former slaves to northern industrial cities at the turn of the last century. In "Gem," Wilson explores the challenges which face some of these people after the Emancipation Proclamation, when their dreams of a better life are replaced by the reality of low-paying jobs and societal repression.

At the physical and emotional heart of the play — currently being presented in Boston by the Huntington Theatre Company — is the mythical and mystical Aunt Ester, who at 285 years old was born the year the the first slave arrived in America. Phylicia Rashad brings this captivating character to rich, vivid life as an elderly woman with tremendous dignity and palpable prescience. Ester presides over a dilapidated, but still grand home that is a kind of safe house for her relatives and friends.

When Citizen Barlow, a traveler from the South, arrives at the old woman's residence he is in search of a spiritual uplift, but instead finds himself at the center of a tragic maelstrom. It is a testament to Wilson's extraordinary talent that this dramatic plot point dominates, but does not overshadow the insights "Gem" provides about its equally interesting other characters.

Kenny Leon deftly directs a superb cast, led by the amazing Rashad, best-known as Clair Huxtable on TV's long-running "The Cosby Show." Joining Rashad is an excellent company of actors, many of whom have appeared in earlier Wilson plays, including Ruben Santiago-Hudson, LisaGay Hamilton, Anthony Chisolm, and John Earl Jelks. The scenic design by David Gallo, costumes by Constanza Romero and lighting by Donald Holder are all first-rate, befitting a production that will open on Broadway next month.

(August Wilson's "The Gem of Ocean" will be at the Boston University Theatre, 264 Huntington Avenue, through Oct. 30. For tickets and information, call the Huntington Theatre Company at 617/266-0800 or visit www.huntingtontheatre.org.)

LISTEN To Life

by John Klefeker, BC-HIS

Board Certified-Hearing Instrument Specialist, MA Lic. #127

IS THIS RINGING FAMILIAR?

More than 50 million Americans experience some degree of ringing, buzzing, or humming in their heads that keeps them awake at night and distracts them during the day. About 2 million people are debilitated by this condition, called tinnitus, in which there is ringing or other sounds in one or both ears without any outside source. Tinnitus is a symptom, not a disease, and its cause is unknown. It often occurs along with noise-induced hearing loss or age-related hearing loss. It can also be a side effect of medication (including aspirin, quinine, and some antibiotics). If tinnitus is associated with hearing loss, a hearing instrument will increase the sounds that should be heard and may help drown out the ringing.

Communication is a vital part of our world today. Don't let a hearing impairment keep you on the outside looking in - help is available. The first step to take, though, is a consultation with a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist. Extensively trained in the science of evaluating hearing loss and the proper fitting of appropriate hearing aids, we at FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER are especially skilled at determining the extent of hearing loss and the most effective way of dealing with it. Have your hearing tested for free at 534 Main St (Rt. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth. Ph: 781-337-1144.

P.S. A hearing instrument can be combined with a masking system that creates "white noise" to reduce the ringing of tinnitus.

Budget report shows expenses adding up

Some line items are out of whack

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Budget discussions are underway early this year, and Town Manager Michael Buckley said already, just three months into the fiscal year, he is concerned about a number of inflated line items.

As part of what will become quarterly budget reports, Buckley presented an overview of the town's financial status to the Board of Selectmen Oct. 5, outlining line items he expects will need to be voted on at the Dec. 6 Special Town Meeting. His overview was based only on figures for the town, as School Supt. Denise Walsh and School Financial Assistant Karen Park will be developing a separate school budget.

Buckley's report included the original appropriation for the items, the amount expended so far, the amount available, and what percent of the funds appropriated have been spent. He said at this stage, where the town has only completed three months of the new fiscal year, he would like to see most line items coming in at roughly 26 percent expended. However, he said there are number of items which already exceed 30 or 40 percent, and a few are over or close to exceeding the total amount allocated.

One of the most concerning line items for Buckley are the legal expenses. The original appropriation was $120,000, which includes a $54,000 retainer, meaning the town has $66,000 to pay Town Counsel for non-retainer issues. During the months of July and August, the first two months of the fiscal year, the town spent $52,294, of which $13,500 were costs covered by the retainer.

Buckley said he thinks the town will need at least another $80,000 to cover legal costs for the rest of the fiscal year.

Buckley said he thinks the town will need at least another $80,000 to cover legal costs for the rest of the fiscal year. He also pointed out the figure is based on the amount paid, and not the amount accrued, and 44 percent of the town's total allocation has been spent. "What you see does not bode well for the town," Buckley said.

Selectman Ronnie McMorris said she would like to see Town Counsel come in on a quarterly basis to review the cases the town is involved with and the stages they are

Landmine survivor to talk at St. Stephen's

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

When not at work in Washington, D.C., Jerry White can be found travelling the globe talking to anyone who will listen about the danger of landmines.

White — who worked with the late Princess Diana and now works with Queen Noor of Jordan — co-founded the Landmine Survivors Network in 1995 to help the hundreds of landmine survivors alive today.

White will return to Cohasset, his hometown, this weekend to hold a community meeting at 11:30 a.m., Sunday (Oct. 17) at St. Stephen's Church to discuss the eradication of landmines and a proposed, new U.N. treaty for the rights of people with disabilities.

The Cohasset native, whose mother Mimi White lives on Sheldon Road, knows the subject well.

Back in 1984, armed only with a backpack and an Arabic and Hebrew dictionary, the then 20-year-old White set out to explore Israel on a biking trip. The Cohasset High School and Brown University graduate had no idea that he and two friends had entered a landmine field. They camped overnight and the next day White stepped on a mine which cost him part of his right leg. The mines had been planted there years before by Syrian soldiers hoping to kill Israeli troops.

Princess Diana and LSN co-founders Ken Rutherford and Jerry White (far right) visit with Bosnia survivors Malic and Zarco during the princess' much publicized humanitarian trip to Bosnia in August 1997.

White, who lives in Silver Springs, Md. with his wife and four children, founded LSN with another amputee, Ken Rutherford. The association's mission is to ban the production, stockpiling, use and export of anti-personnel landmines. LSN also advocates for the disabled – some 600 million people worldwide. Eighty percent of that number live in developing countries and 82 percent live in poverty, White says.

He explained lack of accessibility prevents people with disabilities from fully participating in their communities.

The Very Reverend E. Clifford Cutler, rector of St. Stephen's Church, said White has many friends in the parish and he seemed like the "perfect person to talk about including people with disabilities in community life."

White's talk is part of a capital campaign at St. Stephen's to install an elevator in a new annex to be built between the newer Wilson Parish House and the older Tudor-style parish house at the church. The elevator will make all floors of the two parish houses accessible.

"Jerry is awesome," Cutler says. "He really has a passion to see that everyone is included in the life in the community and that is what

Is it back to the drawing board?

Lone bid too high for village work

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Bids are in for the downtown streetscape project, and the Board of Selectmen is disappointed with the results. Of the 14 companies that responded, only one company actually submitted a bid for the project, and its proposal isn't viable for the town.

"It exceeds our budget even for the base bid," said Selectman Ralph Dormitzer.

Town Manager Michael Buckley said the town originally had a budget of $1.5 million set aside to pay for improvements to the downtown streetscape. The new streetscape is part of the $1.8 million Village Revitalization Project, which is being paid for by grants and private donations. The project has been in the works for upwards of seven years and the discussions surrounding the design of the Village streetscape have been going on for 2-1/2 years.

The Waterfield Design Group — consulting engineers based out of Winchester who were hired by former Town Manager Mark Haddad in the spring of 2002 — has been paid $350,000 so far to design and redesign the downtown plans. With all the redesigns, Buckley said the town has $1.15 million left to complete the project, which will have to include provisions to pay for construction administration and oversight.

Weymouth-based Northern Construction Services bid on the project and provided three different scenarios for streetscape options, not including the cost of labor or project oversight.

- Its most conservative bid, which includes streetscapes and infrastructure improvements with concrete sidewalks, would cost $1,270,245. To add crosswalk pavers, the town would be charged an additional $133,650.
- The second alternate would cost the town $1,403,591 for concrete sidewalks with a bluestone band. This option could also include crosswalk pavers.
- Alternate number three includes sidewalk pavers for a total of $1,456,000 with the option of adding crosswalk pavers.

Selectman Rob Spofford said he would like to speak with someone from the Waterfield Design Group about the issue.

"They're our professionals and I'd like to hear from them why we only had one bid," said Spofford.

Spofford also said when the

Correction is noted

All 37 of the Cook Estate's proposed rental units will "count" toward the town's affordable housing stock, even though 28 are considered "affordable." To encourage developers and towns to create affordable rental housing, the state allows all rentals to go toward meeting its 10 percent affordability threshold. The Mariner regrets the error.

Another perfect MCAS score

Congratulations to grade eight student Cameron Cope who just received his Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System test, or MCAS results and was pleased to see he scored a perfect 280 in science. Cameron is one of only a few Cohasset students to have received perfect scores on their grade level's MCAS test.

Board of Selectmen cancelled meeting

The Selectmen's meeting slated for Tuesday, Oct. 12 was cancelled do to a lack of a quorum. The cable company was also experiencing technical difficulties and the meeting would not have been broadcast had the meeting been held. The company expects broadcasting to be halted until Friday, Oct. 15.

The next meeting of the board, slated for Tuesday, Oct. 19, will include a liquor license hearing for Pizza Zone, which will move into the former Atlantic Bagel space on 3A next to Good Sport. In addition, the Conservation Commission will come before the board to discuss three new appointments to the board. Chairman of the Board of Health Steve Bobo will discuss a new Wastewater Management Plan drafted for the town, and if there is time, the board will re-appointment residents to the various town boards.

While a sewer forum had been slated for Oct. 19, that date has been pushed back. Town Manager Michael Buckley said the board wanted to meet with Town Counsel as well as Jack Dawley of Northland, the company the town is working with to build on the Cook Estate, before holding the sewer forum. Dawley must prove all options have been exhausted in terms of alternative wastewater solutions before his project can be considered for town sewer. In addition, Town Counsel needs to give the board advice on how to proceed with the forum as there are many legal questions surrounding giving out capacity.

Buckley said the sewer forum may be moved up to Thursday, Oct. 28, to allow the night to be dedicated entirely to the sewer. The dates will be hopefully be set at the next meeting.

Devising a strategy for the future of the school district

Marathon meetings are slated this month

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Over the past two months, the School Committee has been working with Supt. Denise Walsh to gather a small group of parents, teachers, school administrators and other town officials to create a high-level strategic plan for the district. Now that the goal of renovating and expanding the school buildings is complete, it is time to chart the next course, and the district is looking for community feedback.

On Oct. 22 from 2 to 9 p.m. and Oct. 23 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., the 19 strategic planning committee members will meet to discuss the future of the schools for the next three to five years. Members of the committee include Walsh, Town Manager Michael Buckley, Cohasset Middle High School Principal Jack DeLorenzo, Deer Hill Principal Keith Gauley, Osgood School Principal Janet Sheehan, Student Services Director Linda Gill, Police Chief James Hussey, Advisory Committee Chairman Donna McGee, School Financial Assistant Karen Park, and all five School Committee members: Chairman Rick Shea, Rick Flynn, Adrienne MacCarthy, Chartis Tebbetts, and Jamie Williams. In addition, two parents to be announced by the PSO and two teachers to be announced by the Cohasset Teacher's Association will also attend the meeting, as well as Kathryn Earle of Touchstone Advisors who will serve as the facilitator.

Since the beginning of the school year, the School Committee and Walsh have been discussing embarking on a strategic planning process. Walsh said there are plans which date back to 1995 and 1999, and it is time the district update plans for the future.

"We've been gathering data and budget information," said Walsh, which will be brought to the committee on Oct. 22. After the meeting, the School Committee will bring the information back to the public and forums where residents can give feedback will be held, which will be followed by a finalization of the plans.

Some of the key goals during the planning session will be finding ways for the school and town to work effectively together. A consensus will be made regarding the best path for change an improvement to the schools, and the schools' missions, visions, and values will be confirmed and/or updated.

For more information, please contact Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh at (781) 383-6111 or via e-mail at dwalsh@cohassetk12.org.

Landmine survivor to talk at St. Stephen's

we are all about as a church."

Although the Americans With Disabilities Act helped make the U.S. more accessible to the disabled than is the case in many other countries – White says the LSN philosophy mirrors the proverb " drop, drop, ocean."

"Every drop makes a bucket of change," he says and he applauds St. Stephen's for launching its capital campaign to make the parish fully accessible.

Over the years, White's work with LSN had taken him to all corners of the world.

In August 1997, Princess Diana chose LSN to host her three-day visit to Bosnia where she went house to house visiting landmine survivors and their families. In a note, she personally thanked White and the work of LSN for "allowing me to share your endeavors first-hand in Bosnia."

"He really has a passion to see that everyone is included in life in the community and that is what we are all about as a church."

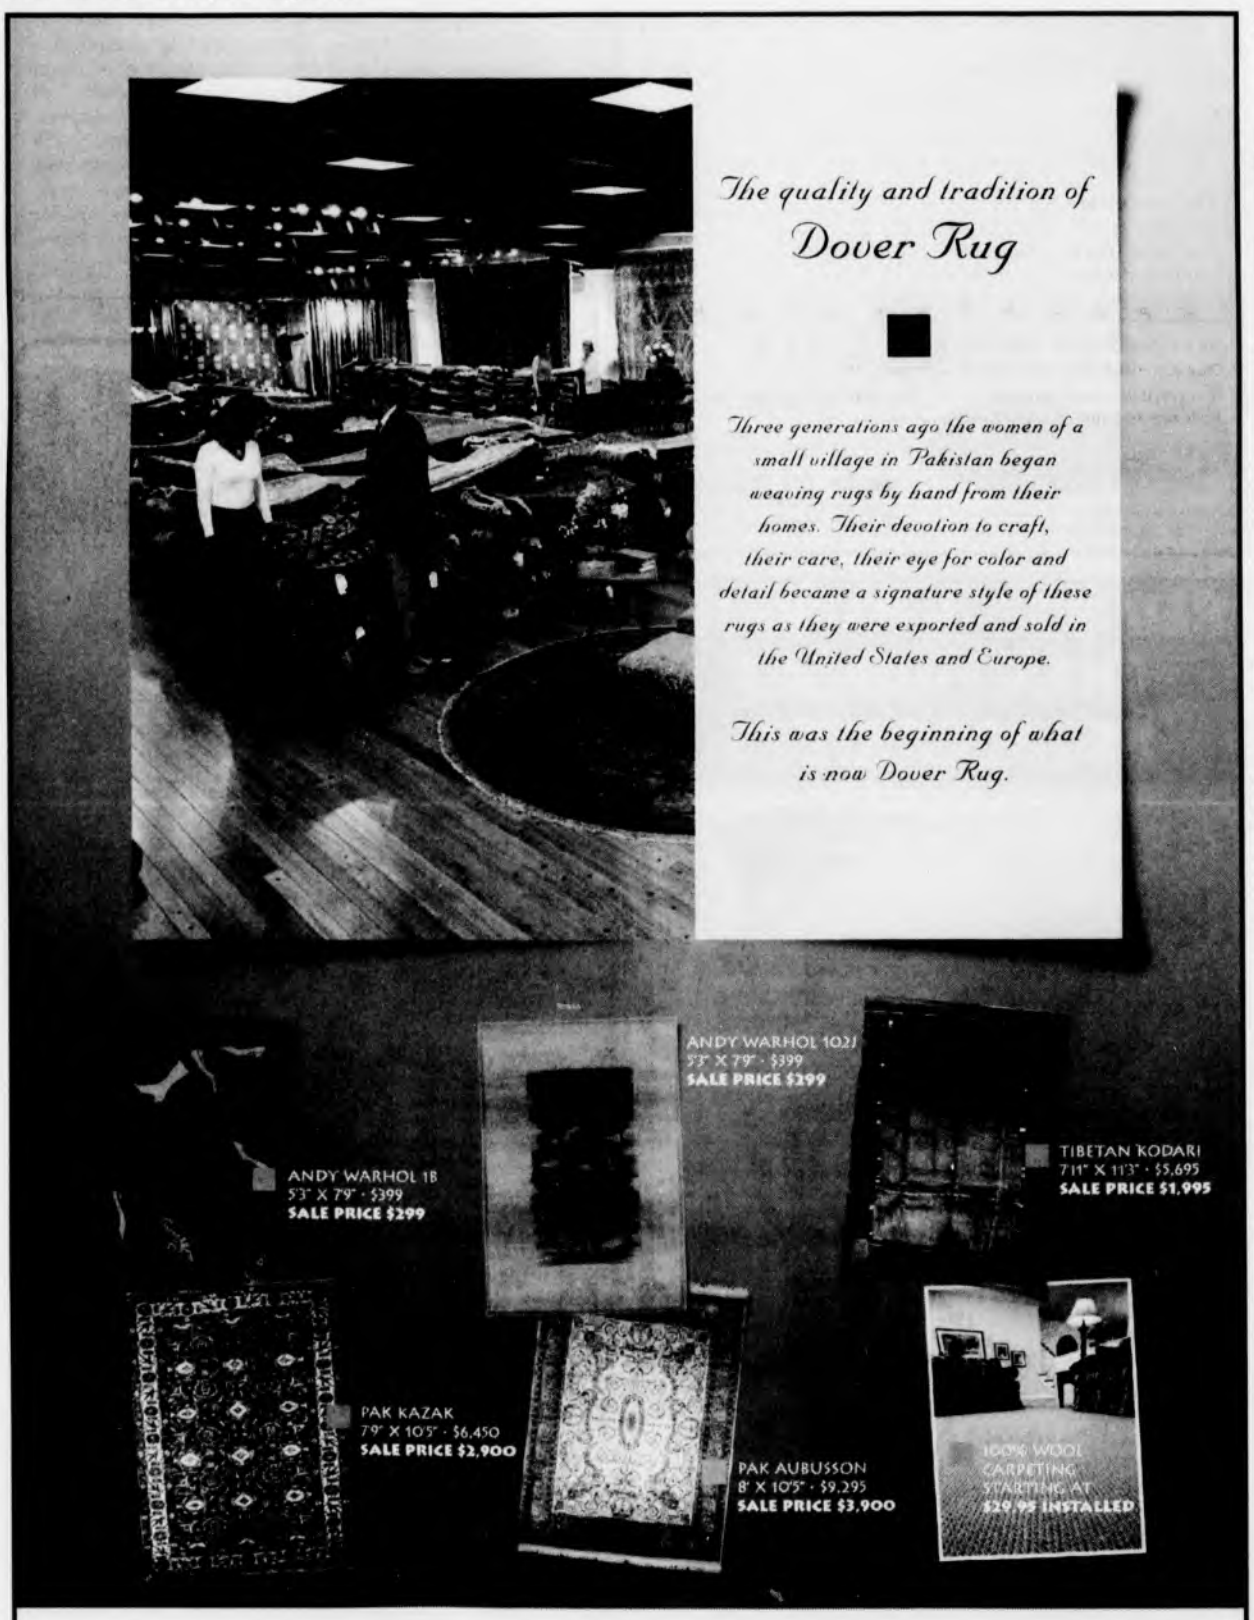
— The Very Reverend E. Clifford Cutler, St. Stephen's

In April 2003, Jordan continued its longstanding commitment to demining and the Mine Ban Treaty with a dramatic destruction of almost 6,000 mines, its last stockpile. Yet nearly 200,000 mines are still estimated to lie in the Jordan Valley, and they must be removed by May 2009. Here Jerry White meetis with Jordanian Royal Corps of Engineers.

KEVIN MAZUR, ADOPT-A-MINEFIELD, BENEFIT GALA, 2002

Lady Heather Mills McCartney and Sir Paul McCartney presented LSN Co-Founders Jerry White and Ken Rutherford with the Adopt-A-Minefield Humanitarian Award for their leadership in the global landmine movement at a benefit gala in Los Angeles in September 2002.

A few weeks later, White had planned to take flowers to the princess to thank her for her work in Bosnia but sadly attended her funeral instead. Representatives from the charities the princess supported, including LSN, were invited to Westminster Abbey for the service.



In November 1997, White was off to Norway for the Nobel Peace Prize award ceremony. LSN shared in the prize awarded to the International Campaign to Ban Landmines.

LSN's patron is now Queen Noor of Jordan. White said Noor understands the issue because 200,000 land mines still pollute the Jordan Valley and efforts to remove them are continuing. Jordan was one of the first counties in the Middle East to sign the global landmine treaty.

White says the U.S. and Cuba are the only two nations in the Western Hemisphere not to have yet banned landmines. He notes that Lincoln Bloomfield, Jr., also of Cohasset, is President Bush's special representative on landmine activity.

"There are two Cohasset people front and center on the landmine issue – Linc is working with the Pentagon," he says.

For more information on White's visit to St. Stephen's, call the church office at 781-383-1083.

KoKo Island one step closer to renovations

Pratt votes against project

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Developers who would like to see the KoKo Island and Hair Affair site revamped into a combined family restaurant and Dunkin' Donuts with a drive-up window, are one step closer, as the Planning Board voted 2-1 last week to approve the site plan with conditions.

Planning Board members Michael Westcott and Stuart Ivimey voted in favor of the site plan, while Peter Pratt voted against it. Chairman Al Moore, who lives on Fairoaks Lane and is therefore considered an abutter to the project, has recused himself from all KoKo Island discussion. Bob Sturdy was away for much of the summer and did not attend previous hearings, and therefore did not vote on the matter.

Pratt said he voted against the site plans because he feels the proposed Dunkin' Donuts drive-thru window, slated for the Hair Affair building, will have a negative impact on 3A traffic. He said because that area of 3A, which intersects with Sohier Street and is heavily traveled, has already received an "F" rating for level of service. "This would delay traffic too much at this point," he said, adding many abutters agree.

Pratt said he admires developer Michael Tack's commitment to mitigate the concerns for the site, and said he has made a substantial investment to improve the site. However, "There is such a challenging traffic problem, and if Avalon is built, they're essentially across the street," he said.

The proposed Avalon development plans to locate its main entryway on the other side of 3A, across from the KoKo Island entrance. That development is slated to build 200 units of rental housing, which could produce two cars each. Pratt said developers have already come to the board looking to build another building between Sunrise Assisted Living and the medical building located off Crocker Lane, which would add even more traffic to 3A. Currently, a building is in the process of being built where the Sweet Surprises candy store used to stand on the other side of Crocker Lane. There have also been rumors that Hingham Lumber will be looking to expand in the future.

Pratt said with the Greenbush line on its way, 3A will soon have a train station just up the road from the KoKo Island site. That traffic will be added to the roadway, and will be very heavy during commuting hours. While it had been thought the intersection at the station would include a traffic light, "That's not a done deal," he said.

"It was arguably the most difficult vote I've taken in years."

— Peter Pratt, Planning Board

In addition, the proposed Cook Estate site, slated to be located off Sohier Street, would have 95-units of housing. Couple that with traffic from both the Deer Hill and Osgood schools during the school year, and summer traffic from the South Shore Music Circus — all of which are located on Sohier Street — and Pratt said he could not in good conscience give his approval to the project.

"It was arguably the most difficult vote I've taken in years," said Pratt.

Renovation plans include reducing the points of egress from two down to one, and adding green space where there is currently concrete. In addition, dedicated fire lanes have been added, a fire hydrant has been added to the front lot, and the parking has been redirected in front.

Rick Bryant of Rizzo Assiciates has provided a traffic report regarding the proposed site plan and said the traffic configuration works because the lot is on the right side of the road, and will provide easy access for those traveling north to swing in, purchase their morning coffee, and get back on the road. In addition, because the lot is so large, he said it will help keep vehicles off the street while in the queue, and it provides a large amount of parking.

The site will feature 59 parking spaces, and there will be room for 16 cars in the drive-up line. With that in mind, Bryant said the site can actually accommodate 75 cars. He said because the restaurant will only use the parking at night and the Dunkin' Donuts will use the majority of its spaces during the morning and afternoon hours, the two businesses will be able to share the space.

While Bryant said it is impossible to be able to tell the exact amount of traffic the site will generate, it will not add to the amount of traffic Cohasset sees. He said most likely only locals and people who already travel the road will stop to get coffee, and the site will not generate any more traffic than already passes by.

With two members of the Planning Board voting in the affirmative, the project is halfway there in terms of permitting. Developers are seeking a special permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals for a change of use for the Dunkin Donuts (formerly a hair salon) before plans can move forward. The plans will also have to meet the roughly 20 "non-boiler plate" conditions set by the Planning Board, including specific vegetation, noise, and light regulations.

Tack said the Planning Board was "very careful to articulate a set of conditions that will make sure the site is harmonious with its neighbors," and he and his team think the abutters to the site will be pleased with the final result. If all goes as planned, Tack said he hopes all renovations to the site will be completed by February or March. "In the long run, I think it'll be good," he said.

The ZBA will discuss KoKo Island at its next meeting, slated for Monday Nov. 8.

Haddad is denied Abington position

Former Cohasset Town Manager Mark Haddad made it to the final round of interviews in the Abington Town Manager search, but was not appointed to the position Tuesday night. Although it was rumored Haddad was the top choice out of three finalists for the position, which was narrowed down from a field of 46 candidates, Abington Selectmen chose Phillip Warren, former Town Administrator of Holbrook to serve as their first ever town manager.

When asked if the barrage of rumors surrounding Haddad's abrupt resignation from his position in Cohasset this May had anything to do with the board's decision, Chairman of the Abington Board of Selectmen Robert Wing said the board stuck to the facts when making its vote.

"The rumors about Mark Haddad were not an issue," said Wing. "The board played by the résumés and the interviews. What happened in other towns is not our concern because those towns are not Abington."

Camp program brings high school students together

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

A great time was had by all as the entire ninth-grade class headed off for orientation at Camp Marist for what has become a tradition for first-year high school students. In fact, the program is such a success and students have such fond memories of the experience, that a large group of seniors volunteered to tag along.

For the past nine years, students from Cohasset have traveled to New Hampshire for an overnight stay at the camp. They play games, participate in "ice-breaker" activities, and help break down the social barriers, truly uniting them as a class as they embark upon their high school years.

For the returning seniors, going back to the camp they had visited only three years before was a much different experience. This time, they served as peer leaders, leading the activities, giving the younger students advice, and working hard to become a friendly face younger students can look up to.

This year, 24 of the roughly 80 students in the senior class served as peer leaders, including: Tim Pilczak, Molly Kirk, Jim DeGiacomo, Dominic Strazzulla, Peter Bunstein, Jenne Daley, Allison Dean, Christina St. Pierre ,Miranda Lanzillotti, Courtney Hurley, Lauren Rizzotti, Jenn Murray, Casey Anderson, Bill Carbone, Jacqui Blake, Kevin Dinsmore, Rachel Garber, Christine Lovallo, Jon Littauer, Elizabeth Stone, Lucy Gardner, Jake Kovach, Ricky Lordan, and Jon Grimm.

Students leave for camp on a Monday, spend the night, and come back Tuesday. While it's only one night the students are gone, those involved say it has a profound impact on the students and becomes something they will never forget. "We talk about things like goals, behavior, and trust," said Cohasset High School Guidance Counselor Ed Leonard, adding it helps set the tone for the school year.

Guidance Counselor Anne Porter said the program began in 1988 as a way to help students celebrate taking the next big step in their lives, as they make their move up to the high school. When the program began, every ninth-grade teacher and everyone from the guidance department all went on the trip, which is a tradition that still remains. "We're really proud of being able to keep it going," said Porter. "We try to make it a special time."

Porter added that by bringing the class together during the outset of their freshman year, it helps create nice memories, which is part of the reason so many seniors chose to go back this year.

Peer Leader Christine Lovallo said the first year she attended the camp, she was a little shy. She said she didn't talk to as many people as she could have, and wanted to go back to "Help (the ninth graders) have more fun than I did." This time around, being shy is not a problem for Christine, and she said she not only got to know the younger students better, but her classmates who participated as well.

Peer Leader Peter Bunstein said he remembers how fun the seniors were when he went to camp, and what good role models they were, and he wanted to be a positive influence for this year's freshmen as well. He said he worked hard to ensure the shy students felt comfortable, and even "made a fool of myself," to help put the younger students at ease. He said when students feel comfortable around their classmates, "It makes high school less of a social pressure."

Peer Leader Jim DeGiacomo said he noticed a dramatic change in the relationships of the students who participated. He said on the way up, the seniors and freshman didn't talk on the bus, and everyone was hanging out with their own groups of friends. However, as the program went on, and students participated in ice breakers and various activities, "The cliques started to dissolve." Jim said they held a dance Monday night, and everyone was talking with each other. "I even asked a teacher to dance," he said.

Jim said he was a shy freshman as well, and recognizes he could have had a lot more fun. With what he knows now looking back, "I wanted to help the freshmen take advantage of the program," he said.

But the seniors weren't the only students to benefit from the experience as the freshman had an equally enjoyable time. Freshman Tyler Kelly said he got to know the seniors during the trip and it will help him feel more comfortable when walking down the halls. "I had a great time and I can't wait to go back when I'm a senior."

Leonard said he is always impressed with the students during the program, but this year was even more so. He said one of the camp employees who has seen many children go through the programs specifically sought him out to tell him, "This is the nicest group of kids we're had here all summer."

one bid received costs much more than the town has in its budget, there is obviously a problem. He said the last figures he received from the design group had estimated the base bids for the project would come in at roughly $1,034,285, and if the company's cost estimates were wrong, "They should redo the drawings at no additional cost," to reflect a streetscape the town can pay for.

Dormitzer said after hearing only one bid came in, he and Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan thought it would be a good idea to contact some of the companies which requested information, but did not bid, to find out if there was a specific reason why they weren't interested in the project.

Dormitzer said from those he has spoken with so far, "Generally, they all said they have a specialty," and wouldn't feel comfortable taking on the project as a whole. As a result, Dormitzer said if the project was split into parts and put out to bid again, the town could potentially find experts willing to do their portion, and the project could come together one piece at a time. Areas companies tend to specialize in are paving, sidewalks, excavation and utilities, and curbing.

"It exceeds our budget even for the base bid."
— Selectman Ralph Dormitzer

He also said it is possible the multiple postponements from various design changes turned off prospective bidders. "They don't want to have to look at it a few times before you're serious," Dormitzer said.

Some members of the board felt it might make sense to hire someone for the landscaping portion of the project. Selectman Ronnie McMorris said the board will also have to take a look at the items that do not fall into a specific category, and decide who could complete that work. Should the board decide to re-bid the project, it will look for contractors on the state bid list.

Dormitzer said Waterfield should be included in the discussion about how to proceed from here.

Spofford said before the board calls anyone down for a meeting, he wants to make sure the town isn't going to be charged for it. "I'd like to know what went wrong. Why should we pay them any more money?" he asked. "They've (Waterfield) made a lot of money on us."

Dormitzer added every time money is spent on meetings with Waterfield, "We're just cutting into what we can actually accomplish."

Summer Institute program has a successful season

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Thanks to the efforts of many teachers and students who participated in this year's Summer Institute, the town has been given many valuable reports outlining the town's environmental status from a coastal perspective.

The program, which is held in the Center for Student Coastal Research, located in the former Hagerty building in Mariner's Park, has been steadily growing since its inception six years ago. Every summer, students are able to explore Cohasset's coastlines and compile environmental reports based on their own findings, which is providing an invaluable service to the community.

"We are so lucky to have the Center for Student Coastal Research. It's an incredible lab right on the water," said Cohasset Middle High School science teacher Anne Thome, who helps run the Summer Institute. With the readily available facilities which are becoming more technologically equipped each year, students are able to compile some very impressive reports which are being used by not only Cohasset, but by neighboring towns whose waterways interconnect with Cohasset's. "North Scituate is going to make some changes based on information they found," regarding pollution and the Gulf River, said Thome. "The students are really making an impact."

Chairman of the Board of Health Steve Bobo also commended the students for their efforts. "They've done a wonderful job," said Bobo, adding he hopes to work with some students over the fall and winter months in preparation for next summer. However, the information compiled over this summer has proved to be a much needed resource, and Bobo said he has sent reports compiled by high school students Ryan Davis, Aisling Guinee, and Carrie Muir off to the Attorney General's office. He said he hopes the projects will explain why the town should not be subjected to pay fines of $10,000 a day for polluting its waterways. The fines would be implemented as a result of the Second Amended Final Judgement, which is a state requirement Cohasset needs to fulfill as a result of its violating the Clean Water Act in 1975.

More than 200 field measurements were taken by the 19 students who participated this summer. Those 19 students combined completed five significant science reports, titled: "The Gulf River Study," the "Cohasset Harbor Salinity Study," "An Introduction to Aquaculture," "Little Harbor Fecal Coliform Study," and "Cohasset Harbor Enrerococci Study."

There were six full-time students working on the Cohasset Harbor Salinity Study, led by teacher Dave Ames, including Carrie Muir, Chelsea Grossman, Chris Reynolds, Brendan Michaud, Charlotte Sida, and Mia Lieb-Lappen.

There were five full-time students who participated in the Gulf River physical and chemical assessment, led by Thome. Of the five, Ryan McClellan, Dom Strazulla, and Toby Norman are from Cohasset.

There were eight full-time students who participated in a Gulf River and Cohaset Harbor biological assessment, or bacteria study, led by teacher Jack Buckley, including Dan Allen, Brent Daly, Shalea Daly, Aisling Guinee, Lara Novak, Caren Garber, and Kara Wilcox. Rob St. John conducted an aquaculture project.

The Summer Institute began six years ago when Dave Magnussen, Pattie McGrail, Jody Wood, Jack Buckley and Curriculum Coordinator Ruth Fennessey began participating in a two-year professional development program with the Massachusetts Teachers Academy. Meeting over a series of Saturdays from Sept. 1999 until June 2001, in addition to hours of additional meeting time during the school year, a plan was formed to begin a coastal research program which became the Summer Institute.

To begin the program, a significant commitment was required, and the Cohasset School District donated $3,000 to the cause over the two years, per requirement of Academy participation, which helped get the program up and running.

Thome said in the early years, many of the outdoor education programs were taught out of the trunk of her car, and at one point, there was only one student who participated. However, the program has grown every year since then, and is now providing an educational facility which is benefiting not only the students who participate, but the town as well.

Over the years, teacher participation has grown beyond the core group who began it. This year, Dan Jones and retired English teacher Jody Wood once again offered their North River Expedition course, "Messing About on the North River." In addition, some courses taught during the Summer Institute have branched out from strictly science. In the summer of 2003, art teacher Nina Berkowitz held a successful art project. To date, 10 teachers have participated in Summer Institute programs.

Due to the success and value of the program, a press release from the United States Environmental Protection Agency dated Oct. 12 states the Summer Institute will be awarded a $4,855 grant. Cohasset was chosen as one of six Massachusetts organizations to split $44,943 in environmental education grants with other environmental groups throughout New England.

New payroll clerk hired; town hall workers fill spots

Taxpayers to pay for 10 more hours

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Many changes have taken place at Town Hall in the last few weeks, as some employees have left, others have changed roles, and some are brand new hires. While Town Manager Michael Buckley said the changes will cost the town a little more overall, in the end, he believes the changes will be worth the money.

Currently, there are five positions which have required some shifting, and many of the changes revolve around the administrative assistant to the Town Manager position. In the end, although there will be an increase in the money the town pays out, Buckley said it will only be for 10 hours per week.

Buckley said at the beginning of the summer, he determined the Town Manager position does not have enough support. The assistant not only aides the Town Manager, but the Board of Selectmen and members of the public who come into the Selectmen's office. In addition, the assistant was responsible for the payroll for both the town and the schools, and Buckley said he made the decision to move the payroll out of the Selectmen's office and into the Treasurer's office where it had been originally, and an advertisement for a payroll clerk position went out.

In the time before the position was filled, information surfaced that the former Administrative Assistant to the Town Manager Nicole N. Bartlett had been accused of forging signatures on unauthorized checks she issued from her previous employer, the Boston Children's Museum, and depositing them in her personal accounts. Allegedly, she wrote more than 440 checks to accounts she controlled between October 1998 and March 2003, and could face a maximum of 10 years in prison. Bartlett had been responsible for the payroll for the town and the schools, and when she resigned from her position Sept. 27, the search to fill the payroll position began progressing quickly.

With Bartlett's resignation, that position needed to be filled immediately, and Devon Vayo stepped in to help. Vayo, who was previously working 35 hours per week in the assessor's office and five hours for the Zoning Board of Appeals, had filled in taking meeting minutes for Bartlett, and was familiar enough with the position to be able to take over. Buckley said Vayo has taken over the position for now, although it will be up to the new Town Manager to decide whom he or she would like to have as an assistant.

Vayo is currently working 35 hours for the Town Manager. A new 35-hour-per-week payroll clerk has also been hired. Tuesday marked Kathleen Mulrain's first day on the job, and she will complete the payroll for both the town and schools.

Vayo has maintained her five hours with the ZBA, and therefore a replacement for her was needed only in the assessor's office. Ellen Werner has been hired on a temporary basis to take on that role. In addition, Janice Rosano has also been hired to help in the assessor's office for the next six weeks while its employees work toward receiving a new certification from the state.

The administrative assistant to the Town Manager has handled payroll since former administrative assistant, Christine Fitzgerald, took on that role in 2000. Fitzgerald had worked under Tax Collector/Treasurer Joe DiVito and had compiled the payroll in that office prior to becoming the administrative assistant to the Town Manager. When former Town Manager Mark Haddad was looking to fill the position left by his first administrative assistant Joyce Studley, Fitzgerald moved her office over, took on that role, and kept the payroll as one of her duties. After Fitzgerald left, Nicole Bartlett took over as Haddad's administrative assistant.

Buckley said in adding Mulrain, the new payroll clerk, the town will only be paying for an extra 10 hours of work per week. Former Assistant Treasurer Jane Henderson became the Assistant Accountant when Mary Farrell retired, and both women worked 25 hours per week. The Assistant Treasurer position has not been filled, leaving 25 hours the town has in its budget; Mulrain's position will fill in those hours and add 10.

Kathleen Mulrain has been hired to take over the payroll for the town and the schools. Devon Vayo had split her time between the Assessor's office and Zoning Board of Appeals' office, and will now take over Bartlett's position as the Administrative Assistant to the Town Manager. While Town Manager Michael Buckley said Vayo is a good fit for the position, when the new Town Manager comes on board, it will be his or her choice to keep her or hire someone else. Filling in for Vayo, are Janice Rosano and Ellen Werner, who are both working on a part-time temporary basis.

Report shows expenses adding up in. "Every week there are more and more lawsuits," she said, adding the board should be updated on where they stand, and if there is a way to solve them without litigation.

Selectman Rob Spofford added he would like to see a legal breakdown outlining the individual boards' expenses to see which ones are driving up the town's legal fees. "Is it us, the Planning Board, the Zoning Board, or what? I want to know who's using it," he said.

Buckley said while there is usually some money available from free cash to help offset costs, this year, where he's been "wearing two hats," he may not be able to get the free cash certified by Town Meeting. (Buckley, who has been serving as acting Town Manager since Mark Haddad resigned in May is also the Director of Finance).

Buckley said pensions are another area where the town has a financial problem. The town is part of the Norfolk County Pension System, which means fees "are not negotiable," Buckley said. While the town was given an estimate of the contribution assessment it is expected to pay for the year, the actual assessment which came in was much higher. Buckley said the town has money in savings to cover the cost, and while the town had plans to put away money on an ongoing basis to eventually allow the pensions to be fully funded by 2027, right now, the town only has enough money to pay for roughly 70 percent of its costs. The town appropriated $773,665 and has expended $847,284 so far.

The town has also spent 80 percent of the money appropriated for property and liability insurance. The town had appropriated $195,000 and was required to pay a $155,595 annual premium. The premium changes every July 1. In addition, Buckley said the town owes $41,000 to cover the police and fire departments, as neither one is covered by worker's compensation. Buckley also anticipates the town will need to pay deductibles on up to five cases relating to insurance claims. The deductibles will most likely be $7,500 each. During Fiscal Year 2003, the town expended $185,491 total in property and liability insurance, and in FY04 the town expended $182,000.

The police and fire departments have historically experienced high overtime charges in their budgets, and Buckley said this year is no different. He said the police department is currently down three officers, and those shifts have to be filled. Whether from injury or from employees moving on to other jobs, the departments are required to have a certain number of employees on duty and those who fill in are paid time and a half. "It's the same situation with the fire department and it puts pressure on the overtime budget," said Buckley. While Buckley said Police Chief James Hussey is actively trying to recruit for the open positions on the police department, it will take time to go through that process.

Administrators provide in-depth MCAS analysis

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The scores for the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System or MCAS test, were released Sept. 23, and after examining the data, school administrators have found Cohasset's scores are above par compared with schools across the state.

Curriculum Coordinator Ruth Fennessey said Cohasset began with the goal of making sure all students scored higher than the failing and warning categories. Now, that schools have changed focus, and Cohasset is looking at the number of students scoring in the advanced and proficient categories, and is analyzing ways to keep them there.

In grade 10 mathematics, there has been significant improvement as 89 percent scored in the advanced and proficient categories, which is up from 67 percent in 2003. Where 11 percent of students scored in the needs improvement category, that number has decreased from the 25 percent in that category last year. This year, only 1 percent failed the test, which is down from 6 percent last year.

In grade 10 English language arts, 89 percent scored in the advanced and proficient categories, which is up from 82 percent last year. Ten percent of students scored in the needs improvement category, which is down from 18 percent last year. Both this year and last year, there were no failures in the English language arts category.

While Boston Magazine ranked Cohasset High School 69th out of roughly 150 public high schools in the state, Supt. Denise Walsh said the Boston Globe ranked Cohasset 19th for English language arts, and ninth in the state for mathematics.

Walsh said it has been proven that the number of years students have had content specialists in math really makes a difference in terms of scoring. When a teacher specializes in teaching math, the students undoubtedly benefit. As a result, she said new certifications will be required for teachers to ensure the students in their classrooms continue to excel. "It's a focus for attention," said Walsh.

In grade eight math, the number of students who scored in either the advanced of proficient categories increased from 71 percent last year to 75 percent this year. In addition, those in the warning category were reduced from 8 percent down to 4 percent. However, Fennessey said those who are in the warning category will be investigated to make sure any issues are addressed, and if a child is not on an Individual Educational Plan, or IEP, and should be, that those arrangements are made.

In grade eight science, the number of students in the advanced and proficient categories has also increased from 46 percent last year to 63 percent this year. The number of students in the warning category has also decreased from 10 percent to 5 percent this year.

In grade seven English language arts, 10 percent scored in the advanced category while 71 scored proficient. However, 17 percent scored as needing improvement and 2 percent scored at the warning level. But Fennessey said Cohasset's scores are very similar to those found in other neighboring towns, which suggests the students are right on target with their peers. In Duxbury, 20 percent were advanced and 70 were proficient with 8 percent needing improvement and 2 percent in the warning range. In Hingham 13 percent were in the advanced category with 73 percent as proficient, 12 percent needing improvement, and 2 percent at the warning level. In Marshfield, 9 percent scored advanced, 71 percent scored proficient, 17 percent need improvement and 3 percent were at the warning level. In Norwell, 17 percent scored advanced, 74 percent are proficient, 7 percent need improvement, and 2 percent were at the warning level. In Scituate, 13 percent scored advanced, 78 scored proficient, 7 percent need improvement, and 2 percent were at the warning level.

Despite large class sizes, grade four students are doing very well in English language arts...

"The teachers are very pleased" with the English scores in grade seven, said Fennessey, because many questions are open-ended and ask the students to do some real critical thinking. While the school may not have made the progress it would like to see, "The state doesn't seem to be performing very well either," she said. Cohasset's scores are slightly higher than the state average, which reports 9 percent advanced and 59 percent proficient.

Grade six math

In grade six math, there is still some work to be done before the town reaches its full potential. Because the number of students has continually increased over the past three years, yet the number of teachers remains the same, Fennessey said there have been some challenges. However, compared with other schools in the surrounding area, she said Cohasset is receiving very comparable scores, and Cohasset is outperforming the state.

Cohasset students scored 38 percent advanced and 33 percent proficient, but 26 percent scored in the needs improvement range. "That's too high as far as I'm concerned," said Fennessey. Four percent scored in the warning range. However, the state's scores reported 17 percent scored in the advanced category while 26 percent were proficient, 32 percent need improvement and 25 percent were at the warning level.

However, Fennessey said grade six students scored very well on the standardized tests administered this spring. In math, 81 percent of the students scored above average while 18 percent scored average, which means 99 percent of the students were in the top two tiers. "That is a definite contrast with the MCAS scores," where only 68 percent scored in the top two tiers, Fennessey said.

To help with those scores, the administration is going to try to bring in content specialists to provide help and resources to teachers. The more a child can be exposed to mathematical concepts from an early age, the better, Walsh said. In fact, she said students as small as kindergarten are learning simple algebraic concepts, such as "two plus fill in the box equals five," she said.

The science and technology scores for grade five students have changed very little over the past two years, and have come in at 73 percent advanced and proficient both years. Fennessey said based on scores, students have an even understanding in the four areas tested: physical science, life science, earth and space, and technology and engineering. "There isn't one area that stands out," she said. In all the categories, between 70 and 80 percent of the students scored in the advanced and proficient categories.

Despite large class sizes, grade four students are doing very well in English language arts, and the increase of 21 percent of students falling in the advanced category indicates more students are highly proficient in writing, which Fennessey said has been a long-term goal for the schools. For the first time in four years, not one student fell into the warning category. Over the past four years, students scoring in the advanced and proficient categories has remained stable, from 73 percent in 2001 to 75 percent in 2002, to 74 percent in 2003 and 75 percent in 2004.

Grade four math scores showed the percentage of students scoring at the advanced range has increased from 12 percent last year to 19 percent this year. Those in the proficient category has slightly decreased from 44 percent down to 38 percent, but overall, the number of students scoring in the top two tiers has virtually remained the same. Fennessey said the minimal increases suggest there needs to be more time dedicated to math in the classroom and more specialized math instruction. She said there are some very difficult open-ended math questions students must answer which are four points each and can have a huge impact on a student's score, and there must be more time allocated for sufficient topic coverage.

Upon receiving the grade three reading scores, Fennessey said the schools were worried when they found 78 percent of students were scoring proficient, but 21 percent still need improvement and 1 percent were at the warning level. In grade three, there is no advanced level. However, upon looking at scores from neighboring towns, Cohasset seems to be scoring in the same range. She said because some of the lower grades have large class sizes and there is only one reading specialist to work with students in kindergarten through grade six and one half-time Title One reading teacher, the resources aren't the same as the schools which are showing better test results. However, Cohasset will continue working toward raising the scores for its grade three students.

Overall, Walsh said the MCAS scores continue to show the test is working as it continues to push the students to strive for more. "They are achieving a level they never have before," she said, and expects that success will continue. She added the district is very proud of their accomplishments, and will continue working toward gaining all the resources necessary to help maintain that success.

EDITORIAL

Fabulous Friday

Starting next week, the Cohasset Mariner will arrive in your mailboxes and at the newsstands on Friday.

We'll admit at first we had some trepidation about changing our publication day from Thursday or "Mariner Day" — as many readers have affectionately called it after some 26 years — to Friday.

But after contacting national and regional newspaper associations for feedback, we came to realize that the move could provide us with an opportunity to provide better, more thorough coverage, especially of the goings-on at Town Hall.

The shift is part of a company-wide press schedule reorganization to provide more color capability for both advertising and editorial.

Despite the change, we're still going to ask you to get your happenings and news items to us as soon as possible to allow adequate time for either typesetting hardcopy or formatting emails. Advertising deadlines won't change.

We will extend our editorial deadline from noon Tuesday, to 5 p.m. Tuesday for happenings and announcements, such as notices of a pancake breakfast, benefit concerts and the like.

Letters to the editor and obituaries will be accepted on Wednesdays. In rare cases if there is an urgent item, you can email us Wednesday morning and we'll do our best to include your news item or announcement.

Again starting next week, we will be in production on Thursday so your newspaper will go to press Thursday and arrive at the newsstands and in your mailboxes on Friday – one day later than has been the case since the paper was founded back in 1978.

Spot news – such as accidents or fires – can occur any day of the week.

But general news, much of which is generated by Town Hall or the schools, tends to "happen" Monday through Thursday. We can't tell you the number of times we've been "white knuckling it" on Wednesday (our current production day) hoping to get a call back for an important "breaking" news story by 3 p.m.

The "extra" day we're gaining by going to press Thursday morning rather than Wednesday afternoon is going to take some of that pressure off and allow us more time to pursue those important stories to the fullest.

In our travels around the country, we are amazed at how few towns actually have their very own newspaper. Most hometown papers are regional publications that incorporate a number of communities.

That is not the case with the Mariner newspapers that tend to be one-town, one-paper pubs including the Cohasset Mariner, which has been recognized five times for excellence by the New England Press Association.

We take our charge as being the shepherds of the Cohasset Mariner very seriously. We love what we do and even more importantly, we love Cohasset.

Being the vehicle through which the community stays informed fills us with unending pride and motivates us to keep providing the coverage you have come to expect.

Please call or email us with any suggestions, or ideas, things you'd like to see in the paper. We can't promise to include them all – but with our "extra" day we'll have a little more time to make some positive changes.

Let us hear from you.

More transparency needed as promised

TO THE EDITOR:

It is time the Selectmen reconcile their commitment to "transparency" with the flow unpleasant surprises that afflict Cohasset.

Elected officials did a good job of hiding the reason for Mark Haddad's sudden departure and added a highly questionable $50,000 severance package to the mix. Certainly, the recent revelations about the sudden departure of Nicole Bartlett combined with the Mariner's report that Cohasset very recently made an insurance settlement with her should add to the concern of our citizenry.

Likewise, the lackadaisical process that has seen Chief Jackson resign on June1st, but "transitional" pay continues without a written agreement suggest sloppy management. I am also amazed that the "trashing" of the Atlantic Avenue home was quickly swept under the rug without an "all-court press" to round-up the many other youth guilty of breaking and entering, et al.

I am sure that Cohasset was the victim of an inaccurate assessment of its standing among the State's 350 school districts. However, there has been a gradual slippage each year since the first MCAS results. We have schools that are over-sized by at least 50 percent and we are inexorably moving toward having four principals in one of the smallest school districts in the State.

Yes, many capital projects were deferred for too long and that forced a "catch-up" scenario. However, let's improve management of our tax dollars and be as open as possible with the paying public.

Shipwreck commemoration

TO THE EDITOR:

Many thanks to St. Anthony's church for the recently wonderfully organized annual commemoration of the shipwreck of The Brig St. John which took place October 1849. During this tragic day more than 150 years ago 99 Irish immigrants from Galway lost their lives in a fierce storm that smashed their ship onto the rocks of Cohasset Harbor. The immigrants were remembered by a special Mass, being honored also by a talented lady vocalist, Máiriín Uí Chei De, who sang beautiful songs.

After Mass a reception was held in the Parish Center. At this time we leaned that a generous and kind gentleman from Scituate, Attorney John Sullivan has organized this commemoration for several years. May aunt, my sister, and I would like to thank John and St. Anthony's Parish for a memorable day. After the reception there was a walk to the Cohasset Central Cemetery with a wreath-laying ceremony at the foot of the Celtic cross. I'm sure that all in attendance were as grateful as we were for this special day.

Bradley praised for anti-pollution support

TO THE EDITOR:

State Rep. Garrett Bradley should be commended for his support of important legislation in the 2003-2004 legislative session that would help reduce the use of toxic chemicals that could endanger our health.

Rep. Bradley voted for the override of the Governor's veto of a budget amendment for a study to identify safer alternatives to ten toxic chemicals, and supported passage of a bill to reduce the use of toxic mercury in products by signing onto a letter which succeeded in getting the bill released from committee.

Unfortunately, neither of those bills passed. However, with the continued support of Rep. Bradley and other legislators in the upcoming 2004-2005 legislative session hopefully such important legislation will be passed.

HEALTH NOTES

Flu vaccine shortage is upon us

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

You have probably heard and read enough about the flu shot shortage to be thoroughly confused by now. The Board of Health has announced that the Cohasset Flu Clinic is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 19 at the Cohasset Town Hall from 10 a.m. to noon. The Town has a limited number of flu shots to handle normal emergencies, but can not handle a town-wide vaccination program. The clinic on Tuesday will accept those Cohasset residents who are over 65 and other residents with conditions which put them at high risk such as heart disease, chronic pulmonary disease and diabetes. Please bring your Medicare part B and/or your Senior Health Insurance cards. And don't forget to wear a short sleeve shirt.

A complete listing of those who have been recommended for vaccination with inactivated influenza vaccine by the Center for Disease Control (CDC) is given below:

all children aged 6–23 months;
- adults aged 65 years and older;
- persons aged 2 – 64 years with underlying chronic medical conditions;
- all women who will be pregnant during the influenza season;
- residents of nursing homes and long-term care facilities;
- children aged 6 months –18 years on chronic aspirin therapy;
- health-care workers involved in direct patient care; and

The clinic on Tuesday will accept those Cohasset residents who are over 65 and other residents with conditions which put them at high risk such as heart disease, chronic pulmonary disease and diabetes.

- out-of-home caregivers and household contacts of children aged less than 6 months.

These categories are considered of equal importance.

Other vaccination recommendations:
- Persons in priority groups identified above should be encouraged to search locally for vaccine if their regular health-care provider doesn't have vaccine available. Consult your doctor, check pharmacies, etc.
- Flumist or Intranasally administered, live, attenuated influenza vaccine, if available, should be encouraged for healthy persons who are aged 5 – 49 years and are not pregnant, including health-care workers (except those who care for severely immuno-compromised patients in special care units) and persons caring for children aged less than 6 months.
- Certain children aged less than 9 years require two doses of vaccine if they have not previously been vaccinated. All children at high risk for complications from influenza, including those aged 6 – 23 months, who present for vaccination, should be vaccinated with a first or second dose, depending on vaccination status. However, doses should not be held in reserve to ensure that two doses will be available. Instead, available vaccine should be used to vaccinate persons in priority groups on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Vaccination of persons in non-priority groups

Persons who are not included in one of the priority groups described above should be informed about the urgent vaccine supply situation and asked to forego or defer vaccination.

Persons who should not receive influenza vaccine

Persons in the following groups should not receive influenza vaccine before talking with their doctor:
- persons with a severe allergy (i.e., anaphylactic allergic reaction) to hens' eggs and
- persons who previously had onset of Guillain-Barré syndrome during the six weeks after receiving influenza vaccine

Information on other ways to prevent the flu
- Cover your cough
- Be a germ stopper: healthy habits keep you well

The Board will post notifications about future clinics as we find out more about the vaccine supply.

Steve Bobo is chairman of the Cohasset Board of Health.

Undeleting those (expletive deleteds)

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

One of these days they're going to have satellite family newspapers and I'm going to be able to use all those four-letter Anglo-Saxon functional verbs I've been storing up in my typewriter — and now my computer — all these years.

I was encouraged in my quest for a place to display those words, hitherto known only as (expletive deleteds), last week when I read that Howard Stern has signed a five-year, $500 million contract to bring his (expletive deleteds) to satellite radio in 2006.

If you have any doubt as to the meaning of (expletive deleted) it's the kind of word Dick Nixon used on the Watergate tapes, the kind Dick Cheney uses when greeting Democratic senators and the kind your father uses when that truck cuts him off on the Southeast Expressway.

This whole thing started at halftime during the Super Bowl last January when Janet Jackson suffered her unfortunate "costume malfunction" on national television...

Actually, Howard has been using (expletive deleteds) on broadcast radio for many years but every (expletive undeleted) cost his boss, Viacom/CBS's Infinity Broadcasting, six figure fines from the FCC and they were getting a wee bit tired of paying it.

The FCC has no control over the content of satellite radio since it comes into your house by wire and not over the public airways so Howard is free to describe in intimate detail those bodily functions usually discussed only in the corner bar or the confessional.

The FCC has no control over newspapers, either, b ' they have something called an editor who can be just as pedantic as a federal bureaucrat, especially when they believe that all readers are 12 years old and must be protected from the (expletive deleteds), all of them.

We had an editor at the old Boston Sunday Herald who was like that. If I wrote "damn," Carl would change it to "darn." If I wrote "hell," he'd change it to "heck." Carl could make a meeting of Mafia dons sound like a council of church elders.

But I digress . . .

This whole thing started at halftime during the Super Bowl last January when Janet Jackson suffered her unfortunate "costume malfunction" on national television, exposing one of her (expletive deleteds) to millions of fans, most of whom were up getting another beer at the time.

The offending television network, CBS, was fined a half a million bucks for the booboo (if you'll pardon the expression) and now everybody tapes their programs on seven second delay, probably including Pat Robertson's 700 Club, for all I know.

"He (Howard) no longer wanted to operate under the restrictions he had to operate under," the Herald (the new one) quoted a radio insider as saying. "He felt it was stifling his creativity."

Now you can listen to that creativity without commercial interruption all you want but first you've got to get up $150 for the special radio receiver, $15 for installation and $12.95 a month to subscribe.

But hearing those (expletive deleteds) undeleted must be worth every penny of it.

Orchestra's Opening Night is for old fans and new ones

H•S•OVATION

NINA WELLFORD

An occasional series on life behind the scenes of a symphony orchestra, written by supporters of the Hingham Symphony Orchestra.

Opening Night! Two magical words, full of anticipation and excitement. In the life of a performing arts organization, it's the night that joins the past with the future.

On Opening Night, loyal supporters eagerly return to hear their orchestra for the first time since the season ended last May. An HSO concert hall typically holds no more than 400 people. About a quarter of those people attend HSO concerts regularly. They recognize each other, know members of the Board and staff and volunteers, have spoken with conductor Jin Kim and the musicians — for them, Opening Night is a joyous cultural homecoming.

At the same time, a large number of new audience members will hear the HSO for the first time. In any audience, there will always be at least half who did not make the decision to buy the ticket — they came with their spouse, or with friends, or with their employer or their client. And, most members of a symphony audience do not consider themselves knowledgeable about classical music. Will they enjoy the experience? Will they return? For many, Opening Night is an unknown experience, with expectations waiting to be met.

Here at the HSO, we have been preparing for months for this one Opening Night. The season's calendar is set, with concerts and events planned once a month from Oct. 16 to April 30. Music Director Jin Kim, who begins his eighth year at the musical helm of the HSO, has planned an exciting season's program for full orchestra, chamber (smaller) orchestra, and solo musicians. He has chosen works from Bach to Bernstein; each concert presents a mix of familiar and new music, accessible and challenging at the same time.

The concert halls, venues spread across the South Shore, have been carefully chosen to match each program, taking into account the acoustics, the size of the stage, the number of seats, the access and parking, and the general ambiance. For Opening Night, HSO will perform in Derby Academy's new Larson Hall, a perfect venue for both audience and musicians. With excellent acoustics and a large stage that sits below the comfortable, amphitheater-style seating, this intimate gem of a concert hall makes an excellent "home" for the two Masterworks programs this season.

In early September, HSO's core musicians returned to Boston from summer engagements, ready to work for another season with Jin Kim. HSO's musicians are a diverse group: all paid professionals, coming from around the world to be part of the thriving music community in the Boston area. Many perform with other area orchestras and teach privately. Many are graduate-level students in music performance. They all are committed to making music as their living. Through a rigorous selection process, Jin Kim has chosen these professionals to form the core of the HSO. Additional invitational auditions yielded the remaining musicians; through intense rehearsals they will develop their superb individual skills into what we hear as the HSO.

In addition, Jin Kim invites guest soloists to share their recognized musical gift with the HSO. On Opening Night, HSO presents the young American cellist Daniel Lee, who is launching what promises to be an acclaimed career. He has already won accolades as a soloist with the Baltimore Symphony, Cleveland and Philadelphia Orchestras. At age 11, Mistlav Rostropovich embraced Mr. Lee as his student and protégé, and three years later Decca Records signed him to an exclusive recording contract. The recipient of the 2001 Avery Fisher Career Grant, Mr. Lee plays a Carlo Tononi cello made in 1725.

The Masterworks Opening Night program opens with Elgar's Introduction and Allegro for solo string quartet and orchestra, and closes with Schumann's radiant Symphony No. 3. In between, Mr. Lee will perform Tchaikovsky's Variations on a Rococo Theme, composed in homage to Mozart, with a smaller "classical" orchestra consisting of strings, winds and horns.

Before the concert, ticket-holders may join Jin Kim for a seminar on the music they are about to hear. With anecdotes and musical illustrations, he explains what to listen for and brings the times and thinking of the composer to life. After the concert, audience members are invited to stay for a dessert reception, to meet the musicians and mingle with friends and supporters of the HSO.

The orchestra exists in order to infuse our lives with music. Classical music heard live in concert can transport an audience in a way that no other art form can. All that's needed is a willingness to simply go with the music, and be open to the response. A ticket to an HSO concert is a ticket to a full evening of great music, stimulating company and even some fun education. On Opening Night, the music, the people and the insight converge in an experience that leaves the audience transformed. And ready for more.

Join the HSO for Opening Night Masterworks on Oct. 16 at 8 p.m. at Derby Academy, Hingham. Pre-concert seminar at 7:30. Tickets: $30 adults, $20 seniors, and $10 youth through age 18. Call 781-740-5694 or visit www.hinghamsymphony.org for more information.

Asian eatery slated for Cohasset Plaza

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

It's out with the old and in with the new at Cohasset Plaza, as the Shoe Market prepares to move to Hingham's new Derby Street Shoppes, and the empty space will begin the transformation from retail to restaurant. Large signs and banners are posted around the shop's entrance, indicating there are bargains to be found during the closing sale, while enthusiastically announcing the coming attraction for the site.

The plaza will soon be home to Feng Shui, an Asian family-style restaurant. There will be some remodeling necessary to transform the space, and a new kitchen will need to be constructed. In addition, two different bars will be built: one for beverages, and another for sushi. The space is 5,100 square feet, and will have a seating capacity for 170 guests. To compare, DiNero's currently has a seating capacity for 70, Atlantica can seat 110 in its "Yacht Landing" room, and the Red Lion Inn can seat 350 people in "Lion's Hall."

Representatives from White Crane Incorporated who will manage the restaurant, are slated to come before the Board of Selectmen Tuesday, Oct. 26 for an all-encompassing liquor license. On their application, it states construction on the restaurant will take place from Dec. 1, 2004 until April 1, 2005. The lease for the space will begin Feb. 1, 2005, and end Jan. 31, 2025, and the space would be rented for $8,556 per month. The application also states the estimated costs for construction will total roughly $200,000, which the applicant will pay for in cash.

Building Inspector Robert Egan said the space was originally built to be fitted for a restaurant. However, until now, the space had never been leased out to tenants looking to operate a restaurant. The pipes which service the restaurant are all in place, and remodeling is all that will be needed, Egan said.

With the addition of Feng Shui to Cohasset Plaza, there could be two Asian restaurants on Route 3A. Michael Tack, who is looking to renovate the current KoKo Island and Hair Affair sites just up the street from the plaza, is currently working with restaurant owners, one of which serves Asian cuisine, to move into the KoKo Island restaurant space, when its lease expires.

But the addition of Feng Shui won't be the only change to the plaza. In addition to the Shoe Market, King Jewelers plans to move into a new building to be constructed farther south on 3A, and the current Dunkin' Donuts could potentially move into the Hair Affair building next to the current KoKo Island, which could leave the plaza with a new mix of retailers in the months ahead.

Donald Staszko, owner of Cohasset Plaza, could not be reached for comment, but he has previously said he is not concerned about attracting new tenants when the changes take place. "We get about 10 calls a week from people who want space," Staszko said. If the deal with Feng Shui is any indication, when the other businesses are ready to make their move, there should be new leasees waiting in the wings.

Meanwhile, plans to expand Super Stop & Shop by 20,000 feet and construct a new 30,000 square foot retail building at the back of the plaza are moving forward, Staszko said. The new retail building will either be occupied by one major tenant or subdivided into two 15,000 or three 10,000 square-foot spaces, he said.

Quality education and money

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

CRAIG SANDLER

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

Budget season never truly ends in state government, and fiscal affairs have moved into the courts and out onto the campaign trail.

While advocates for more education spending said the numbers aren't large enough on the expenditure side of the balance sheet, Republicans continued claiming that Democrats want to keep them too large on the revenue side.

In the Hancock v. Commissioner of Education case before the Supreme Judicial Court, justices questioned attorneys for the defendant — the state — and the plaintiffs who allege that students in 19 school districts are being deprived of their constitutional right to an education as good as they'd get in other, mostly wealthier communities.

Justice Margot Botsford, of the Superior Court, last spring recommended a series of major, expensive changes and new programs for the districts in question. The SJC is due to decide whether to order those changes early next year or essentially defer to the Legislature to continue making big education decisions.

The justices' direction was difficult to discern from their questions. At some points, they questioned the connection between money and a quality education. Some wondered whether the court should really be involved in making such decisions. And one justice wondered how long under-served children would need to wait for a better education system.

The bottom line, quite literally, for the state is that should SJC rule for the plaintiffs, it's estimated that implementing such a finding would cost as much as $2 billion. And as the governor has already pointed out, that money would be spent on just the districts in question, limiting the state's ability to pursue educational improvement in the other 331 Massachusetts communities.

But at the same time, the Romney administration has said the time is right to lower the state income tax to 5 percent, the level voters ordered in 2000. With legislative elections just three weeks away — and the Republicans' former favorite focus, Tom Finneran, now an ex-leade — the Republicans have been investing the tax debate with new partisanship. It's clear the party has decided that with Finneran gone, lower taxes is the strongest theme for the recruits on whom the GOP's hopes (at $2 million) ride this fall. Thus, Lt. Gov. Kerry Healey came right out and accused Democrats of being afraid to lower taxes.

The war of words sounded like this -- Healey: "The opponents of reform are scared. They will use every excuse in the book to stop change and to deny the people of Massachusetts the tax cut they voted for in overwhelming numbers." Democratic Party spokeswoman Jane Lane: "At this precarious time in our economy, it would be disastrous for this state to roll the tax back to 5 percent so the typical homeowner can get $100 in their pocket."

And so the budget wars continued, unlikely to abate. If the Hancock case succeeds, and so do the Republicans, it's possible some of the candidates now running so hard, and hoping so fervently, will spend some time next spring wishing they'd never made it to Beacon Hill. Or at least wishing they'd brought some Excedrin.

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. BHRC records local representatives' votes on two roll calls from prior sessions. On both roll calls, the House overrode the veto, the Senate took no action and the veto was sustained. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

$250,000 FOR TOXIC USE REDUCTION INSTITUTE (H 4850)

House 154-0, overrode Gov. Romney's veto of $250,000 in funding for the University of Massachusetts' Toxic Use Reduction Institute (TURI) to assess the feasibility of adopting chemical and/or technological alternatives for several toxic or hazardous substances including lead, formaldehyde and dioxins. The assessment would include a look at the use of the toxic substances by companies involved in manufacturing, consumer products and other applications in Massachusetts and how the use of alternatives would affect the environment and the economics and business of the companies. TURI would report its finding to the Legislature by July 1, 2005. Override supporters said it is important to look at alternatives to these dangerous substances. They noted that the assessment would be a fair and balanced one that would include the effects of the use of alternatives on the environment as well as on businesses, jobs and the economy. In his veto message, the governor said that he vetoed the funding because it is not consistent with his original fiscal 2005 budget recommendation. The $250,000 funding has been eliminated because Senate did not act on the governor's veto. (A "Yea" vote is for the $250,000).

DENTISTS AND AMALGAM FILLINGS (H 4850)

House 140-14, overrode Gov. Romney's veto of a budget provision requiring the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) to ensure that all dental offices install, use and maintain certified amalgam separators if the dentist inserts or removes amalgam fillings. Amalgam is an alloy composed of mercury and silver used in dental fillings. Amalgam separators are devices designed to remove amalgam waste particles from dental office wastewater. The separators installed by dentists would have to be ones that have been demonstrated to remove at least 95 percent of the amalgam waste containing mercury using what is known as the ISO 11143 protocol. Override supporters said amalgam that is in dental office's wastewater is eventually discharged into the public sewer system. They argued that the mercury in the amalgam is dangerous and can pollute the environment and contaminate many kinds of fish. Override opponents said the DEP currently has an adequate voluntary program for dental practices to certify to DEP that they are using amalgam separators. They noted that dental practices that participate in the voluntary program by January 31, 2005, would be exempt until February 10, 2010 from future DEP regulations and fees requiring installation and upgrading of the separators. In his veto message, the governor said that he vetoed the mandate because it creates a financial burden on dentists that would be required to purchase new expensive equipment. The mandate does not go into effect because the Senate did not act on the governor's veto. (A "Yea" vote is for the requirement. A "Nay" vote is against the requirement).

ALSO UP OP BEACON HILL

UNSIGNED CAMPAIGN CIRCULARS (H 1078)- The House gave near final approval to and sent to the Senate a bill repealing the current state law that prohibits any distribution of unsigned circulars or posters supporting or opposing any candidate for public office or any ballot question. Current law requires that these circulars and posters include the name and address of the individual person responsible for issuing the material or the names of two officers of any political or other organization that issues it. Current law also imposes up to a six-month prison sentence on anyone who violates this prohibition.

ELDERLY WATER CHARGE ABATEMENT (H 4001)- The House and Senate gave final approval to and sent to Gov. Romney a bill allowing cities and towns to abate the first $500 of water charges paid by low-income seniors over age 65 who meet certain requirements. Single seniors would qualify if their annual income equals less than $16,000 while married seniors would qualify with a joint income of less than $24,000. Another provision requires that these seniors have lived in Massachusetts for at least ten years and have owned property in the state for at least five years.

RELIEF FUND FOR MILITARY FAMILIES- A new bill proposed last week would place a checkoff box on state income tax forms to allow taxpayers to make a voluntary contribution to a relief fund for Massachusetts families of National Guard and Reserve members. Sponsors said that many of these soldiers are serving unexpected, extended periods of time in Iraq and noted that the fund is used to assist their families until they return. They noted that a similar checkoff system has already been adopted by three states.

FUEL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM FRAUD- State Auditor Joe DeNucci said an audit of the state's low-income fuel assistance program has demonstrated the need for improved monitoring of the program to ensure that it is not being abused and that assistance goes only to eligible families and individuals. The program provides assistance with paying fuel bills to low-income households with incomes of up to 200 percent of the poverty level. DeNucci reported that program's income verification procedures should be strengthened amidst indications that some recipients may have had sources of income that they failed to disclose in their applications. He noted that some recipients lived in homes with assessed values of almost $1million and that others reported income that was so low it would be nearly impossible for the family to meet their basic living expenses. He said it is likely that these recipients underreported their income.

Officials work together during water main crisis

Old pipes likely cause of break

By Carol Britton Meyer
CMEYER@CNC.COM

A 20-foot break in the 20-inch Kilby Street water main left 3,000 Aquarion Water Company customers in Hull and nearby parts of Hingham and Cohasset without service from 3:40 a.m. into late into the day last Thursday.

The cause of the break is believed to be the age of the pipes, which are 60 to 80 years old, according to Aquarion Spokesperson Martin Cohn. "Obviously there was no water activity at the time of the incident."

Aquarion was able to replace the pipe and restore water pressure to most residences by 5 p.m., although service was restored to some homes and businesses earlier than that.

Good communication between officials in the affected towns, the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), fire chiefs, boards of health, Sen. Robert Hedlund, and Rep. Garrett Bradley expedited the process.

Because the break resulted in a decrease in pressure, the DEP issued a "boil order" as a precautionary move. "None of the test results indicated there was any danger," Cohn said, "but the order was issued to be on the safe side." The order, issued due to the potential of bacterological contamination caused by low water pressure in the system, was in effect until DEP lifted the order on Saturday after more water quality tests were done.

Customers who had lost water service were advised to boil for one minute all water used for human and animal consumption, including brushing of teeth, hand washing, vegetable or other food washing, and baby formula preparation.

The Cohasset Water Department assisted Aquarion by interconnecting the two water systems at Surry Drive to provide water to North Cohasset and part of Hull.

"We were pleased to help out our neighboring water system during their time of crisis," said John McNabb, Chairman of the Cohasset Water Commission. "We had more than sufficient water to service those areas to allow time for Aquarion to fix the break and to restore system operations."

In Hull, where the most customers were affected, a large water tank was placed at the Senior Center, where residents who didn't want to have to boil their water could pick up some fresh water.

The order was issued to the entire town of Hull. Cohasset consumers on Jerusalem Road, Howe Avenue, and the northern portion of Forest Avenue and side streets, and on Kilby and Rockland streets in Hingham.

Some residents didn't lose water service but experienced discoloration while the pipes were being flushed.

Coincidentally, Aquarion Water Company had scheduled an open forum about water issues and a tour of its 900 Main Street water treatment plant the same evening as the recent water main break.

Despite the day's events, only one resident showed up.

That was disappointing since Aquarion is "reaching out to provide an opportunity for customers to interact with the water company," Cohn said.

This was the second such forum sponsored by the water company.

Those who didn't attend missed out on an update on the water situation in Hingham indicating that:

- Aquarion is awaiting Department of Environmental Protection approval to draw water from Free Street Well #4 to provide a significant supply of water to serve a number of new developments in the towns it serves.
- Cohasset expects to begin supplying water to the 2,000-unit Linden Ponds retirement community off Whiting Street (via the Hingham distribution system) as early as Fall 2005 through an agreement between Aquarion and the Cohasset Water Company. Steps are being taken to improve quality issues related to Cohasset water before it is distributed through Hingham pipes.

The water company regularly updates its Web site (www.aquarion.com) providing consumer information and "is trying to be as accessible to the public as possible," said Cohn.

Cohasset Water Dept. provides water to North Cohasset after water main break

The Cohasset Water Department assisted the Aquarion Water Company following their water main break Thursday morning by interconnecting the two water systems at Surry Drive to provide water to North Cohasset and part of Hull.

"We were pleased to help out our neighboring water system during their time of crisis," said John McNabb, Chairman of the Cohasset Water Commission. "We had more than sufficient water to service the North Cohasset and Hull areas to give time for Aquarion to fix the break and to restore system operations."

"We appreciate the cooperation and patience of the residents of Surry Drive who were inconvenienced by the interconnection," said McNabb. About 500 feet of fire hose ran down one side of Surry Drive from Thursday until Monday morning.

The interconnection was made at 1:25pm Thursday by connecting two fire hydrants; a Cohasset Water Dept. hydrant on Forest Ave. and an Aquarion hydrant on Surrey Drive. The connection was made by cooperation between the Fire Chiefs of Hull and Cohasset, who were on the scene during the day Thursday to make the interconnection along with the two water depts.

Aquarion isolated the North Cohasset area, and Atlantic Ave. in Hull up to Nantasket Ave, from the rest of their system so Cohasset was the sole provider of water to that area. This isolation was essential because the Hingham system operates at 20 pounds higher pressure than the Cohasset system.

Aquarion seeks new sources of water

By Carol Britton Meyer
CMEYER@CNC.COM

About 100,000 gallons of water a day are needed to serve projects that are currently under town review or in the works in the communities served by Aquarion Water Company, which include Hingham, Hull, and part of Cohasset.

Among those are Hingham's Baker Hill, a redeveloped Hingham Shipyard, Black Rock Golf Community, Canterbury Estates, Derby Street Shoppes, Boston Golf Club, the age-restricted Ridgewood Crossing development, and two residential developments proposed by the Hingham Housing Partnership and the Housing Authority on School Depot land off Fort Hill Street and off Beal Street respectively.

That is about the same amount of water that would have been required to serve a former plan for a redeveloped South Weymouth Naval Air Station, which was in the past considered a possibility once the needs of customers in the communities served by Aquarion were met but is now "off the books," according to Aquarion Spokesperson Martin Cohn.

Consequently, Aquarion is eager to receive Department of Environmental Protection approval to draw water from Free Street Well #4 in Hingham, which is now an emergency supply. That well is expected to provide a significant supply of water, including the amount needed to serve those new developments.

Well #4 could go online as soon as Fall 2005. "Clearly it's important for people to understand the need for water from that well to help meet the demand during the next 10 years," Cohn said, emphasizing that the water from Well #4 is for use by Hingham, Hull, and Cohasset customers only.

At the same time, some observers question the wisdom of such a move. They liken it to putting a second straw into a can of Coke because that well is quite close to an existing active well and because the wells will draw on the same overall source as the rest of the town's supplies – the Weir River Watershed.

Aquarion is also looking for other new sources of water, including possibly building a desalinization plant sometime in the future.

Deja vu for boys

Soccer team loses yet another despite dominant performance

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Stop us if you've read this before.

The Cohasset High boys soccer team thoroughly outplayed their opponent last Tuesday, that would be Mashpee at home. Territorially, possessionally and with shots on net; the Skippers were out in front in all three areas. And still they fell, 2-1.

"You can probably just rewrite the story you've done the last two weeks," was the disheartened advice offered by Skippers second year coach Rob Leary. "We just keep finding ways to lose right now."

A first half Ben Libby goal, on a pretty feed from fellow junior Aidan Buick, was the only tangible evidence the Skippers had to show for their dominance last Tuesday.

Still, it appeared it would hold up… that is until a gaffe at midfield in the 65th minute led to a rare Mashpee break-in that resulted in a corner kick. The CK was headed home, and, just like that, it was a tie ball game.

The Skippers continued to buzz the Mashpee net in the waning minutes, but a quick-hitting Falcons counter led to another break-in, this one resulting in a bad penalty inside the goal box with just under two minutes to play. The penalty kick was then blasted past helpless keeper Prescott Busk, and that was all she wrote.

"Dumb plays, that's all it was that led to us losing," charged Leary. "Of course, it never should have come to that. We worked it in close so many times, but then just couldn't finish for one reason another. So, again, we let a team hang around that we probably should have

Straightforward challenge

Lady booters must win three of final seven to notch playoff berth

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

The challenge is pretty straightforward: the Cohasset girls soccer team (5-4-2) must win at least three of its remaining seven games to qualify for the state tourney for a third straight year.

Given this, it sounds funny to hear Skippers veteran head coach Deb Beal talk more about what she hopes to see her players take out of this game as soccer players than on the scoreboard.

"Sure, I want to see us get back into the tourney, but I want to see us do something with the chance once we get there," she said. "We've gone one and out the last two years, and I'd like to see us do a little more with the chance this year, especially the girls who've been there a few times. For that to happen, we need to be playing good soccer."

"Good soccer" is the message she's preaching first and foremost.

Prior to last night's showdown on Alumni Field with South Shore League power Abington (7-1 in league play), Beal offered : "All I really want to see in this game is good soccer from our girls. If we win, great, but

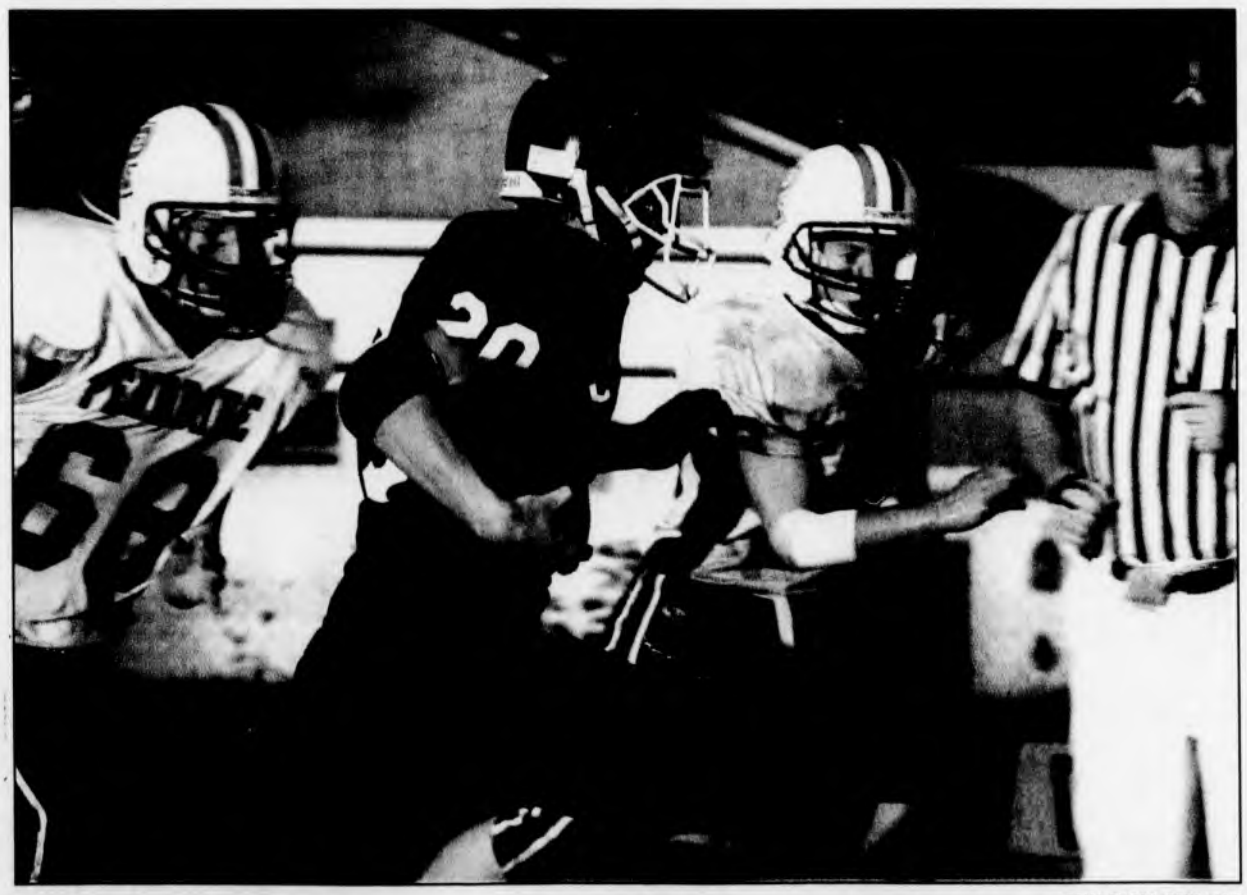
Coming through in the clutch

Golfers postseason hopes kept alive with win over first place Harwich

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

A truly clutch win over Harwich on Tuesday, on their home Cohasset Golf Club course, has lifted the CHS golf team into postseason contention for the first time in three years, as well as a good shot at second place in the South Shore League standings.



The narrow 28-26 win was secured when Cohasset's number six golfer, junior Mark Bouchard finished off a lopsided 7-2 win over the Roughriders J.J. Sarina in match play, shooting a solid round of 45.

The victory improved the Skippers to 6-2-1 in league play, but only 6-5-1 overall, one game over the all important .500 mark heading into yesterday's regular season finale on the road with Carver on a tricky Souther's Marsh Golf Course. A win or a tie would put the Skippers in the postseason, though only a win would sew up second place behind Norwell.

Norwell (8-2) wins the SSL title despite the fact it lost to Harwich (6-2-2) twice, and has Cohasset to thank for that. The Skippers handed Harwich both of its league losses.

At the time of this writing, of course, Sweeney was a lot less concerned about what could have been in the league title race than he was with getting his team into the postseason.

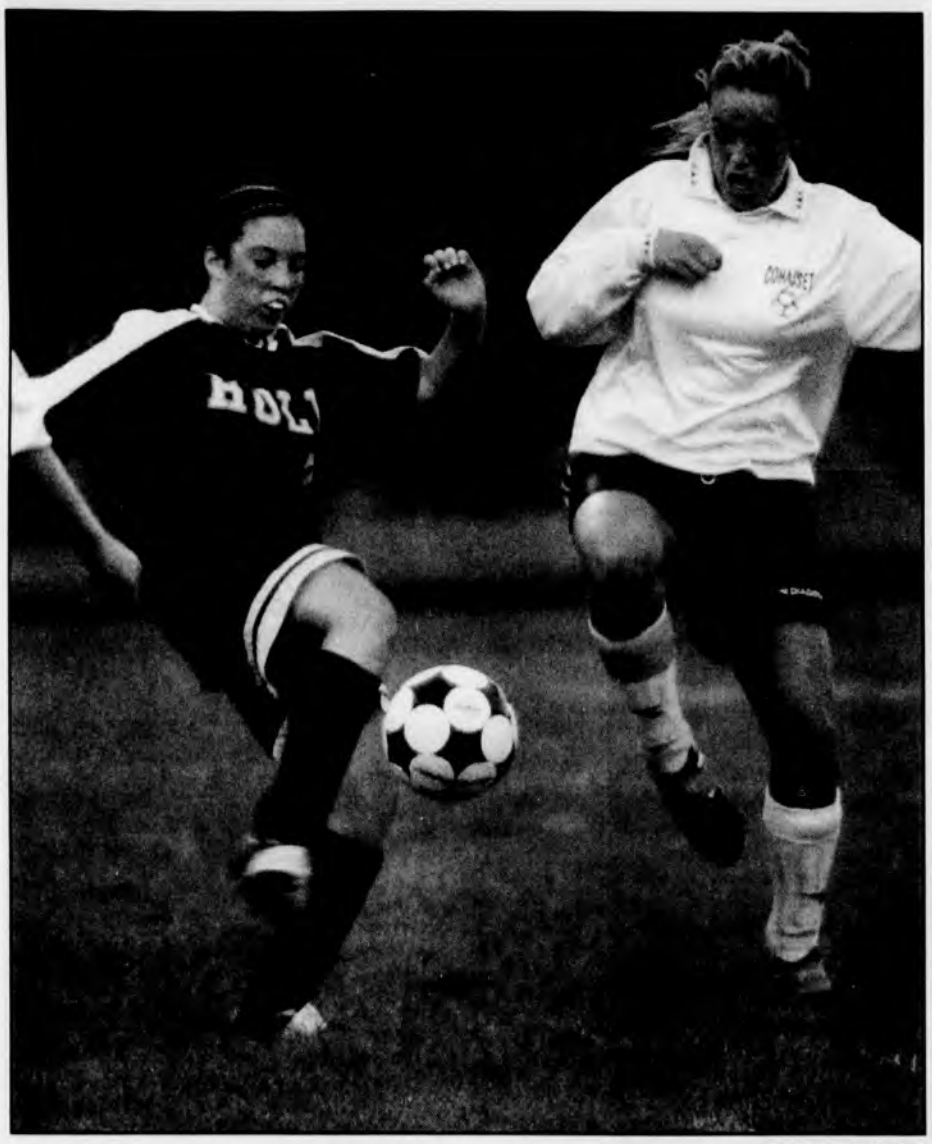
Crusaders overrun by Skippers

Carver gridders no match for Cohasset ground attack

Utilizing a well balanced offensive attack, the Cohasset High football team improved to 5–0 with a decisive 29-6 win over Carver on the road, Friday night.

The visiting Skippers took control early with a punishing running attack and timely passing. The defense gave the Skippers several scoring opportunities and the offense took full advantage of them.



Carver won the toss and elected to receive, returning the opening kick off to the Cohasset 48 on a well executed reverse. The Skipperd defense held and on third-and-11, as Jeff Brown intercepted a pass and returned it to the Crusader 49 yard line.

On the Skippers first play from scrimmage, Joe Durkin picked up a first down running between right guard and tackle. Three plays later, Crandon Leahy gained another first down running to his right, putting the ball on the Crusaders 37-yard line. Fullback Ted Straughn then gained seven yards up the middle.

An incomplete pass was followed by a 19-yard Durkin run, again to the right over Nick Arment and Jake Cuneo. With the ball just outside Carver's 10, Durkin gained another nine yards on two carries. Then, on fourth-and-inches to go, Durkin scored, running through a big hole opened by the right side of the line. Crandon Leahy then ran the conversion in to make it an 8-0 game.

The Crusaders returned the kickoff to their own 38 and the Skipper defense held. On third-and-8, a Carver lateral pass went out of bounds on the 29.

what's more important is we do some things we can build on."

The coach was happy to report there were some things her players did in their most recent game, a 3-1 non-league win at Holbrook on Friday, that could be built upon, aside from the fact it got them a game over the all-important .500 mark.

"We seem to have started playing with more mental toughness," reported Beal. "We're not breaking down as often as we seemed to earlier in the year or even at this point in previous seasons. For the most part, this is a pretty calm and composed group."

Composure was certainly the best adjective to apply to the second goal in Friday's game, the one that gave the visiting Skippers a 2-0 lead with 10 minutes to play in the first half. Senior captain Rachel Garber collected a bouncing ball near the 18-yard line with one defender to beat. Rather than rushing things, the forward faked one way and then beat her mark going the other to send herself in one-on-one with Holbrook all-star keeper Kristina Lowe. Again, Garber did not rush things. She waited until Lowe committed herself and then calmly tucked it around her for the score.

"All's I could say after that one was 'wow'," said Beal. "Rachel just really kept herself together. That was a goal I can point to and say 'that's the way to do it.'"

Of course, the game's first goal was nothing to sneeze at either. Approximately mid-way through the half, senior captain Casey Anderson served a corner kick across the goal mouth and sophomore stopper Laura Novak ran onto it beautifully, one-timing it off a hop inside the far post.

The host Bulldogs cut their deficit to one just before the break, but Cohasset came out in the second half to seize control bother territorially and in terms of possession—another indicator to Beal that her team is peaking.

With Holbrook playing an offside trap, though—often pulling their sweeper up as far as midfield— the Skippers had trouble getting much going in transition. This trap also made it necessary for the Cohasset forwards to do more running than they normally do. Subsequently, Beal was forced to sub them out more than has become norm. It was at about the midpoint of the second half that she took talented scorer Lauren Rizzotti off for a breather, and it was no more than a minute after re-inserting her that she scored to give the Skippers back their two goal cushion. That 3-1 lead held up the rest of the way.

Junior Melissa Crowley-Buck, who normally splits halves at keeper with Cecilia Chapman, got to play the whole game with Chapman away for the weekend visiting colleges, and acquitted herself well, making four saves and playing aggressively inside the goal area.

With Harwich, Hull and Holbrook—three teams the Skippers have already bested on the road by two goals each—coming to Cohasset, the necessary three-win goal would appear to be a reasonably safe bet. However, Beal makes it clear she is taking nothing for granted.

"We're not the type of team that can afford a letdown against anyone," she notes. "When we play hard and smart, we're a good team, but we need to stick to that."

The coach would also like to see her Skippers at least play competitively with the other four teams on the schedule: Abington, Scituate, Carver and Norwell, four teams to which they've already lost, and possibly even pull out a win or two.

"These next seven games are definitely big," said Beal. "It's not just about getting in we're looking at. These girls have worked really, really hard, and it just wouldn't be right if this opportunity slipped by. That would be something a lot of them would never forget."

A 40-yard Carver punt was returned six yards to the Cohasset 37. Durkin gained five yards on a halfback draw. Then, following an incomplete pass to the right sideline, Leahy rolled out to his right and, with good protection, completed a pass to Straughn on a down and out pattern, putting the ball on the Carver 35-yard line.

D J Silvia then caught a tipped pass for a six yard gain. On third-and-three, the snap was fumbled but recovered on the 26. Durkin followed with a first down gallop up the middle, moving the ball to Carver's 23.

Keeping the ball on the ground, Cohasset gained another first down up the middle, placing the ball on the five-yard line. On first-and-goal, Durkin ran in over right guard. Straughtn also broke over the goal line going right for the conversion, making it a 16-0 game.

Carver answered, however, with a 70-yard drive on five quick plays. Following an incomplete pass on a waggle left, Carver gained a first down with a pass completion to the left side. Then. One third-and-two with the ball at midfield, Carver ran a pitch left, to catch the defense inside and allow Crusaders tailback Michael Grant to scamper 50 yards down the sideline for a touch down. The extra point attempt failed, leaving it a 16-6 game.

The Skippers had an answer of their own.

After the kickoff was returned to the 45, Leahy rolled to his right and with excellent protection and completed a 10-yard pass to Straughn. Two running plays gave Cohasset another first down, moving the ball to the Carver 30. On third-and-six, Leahy rolled to his left but the pass was intercepted on the six-yard line.

Not to worry. Two plays later, Carver fumbled and Cohasset's Kelvin Ferriera recovered the ball on the five-yard line. Leahy ran a quick count quarterback sneak into the end zone between Matt Casey and Nick Arment. With 46 seconds left in the half. The two-point conversion attempt was not successful, however, so it stayed a 22-6 game at the break.

Carver returned the kick off to the 29. After the Crusaders gained a first down to their 45, Jeff Brown intercepted his second pass of the game, returning the ball to mid field. Leahy then took a knee to end the first half.

Cohasset was again on the match to open the second half. After picking up three first downs, however, they fumbled it away at Carver's 38-yard line.

Once again, though, the Crusaders did not know how to handle good fortune. After an illegal procedure penalty pushed the ball back to the 33, Jeff Brown picked off his third pass on the evening, setting the Skippers up at Carver's 34-yard line.

Keeping the ball on the ground, Cohasset picked up a first down and then another when Leahy called his own number on an option play. With the ball on Carver's 21-yard line. Durkin gained eight yards over the right side and, on second-and-two, scampered 11 yards for a touchdown on a pitch to the left side, sprung by solid blocks from Justin Alexander and Leo Clougherty. Conor Holway's extra point was good, giving Cohasset a 29-6 lead midway through the third quarter.

The defense held Carver again after a quarterback sack by Justin Wood assisted by Matt Baroudi. Then Matt Casey broke up an attempted screen to the right, forcing Carver to punt.

The third quarter ended with Cohasset in possession on Carver's 45. After gaining a first down, a 10 yard holding penalty and a quarterback sack forced the Skippers to punt with Carver taking possession on their own 20.

The defense held again, though, and Cohasset took over on downs at its own 48. Another fumble on the snap gave Carver possession just over midfield. The Crusaders managed to move the ball to the 20, but the game ended after four unsuccessful pass attempts.

Offensively, Cohasset took it up to another level and, while turnovers continue to be a problem, the offense improves with each game, especially the young offensive line consisting of Alexander, Clougherty, Casey, Arment, Cuneo and McCarthy.

Joe Durkin gained 142 yards on 24 carries.

The defense, led by Kelvin Ferriera, gave the offense good field position, setting up two of the touchdowns. The front four of Baroudi, Clougherty, Wood and Kehoe contained the running game and managed to pressure the quarterback throughout the game. Sophomore Jeff Brown led the secondary with three interceptions. Cohasset travels to Mashpee this Friday night. Kickoff is at 7 p.m..

Coastal Stars Report

Mite C2

The Coastal Stars Mite "C2" hockey team won its first game of the season 4-1 over Braintree. Kyle Bowman led the team with 3 goals and an assist while Derek Benson had one goal and one assist. Jo Jo Carbone and Matts Nelson each had one assist.

The "C2"'s Red Line of Evan Antonuccio, Mathew Johnson, Tucker Antico, Harrison Sheldon, and Seamus Ryan, played a strong defensive game in support of Goaltender Christopher Phillips who was stellar in goal.

The "C2" White line put constant pressure on the Braintree defense. Brian Mathews had several break away scoring chances and Andrew Kuppens and Shaelyn Tobin were both solid at the wing positions. Robert Bothwell was a standout on defense.

The "C2" Blue Line led by Kyle Bowman, Jo Jo Carbone, Derek Benson, Gunner McKenzie, and Matts Nelson excelled in all facets of the game with Gunner anchoring a strong defense.

The Coastal Stars Mite C2 team defeated Pembroke 8-2 on Sunday. The team was lead by Tucker Antico's five goal performance. Tucker's line mates, Evan Antonuccio, Shaelyn Tobin, Mathew Johnson and Seamus Ryan all played a solid game with Evan and Shaelyn assisting on goals and Seamus and Mathew playing solid defense.

Brian Mathews, Jo Jo Carbone, and Matts Nelson also scored goals while Brian Mathews and Derek Benson each had an assist. Robert Bothwell, Kyle Bowman and Gunner McKenzie played strong games alternating at both forward and defense. Chis Phillips was a standout in goal.

Squirt A

The Squirt A Coastal Stars came up short in a comeback bid and suffered their first setback of the season to a worthy Hingham squad. The first period see-sawed. Stars goalie Dan Durkin denied a Hingham breakaway with a pad save, and Trevor Salmon's wrap-around pass to Mike Carbone in front was stopped at the other end. Hingham went up at the 8:25 mark on a shot from the right circle. The Stars responded, but Salmon and John Ryan were denied on a give-and-go break.

The Stars created several chances in the second. EJ Culhane passed from the point to Jake Durkin, who fed Jonathan Spitz for a backhander that was wide. Durkin sent Patrick Burchill on a break with a lead pass through center ice, but Burchill's wrister from the slot was gloved. Kevin McDougall skated end-to-end on a power play, but his shot was kicked out, and the period ended, still 1-0.

Hingham scored at 0:47 of the third on a shot from the left side and attacked the Stars for the knockout. EJ Culhane made a fantastic play to save a goal on a Hingham flurry in front of the net, and Dan Durkin made stops on two point-blank attempts. Hingham's pressure paid off with 4:37 left, and the game appeared to be over. Except no one told the Stars. With 2:25 left, Dan LeBlanc and DJ Evans kept the puck in the zone to Mike Carbone in the left circle. Carbone torqued a riser to the top right corner and the Stars were on the board. With 15 seconds left, Neil Conway took a face-off from center ice, fought off two defenders that were hanging on him, and deked the goalie for a backhander that brought the Stars within one. The Stars won the ensuing face-off and John Ryan fired a screamer from the left circle. The shot was saved, and Trevor Salmon's rebound was, too. The Stars had run out of time.

Mite C

Coach Frank Lemieux led his Coastal Stars Mite C team 3 to a 6-0 win over Duxbury on Sunday. Matt Boudreau began the scoring with 4:56 remaining in the first period followed by a tally from Colby Comegu, assisted by Will Cole. Great team defense by Matt McQuillan, Derek McDermott, and Brian Neuls positioned the Stars with a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period.

The Stars strong offense continued in the second period with 2 goals by Domenic Calapa. Russell Santos, Paul Parker, Nick Barnhard, and Jack Kaetzer applied a persistent offensive attack, pinning Duxbury in their end for most of the period.

In period 3, Boudreau and Comegu came through with goals 5 and 6, with Cole adding another assist. Liam Manning, Hugh Healey, and Patrick Cullen turned in solid two-way play to keep Duxbury on their heels.

With 2 minutes left in the game, goalie Connor Lemieux made another of several tremendous saves, preserving the shutout.

Next game is Saturday, October 16 versus Bridgewater in Bridgewater.

Mite C- 1

The Mites C- 1 team earned their first victory of the season in a 6 – 0 shutout over Hingham.

Tommy Prendergast led all scoring with the hat trick. Cam Mastrangelo, Liam Manning and Tyler McKinnon also scored goals.

The defense was tough as Davis Cronin, Joe Deyeso, Chris Bertone, Jack Shaw, Joseph Proctor and Sean Feeney where instrumental in allowing only a few shots on net.

The offense had some slippery moves with Jake Moore, Benjamin Swim, and Dan Cronin, James Dietrich, Hugh Healey keeping the pressure on.

The Mites play next Saturday in Bridgewater against Duxbury.

Netminder Jack Conlon earned the shut out in his first start for the Coastal Stars in goal.

taken out of it early and it came back to bite us big time."

Making it worse was the fact the Skippers had to wait seven whole days before getting back into action, that being yesterday's scheduled match on the road with South Shore League rival Abington.

The Skippers fell a game under .500 with that Mashpee loss, to 3-4-2, so they must now win four of their seven remaining games to qualify for the state tourney.

"We've certainly got our work cut out for us," noted Leary. "Looking at who we've got left, there are no easy games, especially with the way we're playing right now."

The Skippers will host South Shore League leading Carver (7-0-1 in league play) tomorrow night under the lights (6:30 p.m.), and Leary couldn't think of a better opponent for helping his team to turn it around. The Skippers are responsible for the lone blemish on the Crusaders record, a tie back on Sept. 21 on Carver's tiny field, another game in which the Skippers seemed to carry the balance of play.

"A big performance here would go a long way toward curing what ails us," noted Leary.

Next week features a trip to Harwich on Tuesday and a hosting of Hull on Thursday. Norwell comes in for the SSL finale on Oct. 25. The Skippers will then close out the regular season with Patriot League teams Scituate and Hanover, on the 27th and 29th, respectively.

Despite the troublesome bent toward breakdowns, Leary still feels he's getting good individual play from several of his charges, among them midfielders Buick and Kevin Dismore, striker Ben Libby and the three man defensive unit of Jonathan Littauer, Sam McDonald and Trevor

FROM GOLFERS, PAGE 17

"Southers Marsh can be a tricky course," said the Skippers fourth year head coach a few hours before this match. "But our guys have played it before, and I think they know where the pitfalls are. I'm expecting some pretty good scores. If we play like we did (Tuesday(, we should be OK."

Indeed.

The first flight, or foursome, came in with Harwich up two points. Andy Walkley defeated Skippers number one golfer, Kevin Barber, 6-3, but Cohasset's Colin Magruder edged his counterpart, Austin Marsland, 5-4, to make it a 10-8 match.

It was the Skippers second flight that made up. Senior captain Tim Pilczak came up big out of the third spot, winning the medal with a score of 43 and capturing 5.5 holes from Sean Leach.

Chris Simms topped Jim Kelsey by the same score, 5.5-3.5, thanks to his smart round of 44.

This put the Skippers up two, 19-17, with just four golfers left on the course.

As it turned out, that final flight was a push. Senior Ricky Lordan (48) lost his head-to-head match-up to Brian St. Pierre, who matched Pilczak's 43 to win Harwich's medal shooting. However, Bouchard evened that slate with his own clutch 7-2 win.

"Mark came up big, but he wasn't the only one," said Sweeney. "The guys knew what was on the line here, and they came through."

With a win yesterday, the focus would shift immediately to next Tuesday's Division 3 South Sectional at the Wentworth Hill Golf & Country Club in Plainville.

The state Div. 3 championships will be played Monday, Oct. 25, at Pleasant Valley Country Club in Sutton. A minimum of two teams from each sectional tourney will qualify for the state championships. If a sectional tourney has nine to 12 teams, three will qualify. If the field is 13-16, four will qualify. Five is the maximum number of qualifiers. The top 10 percent of individual scorers will also qualify for states.

11 teams had already qualified at the time of this writing, so there will be at least three qualifiers, and quite possibly a fourth.

A swarm of Skippers surround Norwell's Alexandra Delferro in recent South Shore League battle.

Buzzards luck continues for field hockey

Consecutive one-goal losses eliminates Skippers from playoff contention

By Evan Deutsch
CORRESPONDENT

From a technical standpoint, the 2004 field hockey season has disappointed the hearts of the Skipper field hockey team. They stand at one win, eight losses and two ties.

In reality, the team has doggedly climbed up the ladder of play.

During early season games, the Skippers lost by wide margins. Now they give their opponents a serious run for their money….a very good sign for future seasons.

Take the October 6th game at Notre Dame Academy as just one example. The Skippers lost the skirmish, 1-0. Contrast this loss to their first outing when the Skippers collapsed in a 4-0 shutout.

In the most recent outing, strong performances from Mia Lieb-Lappen, Erin Liddel, and Katherine Whoriskey kept the Skippers in striking range of the Rebels. Aaron Bigley also protected the net well, stopping 12 of 13 shots.

Aside from a costly scuffle in the Cohasset circle, the Skippers matched the Rebels play for play.

"I was so impressed with everyone's performance," lauded Coach Deb Bostwick. "I told the girls that this should have been a 0-0 or 1-1 tie with the way they played."

Fullback Ellen Tarpey also showed enthusiasm about the team's performance.

"We worked very well as a team," she said. "Our defense really contained the Rebels well."

The very next day, the Skippers hosted the Carver Crusaders at Alumni Field. The adrenaline rushed, the fans cheered, and the teams battled it out, not unlike Kerry and Bush in the Presidential debate.

The speedy Crusaders struck first with a nifty reverse stick shot by Captain Lindsay Hobbs. The Skippers struck back without hesitation. Mia Lieb-Lappen fired a powerful cross to Erin Liddel who followed through with a very successful shot on the net.

Carver hit again when Stacey Bruns snuck a shot past the Skippers on the weak side. Cohasset quickly followed with yet another goal, this time by Brooke Allen from Katie James.

At the half, the score was knotted at two apiece.

"Keep playing with the effort, enthusiasm, and heart you are giving out there," Coach Bostwick told her team. "Follow directions, discipline yourselves, and use your skills to the best of your ability."

Both teams came out strong in the second half. Carver attained four offensive corners. Yet the Skipper defense iced every attempt.

With little time left in the game, Aaron Bigley skillfully deflected a Crusader shot. Unfortunately, the ref ruled Bigley batted the ball with his hand. If this were the NFL, Coach Bostwick probably would have asked for an instant replay.

As a result of the controversial call, the Crusaders received a penalty shot. Their top scorer, Lindsay Hobbs, took the shot and put the game away for Carver with a 3-2 final score.

Despite the heartbreaking ending, both teams walked of the field with pride.

"We played tough and Carver played tougher," remarked center forward Brooke Allen. "We played our hearts out. We came out pumped up for this game. Our fans could see the enthusiasm in our play."

These losses have mathematically eliminated the Skippers from entering the postseason MIAA tournament. Yet, the Skippers show no sign of giving up.

"When you aren't winning many games, it's hard to stay positive," said Coach Bostwick. "My players are not quitters, though. I know they will fight to the end, win or lose."

The Skippers hope to carry their energy level into the next match-ups with Westwood and powerhouse Harwich. Coach Bostwick plans to simply work hard in practice and hopes for the best on each game day. She remains confident her players will give their usual all.

Make a date with delicious bread recipe

THE KITCHEN DETECTIVE

CHRISTOPHER KIMBALL

Date nut bread should be loaded with date flavor, dense and moist, and studded with toasted nuts. Recipes are plentiful — what American cookbook doesn't include this classic — but a top-notch version of date nut bread is hard to find. One often ends up with nothing more than a quick bread with a few nuts and just a hint of dates.

The basic method is simple enough. Date nut bread contains flour, dates soaked in boiling water, toasted nuts, baking soda and/or powder, a fat (butter, shortening or oil), sugar (brown or white), one or two eggs, salt, vanilla, and perhaps some dairy such as buttermilk. The first item to nail down were the dates themselves. Two cups turned out to be just the right amount; any more and the bread became heavy and sticky. Next we made bread with dates that had not been soaked at all, dates that had been soaked without baking soda and dates that had been soaked in a water/baking soda solution. The best results came from the boiling water/baking soda soaked dates. The dates were softer and the bread had a deeper date flavor, which we definitely preferred.

For a nice-sized loaf you need to use about two cups of all-purpose flour; cake flour had insufficient strength (protein) to support the two cups of dates. The dates already had a teaspoon of baking soda in the soaking liquid but that wasn't enough to lift the loaf. We tried adding more soda as well as baking powder. We found that the addition of a teaspoon of baking powder produced a loaf that was dense — after all, date nut bread isn't supposed to be Wonder Bread — but not heavy.

We made date nut bread using melted butter, creamed butter, oil, or shortening. The oil and shortening offered up little flavor compared to the butter. Butter not only moistened, it added richness and pleasant flavor. As we have found before, it is easier to use melted butter in quick breads and the results are just as good as those recipes that call for creamed butter. We tested breads with anywhere from four to eight tablespoons and settled on six. The resulting date nut bread was moist but not greasy and had just enough butter flavor. Next, we tested sugars including granulated, light brown, dark brown, and even a touch of molasses. Right off the bat we felt the molasses competed with the date flavor. The granulated and light brown sugars didn't add enough color or flavor so we settled on 3/4 cup of packed dark brown sugar.

Of course the bread needed eggs. We tried using one or two eggs and liked the two-egg bread better. The bread was slightly more moist, rich and light. As for buttermilk, only one recipe used it but we preferred the cleaner flavor we achieved without it. As for the nuts, the logical candidates are walnuts or pecans and since we are not big fans of walnuts (they tend to be bitter) we chose pecans. We definitely preferred them toasted and one cup of coarsely chopped worked well. Salt was a must and we needed 1/2 teaspoon to round out the flavor. Vanilla turned out to be unnecessary.

As for baking, we tested 325, 350 and 375 degrees. The loaf with the nicest color, tallest crown, and best texture was pulled from the 350 degree oven. The date nut bread is dark, deep and date-packed with a toasty crunch from the pecans.

DATE NUT BREAD

This bread keeps beautifully (wrapped in plastic) for up to three days and is arguably better on day two as the flavors have mellowed. It is particularly delicious when served with a smear of softened cream cheese.

6 tablespoons unsalted butter, melted and cooled, plus additional butter for greasing the loaf pan
2 cups (10 ounces) unbleached all-purpose flour, plus additional for dusting the pan
1 cup pecans
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 cups pitted whole dates, chopped coarse
3/4 cup packed dark brown sugar
2 large eggs
1/2 teaspoon table salt
1 teaspoon baking powder

1. Heat the oven to 350 degrees and adjust a rack to the center position. Lightly grease the bottom and sides of a 9- by 5-inch loaf pan with butter; dust with flour, tapping out the excess.

2. Spread the nuts on a baking sheet and place in oven until slightly darkened in color and fragrant, about eight minutes. Allow to cool, transfer to a cutting board and coarsely chop. Meanwhile, stir together the water, baking soda, and dates in a medium bowl. Cover and set aside until the dates have softened, about 20 to 30 minutes.

4. Stir the melted butter and sugar together in a medium bowl. Add the eggs and stir until combined. Stir in the date mixture until well combined. In a separate medium bowl, whisk together the flour, salt, baking powder, and nuts. Stir the butter/sugar/egg/date mixture into the flour mixture with a rubber spatula until just moistened. Scrape the batter into the prepared pan and smooth the surface with the rubber spatula.

5. Bake until dark brown and a skewer inserted in the center of the loaf comes out clean, 55 to 60 minutes, rotating the pan halfway through baking. Cool in the pan for 10 minutes, then transfer to a wire rack and cool completely.

Makes one loaf.

Autumn is the season for planting

GREEN THUMBS UP

SUZANNE MAHLER

I was grateful that I heeded the weatherman's frost advisory. Coleus clippings are safely rooting indoors in pots of perlite and my garage and sunroom could be mistaken for greenhouses as they are overflowing with dozens of containers of tropical blooms, tomatoes, peppers and aromatic herbs. The plight of coleus plants in my borders is a sorry sight however, as once vibrantly-colored foliage lies limp and colorless. While neighbors who garden in coastal locales or sheltered areas may elude deadly chills until later in the month or even into November, the time grows short for performing many gardening tasks.

Each fall, I eagerly hunt for open spaces in my overgrown borders, hoping to find homes for the numerous perennials that remain unplanted and spots to tuck in just a few bulbs. No garden seems complete without a few patches of crocuses, daffodils or tulips and autumn is the season for planting these springtime miracles. Select the largest specimens of each type of bulb or in the case of daffodils, ones having multiple noses, as these will most likely produce more flowers of greater size. All bulbs prefer loose, porous soils with excellent drainage to prevent rotting during dormancy. Soils comprised of sandy loam are ideal. Additions of organic material, including peat moss or compost, will improve drainage in heavy soils. Raised beds may necessary in low, damp locales. Loosen and prepare the soil prior to planting so the roots of the bulbs can develop easily.

While bulbs contain all the nutrients they require to flower the first year, to continue healthy growth and flowering, bulbs need phosphorus, a mineral that moves very slowly through the soil. To ensure its availability in future seasons, mix a teaspoon of superphosphate or bulb booster in the soil at the bottom of the planting hole. Although bone meal serves as an alternative, organic source of this nutrient, you may wish to avoid its use as animals often detect its scent and dig up your newly planted bulbs.

Plant most spring-flowering bulbs at a depth three times their diameter at the widest point. Be sure to read labels for recommended planting depths and keep a ruler handy while planting to ensure reasonable accuracy. The majority of spring-flowering bulbs are best planted in clumps or drifts rather than isolated or in single rows like marching soldiers. I prefer to use a shovel to dig one large hole for each grouping, loosening the soil in the bottom of the hole and spacing the bulbs within that hole. Be sure to firm the soil and water well immediately after planting.

While many of the minor bulbs like snowdrops, crocuses, and scillas are ideal for the front of the border, I have found it advantageous in recent years to plant late blooming tulips and daffodils toward the middle of the bed. The majority of our spring bulbs sprout, flower and begin to decline before many other perennials have barely emerged and as the bulb foliage begins to yellow and fade, the leaves of the expanding perennials conceal the unsightly, yet critical, ripening leaves of the bulbs. Daylilies are especially good companions for bulbs as their slender, arching foliage gracefully shrouds the curing bulbs and fills the voids left once the bulbs go completely dormant later in the season.

Plant most spring-flowering bulbs at a depth three times their diameter at the Autumn is the preferred season to transplant or divide herbaceous peonies. These long-lived perennials rarely require division but are easily propagated should you wish to establish new clumps. Plants which fail to produce flower buds may be planted too deeply, receive insufficient sunlight or may be starved of nutrients due to excessive root competition from nearby plants or soil depletion over many years. If you wish to divide your clumps, lift the entire plant and air dry until the soil can be carefully brushed away from the tree-like roots to reveal their reddish-pink buds, referred to as "eyes". Use a sharp knife to cut through the roots and produce divisions containing at least 3 to 5 eyes to ensure flowering the following spring.

Peonies prefer a deep, rich, well-drained loam generously amended with organic matter. The addition of superphosphate will promote a strong root system and maximize flower production. They perform best in sunny locations but can tolerate light shade. Planting depth is critical to ensure blooms in subsequent years. The pink eyes should be facing upward at a depth no more than 1 to 2 inches below the surface. Gently tamp the soil and water well. Apply an airy mulch after the ground freezes to prevent heaving during the first winter.

Take advantage of great fall sales at our local nurseries to add choice trees, shrubs and potted perennials to your landscape. Until the ground freezes, the majority of these plants can still be successfully introduced. Be sure to water all fall plantings several times a week until the ground freezes.

As our plants enter dormancy and inevitable frosty evenings turn the foliage of delicate annuals black, the glorious yellows, golds, oranges and reds of spectacular fall foliage unfold. Take time to enjoy the colorful splendor of the autumn landscape.

BUSINESS NOTES

Area children in 'Read to Ride'

Area children read 6,353 books in seven weeks during Dependable Cleaners' Sixth Annual "Read to Ride" summer reading incentive program. The program rewarded 21 children, ages 6 to 15, with new bicycles and helmets. Numerous runners-up also received prizes ranging from tickets to area attractions to bookstore gift certificates and educational coloring books from Clare's Coloring Cottage (www.coloringcottage.com).

For six years in a row, "Read to Ride" has successfully promoted literacy by encouraging children to read during the summer months, with the opportunity to win exciting prizes. The program's success is due in large part to the participation of many local schools, libraries and youth clubs throughout the South Shore and Boston.

"We had an overwhelming response to the program again this year," said Dependable Cleaners president Christa Hagearty of Cohasset. "This summer we saw the program come full-circle. Many of the 2004 "Read to Ride" entrants were the younger siblings of previous winners. This means that entire families are participating in the excitement of "Read to Ride." Congratulations to all the winners and the runners-up."

"Read to Ride" is sponsored by Dependable Cleaners in conjunction with Anderson Bicycle, Farina's Bicycle Center, The Patriot Ledger, WBZ 1030AM and Radio Disney. Entry forms were made available at all 17 Dependable Cleaners locations throughout the South Shore and Boston, as well as at Anderson Bicycle, Farina's Bicycle Center, Buttonwood Books in Cohasset and Storybook Cove in Hanover. Visit www.dependablecleaners.com for a list of this year's winners.

Cohasset Stop & Shop helps kids fight cancer

The Stop & Shop Supermarket Company announced that the Cohasset Stop & Shop store raised $25,000 as part of the 14th annual Triple Winner Game. The $25,000 is part of the $4 million raised in Stop & Shop stores across Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire to benefit The Jimmy Fund and the Stop & Shop Pediatric Brain Tumor Clinic.

The Triple Winner Game is a scratch card promotion in which every ticket is an instant winner, offering prizes of a free product, gift certificate or cash prize up to $10,000. Throughout the summer, store associates sold $1 Triple Winner Game tickets at the checkout.

To date, the Triple Winner program has raised more than $28 million to support childhood cancer research and search for a cure. The program remains the single largest fundraising promotion for The Jimmy Fund.

Linden Ponds seeks to employ students

Linden Ponds, a campus for people 62 years of age or better currently under development in Hingham, is looking to hire more than 50 students to work in the dining services department.

"We always hire students first," said Marisa Kelley, Student Staff Development Manager, Linden Ponds. "What better way for them to learn than in a hands-on environment. They also get to interact on a daily basis with a generation much different than their own."

The students will work in the Fireside restaurant and the Harbor Café where they will wait on and bus tables. They could also work in the kitchen at a dessert station, in the dishwasher room and on food preparation. They can also apply for a cook's assistant position.

"I am so excited to start working at Linden Ponds," said Stephanie McIntyre, senior at Hingham High School. "This experience will allow me to build my resume and I look forward to meeting my co-workers and the people moving to Linden Ponds."

Many students will also have the opportunity to become Peer Trainers or Service Coaches. Once accepted, after they interview for the position, they will train new student employees. Peer Trainers also attend and participate in monthly trainings for Peer Trainers, act as a voice among peers to appropriately channel ideas, recommendations and/or concerns and they assist in planning quarterly social events for student staff. The applicants must demonstrate a strong work ethic, competency in work tasks, strong leadership abilities especially among peers, they must be friendly and service oriented towards residents, etc.

Students can also become eligible for The Linden Ponds Scholarship Fund by completing 1000 hours of work at Linden Ponds over a consecutive two-year period. Students who are eligible receive $4,000 over four years of College. The money is dispersed directly to their school in $500-per-semester increments, for a maximum of eight semesters or four years.

Peter Forman named next Chamber of Commerce CEO

By Robert Alcardi
BAICARDI@CNC.COM

"The chamber was specifically looking for someone grounded in public policy. I love public policy."
— Peter Forman

Peter Forman

Peter Forman is excited to be the next president and chief executive officer of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, a Quincy-based association of 2,200 businesses serving communities south of Boston.

"It's a great opportunity," he said. "This is an exceptional organization. What sets it apart is its clear sense of purpose. It has a reputation for creativity and political savvy and is made up of some wonderful people. They're not just business people. They're local leaders who happen to be in business and want to create a better life for everyone in the region."

Forman, a former Plymouth County sheriff and minority leader of the state House of Representatives, will take over leadership of the largest chamber of commerce in eastern Massachusetts on Jan. 1.

"I'm not coming in with a set agenda of what the top priorities and problems are," he said. "I expect to be here for many years, and I'm going to do some listening and learning."

Forman will succeed Hingham's Ronald Zooleck, who has led the organization for 27 years and announced in January that he would step aside at the end of the year.

"Peter offers an impressive public policy record, a management background, and a familiarity with the issues facing the South Shore," Zooleck said.

"Ron has built a strong, financially sound organization with a large membership base, a core of active and engaged volunteer business leaders, and a long record of success," said James McDonough, chairman of the board of directors. "Peter is the right person to carry on that tradition."

The chamber of commerce worked with a national search consultant who identified a pool of more than 100 candidates.

"The board of directors has spent a great deal of time over the last six months looking at the mission of the chamber," McDonough said. "Advocacy for business and the region is of paramount importance."

Forman represented Plymouth in the state House of Representatives from 1981 to 1995. From 1991 to 1995, he was the Republican floor leader.

He served as sheriff of Plymouth County from 1995 to 2000. During that time, he was the chief executive of a 1,400 bed correctional facility and managed the 450-employee sheriff's department.

In 2000, he returned to Beacon Hill as undersecretary of administration and finance and was chief of staff to acting Gov. Jane Swift from 2001 to 2002, managing her responsibilities during her extended maternity leave.

"I have worked with Ron and the chamber on issues for more than 20 years," Forman said. "Ron has been able to leverage the strength of this chamber to build statewide coalitions on behalf of business. I am looking forward to building on the success that Ron has created."

He added, "The chamber was specifically looking for someone grounded in public policy. I love public policy. One of the roles of the chamber, which represents so many towns in the region, requires consensus building and trying to get people to reach common ground on a number of issues. That's what people in public life do. My background of having been an elected official lends itself to that."

Since he left government, Forman has been engaged in the management of National Facility Services, Inc., a maintenance firm in Boylston where he is vice president for business development.

Forman lives in Plymouth with his wife and three children.

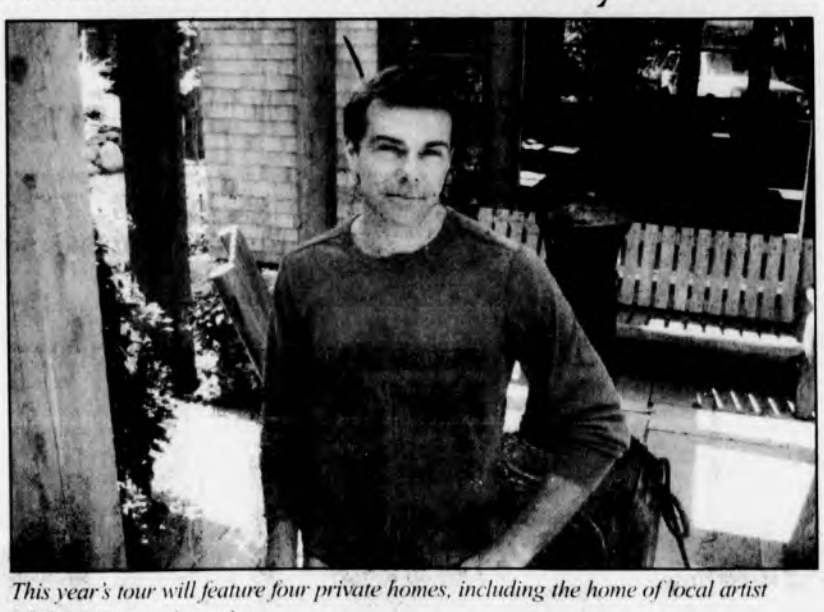
Scituate house tour benefits the Erdman Family School

The Friends and Families of Erdman Family School in Scituate present the 2004 Harvest House Tour Fundraiser on Saturday, Oct. 23 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., rain or shine.



All tour participants will spend an autumn day visiting some of the most unique and beautiful homes in Scituate. Participants will also be able to sample the delicious harvest fare at each home prepared by the family and friends of Erdman.

Entirely volunteer organized and run, the Harvest House Tour is the school's largest fundraiser. Everyone is getting involved from Erdman parents, friends, past Erdman parents, grandparents, and many local businesses. The spirit of community is evident and flourishing.

This year's tour will feature four private homes, including the home of local artist Michael Coyne. Built in early 1900s as a Sears Craftsman bungalow, the Coyne house is situated in a beautifully landscaped yard complete with a butterfly garden bed, shade gardens, stone walls and walkways, patios and a greenhouse. The outdoors is truly brought indoors with the help of multiple screened and open porches, as well as fourteen skylights throughout the house. The use of wood in the cathedral pine beamed ceilings, fir wood floors with radiant heat, custom pine built-ins and even a custom-made wooden bed designed by the homeowner, all work to create a sense of harmony with nature.

As an added bonus, the day of the Harvest House Tour coincides with the opening of Coyne's newly completed art studio adjacent to the house. House Tour participants will have a unique opportunity to tour this studio for the first time and view original oil landscape paintings for sale.

Tickets are $20 in advance and $25 on tour day. They are available by mail and also at A Matter of Taste, Coffee Corner, Earth Tones Salon, Front Street Book Shop, Funtastics, Harbor Scoops, Satuit Hardware, Scituate Racquet and Fitness, The Cohasset Yoga Center, The Welch Co., and The Village Greenery.

This year's tour will feature four private homes, including the home of local artist Michael Coyne, shown here.

To order tickets by mail send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a check for the number of tickets needed to: Erdman Family School, 330 First Parish Road, Scituate, MA 02066. Mark the envelope "House Tour".

Tickets on tour day will be sold at any of the houses or at Erdman Family School. Participants are welcome to start at any of the tour houses. Please no cameras, small children, pets or high-heels in the homes. For more information, please visit erdmanpreschool.org/events or contact Beth at 781-544-0094 or Compson@comcast.net.

All proceeds raised will benefit Erdman Family School's playground, a community asset for children and parents who play there. The school held a raffle last year and its proceeds netted a huge swing and tire set for the playground.

The Erdman Family School was established in 1971 to provide an enriching and creative educational experience for young children. It has grown from a school for eight children, begun by Margaret Erdman in her home, to a school serving over 100 families in Scituate and neighboring communities. The School is a non-profit organization and does not discriminate in providing services to children or their families on the basis of race, religion, cultural heritage, national origin, political beliefs, gender, marital status or disabilities.

IT'S HAPPENING

Cohasset native in Conservatory opera

When South Shore Conservatory's Opera by the Bay presents a very special production of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," Cohasset native Meredith Hansen Skinner will be among the cast.

Directed by Artistic Director Beth MacLeod and Associate Director Beth Canterbury, this "reduced" version of "The Marriage of Figaro" (cut from four to two hours) is the company's first foray into a major mainstream opera, and provides an opportunity for the four-year-old adult opera troupe to spread its wings and grow as an opera company. The production runs Saturday, Nov. 6 in Hingham and on Sunday, Nov. 7 in Duxbury.

South Shore audiences will delight as they experience Mozart's popular opera, a light and humorous tale of courtly antics in 18th century Spain. With lavish period costumes and four different settings, "The Marriage of Figaro" is an ambitious production, but one that the singers of Opera by the Bay are eager to undertake, and that audiences will surely enjoy.

The cast features singers from Cambridge to the South Shore, including many who have become familiar to Opera by the Bay audiences. Pianist Vincent Planès accompanies the singers.

"The Marriage of Figar" will be presented at the Conservatory, on Saturday, Nov. 6, 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., at One Conservatory Drive in Hingham, and on Sunday, Nov. 7, 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., at the Ellison Center for the Arts, 64 St. George St. in Duxbury. Thirty minutes prior to each performance, Artistic Director Beth MacLeod will present a lively talk about the production. Tickets, at $20 for adults and $15 for students and seniors, may be purchased through the Conservatory offices, 781-749-7565, ext. 10 in Hingham, and 781-934-2731, ext. 10 in Duxbury. Mastercard and Visa are accepted. For more information, please call Beth MacLeod, 781-934-2731, ext. 20.

'Images of Cohasset' focus of society talk

On Wednesday, Oct. 20, the Cohasset Historical Society will present the second in its series of fall lectures. Historian David Wadsworth will give a slide and lecture program entitled "Images of Cohasset: Beyond Arcadia". The number of pictures from Cohasset's past far outnumbered the space available in the book. David will blend images from the Arcadia book with photo's that could not be included in a program that promises to bring back wonderful memories and snippets of our own special history.

This event, which starts at 7:30 p.m., will take place at the Historical Society headquarters at the Pratt Building, 106 North Main Street. The lecture, open to both members and non-members, is free of charge and light refreshment will be served.

Michael Tougias is special dinner guest

The Cohasset Historical Society will hold its annual meeting and fall dinner on Oct. 24 at the Cohasset Harbor Inn. The event will begin at 5:30 p.m. with a cash bar followed by a buffet dinner.

The speaker for the evening will be author Michael Tougias who will give a slide and lecture presentation on "King Phillips Indian War in New England". Tougias will discuss the Indian way of life, Colonial settlements and the events leading up to the war as well as the battles and strategies employed during this disastrous conflict.

Tougias is the author of 15 books about New England's history and natural history and received recognition by the Independent Publishers when his book "There's a Porcupine In My Outhouse" was named "Best Nature Book of 2003".

The cost of the dinner and lecture is $31 for Historical Society members and $36 for non-members. IT'S HAPPENING

Gifted cellist is soloist on HSO opening night

On Saturday, Oct. 16 at 8 p.m., Hingham Symphony Orchestra opens its eighth season under the leadership of Music Director Jin Kim, with a festive evening of Masterworks by Elgar, Tchaikovsky and Schumann. A ticket to an HSO concert is a ticket to a full evening of great music, good company and even some fun education.

HSO performs both Masterworks concerts this season in Derby Academy's new Larson Hall, located just outside of Hingham Square. Audience members appreciate the intimate, comfortable, acoustically excellent concert hall that provides a first-class listening environment within easy access from home.

Before the concert, at 7:30, ticket-holders may join Jin Kim for a seminar on the music they are about to hear. With anecdotes and insight, and musical illustrations, he explains what to listen for and brings the times and thinking of the composer to life. After the concert, audience members are invited to stay for a dessert reception catered by Feeding Friends, to meet the musicians and mingle with friends and supporters of the HSO.

HSO is composed of the best young professional musicians in the Boston area and is proud to present a gifted young cellist as guest soloist for Opening Night. Daniel Lee, a protégé of the great cellist Rostropovich, has won acclaim as a soloist with many major symphony orchestras, including Baltimore, Cleveland and Philadelphia. The recipient of the 2001 Avery Fisher Career Grant, Lee plays a Carlo Tononi cello made in 1725. He will perform Tchaikovsky's Variations on a Rococo Theme, composed in homage to Mozart. The program opens with Elgar's Introduction and Allegro for solo string quartet and orchestra, and closes with Schumann's radiant Symphony No. 3.

Tickets at $30 adults, $20 seniors, and $10 youth through age 18 are available in advance at Hingham and Weymouth Main Libraries, La Petite Maison and Noble's, Hingham Square, Buttonwood Books Cohasset, Marsh's Liquors in Norwell, and Front Street Book Shop in Scituate. For more information about the HSO's 12-concert season, visit the web site at www.hinghamsymphony.org, or call the office at 781-740-5694.

eBay DEVELOPERS PROGRAM

How to Start a Successful Online Business in 24 Hours

See How People Are Using the Internet to Build Wealth Right Now

All across America, folks are using the Internet to make money. Approximately 430,000 people use eBay alone to earn full-time or substantial part-time income. Would an extra $50 to $100 a day make a difference in your life?

Introducing MarketPlacePro
You're invited to the exclusive unveiling of a new Web-based tool that's as revolutionary as the Internet itself. MarketPlacePro puts in your hands the Internet's amazing potential to generate cash.

MarketPlacePro levels the playing field, making it easy for anyone to be selling online. It's a complete sales management tool.

- Nearly a billion people online
- More than 100 million eBay users
- eBay activity up 59% over 2003
- E-commerce sales of $55 billion in 2003

And perhaps best of all...

- It's anyone's game

Every day, people from all walks of life are setting up shop on the Internet and enjoying the potential of extra income with little effort. And with eBusiness Made Easy from MarketPlacePro, it has never been easier to build for online success.

How to turn your computer into a cash machine
MarketPlacePro puts the Internet's enormous selling capabilities directly on your computer. You get not one, but three ways to plug into the Internet's cash-generating engine and put cash in your pocket. Which paths to wealth will you choose? Follow all three, or focus on your favorite: with MarketPlacePro, the flexibility is yours.

1. SELL ON EBAY THE EASY WAY
You're on eBay in seconds. MarketPlacePro's automated process was created to be faster and easier than logging onto eBay direct. There's no need to fill out basic information over and over every time you place something for auction. But that's just the start, MarketPlacePro is a complete management and recordkeeping system.

2. CREATE YOUR OWN WEB STOREFRONT
Sell direct from your own custom Web site. Creating a new, eye-catching Web site with savvy online sales capabilities is now possible within minutes — saving you time and effort. And because MarketPlacePro has no hidden Web site creation fees, you could save thousands of dollars.

3. ALWAYS HAVE PRODUCTS TO SELL
Now you can sell famous name products if you wish. The MarketPlacePro-affiliated warehouse has thousands of new, brand-name items you can select from and place on your own Web site or on eBay without having to purchase these items before they sell. And because we ship direct from our warehouse, you have no physical inventory to manage or mail. Once you choose an item in the warehouse, you can then auction it on eBay.

Discover how it's possible to:

CREATE A NEW INCOME STREAM
From dolls to dishes, if you like collecting stuff, use MarketPlacePro to expand your hobby into a business.

GET STEADY INCOME
In business, the key to success is "repeat, repeat, repeat." Even common items like coffee mugs, sold in high volume, can generate significant revenue for you. MarketPlacePro is uniquely designed to handle high-volume postings and sales.

WAKE UP RICHER EVERY MORNING
Your "e-store" never closes, and your potential to make money isn't limited to store hours. Plus, you can "go global" without leaving home.

HAVE THE ULTIMATE YARD SALE EVERY DAY
Imagine a yard sale with an endless line of cars stopping. Your cash box fills faster than you can empty it. This is what selling on the Internet can be like. More homes in the U.S. have Internet access than cable TV, and more people are shopping online than ever. The growth has been explosive, putting billions of dollars into the hands of home-based sellers.

TAP INTO ENDLESS POSSIBILITIES
More than $45,000 in goods sell on eBay every minute. But eBay is much more than the world's foremost marketplace for collectibles. You can drive home the profits by expanding your auction into "big ticket" items. eBay has quickly become one of the largest markets for real estate and cars. On eBay, a Chevy Corvette sells every three hours! What will you sell today?!

Raise a glass of Mexico's famed liquor in Tequila

By KERRY PURCELL

Ismael Gama exposes a pina from the bottom of a blue agave plats. He has worked in the agave fields since he was 9.

Mariachis and a young lassoer perform for tours at the Jose Cuervo distiliery.

TEQUILA, Mexico — Come on, you need a Tequila break. Not a Saturday night full of firewater shooters at your local dive bar but a visit to this city, located 40 miles outside of Guadalajara in the state of Jalisco. Here companies produce 80 percent of the world's tequila and they welcome interested imbibers. My editor sent me here because she said she knew I could handle my booze. This part of Mexico is the kind of place that gets you hooked. Small villages, beautiful fields of blue agave (the cactuslike plant from which tequila is made), sugar cane and corn line the antiquated roads (think lots of potholes). Our small group of journalists traveling by bumpy bus passed farm animals, including an amorous pair of cattle, romping in the rough. And then there's the tequila. If you taste, instead of swill, the potent liquor you can appreciate subtle differences between varieties, like with fine wines, cognacs or scotches. To learn more, we visited the Jose Cuervo and Centinela distilleries. There, workers take pinas, the bottom of the blue agave plant, cook them and take the liquid, distill it, age it in barrels and bottle it. Jose Cuervo is located in a volcanic valley in Tequila where the soil is dark, sticky and gives the final product herbal notes. The distillery has almost 7,000 acres of blue agave that color the landscape a bluish-gray. A visit to the distillery includes a tasting, a mariachi band and a father/son duo demonstrating their lasso skills.

Soil in the highlands of Tequila, where Centinella is located, is reddish, has a large clay component and is richer in minerals, producing larger pinas and fruitier tequilas. After our distillery tour, we had a tasting at Hacienda El Carmen Hotel & Spa in Ahualulco, about 40 miles from Tequila, where we were offered six samples, in tall wine glasses no less. It was a bit daunting at first but I knew I could conquer the sea of tequila in front of me. We tried 100 percent tequila, which is all agave sugar, and regular tequila, which is 51 percent agave sugar and 49 percent other sugar. Frankly, I couldn't tell the difference. A representative from the Tequila Regulatory Council told us it's a matter of personal preference, one is not better than the other. As with other liquors, the cooking process, fermentation, distillation and storage differences create unique personalities for brands and varieties. Whether you choose a newborn batch called a Blanco, a Joven (unaged with cane sugar or caramel added), a Reposado tequila (aged for two to 12 months in wooden barrels), or an Anejo (aged for one or more years in oak barrels), it's all about what tastes best to you. Home base for our Tequila exploration was the Hilton in Guadalajara ($119 to $159 per night), where the water was purified, the hotel had a business center and the rooms were standard.

Bottles of Mexican tequila.

But we also spent time at the Hacienda El Carmen, where the scenery includes mountains and roaming peacocks ($100 to $269 per night; spa packages also available). It was nice to get a feel for both the city and country. With seven years of Spanish under my belt, I felt the need to use my rusty skills, although almost all the hotels' employees spoke English. A little Spanish goes a long way here, helping you navigate the crafts markets and read menus at local restaurants. Knowing the basics is a good thing, and that includes the basics of tequila drinking. The most traditional way to drink tequila is to take it straight, or "derecho," accompanied by lemon and salt, but young locals also suggested mixing tequila with cola for a "charro negro" or grapefruit soda and salt to make "la paloma."

If you go TEQUILA FESTIVAL: From Nov. 30 to Dec. 12, the entire state of Jalisco celebrates its annual Tequila Festival with parades, fireworks, rodeo events, mariachis and tastings in various towns and cities.

ACCOMMODATIONS: For Hilton reservations, call 800-HILTONS or go to www.guadalajarahilton.com.mx; for Hacienda El Carmen, go to www.haciendaelcarmen.com.mx .GETTING AROUND: You can rent a car at Guadalajara Don Miguel Hidalgo International Airport ($170/weekend, standard size automatic transmission and air conditioning, from National Car Rental www.nationalcar.com). But if you'd rather explore the bottom of a bottle, the Tequila Express (www.tequilaexpress.com.mx) travels every Saturday from Guadalajara to the Hacienda de San Jose del Rufugio tequila distillery. The party train celebrates the national beverage with a free bar, a mariachi band, appetizers, dancing and historical information. Tickets are sold through the Guadalajara branch of the National Chamber of Commerce. FOR MORE INFORMATION: Go to www.visitmexico.com

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

GUADALAJARA, Mexico — In addition to Tequila, we traveled to three towns surrounding Guadalajara — Chapala, Tlaquepaque and Tonala. Each holds quaint Mexican charm and is easy to get to by highway. Chapala, 45 minutes from Guadalajara, is home to Lake Chapala, which is larger than the Dead Sea but shrinking by the minute. The pretty town has brightly painted boats roped to a pier and streets filled with pushcart salespeople. Most items were of the tchotchkes variety, so I opted to save my pesos for bottles of tequila. Tlaquepaque was a popular summer spot for wealthy Mexicans in the late 1800s and early 1900s. Today, most of the mansions along Independencia and Juarez streets house shops and galleries full of local artists' works. In the center of town you'll find El Parian, an open-air lounge that brings music, food, drink and handicrafts together in one place. Locals and tourists alike flock to the venue for the roaming mariachis who take requests. The town of Tonala ("the place where the sun rises") is known for traditional crafts. Strolling through the back alleys, we saw a family painting pottery in a method followed for seven generations and glass blowers demonstrating their technique. It's a great place to pick up some artisanal work. I, of course, bought a few handblown shot glasses to accommodate the many requests for tequila.

The back streets of the town of Tonala hold works of art and small town souvenirs.

LISTEN To Life

by John Klefeker, BC-HIS
Board Certified-Hearing Instrument Specialist, MA Lic. #127

TAKING DIRECTION

Hearing instruments with directional microphones enable those wearing them to fine-tune their hearing by switching between two different listening programs. The first is surround mode for everyday use; the second is the directional mode for pinpointing speech in noisy settings. The surround program allows listeners to hear everything that is going on around them. On the other hand, there sometimes may be situations when listeners will want to concentrate their attention on a conversation partner who is standing or sitting directly in front of them. At this point, switching to the directional mode helps make conversation clearer while protecting the listener from background noise that might otherwise drown out speech.

The loss of hearing sensitivity to soft sounds, reduced speech clarity and hypersensitivity to loud sounds make selecting and adjusting to hearing aids more complex than getting a pair of eyeglasses. Thanks to directional microphones and other advanced technology presently available, though, most people can benefit surprisingly well from today's hearing instruments. Is your hearing less than it should be? Call us at FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER, 781-337-1144, and let us work to determine the best way to bring the sounds of life back to you. We're located at 534 Main Street (Rte. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth, with a second office in Abington.

P.S. Hearing instruments with directional microphones may also prove useful to prevent wind from channeling into the microphone on windy days.

Marijuana decriminalization question is on ballot Nov. 2

Public forum is Wed., Oct. 27

By Carol Britton Meyer
CMEYER@CNC.COM

On the national level Nov. 2, voters in Hingham, Cohasset, Hull, and part of Scituate will decide which Presidential candidate to vote for – George Bush or John Kerry.

On the local level, voters in those four communities (Precinct 3 only in Scituate) will be asked to vote either "yes" or "no" on a non-binding marijuana decriminalization question.

The public policy question was placed on the ballot by the Drug Policy Forum of Massachusetts (DPFMA) in the 3rd Plymouth Representative District to measure how these communities feel about the issue.

Should the legislature at some point approve this proposed marijuana decriminalization, the penalty for possession of one ounce or less of marijuana by an adult would carry a $100 civil fine for both first-time and subsequent offenses.

"The current penalty is criminal arrest and a severe and costly punishment," said DPFMA Executive Director Whitney Taylor. "Each of the 30 daily marijuana arrests in Massachusetts takes a police officer off the street for hours and adds another case to the backlogged court system."

The DPFMA chose this district because Rep. Garrett Bradley, who represents the district, sits on the Legislature's Criminal Justice Committee, "which will most likely vote on similar legislation in the upcoming legislative session," Taylor said. "We want to take the politics out of this discussion and see how the public feels about current marijuana control policies. When Rep. Bradley votes on this issue, he should be conveying the opinion of his constituency."

Lines start early for flu shots

Shortage draws crowds to clinics

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Tom Nash of Scituate doesn't want to get the flu.

Considered "high risk" for complications from influenza due to a heart condition, Nash didn't take any chances Saturday.

He and his wife, Mavis, got in line at Cohasset Stop & Shop at 4:30 a.m. to make sure they'd be able to obtain the vaccine at the flu-shot clinic slated to start at 10.

Stop & Shop started handing out individually numbered tickets at 7 a.m. to roughly 500 people for the clinic held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Super Stop & Shop in Cohasset was one of the only places in the region providing flu shots to senior citizens and people with health conditions. The clinic was advertised on area radio stations.

Recall petition effort underway

Issue is on the STM warrant

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Elections are said to be one of the best ways for communities to participate in their local governmental process. Voting allows everyone with a voice to express themselves, and the majority chooses the candidate best suited for the job. However, after election day in Cohasset, if an official isn't meeting the expected standards there is nothing the average voter can do to recall the election. In light of that, more than 100 residents from all over Cohasset have signed a petition which could one day make that possible.

A citizens petition was filed at Town Hall this week which, if passed by voters at the Dec. 6 Special Town Meeting, would allow those in public office to be removed from their posts with a vote from the town. While it takes 100 votes to put the petition on the Warrant, or Town Meeting agenda, Lou Harvey of King Street, who has been involved with collecting signatures for the petition, said it would take roughly 500 votes, or 10 percent of the town's registered voters, to actually remove someone from office.

"The biggest value is the threat of it."
— Lou Harvey, 465 King St.

"Right now, there is no action citizens can take," to remove an elected official from office for any reason, said Harvey, adding while he doesn't ever envision the recall needing to be used, knowing it exists could be of some benefit to residents. "The biggest value is the threat of it," said Harvey, as officials will be more likely to carry out the will of the people if there is the possibility they could be taken out of their position.

Roundhouse to go back underground

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

For those residents who have not yet made the trip to the municipal lot to see the uncovered "roundhouse," it may soon be too late, as archaeologists have completed their work and the area will soon be buried and paved over to allow for more digging in other sections of the lot. While the area has been mapped to enable it to be found once again, it is only a matter of days before this part of Cohasset's past is hidden once more.

Located beneath the ground in the municipal parking lot next to the Pleasant Street Parfait, the roundhouse is a large railroad turntable, which used to be a part of the railroad which ran through Cohasset. David Wadsworth of the Historical Society said the South Shore Railroad used to come down from Boston, stopping in Cohasset's bustling downtown area, and it was there where the trains were turned around to head back north. Later the line was extended to Scituate.

Research was conducted in 1997 to locate the buried roundhouse, as part of the Massachusetts Bay

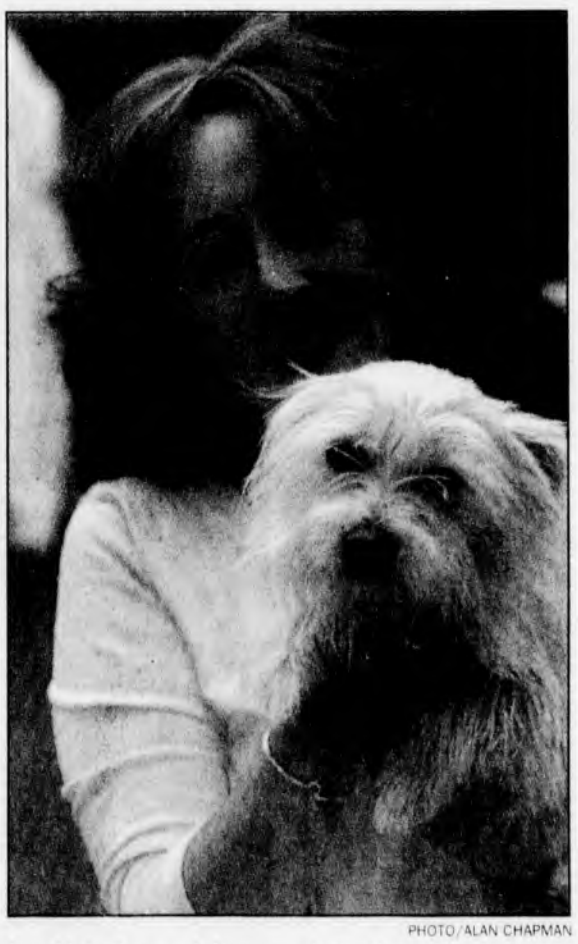
Puppy reunion is event to bark about

St. Croix group has placed 178



By Laura Yanne
CORRESPONDENT

About a hundred dog lovers enjoyed a beautiful fall afternoon as the St. Croix Connection Puppy Rescue held their first local reunion of foster and adoptive families and their rescued pups. Guests of honor included the latest puppy arrivals who met their delighted new families for the first time on Saturday at the Cohasset Kennel on Cedar Street.

The Barktoberfest was in full swing at the kennel's outdoor exercise enclosures. There were joyful wagging dogs, adoring families comparing pups and tales, light refreshments, cider, and lots of smiling faces.

"She gave us big kisses," said Tory Powers of Scituate, clearly happy with little black and white terrier/Chihuahua mix cradled in her arms. "We definitely wanted to save a dog, and we were looking for a small one who's good with kids," added her mother, Beth, a pre-approved applicant who was waiting to meet just the right one. "It looks like she has little stars sprinkled on her head," she said as they contemplated a

'Our Town' talkshow

If you missed last night's "Our Town" featuring hosts, Mark DeGiacomo and Pat Martin, you'll want to tune in when the program is repeated next Thursday (Oct. 28) at 8:30 p.m. on Comcast Channel 10. The topic is presidential. Coleman Nee, a Democrat, and Kevin O'Donnell, a Republican, debate the issues. Rich Ofsthun, an undecided voter, has a debate with himself!

Viewers of OUR TOWN can e-mail questions for future quests or provide thoughts and suggestions to ourtown@theclickstudio.com.

Warrant is open until Tues. Oct. 26

Although the Town Meeting Warrant, or agenda, was slated to be open Oct. 12, the Board of Selectmen's meeting was cancelled due to a lack of a quorum, and therefore a vote to open it was never taken. While it had been thought the Warrant could be opened that night without a formal vote, Town Clerk Marion Douglas said it cannot. The board formally opened the Warrant Tuesday, Oct. 19, which means it will now close Tuesday Oct. 26. Citizens looking to submit articles must collect 100 signatures for citizens' petitions. For more information, please call Town Clerk Marion Douglas at (781) 383-4100.

Town parking lot and Greenbush

Weather permitting, work crews will begin filling and paving the current construction area in the municipal lot this week. The work site, currently located in the portion of the lot closest to the Pleasant Street Parfait, will be moved to the adjacent area between the current site and Adamo's Hair Salon. What used to serve as the original entrance to the lot will become an opening once more, and the original exit will be closed. Additional parking will still be available behind the Citgo gas station, across from the Pleasant Street Parfait, and in the railroad bed next to the James Brook Crossing shops, formerly known as the ABB Optical building.

West Corner bridge meeting is planned

There will be a meeting Nov. 1 at the Panagia Greek Orthodox Church on Jerusalem Road to discuss the preliminary design of the West Corner bridge reconstruction project. For more information, please contact Joe DiVito at (781) 383-4102.

Sewer forum on hold

A sewer forum, hosted by the Board of Selectmen, has been put on hold until the beginning of November. Town Manager Michael Buckley said originally, the Board of Selectmen had scheduled a meeting with Town Counsel for Oct. 12 to discuss legal issues surrounding the sewer, which must be done before a forum can be held, but due to a lack of quorum, the board was required to cancel. Buckley said Town Counsel is not free to meet with the board until its Oct. 26 meeting. In addition to Town Counsel, members of the Sewer Commission and Daniel Coughlin of Tutela Engineering, the Sewer Commission's consultant, will attend. The Oct. 26 meeting will begin at 7:30 in the Selectmen's meeting room and will also be shown on cable television.

Positions available on police advisory council

The Board of Selectmen will soon appoint a Police Advisory Council, but interested residents are encouraged to submit their names in writing to the board to be considered for the open slots. For more information, please call the Board of Selectmen's office at (781) 383-4105.

Water main work through October

The Water Commission will continue water main replacement throughout the end of October on North Main Street, Red Gate Lane, and Haystack Lane.

"Our contractor has finished laying pipe in North Main Street," said John McNabb, chairman of the Water Commission, "but will be working through the end of October to reconnect services to the new water main and to make needed drainage improvements."

The trenches where the new water main was installed will be patched with a leveling course of asphalt, according to the guidelines of the Cohasset Department Of Public Works, which allows for settling over the winter so they can repaved curb to curb next spring, he said.

"Replacement of the water mains in North Main Street will improve fire protection and water service by removing 100-year old undersized cast iron pipes and replacing them with new 12-inch ductile iron pipes," McNabb said.

"We appreciate the patience of the residents of North Main Street and the rest of the town as these needed improvements were being made."

Replacement of water mains on Gammons Road, which was planned for 2004, will start in the spring of 2005, because it took longer than expected to complete the required work on North Main Street, he said.

Absentee ballots are now available

Absentee ballots for the State Election on Nov. 2, 2004 are now available at the Town Clerk's office. Absentee voting may be done during normal office hours until noontime on Monday, Nov. 1, at which time the office will be closed to prepare for the election. You may vote absentee for the following reasons only:
Absence from the town during the hours the polls is open.
Physical disability.
Religious beliefs, which prevent voting at the polls on Election Day.

The applicant must request an absentee ballot. Applications are available in the Town Clerk's office or a written, signed request can be sent by mail, or hand delivered by the voter or any other person. The application should include the legal voting address of the voter, where the ballot is to be mailed, and the signature of the applicant.

A family member of a person qualified to vote by absentee ballot may apply on behalf of such voter. The applicant shall state his or her relationship to the absentee voter; sign the application under the pains and penalties of perjury and mail or hand deliver the application to the clerk's office. Absentee ballots must be mailed to the voter. Returned ballots should be mailed or can be delivered by an immediate member of the family to the Town Clerk's office by Nov. 2, to be counted.

Town Manager short list is down to 10 'great' candidates

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Chairman of the Town Manager Search Committee Rob Spofford said the search for a new leader in town is going well. "We have narrowed it down to 10 candidates we feel are very qualified," said Spofford, adding many of the finalists submitted their résumés closer to the deadline, and some of the best surfaced later in the preliminary screening process.

With finalists being considered even from out of state, Spofford said the town will have quite a decision to make, as the candidates are extremely qualified and any number could be a good match for Cohasset. "We had a great turnout," he said.

The Advisory Committee has agreed to lend the funds to the town to retain Bennett Yarger, an independent search firm, to help with the selection process. The town has signed an $8,000 contract with the firm, which has agreed to take the town and its potential candidates through to the final stages of the process. The $8,000 will include all consultant expenses, as well as an extensive background check for one candidate. Should the committee request checks for more than one finalist, it will cost $450 for each. In addition, expenses incurred from bringing candidates in for the interviews will be an additional cost to the town.

Spofford said real progress is being made, and he is hopeful the town could have a new candidate by Town Meeting, although they might not be ready just yet to participate. He said the committee has also discussed holding off on bringing someone new in until Jan.1 to give them time to get through the holidays and close things out at their former position, but that has yet to be determined.

Spofford said Dick Bennett of Bennett Yarger, who will be working directly with the town during the search, was very pleased with the candidates as well. In fact, he was familiar six of the final 10 candidates and said he was surprised to hear they would considering leaving their current town positions, which bodes well for Cohasset. Due to his expertise, Spofford said it is already evident the money spent to retain Bennett has been well spent.

Monday, Oct. 25, Spofford said the committee will meet in executive session to discuss the 10 candidates in depth to narrow down those it would like to see participate in interviews. All finalists will be contacted to make sure they are still interested in the opportunity. Of those 10, the pool will be narrowed down to six who will be asked to come to Cohasset for a weekend to participate in a whirlwind interviewing process.

On Friday, Nov. 12, all six will come for informal tours of the town with their spouses, followed by interviews from the committee on Saturday. The Board of Selectmen has been invited to attend the interviews, but will only serve as audience members. At the end of the day, the committee will make its top three recommendations for the position, and at that point, the names of the candidates will become public.

On Sunday, Nov. 14 the Board of Selectmen will interview the three recommended candidates, which should be open to the public and possibly on cable television. A final candidate will be selected soon after.

"It's an aggressive timeline," said Spofford, but other towns Bennett has worked with have said it works well, because it minimizes the amount of time a candidate's name is public.

With the candidates the town has to choose from, Spofford said Cohasset will be lucky to have any one of them fill the position. He said the three the committee brings forward, "will make it hard for the board to choose."

Tax collector/treasurer appointed interim MBTA liaison

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

For the time being, all Greenbush line questions will be directed to Tax Collector/Treasurer Joe DiVito, as he has temporarily been appointed as liaison between the town and the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority regarding Greenbush line construction.

DiVito's formal title will be the Acting Special Assistant to the Town Manager for MBTA Affairs. "He'll be doing what the Town Manager should be doing but can't be doing," said Acting Town Manager Michael Buckley, who is the Director of Finance, but took on the role of Town Manager when former Town Manager Mark Haddad resigned this May. With the "two hats" he currently wears, Buckley simply doesn't have the time to devote to Greenbush which the residents in town deserve, and he feels DiVito is more than capable of taking on that role until a permanent Special Assistant can be found.

Buckley said he will be accepting applications for the position and that he would prefer someone local for the job. However, being local does not necessarily mean the person must be a Cohasset resident. "Personally, I would like to see someone with a vested interest in the project. Someone who is going to have to live with the results," he said, and that could be anyone from the surrounding communities.

DiVito said so far, he likes his new role and he thinks things have been going well. In fact, he said he is thinking about applying for the permanent position. "I have the construction background and I think I can be a good advocate," he said. Already he has been working with residents on Beechwood Street whose driveway will be directly impacted with the construction of the Greenbush line, and he feels progress is being made to remedy the situation.

Plans to reconstruct the 17-mile Greenbush line have been in the works for 20 years, and have been surrounded in much controversy. The Greenbush Line is the third leg of the Old Colony Railroad Restoration Project, and is being built as mitigation for the Central Artery/Tunnel Project in downtown Boston. The project is intended to reduce automobile traffic on the congested highways leading into the city. By diverting South Shore commuter traffic from automobiles to transit, the MBTA says it will not only help keep the roads clear, reduce fuel consumption and air pollution, but will encourage more transit-oriented development and alleviate congestion on other transportation facilities in the area — including the Braintree Red Line. According to the MBTA, the project will cost roughly $479 million including planning, engineering, land and permitting costs, along with the cost of construction and new trains.

With such a large project coming through town, it made sense to appoint a liaison to help keep the lines of communication open between residents and the MBTA.

Until Oct. 2, the town had a binding contract with the Waterfield Design Group to supply an ombudsman for the town during Greenbush construction. Former Town Manager Mark Haddad signed the $120,000 contract with the Winchester firm, which had also been involved with other projects around town, and it agreed to supply a point person who would help mitigate concerns from residents.

However, after Haddad's resignation in May, a number of questions arose regarding the contract, as well as what the then ombudsman's role was supposed to be. Waterfield assigned a new person to the position when the ombudsman resigned in May.

Selectmen discovered the Waterfield contract did not have any provisions for the town to be released if it was unhappy with the performance of the ombudsman. Some residents questioned why Waterfield, which is in Winchester, would provide the ombudsman. When Haddad was searching for an ombudsman, roughly 14 Cohasset residents applied for the position. Their names cannot be released due to personnel issues.

For more information, please contact Town Manager Michael Buckley at (781) 383-4105, or submit a letter of interest to Buckley at Cohasset Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue.

Town and officer reach settlement

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Sgt. William Quigley will be able to put the past behind him as his lawyers finalized language on a settlement with the town Wednesday.

According to Quigley's attorney Kevin Powers, "The parties reached an amicable agreement with respect to Sgt. Quigley's case and employment relations."

Powers said he thinks the town was very reasonable and once the two parties began negotiating, the town realized there was a problem and was happy to work together to solve it.

Although the amount of the settlement has not been made public, Powers said "Sgt. Quigley is very happy with the settlement and he's happy there's a new chief and they're getting along well. He's looking forward to a bright new future."

Former Town Manager Mark Haddad had placed Quigley and another officer, James McLean on paid administrative leave Oct. 20, 2003. The officers claim the town's disciplinary action was in retaliation for their actions relative to the former police chief Robert Jackson's family, although Haddad denied that had anything to do with the disciplinary action.

Quigley later filed a civil suit against Haddad and Jackson personally and the town for interfering with Quigley's employment as a police officer and invading his privacy. The town hired a private detective to look into Quigley's background.

The two were subjected to a public hearing process, during which the town presented its case against the officers over three days. The hearings were cancelled to enter into a 45-day "cooling-off period" before the town finished and officers could present their side.

The two officers returned to work this July, under the direction of Police Chief James Hussey, who took over as interim chief after Jackson's retirement in June.

Multiple sources have also confirmed the town's insurance company recently settled an employment dispute out-of-court with Nicole N. Bartlett, the former Administrative Assistant to the Town Manager, reportedly involving her former manager, Haddad. Bartlett resigned from her position with the town Sept. 27 as allegations surfaced that she stole more than $200,000 from her former employer, The Children's Museum in Boston. While neither Quigley's nor Bartlett's settlement amounts are public, paying the insurance company deductibles may have to be authorized by voters at this December's Special Town Meeting.

Resident questions whether more surprises are in store

Town government has had rough time

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Since the beginning of the year, some residents feel Cohasset has been in a "free fall" situation, with new unpleasant surprises being uncovered virtually every week. From budgetary shortfalls to personnel matters, Cohasset has had its share of ups and downs, and both residents and the Board of Selectmen are hoping that cycle is coming to an end.

However, although everyone hopes the chaos will wind down, Wig Pierson, 123 Atlantic Ave., asked the Board of Selectmen Tuesday whether the surprises which have plagued the town for the past 10 months are over, or does it anticipate there will be more in the coming weeks. He added it will be best for the residents of the town if the board comes out in front of the issues before they surface, rather than have to hear it from the newspapers. "Is there anything more you might care to share with us?" he asked.

The town has gone through a rocky period, which has included a long, public hearing process regarding two officers who were placed on paid administrative leave one year ago amid allegations of wrongdoing. The officers, who deny the accusations, are back at work, but the former police chief has retired and the Town Manager has resigned. There was a $400,000 override fight for the schools and a heated town election. The recent news of resignation of the administrative assistant to the Town Manager, who is being charged with stealing more than $200,000 from her former employer, has led the town to seek a financial audit. The former Town Manager apparently knew his assistant had been fired from her previous job, but hired her anyway.

Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan said he too would like to see the cycle stop. "I would like nothing more than to be at an end, but some problems you cannot foresee," he said. He added the board has found out about many of the recent events in town at almost the same time as the press. He added in regards to some of the personnel matters the town has had to face, "I wouldn't have anticipated those in any way."

While some events were out as quickly as they were known, Pierson asked why the board never mentioned its plan to continue to pay former Police Chief Robert Jackson's salary, months after his retirement.

Sullivan said he doesn't see paying Jackson as a surprise, as it is common practice for towns to enter into separation agreements with longtime employees, and there have been no instances in the past where the board has issued a press release to announce agreements with employees.

> "Is there anything more you might care to share with us?"
> — Wigmore Pierson, Atlantic Avenue

Selectman Ronnie McMorris said in regards to Jackson, "To have someone collect accrued vacation pay is something I don't think is newsworthy. It's not a major issue and it's not a major story."

But Pierson said if Jackson has been receiving a paycheck since June, that is six months the town has been paying him. "Perhaps my math is off," he said, but it would seem Jackson has been paid for more than six weeks vacation time.

"Your math is off," said McMorris, adding Jackson was paid during a time of transition and for vacation time, and that is not unreasonable. But Pierson said, "We're at six months now. What happened between five weeks and six months?"

Town Manager Michael Buckley said at the time Jackson offered up his retirement, it was not immediately effective. He agreed to stay on to help Chief Hussey through the transition period, and worked until late July. Ordinarily, when someone retires, they are given the option to take their vacation pay in one lump sum, but Jackson decided to take his in weekly payments, which he received through Sept. 17. He then began receiving severance pay, which will last for six weeks, meaning next week will be the last week he will receive payments.

Pierson suggested each member of the board stand outside Tedeschi's for 15 minutes and ask passers-by how well the town is being managed and their opinion on town government. "I think you'd learn a lot," he said, adding it would be beneficial for the board to speak to people outside their regular circles who continue to tell them what a great job they're doing.

Sullivan said to have been chairman and on the board during these times has been very difficult and he doesn't think anyone has been patting themselves on the back. "I think we've made some tough decisions, and we're doing what we were elected to do. We make decisions which are in the best interest of the town, we do not make decisions we would like to hoist on the town." He said there have been some very difficult issues which have arisen, and "they're not always situations we can put a positive spin on."

Sullivan went on to say many of the surprises the town has seen have quickly become public issues which the board "had no idea were occurring. The public knew almost as quickly as I did," he said.

Pierson suggested the board come out ahead of issues in the future, rather than having the papers and citizens digging information up and the board responding. "It would be to our collective advantage," he said.

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer said it would be impossible for the board to ever say there will be no more surprises. He said with the new police chief on board and a new Town Manager, he is optimistic about the town's future.

Transportation Authority's environmental impact study. The MBTA will reconstruct the old railroad line and bring train transportation to Cohasset once more through the Greenbush Commuter Rail. When the suspected location of the buried roundhouse was determined, Wadsworth said the digging began in 2000 to determine whether the roundhouse was in fact where it was thought to be.

Town Treasurer/Tax Collector Joe DiVito said he was part of that excavation, as DiVito Construction, his family's company, was hired to do the excavating. Due to its delicate nature, DiVito, along with his father, had to dig at a very slow pace. He said a metal plate was welded to the teeth of the backhoe in order to dig in very shallow, even swipes. "It was very slow and methodical," he said.

DiVito said after the excavation, pictures and measurements were taken at the site to enable it to be thoroughly mapped to be located again in the future. "We threw a blue tarp over it and covered it back over," he said, which allowed those digging this time to clearly see when they had found the site.

Although the roundhouse will be covered over and paved while the rest of the parking lot is excavated, there are plans to permanently install pavers around the exterior of the roundhouse at ground level, to mark where this historic treasure lies under the earth. However, permanent pavers will not be installed until all construction in the adjacent area is complete.

Wig Pierson, who has also been involved with the petition, said of the roughly 350 cities and towns in the state, it is his understanding that 170 other communities have similar provisions which give residents some control over elected officials.

"It gives the community an option other than an election," to have a changing of the guard, he said.

Harvey, who ran for selectman last year, agreed and said while elections allow for long-term change of officials, "What if someone does something inappropriate right now?" For example, if a board or its members entered into an illegal executive session, Harvey said currently, all residents could do in terms of action is, "Just say please don't."

Harvey said bringing the recall power into the hands of residents is an issue he raised months ago at the Town Manager Act Review Committee meetings. He said there would need to be a change of the Town Manager Act itself in order to activate a recall of votes. "It is a major loophole," he said, which exists in the current act, and does not give the people who elect an official the same power to take them out of office. However, if the Town Manager Act is changed, there would "be a course of action you could take," to make sure those kinds of instances no longer take place, he said. "Right now, we have our hands tied," he said.

Pierson said it must be made clear it is not the intention of anyone who has signed the petition to try to recall anyone in current office. However, those behind the article, "feel this is the time to see it put in the town charter."

Brian McNiff, a spokesman for the Secretary of State's office said while he did not know the exact number of communities which have recall provisions, "It is not unique by any means."

Accounting firm picked to look at the town's books

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

At the request of the Board of Selectmen, Town Manager Michael Buckley, Town Treasurer/Tax Collector Joe DiVito, and Selectmen Rob Spofford and Ralph Dormitzer interviewed accounting firms to conduct a forensic audit of the towns books and procedures. Of the two firms interviewed, the group has recommended Melanson Heath & Company, PC of Andover to conduct the audit, based largely on its extensive municipal experience.

The audit became necessary when allegations surfaced that former Administrative Assistant to the Town Manager Nicole N. Bartlett had been accused of stealing more than $200,000 from her former employer, The Children's Museum in Boston, by depositing unauthorized payroll checks into personal accounts. Bartlett was also responsible for the payroll in Cohasset, and an internal investigation began shortly after her resignation Sept. 27. While the town has not reported any suspicious activity, the audit will make sure nothing is amiss.

Spofford said although it is hard to set a budget for an audit, as it will all depend on whether the firm finds anything financially amiss and must stay longer, the firm has said its hourly rates will be between $45 and $185. Town Manager Michael Buckley was slated to come before the Advisory Committee last night (Thursday) to ask for $12,500 to cover expenses related to the audit.

As Town Manager, Buckley would usually be responsible for hiring the auditing firm. However, in this instance, Town Counsel will hire Melanson Heath & Co. Buckley explained where he is wearing two hats as both the acting Town Manager and Director of Finance, he would essentially be required to oversee an audit which is investigating the finances which he also oversees. Buckley was Director of Finance at Town Hall at the time former Town Manager Mark Haddad resigned, and as second in line, Buckley stepped up to fill that position temporarily until a new Town Manager can be found.

"I think we're moving in the right direction," said Spofford, adding the audit can begin immediately.

name for their new family member who arrived as "Java".

"People who adopt these dogs have a real connection," remarked Kirsten Wohlgemuth, who noted that many people come back and adopt another puppy. It was Kirsten who first brought an island pup home to Hingham from her Caribbean vacation and inspired the whole idea of rescue.

"St. Croix is overrun with homeless, hungry animals, and the island animal shelter is forced to euthanize more than 200 dogs and puppies each month," explains Puppy Rescue Director and Founder Joan McCafferty of Cohasset. Meanwhile, many stateside shelters maintain long waiting lists for families hoping to adopt small, mixed-breed pups. Often families will grow impatient and turn to pet shops that are likely supplied by notorious puppy mills or backyard breeders, and end up paying hundreds of dollars for purebred pups.

"The Crucian pups all tend to be small and their natures are particularly sweet. It's as if they know they've been reprieved," Joni explains. Lots of people are specifically seeking small dogs — if we can connect the right home to the right puppy, we are saving a life and reducing the demand for purebred dogs." Kathy Roycroft of Marshfield, one of the six puppy foster mothers, agrees, adding, "We match wonderful dogs with wonderful people."

Joan Hopkins of Scituate opens her home to foster puppies as well, and often gets a hand from her niece Anna.

Typically, the pups arrive two at a time in the carry-on bag of a volunteer "travel partner," arriving at Logan on late-night flights, where they are met by the six south shore women and taken to one of the foster homes. The women then assess the puppies' personalities, and match them to those of the applicants who express a desire for a certain "look" or characteristic, such as compatibility with other pets and children.

Kennel owners Wendy and Stephen Oleksiak donated use of the venue for the event, saying they were glad to help. "It's great to see animals in such desperate need find loving homes through this small organization," Wendy says. Sometimes foster puppies in transition are invited to board at the Kennel by the generous Oleksiaks.

"Their support has been unbelievable," says Joni.

Families and pups alike looked as pleased and proud as the champions at Crufts. Some of the dogs were known to be relatives, and they all have a "Crucian" look. Judy Sestito of Cohasset adopted shy little Chihuahua mix Prince, who's almost four years old. "He has a twin who lives in North Scituate — we were walking in Wompatuck when we ran into each other, and we said, "where did you get your puppy?" And we figured out that they're both from the island, and they must be related! They're about a year apart." Judy had just adopted a friend for Prince, a 12-week old spayed female dachshund mix.

Barktoberfest was not only an event where families got together and showed off their island pups, but was a successful fundraiser for the rescue group. Kathy Wormersley, a Cohasset middle school teacher and puppy foster mother, was doing a brisk business in selling sweatshirts and raffle tickets (see sidebar). Scituate foster mom Jean Piers took photographs of pooches with a backdrop of palm trees on a sand-colored blanket for a nominal donation of $3.

A little blonde pup refused to budge from the blanket. "She's having a flashback!" laughed Lindsay Blake, who adopted Marguerita last May. "She's been perfect! We lost our Rottweiler and we wanted a little friend for our Jack Russell terrier, Maddie." She confesses that she was a "dog snob," and her husband Rick wanted to rescue. "I'm a convert! Their dispositions are so great. With purebreds, you get lots of bad traits. These guys are so good!"

Jane Norton of Cohasset arrived with adorable little long-haired dachshund/papillon mix named Elmo, whose streamer ears and tail and smudge eyebrows made him an instant hit when he came from the island, one of the first adoptees. Jane left the Barktoberfest with Elmo — and a friendly auburn-colored Caribbean heart-stealer, a spayed year-old female.

St. Croix Connection Puppy Rescue has placed 178 dogs since they began last May, and the nonprofit group insists that all puppies be spayed and neutered. The organization will use donations and any money raised for medical bills and puppy plane tickets ($40 each). "Hopefully, as we expand our network of foster homes and raise funds and awareness through gatherings such as this, we can save more dogs," said Joni.

many doctors have no vaccine, the Cohasset Board of Health had a limited amount of flu vaccines and held a free clinic from 10 a.m. to noon, Tuesday at Town Hall for Cohasset's senior citizens and high-risk residents.

Health board chairman Steve Bobo said the town, which usually has 800 shots, obtained 400. "We bought the vaccine early," he said, explaining the vaccine was paid for through a gift account and donations.

A nation-wide shortage of vaccine this year has resulted in long lines at most places where clinics have been conducted. A British company could not provide the 48 million doses of the vaccine as promised due to quality concerns at the company's plant.

People started waiting for flu shot "tickets" at Stop & Shop at 3 a.m. and at 7 a.m. at the town clinic Tuesday.

Due to limited supplies, the state issued an order limiting vaccine to those at high risk. From 800 to 1,000 Massachusetts residents die each year due to complications from the flu. [The state recently notified towns that more vaccine will be delivered to Massachusetts and will be distributed to community health departments.]

According to published reports, pushing and shoving has occurred at some regional flu shot clinics.

But that was definitely not the case at the Cohasset Stop & Shop, where an area was set up with tables and chairs and free coffee was provided for those who waited in line for flu shot "tickets."

Things also went smoothly at the town clinic the following Tuesday, which received high marks for its organization. Because of Tuesday's town clinic, Stop & Shop mainly attracted out-ot-towners at its clinic Saturday.

Sydney Edelman of Brookline surfed the internet to find a clinic for his wife, who has diabetes. Once his wife obtained a ticket at 7 a.m. Saturday at Stop & Shop, they planned to go out to breakfast and come back when the clinic opened.

Sisters, Peggy Kelley, Ann LaCortiglia and Barbara Blushi arrived at 2:45 a.m. – from Milton, Weymouth and Braintree, respectively, along with Peggy's son Ronald.

"We went into a panic thinking we wouldn't be able to get shots this year," said LaCortiglia. "But we're feeling very confident right now." The sisters and Ronald had ticket numbers 3 through 6, out of a possible 500.

When they realized there were still tickets available later that morning, they called their brother, Francis Sweeney, 69, who drove down from Weymouth.

Robert Brown of Needham had ticket number two. He said last year was the first time he had a flu shot.

"I decided to get another one this year – I've known people who have really gotten sick from the flu," he said.

Evelyn Laut, 74, of Brockton arrived at 3:15 a.m. and had ticket number 7.

"I went to the Stoughton Stop & Shop [earlier in the week]," she said. "I was unable to get a number there. "I've heard this year there will be a particularly virulent form of flu."

Stop & Shop handed out consent forms provided by Maxim Health Systems – that provided the vaccine – to those waiting in line. Those not on Medicare paid $20 for an injection. People were also asked to fill out a questionnaire to determine their risk factor and the clinics followed CDC (Center for Disease Control) guidelines providing injections for those most at risk to suffer complications if they contracted the flu.

Robert Keane, spokesman for Stop & Shop, said the company partners with Maxim, which is a different supplier from Chiron Corp. that had the quality problems causing the shortage.

"We had no problem obtaining vaccine because we place our order in advance," Keane said. Stop & Shop conducted 142 clinics and provided 10s of 1000s of shots, he said. Stop and Stop has 347 stores – 250 of which have pharmacies. The clinics were held regionally in stores with pharmacies.

Those interviewed at Stop & Shop reported their physicians said their shipments were cancelled.

Michael Freda of Marshfield arrived at 3:55 a.m. and obtained ticket number 10.

He said the first person in line arrived at midnight.

A school bus driver with some medical problems, Freda said his wife pushed him to go to Cohasset for a shot.

"She said, 'if you get the flu and die, I'll never talk to you again,'" Freda said.

Massage lends a helping hand in warding off the flu

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The flu shot is in short supply this year, and many people have been standing in line for hours just for the chance to be one of the lucky recipients. Those who are considered to be in good health have been asked to forego the vaccination this year to make sure "high-risk" residents such as the elderly and small children are taken care of first.

But even without the shot, there are measures a person can take to keep flu viruses at bay, and Licensed Massage Therapist Mike Leary of Conlon Family Chiropractic says simply getting a massage can make a tremendous difference in boosting immunity.

Leary performs manual lymphatic drainage massages which help stimulate better lymph flow for health. Lymph is a fluid which travels throughout the body, cleansing organs as if flows. Lymph nodes filter out the unwanted substances such as viruses and bacteria that the lymph picks up along the way, and by ensuring the lymph keeps moving, white blood cells can travel more easily to sites of infection.

"This is safe for everybody and anybody," said Leary, with the one exception of those who suffer from lymphatic cancers, as the procedure could encourage it to spread. However, he said those who are healthy can be massaged multiple times during the week without any ill effects.

Lying on a heated table under soft flannel sheets, Leary's clients listen to soft, soothing music during the massage as a fragrant candle burns. He starts by making sure the legs are relaxed, and massages the feet. Leary said it is important to perform the massage in a sequence which mimics the flow of lymph in the body, which begins at the right leg, then the left, then the left arm followed by the right.

Leary bends the toes, and knees and makes sure the hip joints are loose, to encourage lymph flow. The same is done for the hands, elbows and shoulders.

The massage begins with the right leg and Leary makes small sweeping motions across the top of the skin with his hands. It is almost the same motion as brushing crumbs off your lap. The brushing is done from the toes upward, in the same direction as lymph flow. Leary said some people get a little sticky during the massage as the lymph comes through and collects on the surface of the skin.

The same is done for the left leg, and both arms, and Leary also taps on the upper chest where the thymus gland is located, which is one of the main filters of the body.

Leary then works on the back, pressing on either side of the spine and up the neck to encourage more lymph flow. When the massage is complete, Leary places a hot pack on the lower back and allows the client to relax for a while until going back into the real world.

After experiencing the massage, it is not uncommon for a client to temporarily feel a little under the weather as the body works to get rid of the toxins. Leary advises clients not eat for one hour after the massage to allow the body to do its work without having to worry about digestion. He said it is important to drink lots of water afterward to help filter the body, and immunity will be improved once the toxins are gone.

In addition to lymphatic massages, Leary also gives neuro muscular massages, and he practices reflexology and hydro therapy. He said with his background in sports, he knows all about sports related injuries, and because he has also run in marathons, he is familiar with running injuries as well. "It all depends on the problem," he said, which directs him in the best method to use. "I'm always taking more classes," he said, but added the degree he received from the New Hampshire Institute for the Therapeutic Arts in Hudson, N.H. made him very well versed from the start, and gave him an edge in becoming nationally certified.

"New Hampshire is much more strict in their licensing," than Massachusetts said Leary, adding those who wish to be accredited must pass strict state regulations. He said just after graduation, he had to pass a massage test with many other recent graduates who all set their tables up together to be judged in the gymnasium of a university for national certification. "It was bring your own body," he said, adding he brought his wife Cindy, and judges walked around making sure all the candidates were correctly administering a Swedish massage.

Leary said he has given massages to virtually everyone in his family, including his 10-year-old daughter Shannon. "She's a massage junkie," he joked. However, he said when illness creeps up on family vacations, they symptoms don't last long because of the massages he gives. "I always bring my table," he said.

While Leary said he thinks the flu shot is a great idea, especially for seniors and children, he said they don't always capture the correct strain. In fact, because he is constantly working in close proximity with people he always gets a flu shot. However, he said last year, he received a flu shot in early fall, and in December, he ended up sick in bed with the flu for five days anyway.

Above all, Leary said the basic practices of constantly washing the hands, eating well, drinking plenty of water and getting enough rest always help in the fight against germs, but through massage, the immune system may get an extra boost to help fend off the flu.

For more information, please contact Leary at Conlon Family Chiropractic, located at 814 Route 3A near the Scituate line, at (781) 383-1616 or via e-mail at dmlearylmt@comcast.net. During National Massage Therapy Awareness Week, which runs from Oct. 24 to Oct. 30, massages will be 33 percent off.

Leonard was one of five Hingham residents among the 200-plus citizens in Bradley's district who signed a citizen's petition to get the non-binding question on the ballot. "Other communities have passed questions with similar wording," he said.

Bradley noted, however, that proponents of marijuana decriminalization talked with him about 18 months ago and proposed such a bill for the last legislative session. The proposed legislation was studied by the Criminal Justice Committee during a public hearing. Subsequently, the bill was sent to a study committee due to "lack of support," Bradley said. "That means it's virtually dead."

Bradley named some of the concerns centering around the issue. "Make no mistake about it — marijuana is a gateway drug that can lead to cocaine, heroin, and other drug use," he said.

Stating that the reality of the situation isn't as "simple" as Question 1 implies, Bradley further noted that the effort to decriminalize marijuana "has nothing to do with medicinal use." Besides, he said, "with a civil offense, there's no tracking system [to indicate whether it's a first offense or multiple offenses]. I believe the best way to handle this is within the criminal court system because it is an established way of tracking whether someone is abusing or selling marijuana. The prosecutor's office also has the ability to handle cases properly if it's a first offense. If such a case is tried in criminal court and the person is simply fined, then it doesn't go on his or her record."

Diversion programs for those under age 21 caught with marijuana for the first time are also available to help them deal with the issue of drug use. Upon successful completion of the course, the case can be dismissed without leaving the minor with a criminal record. Marijuana is considered to be an illegal drug for people of any age.

Cohasset Police Chief James Hussey is concerned the forum may not be balanced. " I hope that they are going to at least present both sides," he said.

Hussey said he also believes marijuana leads to other drugs and has yet to be convinced otherwise. "The youth population experiments with that and then wants to try something else," Hussey said.

Marijuana not only affects one's decision-making capabilities, it also affects the immune system, according to Hingham DARE Officer Michael Peraino. "There's also more tar in marijuana than in cigarettes," he said.

He went on to say, "We have enough trouble keeping alcohol out of the kids' hands as it is. If we make marijuana possession a civil violation, the marijuana use problem will explode because there will be no consequences and kids would likely think it worth the risk."

In clarifying the reasoning behind the ballot question, Taylor emphasized that it's not the intent of this question or of the DPFMA that children fall under legislation that would decriminalize marijuana.

"We don't want to encourage kids to use drugs," Taylor said. Nor does DPFMA want young people to "lose higher education and other opportunities through a felony drug conviction." But, she said, "those details will be worked out in the complicated legislative process. We want to make public policy better for everybody in Massachusetts. Maybe at some point we can work with drug and alcohol educators in the school system."

"When Rep. Bradley votes on this issue, he should be conveying the opinion of his constituency."
—Whitney Taylor of DPFMA

The amount of marijuana given in Question 1 was set at an ounce or less because that "would be considered personal use versus trafficking or selling marijuana," according to Taylor.

In order to gauge how citizens feel about the issue, the DPFMA is holding an open educational forum Wed., Oct. 27, at 7 p.m. at Hingham Public Library, 66 Leavitt St. Guest speakers include Michael Cutler, a Massachusetts criminal defense attorney, and Taylor. Their presentation will be followed by a discussion period.

The purpose of the forum is to provide the community with an opportunity to educate themselves about, and to discuss, the issues prior to the election and to ask questions. The event is open to the public.

"We will also be talking about the myths versus the facts," Taylor said. "It has been scientifically proven that the health risks linked to the use of marijuana are much less than those related to alcohol or tobacco use." She further stated that the question refers to marijuana decriminalization for personal possession only, or recreational use.

"The intent is that marijuana possession will still be illegal, but we'd be taking it from a criminal to a civil penalty," Taylor said. "So if someone is caught with a couple of joints, let's fine that person but not waste funds on prosecuting [him or her] criminally."

Furthermore, Taylor said, If someone caught with an ounce or less is found to be driving under the influence of marijuana – or alcohol, that's a different story. "We want them to be prosecuted. An impairment test would show whether or not that was the case," she said.

The point is, said Bradley, that "marijuana is illegal. I think the criminal court system can handle cases involving marijuana in an appropriate way on a case-by-case basis, not just by issuing [the equivalent of] a citation."

The DPFMA has been moving across the state since 2000 to present policy questions. Other Massachusetts communities have passed the same type of non-binding questions as the one facing Hingham, Hull, Cohasset and some Scituate voters on Nov. 2. For example, the Fifth Plymouth Representative District, which includes Hanover, Norwell, and Rockland, passed the same non-binding question in 2002.

Question 1

Voters will be asked to vote on this non-binding marijuana decriminalization public policy question on the Nov. 2 ballot:

"Shall the state representative from this district be instructed to vote in favor of legislation that would make possession of less than one ounce of marijuana a civil violation, subject to a maximum fine of $100 and not subject to any criminal penalties?"

Forum on marijuana question Oct. 27

The Drug Policy Forum of Massachusetts (DPFMA) has placed a Marijuana Decriminalization Public Policy Question on the Nov. 2 ballot in the 3rd Plymouth Representative District to measure how the community feels about this important public safety issue. DPFMA chose the 3rd Plymouth District because District Rep. Garrett Bradley sits on the Legislature's Criminal Justice Committee which will most likely vote on similar legislation in the upcoming Legislative Session.

The Public Policy Question will make the penalty for possession of one ounce or less of marijuana by an adult a $100 civil fine. The current penalty is criminal arrest, and a severe and costly punishment. Each of the 30 daily marijuana arrests in Massachusetts takes a police officer off the street for hours, and adds another case to the backlogged court system.

An educational forum at 7 p.m., Oct. 27 at the Hingham Public Library, is open to the public.

Special guest speakers include: Michael Cutler, Massachusetts Criminal Defense Attorney and Whitney A. Taylor, Executive Director, Drug Policy Forum of Massachusetts.

Health board and schools work together for students

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Walsh added the schools are now more accountable at the state level for teaching nutrition than ever before, and Cohasset is right on target.

The Board of Health is involved with the schools in a number of ways. From working with students who participate in the Summer Institute, to performing health inspections, to working with food services, the two departments continually collaborate in the best interest of the student's health.

To keep the lines of communication open, the board invited Supt. Denise Walsh for an informal discussion Wednesday, to decide how to best move forward with objectives for the year. Walsh said as a new member of the administration, she would appreciate any background information the board could give her, adding she is looking forward to working with them in the future.

"We interact with the schools in a number of ways," said Chairman of the Board of Health Steve Bobo, adding one of the most valuable programs the two are involved with is the Center for Student Coastal Research. "It's a very important element in our environmental assessment," he said. Reports compiled by high school students were sent off to the Attorney General's office on behalf of the town after this year's Summer Institute program, and Bobo was very impressed with the work completed. He added that the center also offers programs for young students as well, which is very beneficial in sparking their interest at a young age.

Walsh said the town is "very fortunate to have that facility," which is a great asset to the town, especially due to its location. She added she would be grateful to the board for any information they could give her on the program's history to help "fill in the blanks," as the continue to move forward together.

Walsh and the board also discussed the installation of Automated External Defibrillators at the schools. The fire department has been working hard to raise the funds necessary to both buy the machines as well as pay for training. Walsh said once the machines are installed, she would like to make sure all town departments are on board to ensure everyone has gone through the same stages of training and that everyone is on the same page. She said there will have to be a town-wide initiative which will need to be approved as a community, with the fire department taking the lead. "It's a perfect example of a way the town and schools need to work together," said Walsh.

The board also spoke with Walsh about the current school lunch menu. Bobo said the menus have changed radically in the cafeteria since the school lunch program was brought back in house. Previously, the schools had out-sourced the lunch program, but since Food Services Coordinator Robert Levy has taken over and brought the operation in-house, there has been tremendous progress with the nutritional value of the food served. In addition, Bobo said a Nutritional Advisory Committee has begun which meets with members of the school administration on a quarterly basis.

"I've been very pleased looking at the offerings," in the cafeteria, said Walsh, adding Levy has done a wonderful job in the past year. She said in addition to the wonderful work done by Levy, the Department of Education has taken the lead to improve nutritional value in school cafeterias as well, and healthy food choice "is truly a part of the educational program now." Walsh added the schools are now more accountable at the state level for teaching nutrition than ever before, and Cohasset is right on target. She thinks because Cohasset is responsible for its food offerings, "There is a sense of pride and ownership," which has helped the program keep improving.

Bobo also mentioned the school inspections the board handles. Member Peggy Chapman said inspections have grown and the board now looks not only at the inside of the buildings, but they study the pesticides and fertilizers on the grounds to make sure they do not pose any health risk to students as well.

Walsh said the town is moving forward in its quest to find a full time building maintenance supervisor, who will be responsible for the upkeep and cleanliness of the school buildings, and once that person is hired, the board will most likely work with that person a good deal, especially in coordinating inspections.

Walsh also asked for direction in how to proceed through what could be a tough flu season. Walsh said the schools will be getting questions, "and we need direction on what to advise parents." Bobo said the board would be happy to provide information to ensure the schools have information readily available on various health concerns moving into the winter, to ensure both staff and parents always have information readily available.

OPINION

Transparent government

With rare exceptions, there is absolutely no reason not to conduct government in a completely open fashion.

The recent flap over former police chief Robert Jackson's "retirement package" should be much ado about nothing. The chief served the town for some 25 years and has earned the right to receive a severance package upon retirement.

But what has raised the ire of some taxpayers is the fact the citizenry wasn't provided the straight scoop from the start. The former chief's separation agreement and monetary arrangement weren't made clear.

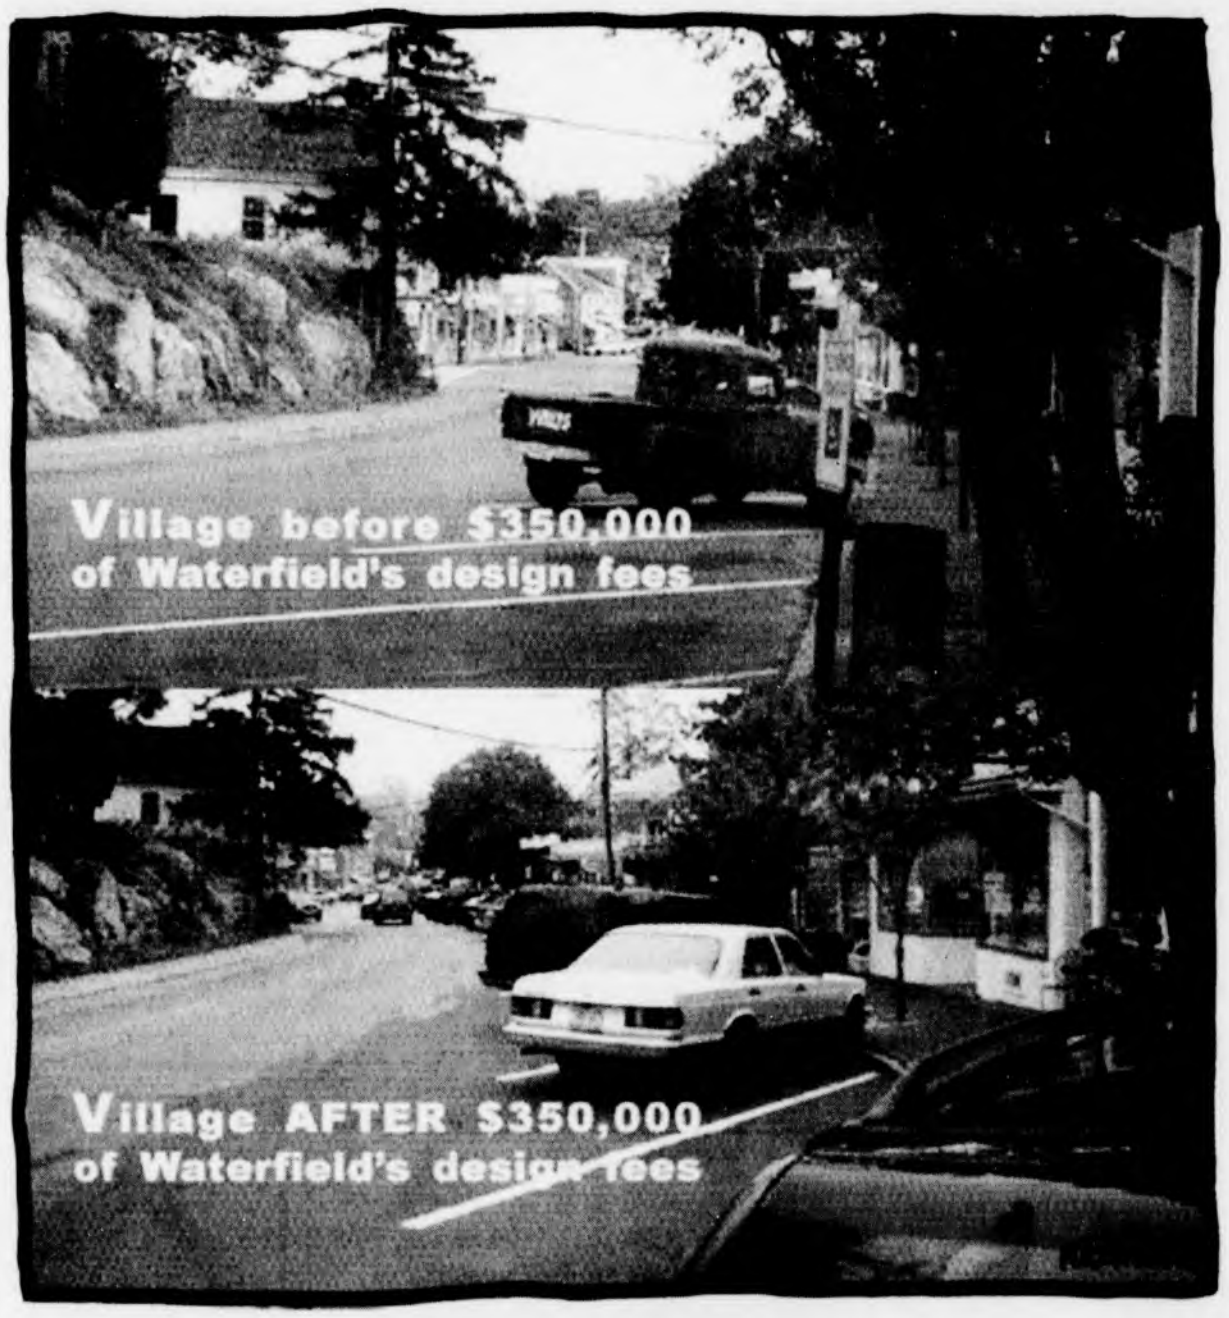
The recent controversy is not Mr. Jackson's fault and we're sure he'd prefer to retire from all the media attention.

However, there's at the very least a perception out there that too much is going on behind the scenes at Town Hall and in the school department. To some it appears officials share information with the public as a last resort, after the issue or financial matter has been massaged and packaged for public consumption.

While that might work in other towns, Cohasset residents are too sharp and care too much about their community to accept anything less than a full and candid disclosure.

By all accounts, Cohasset has had a rough year. Its CEO abruptly resigned under a cloud of controversy only to be followed by his administrative assistant, who stands accused of stealing from her former employer. The town will now conduct an audit to make sure nothing is amiss in the books here.

And that's only the tip of the iceberg in terms of ongoing sagas that read like a Hollywood novel.



Yet the sun comes up every morning in Cohasset – which despite everything – is still a well run and well managed municipality for the most part.

Now the town is faced with what will likely be an acrimonious debate about adopting a "recall process" for elected officials. While we believe the best recall is a regular election and we don't think a recall should be held like a cudgel over officials' heads, we're not surprised that an effort has surfaced to place the recall option before the Special Town Meeting. We also think those promoting the petition should not be attacked for doing so by the powers that be. The effort is obviously a reaction to complete frustration with the lack of transparency in town government – which, by the way, is supposed of the people, by the people, and for the people.

So where do we go from here? That's really up to those with the courage to lead and be frank with the voters.

We hope leading up to special Town Meeting, there aren't any more surprises. But if issues or financial matters should surface – we suggest town officials give us the news in straightforward way, with complete disclosure, and let the chips fall where they may.

Teens benefit from visit to police station

TO THE EDITOR:

There usually aren't too many smiles on the faces of teenagers and police officers when the two groups come into contact at the Cohasset Police station. But thanks to Chief Hussey, Sgt. William Quigley, and Officer Christy Tarantino, smiles and laughter were the order of the day when the Cohasset Police Department hosted Cohasset High School juniors and seniors enrolled in the Social Studies elective, "An Introduction to Law." Though there were many serious discussions of legal issues ranging from probable cause to penalties for forged identification cards, just having a chance to sit in a cruiser, run the lights, blast the siren, and handle some tactical assault "tools", created the lighthearted moments that come few and far between for teens and cops.

Chief Hussey welcomed the students to the station and by way of introduction as the new chief of the force, encouraged students to share their youthful wisdom with the department via email, phone, or letter. As further evidence of the chief's desire to reach out to the students, an open invitation (as has also been supported in previous administrations) to ride along with an officer was extended to the students. Officer Tarantino and Sgt. Quigley then took over the program, explaining to students the command structure of the department, the function of dispatch, and daily routines of an officer. The highlights of the program, however, began with two presentations. Students were walked through a mock OUI arrest (field sobriety test, breathalyzer, booking) and were given an opportunity to see, touch, and understand uses and deployment of the more intriguing and interesting tools of the trade — tactical weapons. Students dressed in helmets with face shields, sporting Kelvar vests, holding a protective shield (including lights!) and carrying the modern version of the nightstick, made for highly amusing class material. And when the ultimate police toy, the cruiser, was made accessible to students (at the dismay, perhaps, of some elderly neighbors to whom I apologize), the fun was palpable.

Lest one get the impression that this experience was frivolous, let me assure you that it was highly valuable to the community. Students learned important facts about police procedures and legal issues, but more important, students had an experience with the Cohasset Police Department that can't be measured on any law class test, nor fully assessed in the short term. Students had the invaluable opportunity to judge for themselves whether the police in our community do, in fact, have respect for teenagers; whether the officers do, in fact, have an interest in working constructively with teenagers; and whether the officers do, in fact, have a difficult job to perform, despite the fact that "it's just Cohasset."

Though only the teens themselves can answer these questions, this opportunity to work constructively with their town's officers is, I believe, a highly valuable educational endeavor. I thank Chief Hussey, Officer Tarantino, Officer Lisa Matos (who visited class two weeks ago to deliver a highly detailed lecture on case law), and Sgt. Quigley (and all other officers with whom I've worked) for continuing to be invested in the education of Cohasset students.

CANDIDATES CORNER

Hussey in final stretch

Governor's Council candidate Donald Hussey of Hingham is setting the stage for a final push to Nov. 2. Hussey, a former Norwell teacher and U.S. Air Force veteran, has been criss-crossing the Fourth Council district from South Boston to Duxbury and everywhere in between, meeting with voters in an attempt to unseat attorney Christopher Iannella, Jr. of Boston.

In a recent meeting with voters at 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy, Hussey said, "The Governor's Council confirms the appointment of judges. Judges are constitutionally bound to interpret law, not write it; that's the responsibility of the Legislature. Supreme Court Chief Justice Margaret Marshall, confirmed through the Governor's Council, wrote the law legalizing same-sex marriage in Massachusetts. This issue should be decided by the voters — not by the individual moral interpretation of one person. Following the decision by Justice Marshall, attorney Iannella said the appoint of Chief Justice Marshall was one of his 'proudest accomplishments.'"

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Anthony Scalia recently said, "The courts have strayed into a realm of judicial activism that is ultimately bad for democracy." He went on to say, "It is blindingly clear that judges have no better capacity than the rest of us to determine what is moral."

Hussey said, "The existing Governor's Council is made up almost exclusively of lawyers. Lawyers who appoint other lawyers to the bench. This is a clear conflict of interest, even under the best of intentions or circumstances. The eight Council members are elected from districts which stretch across the State.

Don Hussey

"I am looking forward to Election Day with great anticipation. Serving on the Governor's Council will be a great honor for me," said Hussey.

For more information, call the Hussey Committee at 781-749-0977.

Hussey Committee to hold fund-raiser

The Committee to Elect Donald Hussey cordially invites all interested voters to attend a fund-raiser for Governor's Council candidate Donald Hussey of Hingham.

Hussey, a former Norwell teacher and U.S. Air Force veteran, has been actively campaigning throughout the Fourth Council district which stretches from South Boston to Duxbury, including some 24 other communities including Brockton, Hanover, Rockland, and Norwell to Dorchester, Quincy and Braintree, Hussey has been meeting with voters as he criss-crosses Boston and the South Shore in an attempt to unseat attorney Christopher Iannella, Jr. of Boston.

Hussey said, "Judicial appointments impact our lives more directly than ever. The legalization of gay marriage in Massachusetts is a glaring example of judicial activism." The council members, comprised almost exclusively of lawyers, vote to elevate other lawyers to judgeships. This is a clear conflict of interest, even under the best of circumstances or intentions.

The Hussey fund raising event, hosted by Lynne and Donald Pinto, will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Oct. 29, at their home in Hingham.

For more information, call the Hussey Campaign Committee at 781-749-0977.

Why the two ash trees must come down

COMMENTARY

COHASSET HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Recently, there has been discussion regarding the Cohasset Historical Society's intention to remove two ash trees from its property at 4 and 6 Elm St. This is the result of a carefully researched project, funded by the CPC, to restore the Captain John Wilson House and to add handicapped access to both the 1810 Wilson House and the adjacent c. 1754 Maritime Museum. Let us explain.

For the past three years, the Society has been working with preservation architects and supporting engineers to solve the water drainage problem, which has caused the gradual but serious destruction of the Wilson House. Essentially, the Wilson House is built on and over ledge in such a way that water draining down the ledge from Highland Avenue has caused the underpinnings of the Wilson House to deteriorate. We have consulted two separate architectural firms, as well as civil, structural, and geotechnical engineers, all of whom agree that this is truly a difficult project site. After much testing, analysis, and design work, they have developed plans for a construction project to reroute the water flow around the Wilson House, drain away any water that does enter the building, and rebuild the foundation beams and lower level walls which have rotted.

Why are we so concerned about these buildings? The Cohasset Historical Society is the custodian and protector of the artifacts and buildings under its care. Both the Wilson House and the Maritime Museum are listed on the National Register of Historic Places, a significant and exclusive honor. Normally, moving a building from its original location disqualifies it from Register listing. However, the Maritime Museum's move from the harbor area to the center of town did not affect its eligibility since its construction embodies rarely seen techniques and the building remains the sole surviving 18th century ship chandlery in the Commonwealth. Each of the Society's Elm Street museums adds to the character of the center village and tells a distinct story about the early years of Cohasset.

The architects have recommended that we remove most of the scrub and tree growth behind the Wilson House so that equipment can be brought in to do the heavy work of removing soil and ledge to reroute the surface water around the Maritime Museum and down between the two buildings to the storm drains in the street. Both the architects and two separate arborists have told us that the digging that needs to be done between the two buildings will destroy about 40 percent of the root structure of the larger ash tree located in this space and since this tree's root structure will be seriously compromised, the tree probably won't survive.

The other tree stands at the southeast corner of the Maritime Museum and completely overarches the building as well as the power wires on Elm Street. The location of this tree is such that debris from the tree continually falls into the gutters and on the roof. In its present configuration, the tree shades the whole corner of the Maritime Museum keeping the sun away which encourages mold and mildew growth on and in this historic building.

The root pattern for this tree is notably unbalanced. Roots can only grow in front of the Maritime Museum or to the east under a cobble patio. Aborists tell us that this makes this tree more susceptible to toppling in a severe storm, especially with its large crown. Although the tree could be pruned, the required pruning would be severe and certainly would upset the gracious leaf canopy we now enjoy. One arborist commented that the town probably would find the tree quite ugly after the required pruning. Without severe pruning, the larger limbs still pose a potential threat to the 1750s Maritime Museum and the Elm street wires in severe storms.

This tree also has heaved the steps of the Maritime Museum three or four inches so that these are quite dangerous for our visitors, especially seniors. The steps could be leveled, but that would require pruning the roots that are causing the upheaval, further unbalancing the tree's root structure.

At the same time, since we are doing major civil engineering work around the Wilson House and in the area between the Wilson and Maritime buildings, we thought it prudent to do a conceptual design for handicapped access so that no anticipated construction would prohibit the handicapped access from proceeding. The Society viewed about twenty different handicapped entry solutions from three different architects who all agree that this is a difficult and tight site, especially when considering the ramp length required to go from sidewalk level to the nearly four foot high Maritime entrance. The best and least intrusive handicapped access solution of all those reviewed requires the removal of this corner tree.

For these reasons, we feel that it is prudent for the Society to remove these two larger trees at the same time we are doing the other tree work on our property. It has been clearly established by surveyors and the Town that the trees are absolutely on our property. This is not something we do lightly, but with much thought and analysis and responsibility. A majority of the Board of Directors at two regular meetings and one special meeting in September and October voted to proceed with the restoration plan. We will be sensitive to the needs of the Town as we finalize our designs and will include as much landscaping and as many plantings as good design and space will allow. Our Society has been a good neighbor since 1928 and we plan on many more years during which we will continue to add to the fabric of our picturesque and historic town.

This commentary was written by Paula Morse, Co-President; Kathy O'Malley, Co-President; and Tom Gruber, First Vice-President of the Cohasset Historical Society.

'Attitude is everything' when it comes to saving the environment

NATURAL VIEW

JIM SHIPSKY

This week I have a little quiz for you. You can visualize it like one of those survivor shows if you want. Here it is: Imagine a group of people living on a wonderful island, where Mother Nature provides sparkling pure water to drink, fresh moist air to breathe, delicious foods to eat, amazing animals to provide company, beautiful meadows and woodlands, meditative seacoasts, and golden warm sunshine and nourishing rainfall. Imagine this group living a lifestyle in harmony with these natural systems, meaning the systems can remain in balance forever. In short, paradise.

Now imagine one member of the group proposes a change of lifestyle for all the islanders that will gradually destroy the essential life-supporting systems. For example, say this guy proposes dumping lots of carbon dioxide, sulfur dioxide, and nitrous oxides into the air, various poisons to the water, carcinogenic chemicals into the soil and food, exterminating many of the animal species, and clear-cutting the forests. Imagine this guy reassures the islanders, "Don't worry. Trust me. There won't be any negative consequences! You'll still be able to breathe the air, drink the water, and eat the food and it won't hurt you."

Now imagine one member of the group proposes a change of lifestyle for all the islanders that will gradually destroy the essential life-supporting systems.

What do you think the response of the islanders would be? I think if the majority of them had even half a brain, they'd put this guy on a raft to anywhere else.

Does this story sound far-fetched to you? Does this guy's attitude sound unbelievable? Well, I'm sorry to tell you this attitude is the dominant attitude here in the United States and here in Cohasset. Every time we drive our cars, turn up the heat or air conditioning in our homes, flip on the lights, and toss another blue pay-as-you-throw plastic bag into the dumpster, we're doing exactly what that island guy proposed. We're destroying another little bit of our beautiful island.

How can we turn this around and move toward a lifestyle of living in harmony with natural systems? Maybe it begins with attitude. A friend of mine has a favorite saying, "Attitude is everything." Too many of us now have the attitude that we can destroy trees and sand dunes without there being any negative consequences. We believe we have the God-given right to do anything we wish with Nature. I think it's time for us to adjust our attitudes. Think about it.

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

I used to go fishing off Minot's Light with Jack Calderwood, the Scituate adman, a gentle man then in his early 70s who rarely raised his voice or lost his temper, except when confronted by his nemesis — the common dogfish.

I don't know why but Jack hated dogfish with a passion seldom seen outside of a terrorist cell.

I recall a day when one of our fishing party hooked and hauled a dogfish into Jack's boat. Jack went whoopee! He grabbed a club and began pounding the inoffensive fish to a pulp much like Tony beating Ralphie to death in season four of The Sopranos.

Dogfish, as the fishermen among us are well aware, are small sharks that hang around fishing grounds to snap up bait and line that we reserve for the A-list critters of the deep like cod and flounder. They are, in a word, pests.

My friend Jack Calderwood would have handled it differently.

I wonder what Jack, if he were still around, would have thought of the way we treated that 14-foot, 1,700-pound great white shark, the kind that munches on arms and legs and small children, that got trapped in the shallow salt water pond near Woods Hole the other day.

If the same amount of effort that was devoted to freeing the shark, so that she (of course, she was female) could continue making life miserable for the swimmers of the world, went into the search for Osama bin Laden, he would have been in the slammer by Sept. 12, 2001.

I don't have an exact count but the number of people who gathered around the shark pool probably would have been good for second or third place on an NFL Sunday attendance list. They included biologists who appear to have been taking the shark's temperature hourly.

My friend Jack Calderwood would have handled it differently. He would have brought the 102nd Field Artillery of the National Guard back from Iraq to blow the great white dogfish out of the water.

While the shark was trapped in the pool, scientists managed to attach a tracking device — gently, so as not to damage her psyche — onto her dorsal fin so they could spy on her while she was grazing on tourists who ventured past ankle deep waters in Florida.

Unfortunately, the shark divested herself of the device before the scientists could determine whether she preferred arms or legs or small children to snack on, a misfortune that left Greg Skomal, a biologist with the Massachusetts Division of Marine Fisheries, with "a hollow feeling."

"For the last three weeks, I've gone to the highest point in my professional career to really one of the lowest," he was quoted as telling the Boston Globe.

Three weeks of dangling a line in the dogfish pool off Minot's Light with my friend Jack Calderwood might have shown him a couple of other points that would have straightened out his concerns in a hurry.

Good and bad news about pollution report

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

For reasons unknown to me, the Mass Bays Program is one of the better ways the State spends money for the environment. The program describes itself as "a partnership of citizens Communities and Government that strives to protect and enhance the coastal health and heritage of Massachusetts and Cape Cod bays."

The program is designed to manage and direct research designed to serve its 50 member communities of which Cohasset is one. Last Thursday, I attended a meeting sponsored by the North South River Watershed Association which is one of the more powerful environmental organizations on the South Shore, in which members of the Mass Bays staff presented a report called the 'State of the Bays Report'.

The report was formatted to provide the answers to a number of interesting questions, such as: 1. 'Have conditions in Boston Harbor changed in the last 10 years?' Or 2. 'Has there been any impact from the Mass Water Resources Authority MWRA's discharge into Mass Bay and Cape Cod?' Or 3. "What are the levels of contaminants in shellfish in Massachusetts and Cape Cod bays?

There were some 14 such questions covering a variety of interesting topics with facts derived from real research; not someone just waving his arms and proclaiming "Things are better!' Actually, the studies revealed that the reserved and somewhat hesitant answers to questions 1 and 2 above were yes. Things have gotten better.

But for us in Little Cohasset the information presented in question 3, was a shocker. First, according to the study: "No organic contaminant in Gulf of Maine (including Mass Bay) mussels exceeded the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's standards for human consumption. However, concentrations of organic contaminants tended to be higher in the southwestern Gulf of Maine, where coastal watersheds still bear the legacy of industrialization, and locally near the urbanized population centers of the Massachusetts Bays. Of all sites in the Gulf of Maine, Sandwich, Mass. has the greatest number of measured contaminants whose levels increased. While Sandwich was originally expected to represent a "clean" site, data shows that it appears to be receiving and accumulating contaminants from elsewhere in the Gulf of Maine. A site in Boston's inner harbor has shown the highest concentrations of many contaminants compared to all Gulf of Maine sites."

Nowhere in the report was Cohasset mentioned except as one of the 50 towns listed in the report's bar graph. But, according to the graph, Cohasset happens to be number 4 with contamination levels about half those at the Nut Island sewage treatment plant in Boston Harbor and second highest on the chart.

Blue mussels are ideal indicators because they remain in one place through their lifetime and can accumulate contaminants in their tissues.

The Mass Bays representative who was describing the report, Chris Krahforst, had good background on the document, and indeed after reading it subsequent to the meeting, the situation clarified itself to some extent. First, the data for this graph was accumulated between 1991 and 2000 and shows the concentration of trace amounts of silver in blue mussels over this period. Blue mussels are ideal indicators because they remain in one place through their lifetime and can accumulate contaminants in their tissues. Silver, among other metals is one of the measures of intrusion of the byproducts of industrialization in our food chain. This finding cannot, at this time be associated with any threat to humans. It merely demonstrates that we in Cohasset are just as susceptible to contamination of our natural resources as any of the larger population centers. Why we have such high levels of silver in our blue mussels must await more analysis of much more data.

Perhaps more important is that data about the town's environment has been collected for 13 years without the town being aware of this fact. We certainly knew about threats to our health when they occurred, such as the closing of the clam flats based on Marine Fisheries data collected by Neil Churchill one of the authors of the State of the Bays Report. And the report was given to us in Cohasset at an affair at the Norwell Science Center, sponsored by another contributor to the report, Wendy Garpeau, of Mass Bays and watershed coordinator, working at the North South River Watershed Association in Hanover. I guess the lesson we can learn about the sick mussels, if ,indeed they are sick, is that there are a lot of intelligent, dedicated people organized by the state, and being paid very little, with livelihood threatened every time the legislature cuts environmental funding who are in one way or another, looking out for our health.

Delahunt seeks votes – for Kerry

Won't rule out possible Senate run

By Elizabeth Malloy
EMALLOY@CNC.COM

While his constituents may not be seeing many bumper stickers or pins proclaiming "Delahunt for Congress," US Rep. William Delahunt said he is campaigning hard by working for the people of the South Shore and Cape Cod in Washington and stumping for Democratic presidential nominee John Kerry.

During a recent discussing about his current campaign, Delahunt also said he has not ruled out a run for Kerry's seat in the US Senate, should the junior Senator from Massachusetts win the Nov. 2 election against President George W. Bush.

Delahunt, who called the current election "the most polarizing moment in American history that I've experienced," said that if his friend and colleague Barney Frank, D-MA, decides to run for Kerry's seat, then he will not. However he has not ruled out the possibility should Kerry be elected president and Frank decide not to run.

There is speculation that Frank, U. S. Rep. Martin Meehan, D-MA, or U.s. Rep. Edward Markey, D-MA, could all run for Kerry's seat if he wins the presidency.

For now though, Delahunt said he is focused on winning re-election and serving the people of the 10th district.

"I take this campaign, every campaign, very seriously," he said. "The best campaign is doing the job as well as you can."

Delahunt said he considers among his greatest achievements in Congress the recent passing an omnibus crime bill which will make DNA testing more wide spread and restores some victims rights. According to Delahunt, getting that bill passed was a major reason he has remained in Washington deep into the campaign season and has not been able to stump for himself as much as his opponent, Republican candidate Mike Jones.

"This is the most important election in a century, clearly in modern American history. The world is watching this election in a very real way."
US Rep. William Delahunt

"It required an extraordinary effort, not just by myself but by others, on a bi-partisan basis, to get this on the president's desk," Delahunt said. "It's really about restoring the confidence of the American people in our criminal justice system.

When it comes to local issues as well, Delahunt said he is proud of how he brought many different parties involved in the creation of fishing regulations, such as scientists, environmentalists and fishermen, to strike compromises.

"Hook fishermen have really, in my judgment, struck a balance between conservation and their own economic needs," Delahunt said. "Some fisheries have been replenished as a result."

In his next term, Delahunt said he would continue to focus on the expansive shoreline of the district. He said the recent battle over energy-producing windmills — in particular the proposed Cape Wind Farm on Nantucket Sound off Cape Cod — has made him realize there needs to be zoning regulations in the ocean just as there are on land. He said he would make it a focus of his term to come up with such regulations and has already filed a bill to create an "oceans commission."

Delahunt said while he is strongly in favor of finding renewable energy sources, until these regulations can be put in place, he would be against off-shore wind farms because it would be too difficult to monitor their construction.

He said he would also like to focus on the cost of prescription drugs and addressing a system he said is "broken." He advocates for bulk purchasing of prescription drugs from Canada.

Delahunt did say he has found the time to stump for Kerry, including an appearance in Florida last week, because he feels this election is very important. He said he knew Kerry personally since they both worked as prosecutors in the mid-1970s.

Mihos leaves mark on Massachusetts politics

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

Craig Sandler

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

Massachusetts politics continues to be all about Christy Mihos.

What's that you say? If you don't say "who's that?" first. Well, Jane Swift sure isn't asking who Christy Mihos is. She knows exactly who he is: her worst nightmare.

Mihos, a Republican, founded the convenience store chain that bears his first name. His long and utterly successful campaign to torment the former acting governor began Nov. 16, 2001, when Swift fired him from his post as a Massachusetts Turnpike Authority board member. That day was the start of a series of events that recast the form of Massachusetts politics, with ramifications that are continuing, visible on the faces of restive Democrats who gathered last week in front of the State House in an attempt to counter the Republican Party's developing potential.

Back in 2001, Swift said Mihos and fellow Turnpike board member Jordan Levy were irresponsibly undermining the financial viability and public image of the Central Artery project, as they waged a campaign to block toll hikes and deny payments to the project's chief contractor in the wake of overruns and cover-ups.

As soon as they were fired, they began a legal campaign that, after a back-and-forth series of decisions, defeated Swift in the courts and inflicted enormous damage on her standing with the public. But Mihos didn't stop there. He wouldn't get his turnpike post back until May of 2002, but right after being fired, he began spending money on undermining Swift's reputation. Mihos told the Boston Globe he spent about $80,000 on the effort, but the most effective spending was on a poll Mihos commissioned – the first poll in years to include Mitt Romney's name.

When the survey showed Romney running far more strongly than Swift against all Democratic prospects, Romney took just a matter of days before reversing his earlier declaration against challenging the sitting Republican governor. Politicos continue to debate how important a role the Mihos survey played in Romney's decision making, but there's no question about its effect on the Republican Party: it started a "brushfire" within the party, to quote a Romney adviser who described the effectiveness of Mihos' maneuvering to the Globe in 2002.

The rest is not just history. Mihos didn't rest after Romney was elected. He's talking about running for US Senate should John Kerry leave the spot vacant. He lost his seat on the turnpike board when Romney replaced him with Transportation Secretary Daniel Grabauskas. But Mihos has filed another lawsuit against Swift, this one accusing her of personally violating his civil rights by his firing. It may be a nuisance suit, but it's not frivolous: on Oct. 13, US District Court Judge Joseph Tauro ruled that Swift and a Who Was Who of her administration can be deposed in the lawsuit (Mihos and his associates now can be deposed as well as a result of the ruling.)

More than that – much more – the whole tenor of this political year is different because of Mihos' intervention. Having decided to run, Romney won; and having won; he decided one of his important missions would be electing Republicans to the Legislature. Accomplishing that would earn him major credibility within the national circle of his party – a circle Romney clearly is keen to enter and ultimately command.

The GOP legislative campaign is so well-organized and funded that Congressmen William Delahunt and Barney Frank felt compelled to come to Boston last week to tell State House reporters they object to tactics Republicans are using in one district after another, to undermine the credibility and standing of Democratic incumbents. Democratic Party Chairman Philip Johnston joined in, accusing the Republicans of spreading lies and distortions and circulating a flood of negative advertising. Republicans said they are just exposing the voting records of incumbents. And they pointed out that Delahunt and Johnston were derided in 1996 for deploying negative ads and tactics against each other in their primary contest for the Congressional seat Delahunt now holds. The parry was a measure of the strength of the thrust; Republicans are making Democrats nervous at a pace and on a level not seen in this state for 14 years. Everyone in the party is enjoying it – except Swift.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. BHRC records local representatives and senators' votes on roll calls from prior sessions. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

REPEAL COURT "ANNIVERSARY FEES" (H 4915 and H 4916)

House 154-0, Senate 37-0, overrode Gov. Romney's veto of a budget provision repealing the district court "anniversary fee" that was signed into law in 2003. The law requires a plaintiff in district court to pay an additional $90 fee for each year that his or her case remains on the court docket and is not resolved. The House 154-0, Senate 37-0, also overrode the governor's veto of a similar law requiring plaintiffs in superior court to pay a $120 fee for each year in which their cases are not resolved. Plaintiffs that do not pay the fee are assessed a $10 per month penalty and are subject to having their cases dismissed. Override supporters said these unfair, misguided laws impose a fee on plaintiffs that do not have control over the backlogged court schedule. They noted these fees are counterproductive because they do nothing to speed up justice and actually financially reward courts for maintaining a slow system of justice. In his veto message, the governor said that these fees yield some $6 million annually to fund court operations and have allowed the state to charge plaintiffs a lower initial filing fee. He noted that the best way to avoid the anniversary fees is to avoid delays in civil litigation. (A "Yea" vote is for repealing the $90 fee and the $120 fee).

COURT "ANNIVERSARY FEES" EXEMPTIONS (H 4915 and H 4916)

Prior to repealing the court "anniversary fees," the House 20-132 and 21-131, rejected Gov. Romney's amendment leaving the fees intact but exempting some plaintiffs. Plaintiffs that would be exempt from the fee include those that are indigent, serving in the military or filing domestic abuse claims. Amendment supporters said these fees have increased much needed revenues for the courts and argued that the exemptions would give a break for specific extenuating circumstances. They noted the fees are fair because they allow plaintiffs to pay a lower initial filing fee while imposing the larger anniversary fees for cases that use more court resources over a longer period of time. Amendment opponents said the exemptions are well-intentioned but do not correct an unfair fee that is imposed on plaintiffs for delays that are beyond their control and often caused by a backlogged court system. They argued that the only fair solution is to repeal the fees. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendments keeping the fees in effect with exemptions for some plaintiffs. A "Nay" vote is against the amendments).

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

VEHICULAR HOMICIDE (S 2484)- The Senate gave final approval to and sent to the House a bill that would make driving with a suspended or revoked license admissible as evidence when a court is determining whether the driver is negligent in a vehicular homicide case. The legislation is known as the Kevin J. Pecor Act— named after a 16-year-old West Springfield bicyclist who was killed by a driver operating with a suspended license.

REAL ESTATE CLOSINGS- The U.S. Justice Department is pushing the Massachusetts House to approve legislation allowing some real estate closing services to be performed by non-attorneys. The services include representing lenders as closing agents and drafting deeds, mortgages and agreements. Justice Department official R. Hewitt Pate said the bill would lower closing costs because these non-lawyers would charge lower fees than lawyers. He also noted that the increased competition would encourage lawyers to lower their fees. Opponents argue that the bill would hurt consumers by allowing unqualified persons to provide these complicated services. The bill was given a favorable report by the House Judiciary Committee in July but has not yet reached the House floor.

TAX BREAK FOR COMMUTERS (H 5076)- The Legislature is still fine-tuning a tax break that was included in a recent supplemental budget signed by Gov. Romney. The one-time 2004 tax break is for commuters who pay for tolls through a Massachusetts Turnpike Authority Fast Lane account and for individuals who use weekly or monthly MBTA or commuter rail passes. It allows taxpayers a tax deduction for any amount paid above the first $150 up to a maximum of $600 for individuals and $1200 for married couples. The House is working on language to fix some problems with the wording of the provision in order to ensure that the break is available to taxpayers on their 2004 state income tax returns.

SPEAKER DIMASI'S COMMISSION- Newly-elected House Speaker Sal DiMasi (D-Boston) has announced formation of a commission to review the operations of the House and recommend reforms to open up the legislative process. DiMasi's office said that several legislators who were critical of former Speaker Tom Finneran's handling of the House have been asked to serve on the commission. DiMasi supporters say this is an indication that the new speaker's style will be different than Finneran's and that DiMasi is striving to include more members in the legislative process. Some critics note that DiMasi served for many years as second-in-command to Finneran. They said that they are encouraged by the move but are taking a more wait-and-see attitude. The Commission will submit its ideas and suggestions for consideration by the House at the beginning of the 2005-2006 legislative session in January.

Annual book sale donations sought

Saint Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave., is currently accepting donations of slightly worn hardcover and paperback books, DVD's, CD's and videos for it's annual book sale, part of the ecumenical Village Fair that will be held on Saturday, Dec. 4. If your book shelves are spilling onto the floor, and DVD's, CD's and videos are busting out of the entertainment center, the church has got the solution for you. Donations can be brought to the church in bags or boxes and placed inside the parish hall door marked "church offices." Alternatively, St. Stephen's would be happy to arrange pick up of your donations. For donation pick-up or more information, call Alix White at 781-383-1829. Books are sorted at St. Stephen's Church in Walton Rodgers Hall every Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to noon. Monday, Nov. 22, is the last day book donations will be accepted. Old textbooks, romance novels, water damaged or moldy books, books with note or highlighting cannot be accepted.

The book sale is a mission program of St. Stephen's Church to more strongly establish a church presence in a needy area. "It is exciting to be part of the beginning of a new church," comments the Rev. Cliff Cutler, "establishing a strong ministry for the future. God is doing a great thing in people's lives. It is such a joy to be part of that good news." Through your donation of books, DVD's, CD's and videos that are being accepted now, you will help change lives and strengthen community.

Cohasset golfers played in sectional tourney yesterday

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Rain on Tuesday postponed the state sectional golf championships to yesterday morning.

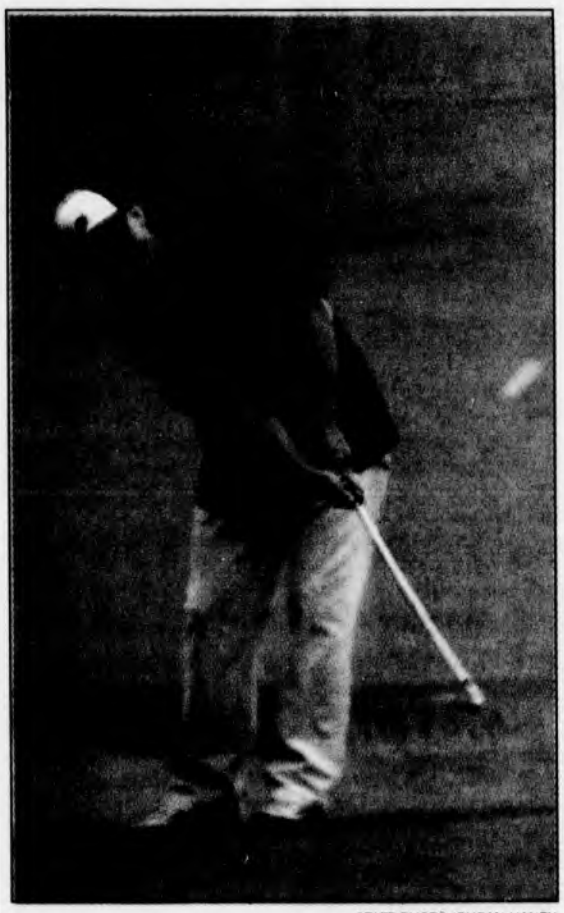
Four teams from Marinerland were slated to play in the Div. 3 south sectional tourney at Wentworth Hills Golf and Country Club in Plainville, yesterday: Pembroke, Scituate, Cohasset and South Shore League champion Norwell.

Norwell (8-2) clinched the SSL title, last Tuesday, when Cohasset (7-2-1) beat Harwich (6-2-2) for the second time this season.

"It's great to be back in that number one spot, and we owe Cohasset a debt of thanks," said Norwell coach Ken Camerota, whose team actually fell to Harwich in both meetings this season but (go figure) swept Cohasset.

The Clippers earned at least a share of first place in the South Shore League for six straight seasons before last year's sub-500 season and first ever failure to qualify for the postseason.

As for the Skippers (8-5-1 overall), though they finished second in the SSL with a 7-2-1record, their 1-3 mark in non-league play kept them battling for their postseason lives right up through last Wednesday.



It was a 29.5-24.5 win over Carver on the Crusaders tricky home course, Plymouth's Southers Marsh, that finally sewed up the Skippers first playoff berth since 2001.

"It's great to get back," said Cohasset coach Torin Sweeney. "We finished the year strong too, which is just what you want heading into the tourney."

Sophomore Kevin Barber fired a match best 34 and senior Chris Simms chipped in with a 35 to lead the Skippers charge.

Boys soccer team playing its best ball at right time of year

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

There can be a thin line between being a good soccer team and a sub-par one, at least in Cohasset High boys coach Rob Leary's mind

Over the last few games, Leary has watched his Skippers go from playing below his standards to meeting and perhaps even surpassing them, and he seems at almost a loss to explain precisely why that is.

"There's no one thing I can point to and say we're doing it much better," confessed the coach. "I think it's just a lot of little things that show, mentally, these guys are getting it a little bit more."

Basically, I think they've just learned from their mistakes. They're looking at all the chances we've missed on, and that's made them bare down a

Here we go again.

To the surprise of no one, the Cohasset High football team kept pace with arch-rivals Norwell (5-1 overall,2-0 in SSL play)and Abington (5-1,1-0), on Friday, improving to 2-0 in South Shore League play (6-0 overall) with a decisive 22-6 win over Mashpee

Cohasset's offensive line controlled the line of scrimmage and kept Mashpee's offense on the sidelines for most of the game to grind out the road win.

Playing in a steady rain for most of the game, the Skippers gained 230 yards running and managed to eat up the clock with ball control dominance.

Quarterback Crandon Leahy completed three key passes for an additional 54 yards to keep one long drive alive.

The Skipper defense shut Mashpee's offense down for the entire first half and didn't give

Crunch time for girls

Lady booters need to break even down stretch to qualify for postseason

By Evan Deutsch
CORRESPONDENT

What do George Bush, John Kerry and the Cohasset High girls soccer team all have in common?

It's crunch time for all three.

Going forward, the LAdy Skippers (5-5-3) must take at least five points (two points for a win, one for a tie) from their remaining five games if they are to qualify for the playoffs. They did not help themselves at all towards this goal in their most recent two games, having lost one to Abington and tied the other game with the Crusaders of Carver.

The Skippers hosted the Abington Green Wave on the 13th only to be washed away with less than three minutes left in the game. Abington scored first on a rocket shot in the first half.

The Skippers refused to lay back. It seemed like the locals ran through every tackle and dominated 50/50 balls. With eight minutes left in the match, Sophomore Emily Coggins fired the ball into the back of the Abington net, knotting the score at one apiece.

With a mere two and a half minutes left, Abington managed to bomb a shot from outside the 18 to win the game.

"We played very well individually," remarked senior Danielle Hajjar. "We had just as much talent, if not more than Abington. We just couldn't put our forces together as team."

Danielle contributed with a skillful run from the defensive wing position at the end of the game. Unfortunately, nothing resulted on the offensive end.

"We just couldn't put the ball into the net," agreed head coach little harder."

What this improved play has yielded the Skippers over the past week is a scoreless tie with unbeaten and league leading Carver and a dominating 6-3 win over Abington, lifting them to the all important .500 mark (4-4-3) with five games remaining.

Hosting Carver (7-0-2 in SSL play, 9-1-2 overall) under the lights at Alumni Field, Friday night, the Skippers carried much of the play and had the better of the opportunities. Unfortunately, Crusaders keeper Jake Trudeau was equal to all nine shots on net, including a handful of legitimate testers, and walked off with his sixth shutout of the season.

"(Trudeau) is the best goalie in the league, hands down," said Leary. "I really thought we had him beat there once or twice, but he just kept coming up with the big play."

Fortunately, Cohasset keeper Prescott Busk was also able to handle everything thrown at him over 80 minutes, allowing the Skippers to escape with one big point for the tie.

"I thought that was our most complete team effort of the season, by far," assessed Leary at game's end. "We played good, hard back and forth soccer. Trevor Brady, Kevin Dinsmore, Sam MacDonald, Aidan Buick, Prescott (Busk) all played great games, but I can go right down the list. Everyone played well."

Not surprisingly, though, there were some specific plaudits from the coach for the three man defensive core—senior captain Jon Littauer and juniors MacDonald and Brady— that played a huge hand in largely neutralizing the generally high powered Crusaders attack.

"I'd say Trevor is one of the top five players in the league right now with the way he's playing," began the second year coach. "And Sam is just so tough. He's been playing with a sprained ankle just about all year. He rolls it every now and again, but he never complains, and he acts as if its not bothering him even though you know it is. He hates to come out of the game, so it's usually left to me to force him to sit."

And, as for Littauer: "He just works hard. He's not as big or maybe as talented as some of the defenders out there, but he plays better than a lot of them because he works so hard at it and has so much heart."

The Carver deadlock came on the heels of the team's most explosive offensive outburst of the season, and the most explosive half for the Skippers in several seasons.

Playing Wednesday on the road, the Skippers proved most objectionable visitors, as they scored five unanswered first half goals on Abington— paving the way for a 6-3 win that, in truth, was not as close as that score might indicate.

Team leading scorer Buick, a junior, and senior captain Sam Steele had two goals apiece. Senior Toby Norman scored his first varsity goal and junior Chris Ofsthun added the other.

"Obviously, our offense was clicking pretty well in that one," said Leary, in his second year at the Skippers helm. "That's where you could see things we've been really working on in practice start kicking in, the guys making the kinds of passes we've been asking them to make, and guys finishing strong."

Buick was Cohasset's linchpin in this one, setting up a few tallies in addition to the two he personally finished.

"Aidan has really been stepping it up the last few games and that makes us a different team," said Leary. "Honestly, I don't think there's a more talented player in our league. When Aidan is playing to his ability, he has the potential to take us to another level."

So what the Skippers must do now is earn five points in their final five games, with wins counting for two points and ties one.

Yesterday's scheduled game at home with Hull (1-11) probably represented the only thing left close to a gimme. Today's game at Harwich (9-4, 7-3) will certainly not be easy. The Skippers managed to slip by the Rough Riders up here last month, but Leary noted it will be a far different proposition playing on Harwich's far smaller surface after a 90 minute bus ride.

Arch-rival Norwell (8-5), who bested the Skippers 2-1 two weeks ago, comes to town Monday night (6:30 p.m.), and Wednesday night will see the Skippers at Scituate (2-10), a team that is much tougher than the record indicates, something the Skippers found out for themselves on Oct. 2 when they needed a late goal to simply salvage a tie.

Leary is hoping to have the postseason question resolved by the Oct. 29 finale at home with Patriot League-East leading Hanover (9-3-1).

"There's no game in there I can point to and say that's an easy win," said Leary. "But if we can continue to play the way we have the last two I feel pretty good about our chances.

"And if we can continue to build on that, I really think we could be a dangerous team in the tourney. No team would want to play us."

Deb Beal. "Scoring has remained our Achilles' heel this entire season. On a happier note, I felt this game really showed the girls their potential. Their aggressive play has never been so prominent."

The Skippers hopped on the bus to Carver the very next day. Between the rain drops, the Skippers dominated much of the play. Yet, the Crusaders hung on long enough to eke out a tie at the end. Cohasset sophomore Christina Pinkus drilled a goal in the first half. Carver struck back shortly afterwards to create a first half tie score.

Pinkus booted another goal in the second half to put the Skippers one up on the Crusaders.

With one minute left in game, the Crusaders once again tied the game, this time for good on a direct kick.

"I give the girls a lot of credit for maintaining their composure," noted Coach Beal.

Senior Co-Captain Christine Lovallo also felt teamwork went along with their composure.

"The entire team worked as a unit," she said. "The underclassmen in particular worked well with the rest of the team." Lovallo's defensive line played one of their best games this season.

Seventh grade boys soccer team cruises

Cohasset's 7th grade boy's soccer team blasted Plymouth 8-0 Saturday, raising their record to 4-0 in Cranberry League action at Milliken Field.

Center forward Eamon Davis had an apparent early goal nullified on an offside infraction, but then came right back to score off a nice feed from JoDi Rosano to take a quick 1-0 lead. Ollie Forrer then had a chance to increase the lead, just missing a dazzling header to the far post, but JoDi scored seconds later on a perfect pass from Eamon to take a 2-0 lead. Eamon then set up Ollie for a score that put Cohasset up 3-0 and the game out of reach for the spirited Plymouth boys.

The balanced attack continued as they pressured Plymouth into an "own goal" mistake and a 4-0 lead at the end of the half. Jodi Rosano, Eamon Davis, Andrew Littauer and Ollie Forrer all scored in the second half to hit their highest margin of victory so far this season. The team now has a combined total of 24 goals for and just 2 goals against in their 4 games played.

"I've watched these boys compete against each other as they came up through the Cohasset Soccer Club program," said Coach Jack Dean, "It's a great pleasure to watch them now working together on the same team. They run hard, they pass well, they support each other, they use the skills they've been working on in practice and they have a lot of fun. I have no doubt that Cohasset will compete well when these boys are playing together at the high school level."

While the forwards and midfielders continued to pressure Plymouth in their end with the fine supporting play of Tyler Durant, Jackson Dean, Nick Cannon, Joe Leighton and Sam Game, the defense kept Plymouth's scoring chances to a minimum.

Goal keeper Will Evans had just one difficult save to make in the first half as the steady strong positional play by defenders James Earle and Andrew Graham kept Plymouth from mounting any real scoring threats. Chris Wilcox, filling in for Justin Yeager, and August Oddleifson, filling in for the injured Graham Stevenson, both contributed solid defensive play as well, helping to preserve the shut out.

The team's next game is away in Fairhaven on Saturday.

up a touchdown until the third quarter, following an untimely offside penalty on a Mashpee punt.

Mashpee won the toss and elected to kick off. Cohasset failed to gain a first down on its first possession and punted to the Mashpee 20 yard line. The defense held, forcing Mashpee to punt from their 26. Dave McKenna slanted in from the right side to block the punt and Jeff Brown caught the deflected ball in the air on Mashpee's 29 yard line, giving Cohasset excellent field position.

On first down, Leahy rolled to his right, picked up key blocks from Nick Arment, Jake Cuneo and Ted Straughn and ran the ball to the 10, picking up a first down. A penalty moved the ball back to the 20. Joe Durkin picked up five yards over the left side, then another five running right for a first down. Then, on second-and-seven, Leahy faked a dive left and ran to the 1-yard line. On third down from the 1, Durkin slanted off the right side into the end zone for the touchdown with 3:31 left in the opening quarter. Leahy scored the 2-point conversion on a keeper left, following the blocking of Justin Alexander to give Cohasset the 8-0 lead.

The ensuing kickoff was returned to the 20. An offside penalty moved the Falcons back to the 15 and the defense held Mashpee again, forcing them to punt.

A booming kick sailed over the head of Straughn, who fielded the ball back on the Cohasset 15 and returned it to the 23. A motion penalty moved the ball back to the 18, after a five yards gain to the right, Durkin ran wide left and scampered 67 yards down the left sideline into the end zone but a holding call brought the ball back to the Skippers 25-yard line, the penalty assessed from the point of inception.

On second-and-eight, Durkin gained 20 yards running through a big hole over right guard, providing a first down at the 45-yard line After a one-yard gain, Leahy rolled to his right to complete a pass to D.J.Silvia at the 41 of Mashpee.

On second-and-10, Leahy, faking a counter, rolled to his right and completed a pass to a wide open Ted Straughn at the 20, who then ran it in for the score with 8:36 left in the second quarter. Leahy added a 2-point conversion on a keeper into the left side of the end zone.

A good return saw Mashpee start at their 42. Following solid defensive plays by McKenna, Scott Wakefield and Matt Baroudi, though, the Falcons were forced to punt.

The Skippers took over at their 24. On third-and-eight, Durkin again found a big hole on the right side and ran 20 yards to the 46. Three plays later, Cohasset picked up another first down, keeping the ball on the ground and eating up the clock.

Facing a fourth-and-four from the 34, Leahy rolled right, tucked the ball in and ran 23 yards to the 11-yard line of Mashpee. Mike Bilodeau picked up two on a dive right and Leahy gained six on an option right. On third-and-two from the 3-yard line, Leahy picked up those two running an option left with 39.1 seconds left in the half. Durkin then scored over right guard Nick Arment on an impressive line surge. The extra point attempt was no good and Cohasset led 22-0.

Mashpee returned the kickoff to the 39, but time ran out after two running two plays.

At the start of the second half, Cohasset kicked off to the Falcons, holding them to three downs and a punt.

Straughn returned the punt to the 35 of Mashpee. On fourth-and-five from the 30, the Skippers picked up a first down on an option right, but a fumble on the tackle was recovered by the Falcons, giving them possession on their 20-yard line.

Failing to move the ball, Mashpee was forced to punt from their 25, but an offside penalty gave them a first down and the Mashpee offense came alive. With a new quarterback at the helm, the Falcons quickly gained a first down on an option left, and that was followed by a first down pass down the left sideline to the 22-yard line of Cohasset.

On third-and-five, the Falcons completed a pass to the 5-yard line running the same pass pattern they had a few plays earlier. Mashpee gained four yards running inside and the quarterback scored on an option right. They ran a dive left into the end zone for the two-point conversion making the score 22-8.

The Skippers appeared poised toe answer back on their ensuing drive, which took them into the fourth quarter. However, on third-and-1 at the Mashpee 41, an offside penalty stalled the drive and Cohasset punted on fourth-and-three, placing the ball deep in Mashpee territory on the five-yard line.

Mashpee was able to pick up a first down to the 22 on two quarterback options runs and a dive play. Three incomplete pass attempts, all to left side, forced he Falcons to punt and Cohasset took over on the Falcons 48.

Grinding it out on the ground, the Skippers put together another drive that ate up most of the remaining time, gaining a quick first down on a dive over the right side to the 38.

On third-and-seven, Leahy rolled to his left and completed a pass to Dan McCarthy at the 25. Durkin picked up seven on a counter to the right, placing the ball on the 19 of Mashpee. On third-and-one, a mix up in the backfield resulted in a one-yard loss. However, Durkin picked up the first down, running another dive right to the 13 with 1:31 left in the game. Cohasset was content to run the clock down, forcing Mashpee to use up its remaining timeouts.

Mashpee took the ball over on downs deep in their own end with only few seconds left on the clock. The game ended two plays later following an incomplete pass and unsuccessful pitch out left.

Commentary: The Cohasset Skippers continue to improve with each game, both offensively and defensively. The team has standout players but what stands out most is that they are a team. There is a certain camaraderie and cohesiveness that surrounds this team and it strengthens with each game. To them, there is no offense or defense, no super stars. They are on a journey together, focusing on the success of the team. Each week different players step up and contribute. This week Cohasset will host a hard hitting Weston team at 7:00 PM Friday night. If you want to be part of something special, be there and support the Skippers.

24 hours later, as they edged Quincy at the Cohasset Golf Club, 30.5-23.5.

Simms shot a 39 and was able to win his match-up at the number three spot, 6-3, which proved a big swing in the match.

Barber was expected to lead it off for the Skippers yesterday, and senior Colin Magruder seems to have cemented himself in at the number two spot. Simms and senior captain Tim Pilczak go three-four, with senior Ricky Lordan and junior Mark Bouchard rounding things out.

Cohasset was slated to be joined at Wentworth Hills yesterday morning by Dover-Sherborn, Hanover, Medfield, Pembroke, Scituate, West Bridgewater, Westwood, Bristol-Plymouth, Dedham and SSL rival Norwell. Each team will send six golfers to play 18 holes, with the low five scores accounting for the team scores. The top three teams here will qualify for Monday's Div. 3 state championships at Pleasant Valley Country Club in Sutton, as will the top 10 percent of the 80 individual golfers taking part.

Coastal Stars Report

Squirt A

The Squirt A Coastal Stars escaped with an 8-7 win over Duxbury that went right to the final seconds. The scoring began early when John Ryan drove down the right wing to the net and knocked in his own rebound. Dan LeBlanc and DJ Evans helped to kill two early penalties. Chris Carpenter saved a goal with a hustling backcheck in front of the net, and EJ Culhane made a diving poke check to deny another attempt. Mike Carbone, Neil Conway, and Jonathan Spitz created a beautiful breakout with precise passing, but Spitz' one-timer from the slot was denied.

At :36 of the second, Conway fought his way from the blue line. The shot that was saved, but Chris Carpenter banged in the rebound. A minute later, Mike Carbone stole the puck and found Spitz in the slot. Trevor Salmon rebounded the save for a 3-0 lead. Duxbury got on the board a half minute later, but the Stars continued their aggressive play. Jake Durkin skated in from the blue line, but his shot was saved. Patick Burchill's hard shot from the right circle was also stopped. Dan Durkin made a marvelous save on a 2-on-0 break when he stuffed a shot at the right post with his pad. At 4:32, Neil Conway stole the puck in the right slot and fired it in to the right side. Kevin McDougall imitated Bobby Orr a minute later when he hustled back to break up a rush, skated end-to-end through traffic, and put the backhander into the left side. Seven seconds later, Trevor Salmon took the face-off down the right side and found nothing but net. Less than a minute later, John Ryan let a rocket go from the right circle to the top right corner for a 7-1 lead Duxbury stormed back with three unanswered goals. Trevor Salmon broke the string at 3:26 of the third with a shift down the right side past two defenders for a shot into the left of the net. Duxbury came back with three more for an 8-7 game with 4:35 left. EJ Culhane spearheaded a scrambling Stars defense, and nearly put the game away with a rush and shot to the right post that was nipped. Duxbury created furious pressure to the end, but the Stars held on for the win.

Squirt C-4

The Coastal Stars Squirt C-4 team suffered a frustrating lost to Plymouth in a close 2-1 game on over the weekend. Although the Stars out shot and out played the Plymouth team, they had trouble getting the puck in the net, resulting in their first loss of the season.

The Stars controlled the puck and dominated the play during the first period, but were stopped at the net repeatedly by Plymouth's solid netminder. Forwards Michael McPartlin, Matthew Tautkus, Seamus Feeney, Tristan Wiggin, Ryan Melia and Andrew Tautkus put at least a dozen shots on net. The Plymouth team scored one of the few times they made it past the Stars blue line, resulting in an early 1-0 lead.

At the beginning of the second period Stars forward Andrew Tautkus carried the puck the length of the ice, weaving in and out of the Plymouth team, only to be denied again by the Plymouth goalie who made an amazing kick save. Minutes later, Matthew Tautkus snuck one behind the Plymouth goalie after a scurry out front, to tie up the game. Late in the second period, a Stars penalty gave the Plymouth team the man advantage. Plymouth scored the game-winning goal with one minute left to go in the period.

The Plymouth team came alive and began to put some pressure on the Stars defense during the third period but were denied several scoring attempts by Stars goalie Max Hemingway and the strong defensive play of Thomas Coyne, RJ Neuls, Nick Craig, Jonathan Gardner.

Squirt C-4

The Coastal Stars Squirt C-4 team came out strong during their second game of the season with a 10-2 win over the Taunton Brewins at Pilgrim Arena in Hingham. The win was the result of the Stars consistently out-hustling the Brewins at both ends of the ice. The game featured a hat trick by Stars' winger Matthew Tautkus with strong support from linemates Michael McPartlin and James Daley.

Stars forward Michael McPartlin got the team off to an early lead with a rush to the net right off the opening face-off, beating the Brewins' goalie and giving the Stars an early 1-0 lead. Center James Daley quickly followed suit firing a wrist shot behind the stunned Brewins' netminder.

Matthew Tautkus secured the Stars' early lead scoring his first of three goals. Forward Andrew Tautkus used his speed and strong stickhandling to rack up two back-to-back goals during the second period. Michael McPartlin followed with his second goal as the period ended.

The Brewins' bounced back with two goals during the second period, but couldn't overcome the consistent pressure from the Stars team.

During the third period, Matthew Tautkus put two more goals in the net to clinch his hat trick. Right winger Ryan Melia rushed to the net converting a rebound into another goal for the Stars. Defender Jonathan Gardner finished off the game by stopping the puck on the blue line, bursting forward and firing a terrific shot past the Brewins netminder.

The Stars defensive crew of Nicolas Craig, Thomas Coyne, Jonathan Gardner and RJ Neuls were solid behind the blue line and demonstrated some excellent position play that was the key to keeping the puck in the offensive zone for most of the game. When the puck did enter the Stars' zone, goalie Max Hemingway defied several scoring attempts by the Brewins, putting out another stellar performance in net. Solid team play by Liam Rose, Tristan Wiggin and Seamus Feeney helped keep the Stars out in front for the entire game.

Mite C2

Game # 3 Recap: Weymouth 4 Stars 2

The Coastal Stars Mite "C2" team suffered their first loss of the season 4 to 2 in a hard fought contest against Weymouth. Gunner Mckenzie and Mathew Johnson scored the Stars two goals with Kyle Bowman and Brian Mathews each having an assist.

The first two periods were highlighted by solid defensive efforts by both teams. Robert Bothwell, Seamus Ryan, and Matts Nelson all had great plays in support of Goalie Chris Phillips.

Even Antonuccio, Andrew Kuppens, Shaelyn Tobin and Cole Mckenzie played solid games on the offensive end with Shaelyn Tobin and Tucker Antico each having breakaway scoring chances.

With Two minutes left in the period, the Stars, trailing 4 to 2, pulled their goalie. Derek Bensen, Jo Jo Carbone, Kyle Bowman, Matts Nelson, Gunner McKenzie, and Brian Mathews kept the pressure on Weymouth with multiple scoring chances right up until the last second but in the end the Stars ran out of time.

Mite C-1

The Coastal Stars Mite C-1 team posted another victory this weekend against Duxbury. The Stars won 4-1.

Liam Manning was in goal with a strong defense that included Sean Feeney, Tyler McKinnon, Jack Shaw, Hugh Healey and Chris Bertone.

The first goal came from Tommy Pendergast from a pass from Jack Conlon. Cam Mastrangelo had the 2nd goal with the help of a great offensive line that included Joe Proctor and Jake Moore. Joe Proctor had the third goal after many shots, and some offensive help from Benjamin Swim and James Dietrich.

Squirt B-1

After a long and tiring commute up Route 3, the Stars showed up to play an 8:00 PM game with a smaller but fast Milton squad. Milton drew first blood but thankfully, Matt Steward brought his wrist shot with him and tied it up early in the first period. Milton capitalized on a few missed defensive opportunities and by the end of the first period the Stars were down and out 4 to 1. Goalie Dan Durkin made some incredible saves and the Stars started to crawl back in the second with a quick thinking goal at the blue line from Vinnie Calorio. Momentum started to build and Peter Bent saw some daylight, put on the jets and scored unassisted to bring the Stars within 1 goal. Again Matt Steward got it past the goalie with five minutes left in the second to tie it up and the team was on fire at that point. At the start of the third period, another Star who put on the jets was Will DeCoste who made a great breakaway goal to give the Stars the lead for the first time in the game. Milton again tied it up. Matt Steward came up with a hatrick to take the lead again 6-5. It was a great offensive and defensive battle on both ends. Mattie Sullivan took the pressure off Durkin by finessing the puck out of the zone many times with Justin Henrikson, Tom Powers, and Rob Gargano providing additional strong defense against a nimble Milton squad desperately trying to score. Mike O'Brien got in the face of Milton's offense and broke up some key plays. Joe Kiley kept tremendous pressure on offensively, made some key assists and was all over the ice trying to make plays. Colan Whelan was another offensive force and threatened several times with his speed. Milton pulled their goalie but couldn't make it happen and the Stars clawed their way back to win 7-5.

Mite B

On Sunday the Coastal STARS Mite B squared off with an aggressive team from Hingham. From the drop of the puck, this proved to be a lopsided match in favor of the Stars. They got off to a quick start when Aidan Beresford took the puck from center ice and spotted a streaking Joey Redfearm, who then made a blind pass to Michael Lund in the slot. Lund took a one-timer and went top shelf. The clock had only ticked off 90 seconds and the score read 1 to 0.

At 11:09 left in the first period, Robert Reidy dug the puck out of the corner and spotted Beresford. Beresford fed Lund, who then scored his second goal of the contest. The Hingham goalie kept the game close by stopping ferocious attacks from Bryan Bowman and Curtis Golden.

At 10:49 of the second frame, Reidy added a goal to go along with his first period assist. Assisting for the 3rd time in the game was Beresford. Lund also contributed to this goal with the second assist. At this point, Cohasset had completely dominated the game as evidenced by the score of 3-0. With just over 5 minutes left in the second period, Lund scored another goal on a beautiful upper corner "roof job". Assisting on Lund's hat trick goal was Brendan Evitts. The second frame came to a close with the Coastal Mites B team in a commanding 4-0 lead.

Although the goaltending was not so busy for the Stars, Cal Maier pitched his second shutout of this short season with impressive acrobatics the few times Hingham was able to get through the Star's wall of steel defensive line, and attempt a shot on goal.

The third period began just as the previous two with significant pressure in the Hingham zone. Coming off a double hat trick game, Matt Doyle was not to be denied. At 9:56, Brendan Evitts fed Tucker Ambrose who split two defenders and featured a room service pass to Doyle in the slot. Doyle then sent a blistering wrist shot – 5 hole!

With 2:10 remaining in the game, Doyle carried the puck coast to coast and blasted a 70 mph fast ball past the outstretched Hingham net minder, pushing the undefeated Coastal Mite B to a 6-0 finish.

Sam Rice (Gretsky in Terry O'Reilly's body) gave the Hingham team more pressure than the Red Sox felt after the 2nd game of the ACLS series in New York. Declan Leahy played outstanding two-way hockey- leaving the fans to believe he had a twin brother on the ice. Hingham learned to stay out of the corners when Patrick Graham was on the ice, proving it's not the size of the dog in the fight, it's the size of the fight in the dog.

With the outstanding performance of all players on the Coastal Stars Mite B team, they are proud to own a share of first place in their division.

LISTEN To Life

by John Klefeker, BC-HIS
Board Certified-Hearing Instrument Specialist, MA Lic. #127

A MEASURE OF SOUND'S INTENSITY

Sound's intensity is measured in decibels (dB). The scale ranges from the faintest sound the human ear can detect (0dB) to over 180 dB, which is equal to the noise of a rocket launch. Habitual exposure to noise above 85 dB will cause a gradual hearing loss. Louder noises will cause damage in less time. For unprotected ears, the allowed exposure time decreases by one-half for each 5-dB increase in the average noise level. For instance, exposure should be limited to 8 hours at 90 dB, 4 hours at 95 dB and 2 hours at 100 dB. It is important to remember that the decibels are measured logarithmically, meaning that 20 decibels is ten times the intensity of 10 decibels, etc.

Our noisy world offers no guarantees that we'll have perfect hearing throughout our lives. We must accept the responsibility of protecting our hearing, in our home and work environments and in our recreational pursuits. If you don't hear as well as you feel you should, don't wait until you feel left out—have your hearing checked by a professional who specializes in evaluating and treating people with hearing loss. Here at FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER, 534 Main Street (Rte. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth, achieving your optimum hearing potential is our only business. PH: 781-337-1144

P.S. Ninety decibels is approximately the sound that a lawnmower or a shop tool makes.

BEST BET

The story of an immigrant matriach of a modern-day-Cuban-American family whose life was forever altered by the rise of Fidel Castro in her homeland, "Sonia Flew" is directed by Nicholas Martin and features a top-flight cast including Jeremiah Kissel, Will LeBow and Camen Roman.

The actors in "Sonia Flew" are each double cast, playing Sonia's modern-day Cuban American family in Minneapolis in December 2001, and her parents and family friends in act two's flashback to 1961 Havana. Roman makes "Sonia" a compelling figure, even during the character's occasional stridency. Roman is also very effective in her second role as "Marta," the family confidante who helps Sonia's parents smuggle her out of Cuba. In the second act, it becomes abundantly clear why the adult Sonia is still haunted by the memory of being sent to the U.S. by parents whom she would never see again.

Lopez intriguingly sets a post-September 11, 2001 family conflict against the decades earlier Cuban unrest and the "Pedro Pan" movement carried out by the Catholic Welfare Bureau, which helped get some 14,000 children out of the country before they could be forced to serve Cuba's growing military regime. Adam Stockhausen's period-evoking sets contribute to the high quality level of the proceedings as do Kristen Glans' costumes.

("Sonia Flew" will be at the Virginia Wemberly Theatre, 539 Tremont Street, Boston, through November 28. For tickets and information, call 617-266-0800 or visit www.huntingtontheatre.org.)

Cook Estate sewer connection to go to Special Town Meeting

Clock is ticking on senior project

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The Senior Housing Committee and Council on Elder Affairs have joined forces to ensure the Cook Estate — a proposed over-55 housing project — could potentially connect to the town sewer.

The two groups will sponsor an article for the Dec. 6 Special Town Meeting that would set the stage to create a Cook Sewer District, allowing the complex to connect if capacity exists. The Cook Estate lies outside the Central Sewer District.

If Tuesday's selectmen's meeting is a gauge then the proposal is bound to be the subject of considerable debate. Voters at the Special Town Meeting should bring their sleeping bags and prepare for a late night.

"We are at a point where we feel we have chased down every loose end."
— Jack Dawley, developer

On one side will be the "senior lobby" which is rightfully concerned that older folks who love this town can no longer afford to live here. That's what made the Cook Estate proposal that came before voters a year ago so attractive.

But at that time, it appeared an on-site wastewater system would be feasible, eliminating any potential competition for limited capacity.

On the other side are Little Harbor-area homeowners, who have been waiting for years for the sewer, and potentially two developments – Avalon and Cedarmere. Sewer capacity for those projects – that were in line before the Cook Estate – would be a far cheaper and easier solution than alternative on-site disposal systems.

Cook developers say they have exhausted all options for on-site wastewater disposal and have again filed for a sewer connection.

"We submitted an application today (Tuesday)," for a sewer connection, said Jack Dawley, principal and partner of Northland Residential. [The Cook Estate's previous application in April was denied].

Northland is the company the town has been working with to develop the Cook Estate property. Dawley added the discharge from the site will be highly treated in an on-site membrane system, and would be discharged at almost "drinking water" quality, which would therefore not affect biochemical oxygen demand, or BOD levels at the plant. Tremendous turnout is expected Tuesday

MFORD@CNC.COM

Last time around, Cohasset voters opted for George W. Bush albeit by only a narrow margin over Al Gore, who won the state and its 12 electoral votes.

In one of the closest presidential races in US history, Bush ultimately won the most electoral votes nationwide and the keys to the White House in an election that was decided by the US Supreme Court. Gore, vice president for eight years, narrowly won the popular vote.

Incumbent Massachusetts US Sen. John Kerry, who is challenging Bush, is expected to carry his home state. Just how Kerry will fare in Cohasset is anybody's guess.

But one thing is for sure, a lot of voters are going to take a trip to the polls. Unlike the September Primary that featured few contests – the race for president is as hot as it was four years ago.

The nationwide result could hinge of a few hundred votes in a key state like Ohio, Florida or Wisconsin.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday at Town Hall.

Judging from ample absentee ballots and a surge of new voter registrations – Cohasset can expect a big turnout. Upwards of 400 absentee ballots have been returned and in the weeks between the cutoff for the September Primary and national election, 100 citizens have registered to vote – including a number of college-age residents.

"It would be great to have 90 or 95 percent," Town Clerk Marion Douglas said. "I feel like it is going to be bigger than 2000."

In the 2000 presidential election, 82 percent of Cohasset registered voters went to the polls.

"It would be great to have 90 or 95 percent. I feel like it is going to be bigger than 2000."
— Town Clerk Marion Douglas

There are 5,336 registered voters in town – of that number, 1,238 are Democrats; 1,277 are Republicans and 2,802 are unenrolled. One local voter is in the Reform Party; 11 are Libertarians; three are in the Green Rainbow Party; and four are in the Interdependent Third Party.

In 2000, Bush received 2,128 Cohasset votes and Gore: 2,028.

Alerting parents in a school crisis

Rapid calling system coming

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

In the wake of the recent alleged student plot to commit a Columbine-like mass murder at Marshfield High School, local schools are taking another look at safety measures which could be implemented in a crisis situation.

Taking a cue from Marshfield, which was able to notify the parents of every student within five minutes about the issues at the school, Cohasset will soon implement a new technology that will ensure the lines of communication are always open.

Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh said when she called the superintendent in Marshfield to offer the support of the Cohasset community and commend him on the wonderful job the school had done as the crisis unfolded, she found out about the Connect-ED technology system that was used to notify Marshfield parents. Walsh said at 1:50 p.m., just as students were being dismissed, but prior to the press conference scheduled for 2:30, an automatic phone call with a recorded message from the superintendent was

Plymouth Rock 'like' enclosure may be possible

Part of the granite, railroad turntable foundation unearthed in the municipal parking lot could remain exposed.

In an effort to keep part of Cohasset's past alive, Town Treasurer/Tax Collector Joe DiVito — who doubles as Acting Special Assistant to the Town Manager for MBTA affairs — said the back-filling of a 15x15-ft. portion of the excavated site has temporarily been put on hold. He said while the idea is still in the preliminary stages, the town will work with the MBTA as well as the archaeologists to see if keeping a portion of old roundtable visible is feasible.

"It would be a lot like Plymouth

CEES to ask voters for sewer connection guarantee

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

In an effort to make sure the promise of being granted a sewer connection does not get pushed aside, more than 100 residents, including members of Citizens for Equitable Environmental Solutions, or CEES, have signed a citizens' petition, which will ask Town Meeting to formalize its commitment to the Little Harbor and Atlantic Avenue sewer expansion project.

The plans to sewer the Little Harbor area of town dates back to 1979 when the town violated the Federal Clean Waters Act.

There is currently a plan in place to sewer the Little Harbor area of town, and Sewer Commission engineer Daniel Coughlin of Tutela Engineering Associates submitted a schedule for work to the Department of Environmental Protection in February, 2004. The sewer extension will help eliminate private on-site wastewater disposal systems, which are negatively impacting the water quality of Inner Little Harbor, Little Harbor, and Massachusetts Bay, resulting in the closure of area shellfish beds. It is intended to expand the wastewater treatment plant's capacity by 150,000 gallons per day, to allow the "Little Harbor Sewer District" and "Atlantic Avenue Sewer District" to be connected to the existing municipal sewer system.

While the letter states the town is committed to continuing the sewer project, it was not signed by any member of the town's highest governing body, the Board of Selectmen, and CEES members say it is therefore not considered a binding commitment by the state. If that schedule is included in the Second Amended Final Judgment, imposed by the state, CEES members say that will show a firm commitment by the town to sewer the Little Harbor area. The schedule would include awarding the construction contracts for the project in Spring 2007 and project completion in Summer 2009.

The plans to sewer the Little Harbor area of town dates back to 1979 when the town violated the Federal Clean Waters Act. The state, in turn, gave the town a judgment, followed by a second amended judgment, which the town needed to comply with, or face fines of up to $10,000 per day.

To help settle the judgement with the state, the town embarked on two sewer projects, including an expansion of the Central Sewer District and the North Cohasset sewer project, which allowed residents to tie-in to capacity at the Hull treatment facility. Both the Central Sewer District expansion and North Cohasset sewer project were subsidized 50 percent by taxpayers.

In addition, the town created two "priority districts" that included some streets around Little Harbor. Those priority homes, however, were not given sewer connections, and were told their systems would be subjected to immediate mandatory on-site Title 5 inspections whether the owners planned to sell their homes or not. Homeowners were told they would be required to have their systems inspected for Title 5 compliance every two years. If the system did not pass, the homeowner would be required to upgrade their system within two years or replace it to meet Title 5 requirements. CEES members say it has been estimated that the average cost of replacing a septic system in the Little Harbor area of town is between $40,000 and $70,000 per system, and that cost would be at the homeowner's expense.

It was then that CEES, pronounced "cease" was formed, and participating households in the Little Harbor area contributed $500 each, which went toward expenses incurred to fight their battle for equal wastewater options.

Over the years, CEES members have paid to have environmental studies completed on Little Harbor, and its members say many of the studies have identified sewering as the most cost-effective and environmentally friendly wastewater option for that area of town. In light of the resident's work to comply with the judgment, the mandate for septic inspections by the state has been lifted.

However, CEES members say the state's priority designation is not permanent, and the town is still responsible for satisfying the state's judgment. Without a plan set firmly in place, the town could face a renewal of state mandates ordering regular Title 5 systems inspections, which could be very costly for homeowners.

CEES members are hopeful that a ruling for the town of Newbury shows with a firm commitment for the sewer in Cohasset, their property will be spared the threat of mandatory septic inspections while they wait for a sewer connection. Newbury also violated the Clean Waters Act, and according to a ruling by DEP, in that town, property owners can be exempt from forced upgrades, provided the system is not considered a health hazard, if the town promises to provide a sewer connection, and the homeowner promises to connect to the system within five years, or within 30 days of the system coming on line, whichever comes first. During the interim, systems would need to be regularly pumped, but costly inspections and mandatory upgrades or replacement would no longer be a worry for homeowners. If Cohasset can promise sewer to its Little Harbor residents, CEES members believe past DEP rulings would suggest amnesty would also be allowed for homes promised a connection in Cohasset, which is why they say they brought the citizens' petition forward.

The town has supported many of the efforts to keep the Little Harbor sewer project on track and has allocated a good amount of money over the years for the cause. CEES members say therefore, the DEP expects one day the Little Harbor area homes will in fact be sewered. However, with senior housing projects on the rise which could impact the amount of available capacity at the central district sewer plant, members of CEES are worried sewer will never be a reality.

Although it has been said connecting developments to municipal sewer will not affect plans to sewer Little Harbor, members of CEES say that is not true. While the Sewer Commission has proposed dedicating capacity from the planned upgrade of the system to the Little Harbor area of town, CEES members believe by the time their sewer system is built, developers could already have been granted all available capacity. The Sewer Commission has said if one development were granted a hook-up, most likely all other developments and developments to follow would also have the legal right to tie-in as well. The only alternative for Little Harbor, which is currently slated to begin construction of its sewer in 2007, would be to build a new satellite treatment plant, which CEES members say would be more expensive than an upgrade to build, and very, very difficult to permit.

While it has been argued that senior citizens, who will live in either Cedarmere or the Cook Estate, should not have to deal with on-site septic systems, and should therefore be granted sewer connections, CEES members say there are roughly 400 seniors currently living in the Little Harbor area of town who are experiencing septic problems on a daily basis, which is why CEES believes existing homes should be taken care of before developments. If the 400 units from the two senior housing projects as well as the 200 proposed Avalon rental units, are granted the 400 connections which could have been used for Little Harbor, CEES members say their capacity will no longer exist.

CEES to ask voters for sewer connection guarantee

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

In an effort to make sure the promise of being granted a sewer connection does not get pushed aside, more than 100 residents, including members of Citizens for Equitable Environmental Solutions, or CEES, have signed a citizens' petition, which will ask Town Meeting to formalize its commitment to the Little Harbor and Atlantic Avenue sewer expansion project.

The plans to sewer the Little Harbor area of town dates back to 1979 when the town violated the Federal Clean Waters Act.

There is currently a plan in place to sewer the Little Harbor area of town, and Sewer Commission engineer Daniel Coughlin of Tutela Engineering Associates submitted a schedule for work to the Department of Environmental Protection in February, 2004. The sewer extension will help eliminate private on-site wastewater disposal systems, which are negatively impacting the water quality of Inner Little Harbor, Little Harbor, and Massachusetts Bay, resulting in the closure of area shellfish beds. It is intended to expand the wastewater treatment plant's capacity by 150,000 gallons per day, to allow the "Little Harbor Sewer District" and "Atlantic Avenue Sewer District" to be connected to the existing municipal sewer system.

While the letter states the town is committed to continuing the sewer project, it was not signed by any member of the town's highest governing body, the Board of Selectmen, and CEES members say it is therefore not considered a binding commitment by the state. If that schedule is included in the Second Amended Final Judgment, imposed by the state, CEES members say that will show a firm commitment by the town to sewer the Little Harbor area. The schedule would include awarding the construction contracts for the project in Spring 2007 and project completion in Summer 2009.

The plans to sewer the Little Harbor area of town dates back to 1979 when the town violated the Federal Clean Waters Act. The state, in turn, gave the town a judgment, followed by a second amended judgment, which the town needed to comply with, or face fines of up to $10,000 per day.

To help settle the judgement with the state, the town embarked on two sewer projects, including an expansion of the Central Sewer District and the North Cohasset sewer project, which allowed residents to tie-in to capacity at the Hull treatment facility. Both the Central Sewer District expansion and North Cohasset sewer project were subsidized 50 percent by taxpayers.

In addition, the town created two "priority districts" that included some streets around Little Harbor. Those priority homes, however, were not given sewer connections, and were told their systems would be subjected to immediate mandatory on-site Title 5 inspections whether the owners planned to sell their homes or not. Homeowners were told they would be required to have their systems inspected for Title 5 compliance every two years. If the system did not pass, the homeowner would be required to upgrade their system within two years or replace it to meet Title 5 requirements. CEES members say it has been estimated that the average cost of replacing a septic system in the Little Harbor area of town is between $40,000 and $70,000 per system, and that cost would be at the homeowner's expense.

It was then that CEES, pronounced "cease" was formed, and participating households in the Little Harbor area contributed $500 each, which went toward expenses incurred to fight their battle for equal wastewater options.

Over the years, CEES members have paid to have environmental studies completed on Little Harbor, and its members say many of the studies have identified sewering as the most cost-effective and environmentally friendly wastewater option for that area of town. In light of the resident's work to comply with the judgment, the mandate for septic inspections by the state has been lifted.

However, CEES members say the state's priority designation is not permanent, and the town is still responsible for satisfying the state's judgment. Without a plan set firmly in place, the town could face a renewal of state mandates ordering regular Title 5 systems inspections, which could be very costly for homeowners.

CEES members are hopeful that a ruling for the town of Newbury shows with a firm commitment for the sewer in Cohasset, their property will be spared the threat of mandatory septic inspections while they wait for a sewer connection. Newbury also violated the Clean Waters Act, and according to a ruling by DEP, in that town, property owners can be exempt from forced upgrades, provided the system is not considered a health hazard, if the town promises to provide a sewer connection, and the homeowner promises to connect to the system within five years, or within 30 days of the system coming on line, whichever comes first. During the interim, systems would need to be regularly pumped, but costly inspections and mandatory upgrades or replacement would no longer be a worry for homeowners. If Cohasset can promise sewer to its Little Harbor residents, CEES members believe past DEP rulings would suggest amnesty would also be allowed for homes promised a connection in Cohasset, which is why they say they brought the citizens' petition forward.

The town has supported many of the efforts to keep the Little Harbor sewer project on track and has allocated a good amount of money over the years for the cause. CEES members say therefore, the DEP expects one day the Little Harbor area homes will in fact be sewered. However, with senior housing projects on the rise which could impact the amount of available capacity at the central district sewer plant, members of CEES are worried sewer will never be a reality.

Although it has been said connecting developments to municipal sewer will not affect plans to sewer Little Harbor, members of CEES say that is not true. While the Sewer Commission has proposed dedicating capacity from the planned upgrade of the system to the Little Harbor area of town, CEES members believe by the time their sewer system is built, developers could already have been granted all available capacity. The Sewer Commission has said if one development were granted a hook-up, most likely all other developments and developments to follow would also have the legal right to tie-in as well. The only alternative for Little Harbor, which is currently slated to begin construction of its sewer in 2007, would be to build a new satellite treatment plant, which CEES members say would be more expensive than an upgrade to build, and very, very difficult to permit.

While it has been argued that senior citizens, who will live in either Cedarmere or the Cook Estate, should not have to deal with on-site septic systems, and should therefore be granted sewer connections, CEES members say there are roughly 400 seniors currently living in the Little Harbor area of town who are experiencing septic problems on a daily basis, which is why CEES believes existing homes should be taken care of before developments. If the 400 units from the two senior housing projects as well as the 200 proposed Avalon rental units, are granted the 400 connections which could have been used for Little Harbor, CEES members say their capacity will no longer exist.

Alerting parents in a crisis

placed to each parent explaining what was happening.

When news of immense magnitude surfaces, Walsh said usually the administration has "about a minute and a half before Fox TV or the Today Show are breathing down your neck." By having the communication technology available, the parents can be given real, factual information bypassing the rumor mill. "It's immediate communication," she said.

With the technology comes the option of assigning more than one phone number for each student. "As many as six numbers can be linked to each student," said Walsh. If a parent is tried at the first number and no one answers, the system automatically knows to move on to the next number and will not stop calling until a parent is reached.

Walsh said the school department acts quickly it can lock in a predetermined rate and by having a corporate sponsor to help cover some of the costs, use of the technology will only cost $3 per child per year. There will be a one-time installation fee of $1,000, and there will be a $100 fee for each building to set up the equipment and train staff how to use it. Faculty members are included in the system free of charge.

"We didn't find a down side," said Walsh. She added there are a few other competitors on the market that offer products similar and prices to the Connect-Ed system but Notification Technologies was the only company that had the ability to send out a message recorded by a member of the school staff rather than a digital recording.

"The other companies tried to say you don't want to hear the fear in the principal's voice, but I think it's just the opposite. You want to hear the calm in the principal's voice," said Walsh.

In addition to the role the technology can play during a crisis, keeping parents informed during non-crisis situations is just as important. Walsh said if the schools need to have a weather-related early release, all parents can be notified their children will be arriving home at a certain time.

The system is also able to flag students in a number of different criteria. For example, if band practice has been cancelled, students in the system who are in band can be flagged and only their parents will be called. Or, a friendly reminder can be sent out to students in a certain grade level to get enough rest the night before the MCAS test.

Walsh said the system can also be good for community alerts, such as if police want to alert the community to a suspicious person seen around town.

The School Committee gave Walsh the OK to go ahead and sign a contract with the company and she will look into the potential sponsors the company suggests. Walsh said while she typically doesn't like to see corporate sponsorship on school equipment, she feels this is a very appropriate way to team up with a big corporation.

Walsh said the only indication of sponsorship will come after the message for parents, and will say at the end: "This message has been co-sponsored by Verizon," or whichever sponsor the district chooses. She said it is the responsibility of Notification Technologies to come up with a sponsor the district approves, and if it does not find a suitable company, the school will still receive the discounted rate of $3 per student per year, rather than $3.60 without a sponsor.

For more information on the Connect-Ed technology, please visit their Web site at www.notification.com.

Tremendous turnout is expected

asking voters to vote either "yes" or "no" for marijuana decriminalization.

The races are for:

- President/Vice President: Bush/Cheney, Kerry/Edwards, Cobb/LaMarche (Green-Rainbow), and Badnarik/Campagna (Libertarian).
- Representative in Congress, 10th District: Democrat William D. Delahunt and Republican Michael J. Jones.
- Rep. Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham, is unopposed by a Republican in the state representative race for the 3rd Plymouth District. However, a few weeks ago Hingham resident Laura Burns, a registered Democrat, launched a last-minute write-in campaign against Bradley centering around "civil marriage rights for all."
- Councilor, 4th District: Republican Donald A. Hussey of Hingham, Democrat Christopher A. Iannella Jr., and Brian Connolly (Unenrolled).

Question 1 is a non-binding public policy question placed on the ballot by the Drug Policy Forum of Massachusetts in the 3rd Plymouth Representative District, which includes Hingham, Cohasset, Hull, and Precinct 3 in Scituate. The signatures of 200 voters in a district are required in order to place a question on the ballot in that district.

Should the legislature at some point approve this proposed marijuana decriminalization, the penalty for possession of one ounce or less of marijuana by an adult would carry a $100 civil fine for both first-time and subsequent offenses rather than a criminal penalty. There are no other ballot questions.

Voters can vote absentee up until noontime Mon., Nov. 1. The Town Clerk's office will close at that time to prepare for the election.

Absentee ballots available for the state election

Absentee ballots for the State Election on Nov. 2 are now available at the Town Clerk's office. Absentee voting may be done during normal office hours until noontime on Monday, Nov. 1, at which time the office will be closed to prepare for the election. You may vote absentee for the following reasons only:
Absence from the town during the hours the polls is open.
Physical disability.
Religious beliefs, which prevent voting at the polls on Election Day.

The applicant must request an absentee ballot. Applications are available in the Town Clerk's office or a written, signed request can be sent by mail, or hand delivered by the voter or any other person. The application should include the legal voting address of the voter, where the ballot is to be mailed, and the signature of the applicant.

A family member of a person qualified to vote by absentee ballot may apply on behalf of such voter. The applicant shall state his or her relationship to the absentee voter; sign the application under the pains and penalties of perjury and mail or hand deliver the application to the clerk's office. Absentee ballots must be mailed to the voter. Returned ballots should be mailed or can be delivered by an immediate member of the family to the Town Clerk's office by Nov. 2, to be counted.

The Stanford Achievement Test, or SAT, has gone through some changes and students taking the test this March will be the first to experience it in its new format. With three testing categories rather than two, the test will take students longer to complete and the fee for the test will be increased. It is believed the changes will better measure what students have learned in high school therefore, helping match colleges with prospective students.

Guidance Counselor Ed Leonard said he attended a workshop given by the College Board, which outlined changes taking place on the SAT and PSAT tests. The PSAT is a preliminary test usually taken by students in their sophomore year, while the SAT is taken by juniors. Roughly 150 Cohasset students have already taken the PSAT, which is in a new format, but has experienced fewer changes, and Leonard said testing day went very well.

"I personally believe our students will be ready for this, but it is a shift and we want to prepare them for it."
— Ed Leonard, guidance

"I personally believe our students will be ready for this, but it is a shift and we want to prepare them for it," said Leonard, adding he will make presentations to both faculty members and students to ensure everyone knows what to expect with the new test.

Currently, there are two portions of the SAT test: verbal and math. Both are scored on a scale from 200 to 800, and 1600 is a perfect score. However, Leonard said part of the reason the tests are changing is to emphasize the importance of writing. In fact, a new section will be added to the test called writing, which will include multiple choice questions on grammar and usage as well as a student written essay.

Another change will be renaming the verbal section, which will now be called critical reading. The section on analogies — such as cat is to meow as dog is to bark — will be eliminated, and short reading passages will be added. The long reading passages will remain on the test.

Math will still be called math, but content will be expanded on the test to include various topics students should have learned while taking three years of math, including algebra and geometry. "For our students, I don't see this as a challenge," Leonard said, adding students at Cohasset High School have at least taken algebra I, II and geometry by the time they take the test, and many are much more advanced. In addition, quantitative comparisons will be eliminated.

Leonard said there will be opportunities for students to take the SAT prior to March, when it will be a requirement to administer the new test to students. However, he said he would recommend all students take the new version of the test, because "it won't be any advantage to take the old. The competition you will be up against are students who are taking the new SAT," Leonard said.

Supt. of Schools Denise Walsh said the changes being made to the SAT will be positive, as it will finally be catching up with the MCAS test. "It's a good thing," she said. " With all the timed writing students are asked to do for the MCAS test, the SAT will also begin measuring student's ability to write well. "

Leonard said the new test will be timed; students will have three hours and 45 minutes to complete it, which has increased from three hours. The cost for the test will increase from $28 to $41.50. For more information, please visit the College Board's Web site at www.collegeboard.com.

Rock," said Town Manager Michael Buckley, adding in downtown Plymouth, a railed off section allows visitors to peer down at the rock from above. He said Cohasset would be looking to build something similar over a small portion of the exposed turntable.

DiVito said the section of the turntable which would remain exposed would be located under the canopy of a large tree in the corner of the municipal lot closest to the Pleasant Street Parfait.

"It will be the equivalent of about three parking spaces," he said, but giving up those spaces will be worth it to keep a slice of Cohasset's history alive. "

Jeff Kane of the Waterfield Design Group, who is project manager for the James Brook Flood Control project that is going on simultaneously with the MBTA excavation, said he was approached by DPW Supt. Carl Sestito, who asked if there would be any way to keep the excavated site open. Kane thought it was a great idea and approached Buckley and DiVito to see what they thought. DiVito said the idea caught on from there and the town will speak with the MBTA on the feasibility of keeping the area open, as the Greenbush line tracks will run close to the site. DiVito said an estimate of what it would cost to construct a viewing area will also be conducted.

The decision will have to come before the Board of Selectmen because it will require eliminating three parking spaces from the town lot. But at least one member of the board plans to back the project.

"It's a great piece of archaeological history for this town," said Selectman Ralph Dormitzer. "I absolutely support it," he said, but added there will be various considerations to be taken into account before a final decision can be made.

Dormitzer explained everything from safety measures, to how to describe what you're looking at on the plaque, to how to clean the enclosed area, to how to get rid of storm water will have to be discussed. However, he is confident solutions can be found.

In addition to the exposed enclosure, Dormitzer said he would like to see cobblestones set into the new parkng lot asphalt to mark the outline of the rest of the turntable. From the observing platform, the entire turntable would be illustrated. Cobblestones would not interfere with parking spaces, and would be relatively inexpensive for a large effect, he said.

The turntable, which used to be part of the railroad which ran through Cohasset, has been excavated as part of the MBTA's environmental impact study. The MBTA is in the process of reconstructing the Greenbush Line to Scituate. The turntable was used to turn trains around to go back to Boston and help position trains which needed to go into the roundhouse for storage or repairs.

With phase one excavating coming to a close, filling and paving will soon be complete — weather permitting — and the area of the municipal lot adjacent to the current excavating site, closest to the Adamo Salon will be the next area to be explored. While that parking lot entrance is blocked, the former entrance off Pleasant Street will be reopened.

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer provided this aerial view of the train turntable.

Women get creative with concept behind businesses

Work together to ensure success

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Balancing a career and family life is never an easy task, especially for those who own their own business. While serving as your own boss gives a certain amount of flexibility, it also takes a lot of time to make sure the operation is running smoothly.

But for four Cohasset women, who have banded together to operate their own businesses out of one building, being their own boss has become a cooperative effort, as they all work together to support each other's individual efforts and ensure they succeed.

...they all were looking for a way to start their own businesses while balancing family time and responsibilities.

At a women's entrepreneur night, held at the Lightkeeper's Residence roughly one year ago, Andrea Flynn, Michelle Cayer, Jody Caron and Leslie Lemaire were introduced. Although their interests were different, their goal was the same, as they all were looking for a way to start their own businesses while balancing family time and responsibilities.

"We all had thought of doing something at the same time as way of helping each other out," said Flynn, adding because they all have families and need to have fairly flexible schedules, they would all be able to take turns rotating schedules. Without any set plans, the four began looking for a space to rent where they could embark on a joint business venture, where together, they could run Needlepoint South, Bead Combers, and The Sports Closet.

When they found a space for rent on Route 3A, they decided to go for it, and the situation worked well for one year. But when the opportunity recently presented itself for the women to make the move to downtown Cohasset, the three embarked on the second phase of their journey, and have now set up shop at 39 South Main St., next to Bia Bistro.

Flynn has been doing needlepoint for most of her life. Although she had never really thought about starting her own needlepoint business, as her children started getting older, she thought about what she could do to occupy some of her time. While she wasn't sure whether it was the right time to open a shop when she began thinking of opening Needlepoint South, with support from the others, she took a leap of faith and is now glad she did.

Flynn carries needlepoint merchandise and supplies, and said the response from the public has been great. "There is nothing between Boston and Cape Cod like it," she said. Flynn said she has been gaining a strong clientele and many tell her how happy they are to not have to drive a long distance for needlepoint supplies. In addition, Flynn offers classes to help longtime needlepointers refresh their skills, or introduce newcomers to the craft.

Flynn carries many different hand-painted canvases with a variety of needlepoint scenes. She said she even has a company that will hand paint a canvas from a photograph to allow customers to create needlepoint scenes of their homes, gardens, or any other photograph they can provide. Needlepoint, "is not just for pillows anymore," she said, adding she carries kits to make your own pocketbooks, belts, ornaments, and Christmas stockings. "There's a lot of fun stuff you can do," she said.

Leslie Lemaire and Jody Caron, wearing coats from The Sports Closet clothing lines, pose with Andrea Flynn from Needlepoint South and Michelle Cayer from Bead Combers. Together, the women operate their own individual downtown businesses under one roof.

Cayer began Bead Combers as a small business operating out of her home. Using high end beads, including those made from glass and sterling silver, she said she started making jewelry with a friend, and began selling it mostly at home parties. However, before long, Cayer found the women at the parties began asking how they could make their own jewelry, and her focus shifted from making the jewelry herself to teaching others how to make their own.

As business began to grow, Cayer began serving as a bead distributor for women, and with such high demand for the beads, she realized she needed a place to keep her inventory. However, she also realized if she was going to have her own store, she wanted it to be more than beads alone. That is when she branched out to help other local women who had started their own businesses, and began buying items from them for her own shop.

In addition to selling beads, Cayer carries knitted hats, personalized stationery, and other items like monogrammed bags which are all crafted by local women. "There's a little bit of everything for everybody," she said.

Together, Carone and Lemaire operate the Sports Closet. An avid tennis player, Carone said she began noticing the women's sports clothes which were being sold at local fitness clubs, and thought she could provide the demand for more products in the women's sports market.

"We started with tennis then went to golf," said Lemaire, adding now the store carries running and casual attire as well as casual skirts and jackets.

When they began, Carone said the two called companies such as Ralph Lauren and Lacoste to see if they would be willing to start a partnership with the store, and she said everyone couldn't have been nicer. Now the store carries 12 different sport clothing lines for women. Carone said the Sports Closet does focus mainly on women's clothing, but they do offer some T-shirts and shorts for men.

In addition to attire, Carone and Lemaire also began to notice there wasn't much in the way of women's sports gear. The two looked into it and have begun selling colorful patterned tennis racquet and golf club covers which can be monogrammed.

Carone said the shop has been doing well and the Lacoste shirts, which come in an array of colors, have been very popular items, especially with the high school students. She said the response has been great and the residents have been really good customers. "They love to shop in their town," she said, adding with the new location, many more visitors are stopping by on their way to do errands, and with all three businesses located under one roof, there is something for everyone who walks through their doors.

SU ESCUELA

Never too young to learn a second language

"From the time they open the door, they hear 'Hola' and 'how are you?' and 'Take your shoes off,' all in Spanish. There's no English spoken, only Castellano."

When young children from the South Shore are at "Su Escuela" Spanish education program, they're completely immersed in the language.

"From the time they open the door, they hear 'Hola' and 'how are you?' and 'take your shoes off,' all in Spanish," Baldeon said. "There's no English spoken, only Castellano."

Nearly 80 children have joined Su Escuela, a Spanish immersion school, the opening of the program in February of this year. Su Escuela's Director, Sandra Baldeon and her instructors, all native Spanish speakers from Chile, have given young children, as young as three months old, an exposure to a second language, an opportunity many wouldn't normally have until they reached junior high school when foreign language programs often begin in public schools.

To give her students the best experience possible, Baldeon said Su Escuela students only hear Spanish at the school. It's in lessons from her instructors, all college graduates, educators, in the music played at the school and in the games the students play.

"To really capture the language you need that immersion," she said.

In the 16-week program, the students learn a second language in classes with just seven children practicing their words, doing homework and by playing games, a method Baldeon said is important for children.

"We're focused on learning, but also on having fun" she said. "Our goal is not to bring just vocabulary, but for them to get used to the language with the proper accent and develop the ability to learn other languages."

Baldeon said children exposed to a second language at an early age have an advantage over those who pick it up later in their school years. It's difficult to awaken the interest of a 10 year old in learning a second language when they've never been exposed to it before," she said. "The earlier they start they better it is for the children."

Sandra Baldeon, Su Escuela Director, with Will Barao. Will was the first student enrolled at Su Escuela when its doors opened in February 2004.

When Baldeon said it is important to start students at an early age, she didn't mean waiting until after the children learn English. Su Escuela's youngest students are just three months old. They attend classes with their mothers and listen to Spanish music and play age-appropriate games. Once students turn three, then they attend classes without their parents, but the immersion in the Spanish language continues, giving her students the same quality program no matter how old they are.

"When our students say 'hola' to us in the street, we feel like, "Wow, we are really making an impact in the community" she said.

Baldeon added that Su Escuela's Spanish immersion program is the first of its class on the South Shore, "we are really making history on South Shore, one of our goals is to develop a bilingual community and that is already happening." The parents of Su Escuela students should be proud as they now form part of such a multilingual community.

The school is located at 152 King Street, Rte. 3A, in Cohasset. For more information call 781-383-2585.

Sewer situation

If someone had told us when we became reporters that sewer capacity and sewer access would consume a lot of newsprint – we might have chosen another career.

But we would have been wrong to do so. While on the surface sewers may not be a "sexy" subject – nothing affects a homeowner or developer more than the dilemma of how to dispose of human waste.

While the days of backyard privies may be long gone – the issue has become more complex as time goes by. The stress on our environment, in particular, pollution of our water bodies has prompted stringent regulations limiting the options.

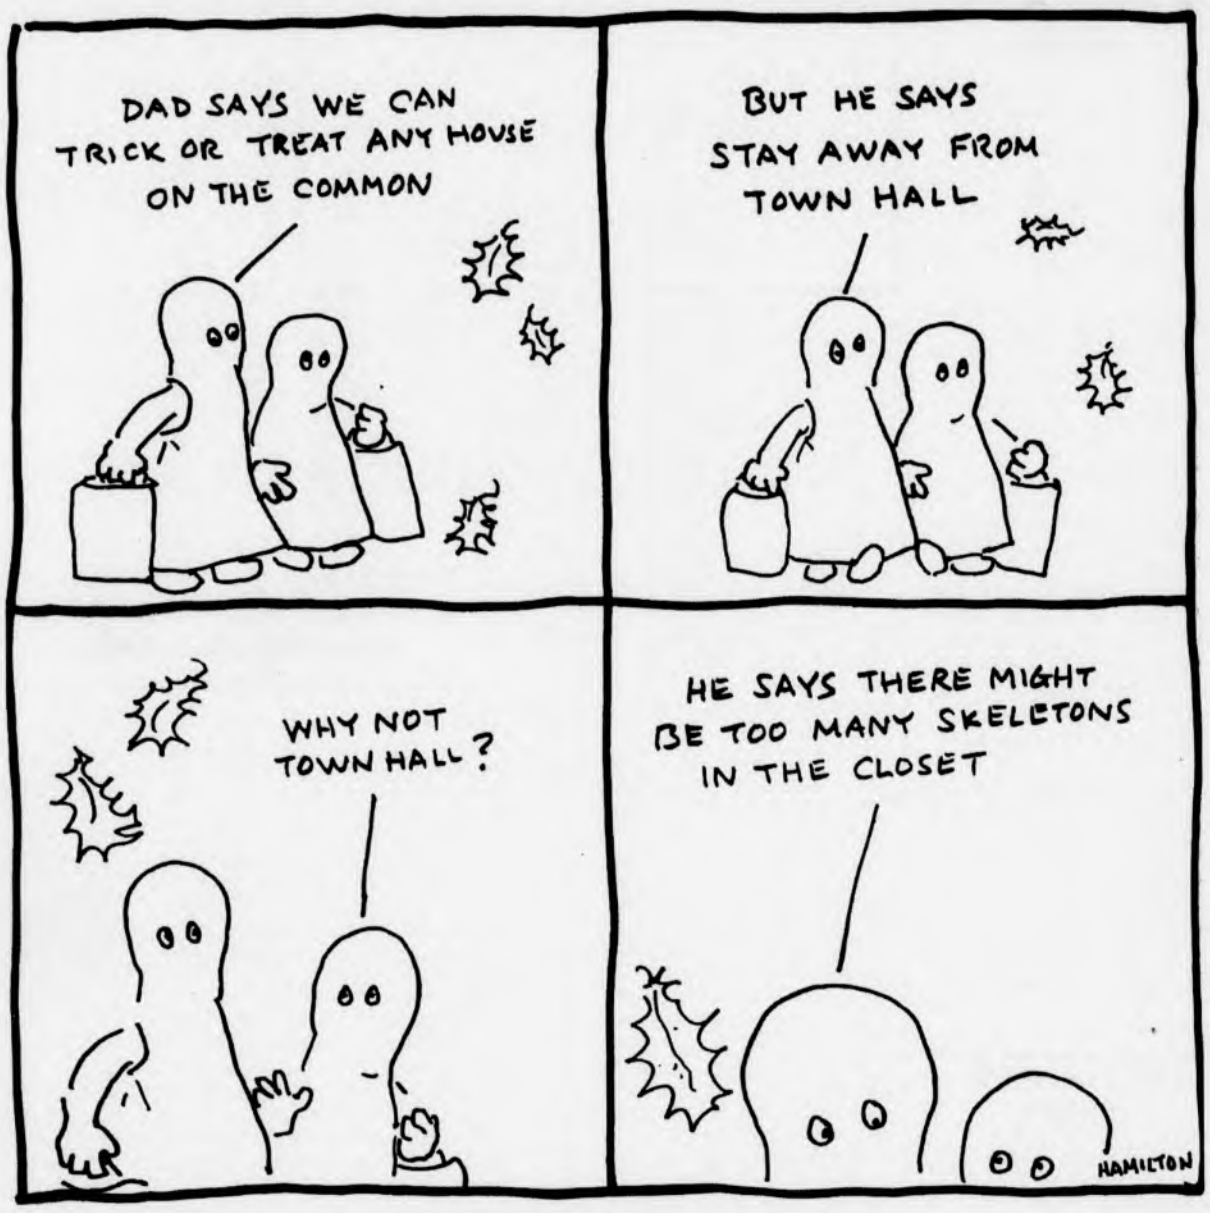
Enter public sewers with state-of-the-art treatment plants, as is the case in Cohasset, and it's a "no brainer" that homeowners with existing homes and developers of new projects would be knocking at the door for capacity. The alternative is either a no-build or expensive Title 5 system.

Cohasset is not unique but it is perhaps the "poster child" of the competing interests of protecting the environment and controlling growth.

Now, add the "senior housing project" – a relatively new phenomenon that is likely to grow as the Baby-Boomer Generation ages.

Affordable senior housing to allow for "down-sizing" is sorely needed in our area. In Hingham, Erickson – the company that is developing the 2,000-unit Linden Ponds retirement campus off Whiting Street (Rte. 53) – has the demographic studies to prove it.

Older people want places that provide amenities, take care of the landscaping and snow removal, and provide independence.



But whether a senior project sponsored by the Town should jump to the head of the sewer line ahead of another senior project and a rental project, all of which include an element of affordable housing, and a neighborhood needing a pollution solution, is what will be before the voters at Special Town Meeting. It's an important question that seeks to balance needs with fairness.

In light of these issues, selectmen should not delay conducting a "sewer forum." Special Town Meeting is not the time to air all the complex and competing interests regarding Cohasset sewer capacity. The forum could also explain and answer questions about the Comprehensive Wastewater Management Plan through which septic systems would be managed by the town.

A "State of the Town Sewer" night dedicated to the subject would be educational and informative to all. The main question about capacity could be answered. How much is there and who should get it? – are two questions we have for starters. We need some straight, clear answers.

Also, as an aside, let's put to rest the argument that senior housing does not attract children to the schools. It doesn't – but the domino effect does. At Hingham's Linden Ponds, 25 percent of those who have signed up so far are from Hingham. That means in almost one fell swoop, these 62-and-older individuals and couples will be vacating their big Main Street houses for the retirement campus, opening up their homes to an influx of families with kids.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

It's a turntable and not a roundhouse

TO THE EDITOR:

With regard to the article titled "Roundhouse to go back underground" I would like to point out the difference between a roundhouse and a turntable. A roundhouse is a circular or semi-circular building containing 1, 2 or more stalls with tracks leading to the turntable and is used for storage and service of locomotives. The turntable is used, not only to turn the locomotive for it's return trip, but also to send the locomotive into whichever stall is to be used for the service, repair, or storage of the locomotive.

The granite structure that has been excavated is the foundation of the turntable. The foundation of the roundhouse has not yet been uncovered. The roundhouse at the Cohasset terminus, was located to the East of the turntable as is clearly evident in the photograph on page 255 of the "Narrative history of Cohasset, Volume II" By Burtram J. Pratt.

I hope that this will clear up any misunderstanding abut this archeological investigation.

Citizens should have the option to recall

TO THE EDITOR:

Put me down as one of those saddened by the attitude of a few long-time residents that positive change is not welcome in Cohasset. After years of the old-guard prevailing by guilting all those suggesting change into accepting the status quo, those who want to move forward are finally finding a voice. The fact is that Cohasset is not only a wonderful old seaside village; it's also a modern community with the goal of serving the needs of its citizens. We all greatly appreciate the service of our elected officials and we also recognize them as just that — elected officials with the duty and the obligation to serve the citizens of Cohasset.

Recalls are in place in numerous other towns on the South Shore. They are a tool of democracy that exists to enable the people to point out that their government has diverged from the path of service in a direction the citizens don't like. Good, active, flexible public servants have nothing to fear from a recall — a recall is a last resort that won't be necessary so long as elected officials are listening. Further, the percentage of votes required to recall an official is very high, ensuring that this extreme measure stays extreme.

We hope it's true that the public scandals that have rocked our town over the past two years are anomalies. But anomalies or not, we as citizens have the right to greater transparency and accountability in our government than we have seen of late. Given the number of people running for town government and the great lengths to which citizens go even to be considered for volunteer committees (at least 24 citizens have volunteered to serve on the Police Advisory Board), I am not afraid that the recall provision will dry up the supply of citizens interested in serving.

How better to show that we care about our town than to enact positive change in government? How better to create a positive sense of community than to ensure that the citizens are satisfied with their elected officials?

Considering the very large percentage of our town's citizens who have moved to Cohasset in the last few years, it seems to me that a welcome, a little flexibility, and a willingness to see the potential for positive change might be in order. In the end, the irresponsibility lies with those trying to prevent the voices of the citizens of Cohasset from being heard.

Repulsed by contempt

TO THE EDITOR:

Put me down as one of those repulsed by the contempt shown for the all-too small cadre of people willing to expend their time and energy in elected office; contempt implicit in the argument that threat of recall is needed to keep them honest and industrious (or in line with whatever is currently popular with the chattering class in town).

During the two centuries of its existence, Cohasset has developed worthy traditions, institutions, habits of behavior, and a continuing small cadre of individuals willing to put up with the aggravations, frustrations and long hours of public office, despite the generally low level of appreciation in return. Surely the Town doesn't need still another disincentive to serve.

In the last couple of years a noisy and aggressive claque has emerged, ostensibly concerned with the well-being of the Town, but making statements that suggest they believe it necessary to first trash the town, its institutions, its modus operandi, its current officials, in order to save it ! I say to them: if you desire lasting influence, then simmer down and show some respect and understanding of the product of those who came before you.

Hedlund praised for support on legislation

TO THE EDITOR:

State Senator Bob Hedlund should be commended for his support of important legislation in the 2003-2004 legislative session that would help reduce the use of toxic chemicals that could endanger our health.

Sen. Hedlund co-sponsored a bill to reduce the use of toxic mercury in products and helped support the bill by signing onto a letter which succeeded in getting the bill released from committee. He also co-sponsored a budget amendment for a study to identify safer alternatives for ten toxic chemicals.

Unfortunately, neither of those bills passed. However, with the continued support of Sen. Hedlund and other legislators in the upcoming 2004-2005 legislative session hopefully such important legislation will be passed.

Water main flushing to start

The Water Department will flush water mains between Nov.1 and Nov. 19. Flushing will take place Monday through Thursday between 9 p.m. and 2 a.m. Flushing will begin with the following schedule:

Nov. 1 – starting at 9 p.m. on King St. (Pond St. to Beechwood St.), Pond St. (King St. to Route 3A), Schofield Rd., Beechwood St. (King St. to end) and streets off these streets.

Nov. 2 – Doane St., Church St., Flintlock Ridge Rd. and all streets off these streets.

Nov. 3 – Route 3A (Pond St. to Scituate line), Beechwood St. (King St. to Route 3A, Brewster Rd./Ledgewood Dr. area.

Nov. 4 – Beechwood St. (Route 3A to South Main St.), Castle Rd., Hammond Ave., Locust Rd., Norman Todd Rd., Todd La., South Main St. (Beechwood St. to Scituate Line) and Stanton Rd.

Residents will be provided advance notification in the Patriot Ledger and Cohasset Mariner of the schedule for flushing each segment of the system. In addition, temporary street signs will be placed strategically around the affected area on the day of flushing. Notice will also be provided on the local cable access channel, Channel 10. Residents should monitor the cable channel (Channel 10) for schedule changes, which will occur if the previous day's flushing was not completed.

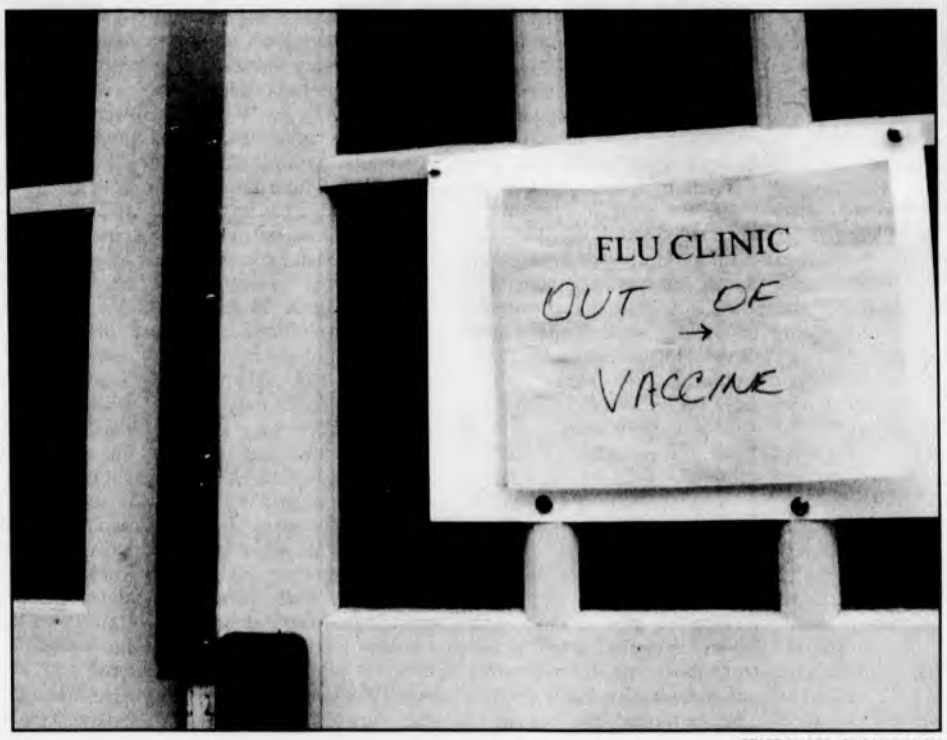
"Flushing cleans out sediment and deposits which may have accumulated in the water mains and is an important part of the continuing efforts to improve drinking water quality to our customers," said John McNabb, Chairman of the Water Commission.

Do not wash clothes during the time the flushing occurs. If clothing becomes stained it can be cleaned by using "Iron Out" which is available for free from the Water Department.

During the flushing program, some temporary discoloration of the water may occur. Run the cold water faucet, preferably outside, for a short time until the discoloration clears. If your water is discolored, avoid using hot water until you flush your hot water tank by opening the valve at the bottom of the tank.

Please call the Water Department at (781) 383-0057 with any questions.

HEALTH NOTES



State to provide more flu vaccine

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

You may have read in recent news releases that the Town plans no further flu shots. This is incorrect. The State has published a listing of those to whom vaccines will be made available as follows.

(1) All children aged 6-23 months;
(2) Adults over 65;
(3) Persons aged 2-64 years with underlying chronic medical conditions;
(4) All women who will be pregnant during the influenza season;
(5) Residents of nursing homes and long-term care facilities;
(6) Children aged 6 months-to-18 years on chronic aspirin therapy;
(7) Health-care workers involved in direct patient care; and
(8) Out-of-home caregivers and household contacts of children aged under months.

The DPH has also contacted various Boards of Health indicating that they will receive more vaccine which will be distributed as soon as it becomes available. They have further requested guidance about the form of distribution; whether it should be regional or by town. Since this decision depends upon the number of flu shots available, we have requested more information about the number of shots to be made available since, if we only receive a small number of shots, it will be impossible to have a full-scale clinic, and other means for distribution must be arranged. Nevertheless, we expect that sufficient flu shots will be available later this fall. The Board will post notifications about future clinics as we find out more about the vaccine supply.

The state is going to make more flu vaccine available. This sign was posted at last week's town clinic for senior citizens and others at greater risk for complications from influenza after the current supply was spoken for.

Wastewater plan

Here's more on the Comprehensive Wastewater Management Plan (CWMP).In the past, we have spoken in Health Notes about the CWMP, and listed many of its provisions. Basically it is a voluntary plan to "municipalize" septic systems for those who may wish to have their wastewater management done by the Town.

The expectation, after joining is that one can be reassured that, by paying a quarterly fee as is done for the sewer, they will not have to worry about septic system problems again. There are several new provisions in the new plan which make it differ from the BoH plan initiated in the past. The most important is that participation in the Plan will first be solicited on an "open enrollment" basis for a period of six months following the actual funding of the revolving enterprise fund that will fund the Plan. Those entering the plan during this open enrolment period will have their septic system inspected and upgraded to meet Title 5 and Town regulations. The cost of this upgrade will be borne 50 percent by the Town and 50 percent by the homeowner which may be financed by a low-interest loan. Following this enrollment period, homeowners must pay a betterment fee (the amount to be established) to join the plan. The provisions of Title 5 which call for upgrade of systems upon transfer of property are not changed. Anyone selling his house must have an approved Title 5 system in place or under construction.

The Plan will be paid for not by taxes, but by fees collected from its members. However, it is expected that, at the beginning, expenses will be greater than income. Accordingly, the BoH has investigated sources of loan funding for this shortfall. We find that funds are available. For example, the South Shore Housing Collaborative has indicated that "Mr. Nihar Mohanty, DEP Northeast Region would be very interested in assisting with the proposed Septic Betterment Program in conjunction with your CWMP. There is the distinct possibility that the Town would be able to request $1.5 million for the Septic Betterment Program through DEP dependent upon the identified problems with the area (i.e., failures, ledge etc) and the Town's willingness to accept the Program." Other sources of funding will be investigated and reviewed to get the best deal for the Town.

We expect to have an article on this proposition before the Town for the Dec. 5 Town meeting.

Steve Bobo is chairman of the Cohasset Board of Health.

High marks for strategic school planning

EDUCATIONS MATTERS

JAMIE WILLIAMS

Great things happen when community leaders work together! In the continuing pursuit of excellence, School Superintendent Dr. Denise Walsh brought together a dynamic team of community leaders and parents Oct. 22 and 23. Attendees included, Jack Buckley, CMHS teacher; Laura Keating, Osgood teacher; Janet Sheehan, Keith Gauley and Jack DeLorenzo, our school principals; Town Manager Michael Buckley; Police Chief Jim Hussey; Donna McGee, Advisory Committee; parent representatives, Sandy Crough and Barb Mullin; School Supt. Dr. Denise Walsh; Linda Gill, Student Services Director; Karen Park, Financial Assistant; School Committee members, Rick Flynn, Adrienne MacCarthy, Rick Shea, Chartis Tebbits, Jamie Williams; and facilitator Kathryn Earle of Touchtone Advisors.

Their commission was to create a new Strategic Plan for the Cohasset Public School system. The team of 18 agreed with Dr. Walsh, that this type of proactive strategic planning will allow for more and more responsible budgets as we move forward. The two-day session produced updated Mission and Vision Statements, goals and objectives, and key strategies necessary to move the school system forward over the next five years. "It is not the status quo anymore," Dr. Walsh said, "we intend to raise the bar. The results of the two-day working session have saved me two years of planning."

The assembly represented very diverse constituencies, working side by side for the greater good of the entire community. It demonstrated a strong commitment to total participation across our schools, Town boards, and the community at large, with common goals that benefit not only the entire school system, but also the entire Town. In this economically challenging environment, we are making a shift toward more holistic thinking and action, that will provide a proactive and transparent budget and planning process.

The group agreed upon a commitment to excellence, recognizing and building upon each individual student's potential. It is a process that will build upon comprehensive attention to the learning environment, and provide systematic accountability. The most important goals identified by the team were an updated curriculum; effective professional development for school staff; schools that are safe, clean, and secure; and facilities that are operated, and maintained in fiscally, socially and educationally responsible ways.

A working draft of the Strategic Plan will be available to the public within the next several weeks. Dr. Walsh invites and encourages community feedback as the Plan is circulated. She also wishes to thank all those that participated in the Strategic Planning process. Her sincere appreciation is given to all those that responded to her school survey. The results provided her with an even broader community prospective.

Jamie Williams is a member of the School Committee.

Miss America loses audience

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

The annual Miss America beauty pageant, a fixture on the nation's pop culture scene since 1921, appears to be on its way to join Howard Johnson, the 10-cent draft beer and the drive-in theater in the dust bin of history.

The ABC television network announced last week that it will not renew its $5.6 million contract to air the festivities from Atlantic City, a not illogical move since its audience has decreased from 33.1 million in 1988 to 9.8 million this year.

How the mighty have fallen — and fallen and fallen!

When I was young and ice covered most of the earth (and television was still a laboratory curiosity) we waited for the pictures of the winners to appear in the next day's Record-American-Sunday Advertiser in their skimpy bathing suits. Skimpy? They'd be called Mother Hubbards today.

The pageant was first televised nationally in 1954, when the future actress Lee Meriwether won...

The pageant was first televised nationally in 1954, when the future actress Lee Meriwether won, and if your family didn't have even a 12-inch set, you wangled an invitation from one that did just so you could watch the contestants strut down the runway in one piece swim suits. Two piece were banned.

I was one of the wanglers since I didn't own a television set until 1960 or thereabouts when a friend of mine applied for a job as TV critic for one of the New York papers and we figured viewership might prove to be one of the qualifications for the job. But I digress . . .

The Miss America pageant started going downhill in 1968 when a group called the New York Radical Women threw their bras into trash cans outside the pageant hall and spokesman — oops, woman — Robin Morgan called the pageant "patently degrading to women (who are) enslaved by ludicrous beauty standards."

The pageant people must have agreed because bathing suits began to disappear (no, not that way) in favor of evening gowns and the girls themselves sang, danced, played to violin and explained to the judges that they wanted nothing more than to work for world peace.

The coup de gras was applied in 1984 when the winner, Vanessa Williams, was forced to resign when Penthouse magazine came up with a layout of pictures of Miss America wearing considerably less than even the skimpiest of bathing suits and with another woman to boot.

The loss of the ABC-TV contract doesn't mean that the Miss America pageant will go away immediately. In fact, the pageant's acting CEO Arthur McMaster sees it as an opportunity for "other parties who have expressed interest in our organization."

"We are excited at the limitless opportunities," he said.

But who wants to watch a girl in an evening gown play the fiddle and speak of her work with handicapped children and world peace for free when they can put down a few quid and see what they really want to see on Cinemax after midnight?

is the carbon factor in wastewater which has to be removed for it to be considered clean, and BOD has been a problem at the town plant off Elm Street.

"We are at a point where we feel we have chased down every loose end," said Dawley. If a wastewater solution is not found by Special Town Meeting, Cook Estate heirs have the right to back out of the deal.

The Council on Elder Affairs believes the town should back sewering the project because there could be many seniors who will be forced out of town.

"As a senior center director for the past 20 years, there have been two outstanding goals and they are transportation and housing," said CEA Director Kathy Bryanton..

Dawley said he is exploring either running pipes down to the pump by Deer Hill, which connects to the pipes on Pleasant Street, or sending pipes from the site down Evergreen Lane. He said the second approach will require running pipes through wetlands, which could be problematic.

Before the Cook Estate was on the table. The Avalon and Cedarmere projects were wending their way through the permitting process. Both sought sewer capacity.

Avalon, a 200-unit 40B project which was given Zoning Board approval for a comprehensive permit, was told from the beginning that capacity did not exist and a sewer connection would not be feasible. The development then went forward seeking alternate wastewater disposal options at considerable expense, but never filed a sewer application.

Cedarmere, the 105-unit senior housing project slated to be built off of Beechwood Street, was also told there is no capacity, but still filed a sewer application with the sewer commission and was denied. The project was the first to file under the town's Senior Multi-Family Residence Overlay District bylaw to encourage senior housing. The denial of a sewer connection is being appealed by developers, who say available capacity cannot be reserved.

Selectman Ronnie McMorris said from what she understands, the application filed by Northland to discharge treated effluent is different than Cedarmere's proposal. However, Sewer Commission Chairman Ray Kasperowicz said Cedarmere had in fact, "bounced the idea off of us, and we said we wouldn't accept it."

Planning Board member Bob Sturdy said in the efforts to settle litigation with the town, Cedarmere not only proposed sending highly treated effluent to the Central wastewater plant, just as the Cook Estate suggests, but also proposed to eliminate at least as much infiltration and inflow, or I&I as they were sending. I&I is water which seeps into leaky pipes from the outside and affects capacity. In addition, Sturdy said Cedarmere also offered to upgrade the plant, "But their offer wasn't even responded to."

Little Harbor-area residents worry they could be affected if the Cook project ties into the municipal sewer. Selectman Ralph Dormitzer said the many homes in Little Harbor which have been told a sewer connection will be granted one day have no guarantee until the money is voted for the project.

Dormitzer said if capacity is given to other projects, "You can't assume you haven't pushed Little Harbor out." He also questioned if Cook, Cedarmere and Avalon were given capacity that money from those connections would pay for sewering Little Harbor.

He explained the impact of the new development, while it will increase tax revenues, will also potentially become a financial burden to the town. He said, for example, if the 200 units at Avalon all bring in just one student per household, 200 children could suddenly be introduced into the school system. At roughly $8,000 per student, he said the burden to educate those children may preclude the town's ability to use the money gained to pay for the Little Harbor sewer project.

McMorris noted the board has made a commitment to Little Harbor and has historically supported funding for the project. She added in talking about a financial commitment, Dormitzer is assuming the town will pay for 50 percent of the hook-up for the Little Harbor area of town. "If residents pay 100 percent, how will the project be impacted by the Cook Estate?"

Dormitzer also said the plan to send wastewater from the Cook Estate down the Pleasant Street pipes might not be feasible because that area of town is already experiencing major problems as sewer gases have been coming up through vents in homes. It is suspected the problems are a result of too much flow coming through the pipes, he said. To add to that flow could increase the problems residents are already experiencing.

Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan said there has been talk about including two-day holding tanks for the Cook wastewater, which would allow the flow to be released during the night when resident's flows are down.

.Dormitzer asked whether there is anywhere else the project could discharge its wastewater, such as nearby water or wetlands, because it will be so highly treated. However, John Chessia of Coler and Colantonio said that would require a surface water discharge permit from the Department of Environmental Protection, which is "very difficult to get."

Instead of connecting to the sewer, Health Board Chairman Steve Bobo asked Dawley if sending water to Wheelwright Park had ever been considered. "It would take a mile of pipe, but it could hold all the capacity you need," he said. In addition, he said the site had been looked at before as a possible leaching field for Little Harbor, and it looked favorable. Dawley said the park "Is not a site we've put a ton of energy into."

However, Dawley said he had looked at the on-site system the Cedarmere developers are working with DEP on to gain permits for their site, which relies on new technology including evaporation methods to treat wastewater, but he said he has determined that, "They do not have a permit that allows them to go forward and build," and waiting for approval is not something he can do with this parcel of land.

Allocated $4.5 million

One year ago, voters at Town Meeting approved allocating $4.5 million to purchase the Cook Estate and agreed to seek $5.2 million in a potential sale of the combined Cook and adjacent town properties. Preliminary soil tests on the Cook site had indicated there was good reason to continue with more sophisticated soil testing to make sure it would be an option, but in the interest of time, additional tests were not completed before the matter came before voters. It wasn't until April when hydrogeologic testing on the site, conducted by Coler and Colantonio, determined an on-site system would not be feasible.

Now, some residents feel the town was misled when it was asked to vote on a project which was "sold" to the public

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Hingham Journal. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week. This week, BHRC reports local representatives' roll call attendance records for the 2004 session through October 22.

The House has held 415 roll call votes. BHRC tabulates the number of roll calls on which each representative was present and voting and then calculates that number as a percentage of the total roll call votes held. That percentage is the number commonly referred to as the roll call attendance record.

Several quorum roll calls, used to gather a majority of members onto the House floor to conduct business, are also included in the 415 roll calls. On the quorum roll calls, members simply vote "present" in order to indicate their presence in the chamber. When a representative does not indicate his or her presence on a quorum roll call, we count that as a roll call absence just like any other roll call absence.

LOCAL REPRESENTATIVES' ATTENDANCE RECORDS

The percentage listed next to the representative's name is the percentage of roll call votes for which the representative was present and voting. The number in parentheses represents the number of roll calls the representative missed.

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

ABOLISH PREMARITAL BLOOD TEST (H 75)- The House and Senate gave final approval to and sent to Gov. Romney a bill repealing the current law requiring couples to have a premarital blood test to determine if either person has syphilis. Supporters said this antiquated requirement was established during a syphilis outbreak in the 1930s. They noted that thousands of tests annually only reveal three or four cases of syphilis and argued that the tests cost millions of dollars that could be better spent in other healthcare areas.

ELDERLY WATER CHARGE ABATEMENT (H 4001)- Legislation allowing cities and towns to abate the first $500 of water charges paid by low-income seniors over age 65 who meet certain requirements was returned to the Legislature with an amendment proposed by Lt. Gov. Kerry Healey. Under the bill, seniors would qualify for the exemption if their annual income equals less than $16,000 while married seniors would qualify with a joint income of less than $24,000. Another provision requires that these seniors have lived in Massachusetts for at least ten years and have owned property in the state for at least five years. Healey noted that the key local option provision "allowing" cities and towns to offer the exemption is vague. Her amendment proposes that the exemption be allowed only if voters agree to it at a regular municipal election.

VIDEOTAPING NUDITY AND BOOTLEGGING MOVIES (H 4863)- The Senate gave near final approval to a bill making it a crime to videotape, photograph or electronically surveil another person who is nude or partially nude, without the person's knowledge and consent. The proposal imposes up to a $5000 fine and/or 2.5-year prison sentence on violators. Supporters said camcorders and camera-phones have made it easier to photograph and tape people without their consent. They noted that no current law covers these acts and pointed to cases in which non-consensual videotaping of a nude victim occurred but charges could not be brought because of lack of a law covering this outrageous practice. Another section of the bill outlaws the videotaping of movies in movie theaters and imposes up to a two-year prison sentence and/or $100,000 fine on first-time offenders and up to a $250,000 fine and/or five-year prison sentence for subsequent offenses. Supporters said this growing crime of taping first-run movies and then bootlegging them on DVDs should be prohibited under state law. They noted that this practice is currently only prohibited under complicated federal copyright laws that do not involve the state. Opponents argued that this section of the bill goes too far and could lead to a person's arrest for simply carrying a harmless camera-phone or camcorder. The House has approved a different version of the bill and the Senate version now goes back to the House for consideration.

Cook sewer connection to go to Special Town Meeting

as one which would not need a sewer connection. Lisa LoJacono, 111 Nichols Road, said she believes she can speak for many homeowners, both seniors and non-seniors, who are very frustrated with the Cook project because it "was sold as a project that wasn't going to have an impact on capacity." However, she believes now, this project which could have been a great solution to the senior housing problem in town, "may be tied to a legal Pandora's box." She said she believes everyone supports the concept, but legally, it raises many questions. "I don't think anyone would have a problem with a senior development. We value the project, but you have to look at how the people voted yes," she said.

Richard Brooks, 68 Nichols Road, agreed. "A lot of people voted to go ahead with it because we'd been told on-site was available," he said. "Some of us voted to do the project on the basis that on-site treatment was going to happen."

Sullivan said he has been very disappointed with the underlying inference that somehow there was a plot from the beginning to ultimately have the project connected to sewer. "I get so frustrated. (The project) had a unanimous vote and the facts have changed since that vote," he said, adding the town has been working to remedy the situation and keep the project moving forward since then.

Sullivan said moving forward, Cedarmere has said it has approvals for on-site treatment, Avalon is working toward finding its own solution and the Cook Estate clearly doesn't have a solution. He said because the site abuts the Central District, and will only discharge roughly 10,000 to 12,000 gallons per day, although the DEP says it must be assumed the site could discharge 15,000 per day, "It is insignificant in the long run. The senior overlay bylaw was put in for a purpose and as a community, we need to decide whether we want to let this opportunity pass."

Sullivan said the bottom line is, "It's a community decision that will be brought forth at Town Meeting. It is important we don't pit people against each other because this project would not have an impact on any other proposals."

Dawley added the Cook Estate site soil conditions could handle about eight to 10 single-family homes with standard Title 5 systems.

Lady booters need win over Holbrook today to clinch tourney berth

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

It comes down to this: the Cohasset High girls soccer team needs to do no worse than a tie with Holbrook today at home (3:30 p.m. start) to make it three years in a row in the postseason.

And that seems only appropriate to Lady Skippers veteran coach Deb Beal, as she notes: "If we can't do that we probably don't belong (in the state tourney) anyway."

The Lady Skippers began this past week of action well, handling South Shore League cellar dwellers Hull and Harwich easily enough. On Thursday, they topped the Pirates at home, 4-0. Then, a week ago today, the Cohasset girls made the long bus ride back from the Cape with a 6-1 win that moved them to 7-5-3 overall, one point away from sewing up a winning record and the postseason qualification that goes along with that achievement.

In the win over Hull, Lindsay Durkin netted a pair of goals to pace an impressive attack, and Nicole Whitney and Christina Pinkus punched in solo tallies to account for the 4-0 score.

Senior Casey Anderson had the hat trick the next day down in Harwich. Junior Charlotte Sida, Laura Novak and Whitney completed the scoring in the 6-1 victory.

"We needed to go out and get those wins because we knew we'd really be hard pressed to get a win in the next two," noted Beal. "We went out and did what we needed to, and that was pretty encouraging."

Beal's call on the next two games was right on.

She was actually encouraged by her team's 7-1 loss to unbeaten SSL rival Norwell on Monday night, saying her charges played the serious state champion contender "a lot tougher than we did the first time around"—an 8-0 loss three weeks ago.

Beal had little good to say, however, following Wednesday night's 4-0 loss to neighboring town rival Scituate (6-9-1), a team that lost its postseason shot earlier in the week.

"I guess uninspiring is the best

Three shots against: three unanswered goals against.

This is not an easy thing for a soccer team to bounce back from, especially when it comes out of a stretch of three halves it pretty much dominated.

This is precisely the challenge the Cohasset High boys faced after allowing the first two goals to arch-rival Norwell on their home field Monday night, a game coming on the heels of a 1-0 loss to Harwich in which the Rough Riders' only shot also turned into the game's only goal.

"All's I'm thinking after that second Norwell goal is this has been pretty much the story of our season," said second year Skippers coach Rob Leary. "There have been so many games where we've pretty much dominated play, and done everything but score, and then a quick break the other way winds up with a goal against."

On Monday, however, the Skippers (7-5-3) did not go quietly into that night, as they had a few times earlier this season. Faced with the knowledge they needed to end their season with no worse than a win and a tie in their last three games, the Lack of course familiarity and wet, windy conditions were the enemies of the Cohasset golf team at last Thursday's Div. 3 South Sectional championships.

"That was not the type of course you want to play under rough conditions," said Skippers coach Torin Sweeney after his team placed ninth in the 11 team field at Wentworth Golf and Country Club in Plainville. "Those were some of the narrowest fairways my guys have ever seen, and we had some trouble adjusting, especially with the way the wind was whipping around."

Sophomore Kevin Barber was Cohasset's medallist with a score of 86. The next three low Skipper scorers were juniors Dan Sullivan and Mark Bouchard, both with 88s, and senior Chris Simms (94)

Seniors Tim Pilczak (95), the team's captain, and Colin Magruder (98) rounded out the Norwell card.

Medfield was tops in the 11-team field with a score of 320, followed by Westwood (324) and Hanover (329), who edged Scituate by one stroke in dramatic fashion for the third and final spot for this past Monday's Div. 3 state championships at Pleasant Valley Country Club in Sutton. Cohasset finished with a score of 354, three strokes off the pace of arch-rival Norwell.

Each team sent six golfers to play 18 holes, with the low four scores accounting for the team scores. In addition to the top three teams qualifying for State's, the top 10 percent of individual scorers also qualified. Unfortunately, Barber's 86 was

Weston proves no match for repeat-minded Skippers, 32-0

Pardon the cliché, but Cohasset is in control of its playoff destiny.

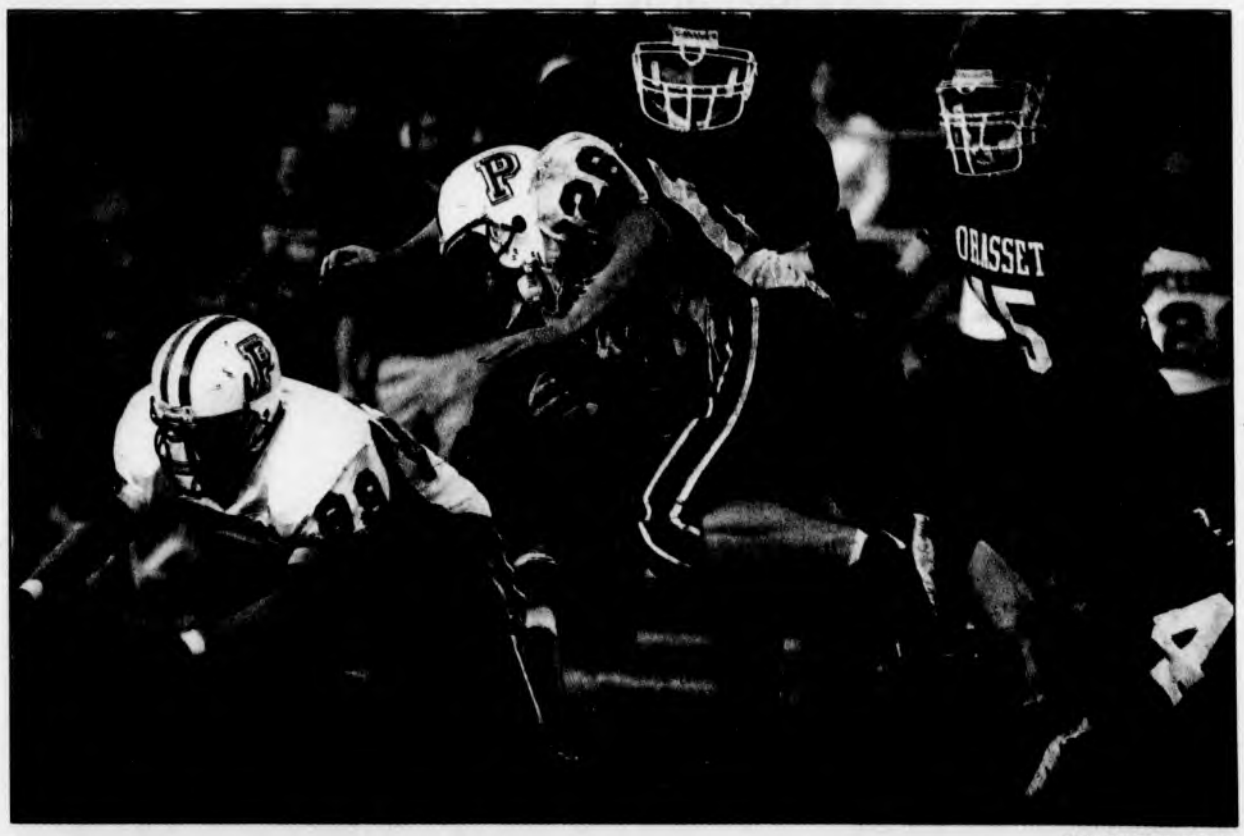
The teams that can still prevent the Skippers from successfully defending their South Shore League championship are Norwell, Abington and Hull.

The teams that remain on Cohasset's schedule? You guessed it: Norwell, Abington and Hull.

The blue and white are off this week, but they tuned up for their last three games with a 32-0 rout over the visiting Weston Wildcats last Friday night.

Head coach Tony Rolfe said after the Weston win that the week off will serve the team well despite the fact they're on a roll, since it will give everyone a chance to get full healthy for the challenges ahead. He also said the team will be ready and with the proper mindset heading into next Friday's game at Abington.

"We're at the point where confidence is not an issue with us," Rolfe said. Behind a strong effort from his offensive line, senior tailback Joe Durkin led the offensive effort with 129 yards on 19 carries, scoring two touchdowns.



Senior fullback Teddie Straughn kicked off the scoring festival with a six-yard scoring up the middle on fourth and goal with 4:28 remaining in the first quarter. A toss to the left side to Durkin gave Cohasset the two-point conversion and an early 8-(

This was the first drive, a drive in which Cohasset had touch downs called back due to penalties three times, mistakes they can ill afford during the remainder of the schedule.

Senior quarterback Crandor Leahy, in one of the few times he was asked to do something other than hand the ball off, scored on a five-yard keeper to bump his team's lead to 14-0.

Aside from the early penalties

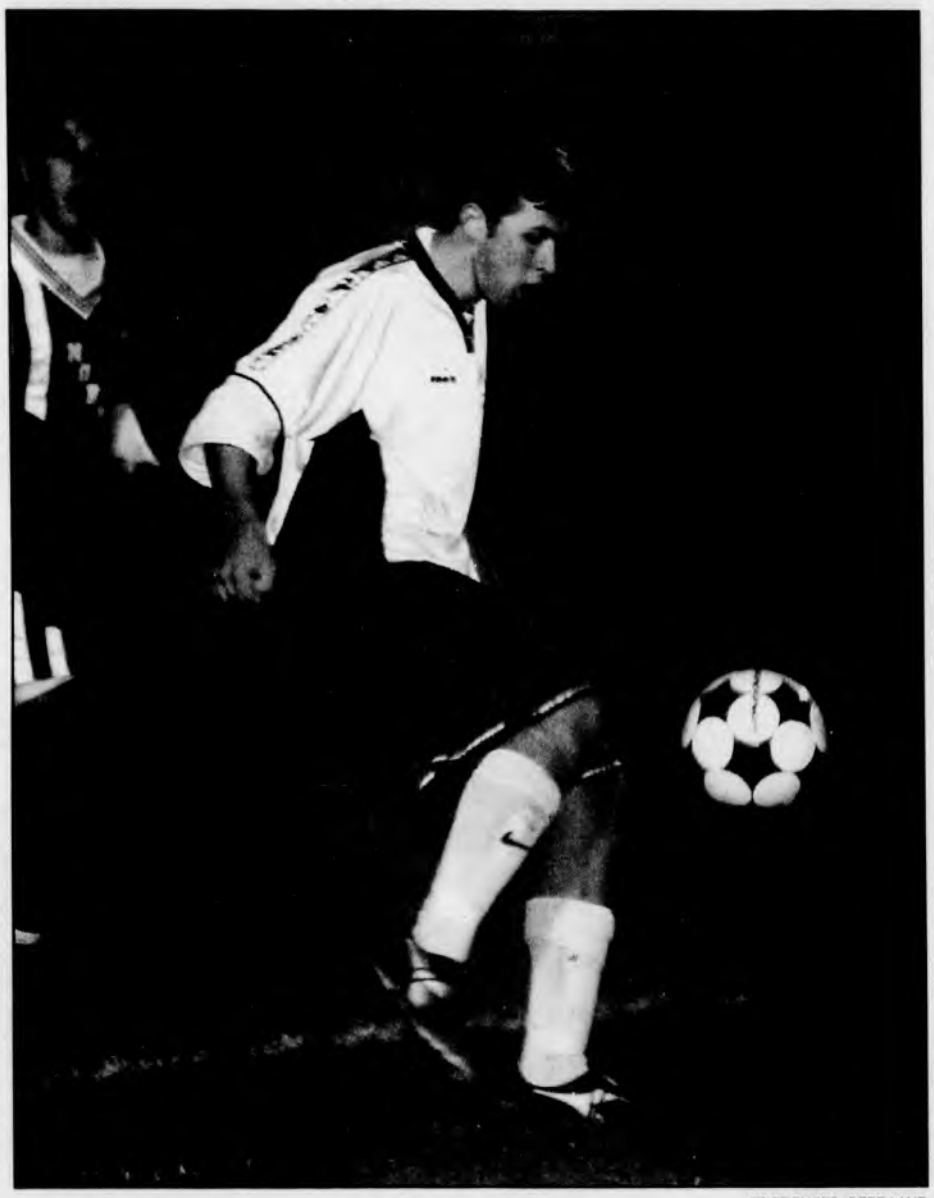
Cohasset boys forced that switch to flip. And what went on was their offense The end result: Skippers 5, Norwell 2.

"This was absolutely huge for us," said Leary, enjoying his first ever win over the Clippers in 10 attempts, half of which came when he was head coach at Rockland High. "It wasn't quite a must win yet, but it was pretty close, and the kids really came through, especially in the second half."

With the Cohasset win, the Skippers and Clippers (8-8-1) found themselves in precisely the same boat. They each had two games left and needed at least one tie point in order to qualify for postseason play. The Skippers picked up that point plus another, on Wednesday, as a second half Ben Libby to Aidan Buick goal lifted them to a 1-0 win at Scituate. The Skippers can now use today's regular season finale at Hanover High (3:30 p.m. start) to fine tune for the postseason.

The Clippers, however, did not fare so well, as they fell on Wednesday to Hanover by a 4-0 score, and are now faced with the daunting reality they must earn at least a tie with unbeaten Hingham (16-0-2) in today's finale if they're to keep alive a very long streak of postseason qualification.



With Norwell missing three key players for a variety of reasons, Monday night, Cohasset dominated right from the opening gun, both territorially and in terms of possession. However, Norwell scored the games first two goals, both on quick strikes after defensive breakdowns by their hosts.

It took the visiting Clippers just 47 seconds to get on the board. Clippers junior star Ben Healey stripped a Cohasset defender near midfield and quickly slipped a pretty through pass to Brian Almeida. Almeida maintained a step on his mark on the dribble and walked in on Cohasset keeper Prescott Busk, calmly waiting for him to charge out before chipping it over him for the goal Cohasset continued to buzz around the net, but Norwell again countered quickly, with Healey again setting the play. Taking a re-start 50 yards out along the right sideline, the talented junior lofted the ball into the box where it bounced off a few bodies before finally kicking out 15 yards from the right post, where sophomore Mike Kramer won the race to it and drilled it short side for the goal.

The rest of the half featured more of the same, with the vast majority of the action taking place within 40 yards of Norwell's goal. However, it appeared the game would go into break a 2-0 game as the game clock ticked under two minutes.

That is until Ben Libby beat his mark after taking a feed fellow junior Aidan Buick and was tripped from the rear as he split a pair of defenders inside the penalty area. This drew a whistle, and Buick drilled the awarded penalty kick low inside the right post past helpless Norwell keeper Jeff Capella to make it a 2-1 game with just 1:40 to go in the half.

Cohasset senior Sam Steele moves the ball forward during Monday's night's huge Skippers win over Norwell, 5-2.

"That was a huge momentum lift for us," said Leary. "We'd played well up to that point, but having something to show for it going into half definitely gave us a lift."

Norwell actually had a good shot at getting that two goal lead back less than a minute into the second half, as freshman Colin Henry sent Almeida through into the top left corner of the penalty area, but the senior's blast was smothered by a diving Busk. As it turned out, this was Norwell's only quality shot of the second half, as Cohasset's three man defensive unit of Jonathan Littauer, Sam MacDonald and Trevor Brady tightened the screws from there.

Cohasset would strike with the equalizer a few minutes after that, with 3:45 gone, and then with what turned out to be the winning goal just 80 seconds after that.

The game tying score came after Buick (clearly the best player on the field in this game) eluded a pair of defenders near the left corner to serve a cross that skidded through to Kevin Dinsmore, who chipped it in far side.

Buick set up the go ahead goal just a few yards away from where he did the equalizer, this time on a throw-in that hit down in the middle of the goal area and then somehow squirted through to senior Jake Kovach on a run toward the right post 15-yards out for the quick re-direct home 5:05 into the second half.

The lead was doubled at 48:20 of the match when junior Brandon Smith ran on to a weak clearing attempt just outside the top left corner of the penalty area and blasted a shot nearside past an apparently screened Capella.

The final stake in Norwell's heart was delivered in the 58th minute, and it was almost a carbon copy of the third goal. A Buick throw-in somehow popped though the box and through to Dinsmore on a run toward the right post for the quick one-timer into the twine.

"They were really all over us all night," said Browne,. "I thought after we scored those two quick ones we might settle down and play our game, but that never happened. We just had way too many defensive breakdowns, and Cohasset took advantage of them—just like a good team is supposed to."

On Norwell's side, Healey, senior captains Almeida and Cliff Hanson and sophomore sweeper Jim Barrett had strong games.

The problem for the Clippers, though, is everyone in the home white seemed to have a strong game. Playing particularly well for the Skippers, though, were Brady, MacDonald, Libby, Sam Steele, Dinsmore and Buick.

"Really, I think Kevin Dinsmore's toughness in the middle of the field was the big difference in this one," said Leary. "But it really was a pretty good team game."

Coastal Stars report

U12 girls

The inaugural season of the Coastal Stars Girls U12 team is of to an impressive start! Through hard work, and dedicated enthusiasm this team of several first year players have started the season with a perfect 4 and 0 record and a most impressive 33 goals for and 2 goals against. The girls and their families would like to thank the Coastal Stars and its Board of Directors for establishing the team. With girls hockey destined to be a varsity sport at Marshfield high school very soon this program will benefit many Marshfield and Cohasset girls and lay the foundation for many successful Marshfield high school teams.

Thus far Katie Conlon and Ally Ryan have demonstrated a natural scorers touch with multiple game hat tricks. The goaltending has been stellar with Sarah Coppenrath blanking out a tough South Boston squad. Other girls turning in equally stellar performances between the pipes include Elly Leong, Ally Ryan and Courtney Cullen. Additional scoring on the team has been provided by Emily Matthews, Briana Fountain, Victoria Langrill, Rachel Desrochers, Aria Parker and the tag team sister combinations of Amanda and Nicole Farren and Elizabeth and Christine Graham. Making the commitment to a sure and steady defense include Claire Pozniak, Sarah Denton, Erin Shea, Colleen Sweeney and Melissa Sheridan. Each and every girl is clearly developing more confidence with every game. That will come in handy with upcoming games against Milton, Hingham, and last years conference champ the Mohawks.

Squirt A

Neil Conway led the scoring with a hat trick, and goalie Connor Maher anchored the defense in the Squirt A Coastal Stars' 4-2 win over Canton. Maher, EJ Culhane, Dan LeBlanc, DJ Evans, and Kevin McDougall kept the Stars in the game early with their stellar defensive play. Jake Durkin and the Stars' forwards helped to stifle the Canton attack with dogged backchecking. The Stars' offense, particularly the line of John Ryan, Trevor Salmon, and Chris Carpenter, had early chances, but the Canton goaltender proved to be a tough riddle, and the first period ended scoreless.

Canton got on the board first at 1:30 of the second period. The Stars knotted the score a few minutes later when Chris Carpenter passed to Jonathan Spitz, who fed Conway in the right circle. Conway moved in and fired to the top right corner. A minute later, the Stars took advantage of a power play opportunity. DJ Evans passed out to John Ryan on the right side. Ryan skated down the boards and fed Trevor Salmon in front for a shot to the top left corner. At 7:43, Dan Leblanc kept the puck in the zone to Mike Carbone. Carbone threaded a pass to Neil Conway in front. Conway's shot was saved, but he banged home the rebound for the 3-1 lead after two.

The Stars had near misses into the third period. Patrick Burchill's shot from the right circle glanced off the glove and hit the post. Jonathan Spitz' rebound goal was waved off on a crease violation. Meanwhile, Maher was awesome in net, stopping a flurry of shots from in front and denying a 3-on-0 break. Canton came within one at 7:37. But Neil Conway stole the puck in the slot a minute later and rifled his third goal over the goaltender's left shoulder. Canton pulled their goalie for the last two minutes. Maher made another brilliant stop on a wraparound attempt. Patrick Burchill remained snakebitten, as his shot at the open net was called back for another crease violation. Maher made a final save at the buzzer, and the Stars skated off with the win.

Seventh grade boys soccer team takes their first loss

Facing a team composed primarily of 8th graders and a brisk October wind, the Cohasset boys played valiantly in a 12-2 mismatch loss in Fairhaven on Saturday.

Down 3-0 in the first five minutes, the boys battled back to make it 3-2 on goals by Andrew Littauer and JoDi Rosano. From there it was a test of courage and endurance as the shorthanded Cohasset team faced a much bigger and older squad from the Fairhaven area.

"The other coach explained to me that they had been incorrectly tagged as the Mariner 4 group when they actually should have been Mariner Team 1 or 2," said Coach Jack Dean, "With all of the forces working against us and no subs on the bench, it would have been easy for the boys to pack it in early, but they worked hard right to the end. I'm very proud of the way they handled themselves in a tough situation."

There were a number of bright spots along the way including Nick Cannon's brilliant play on defense, Will Evan's work in goal in the first half and Andrew Graham's big stop in goal on a penalty kick in the second half. Excellent work up the middle from Ollie Forrer, Andrew Littauer, JoDi Rosano and Brendan Doonan kept the game close through the first half. Sam Game and Joe Leighton worked the midfield sidelines well, while Justin Yeager and Jackson Dean worked hard to compete for the ball all afternoon.

"It's no fun to lose, but our boys should be very proud of the way they played today," said Coach Doug Yeager, "They showed a lot of heart and character by running hard and passing well, continuing to work together as a team and do their best, even when the possibility of a win was well out of reach."

The team's next game is at home at 3:00 PM against Scituate this Saturday at Milliken Field.

The Skippers qualified for sectionals for the first time since 2001 by finishing with a record of 7-2-1 in league play (8-5-1 overall), good for second place in the South Shore League. After not making the postseason cut the previous two years, Sweeney considered this season an unqualified success.

"I was pleased with the way we played on the whole," said Sweeney. "Other than that one stretch we had a few weeks ago where we lost three straight matches, and., of course, those two losses to Norwell, I thought this was a great year.

"I was happy with the way we had guys stepping it up at different times when we needed it. Our seniors were steady and did what they needed to. I'm getting back one of the best golfers around in Barber, and the way Sullivan and Bouchard played down the stretch I feel pretty good about the top of my order next year."

The team will actually be losing nine seniors in all, including regulars in the rotation Magruder, Pilczak, Simms and Ricky Lordan.

Two other seniors who made their presence felt were Brian Bolger and Dan Allen. Both played big hands in the team's regular season ending 30.5-23.5 win over Quincy last Monday, Bolger winning his match, 6-3, and Allen his, 7-2.

The other three going the way of the caps and gowns are Brendan Ford, Andrew Lovallo and John DeWaal,

Potential returnees Sweeney will be looking toward to step into starting roles include junior Mike Devlin and sophomores Steven Simmons, Zach Murray and Owen Stevenson.

Technically, the season was not over at the time of this writing, at least for four Skippers golfers. Barber, Pilczak, Magruder and Simms were slated to play in the South Shore League all-star match at Souther's Marsh in Plymouth yesterday.

Lady booters need win over Holbrook today to clinch tourney berth

word to describe that effort," said Beal. "Our heart just didn't seem to be I nthat one, and I really can't figure out why. We have a playoff spot hanging out there right now."

Scituate senior star Casey Weafer scored the game's first goal 4:30 in, which Beal felt had a quick "deflating effect" on her team.

"I always preach starting strong and ending strong each half; first five and last five are big," said Beal. "So for Weafer to punch that one in 4:30 in was, I think, a little deflating for all of us."

Weafer, one of the top scorers in the Patriot League, would add another goal, her 12th of the season, not long thereafter, and Sailors senior captain Michelle Littke would also net a pair to complete the rout.

"If we get to the tourney, and that's still a big 'if,' and we don't play a lot better than we played today, we're going to be done pretty quick," said Beal, "and it's not going to be pretty."

If the Lady Skippers play to their potential, they should be able to handle the Holbrook girls, who wrapped up their Div. 3 state tourney berth earlier this week, having completed beating up on some fairly weak Mayflower League competition. The Skippers bested the Bulldogs two weeks ago, 3-1, playing on a Holbrook field that is much smaller than their own. Beal sees the bigger field as a considerable advantage for the Skippers.

Still, if she doesn't see a lot better play today from her girls than she did on Wednesday, Beal sounds almost as if she'd prefer a loss.

"I'm asking these girls (before today's game) if they think it's worth it to get to tourney and set themselves up for another week of practice before it starts," said Beal. "I want to see that they want it."

The MIAA will release seedings and brackets for the state tourney this coming Wednesday, with games slated to get underway a week from today.

All-Star game

Regardless of what happens today, three members of the CHS team will be playing at least one more game: seniors Christine Lovallo, Nicole Whitney and Danielle Hajjar.

These three girls will be playing in the annual South Shore League vs. Patriot League All-Star game this Wednesday at Duxbury High School. The boys game starts at 4 p.m., with the girls slated to go on at 6.

about the only thing Cohasset didn't do right was executing their two-point conversions. After Durkin's run following the initial touchdown, the Skippers went 0-for-3 in that area.

Following Leahy's run, the wind played tricks with the kickoff and Weston was unable to field it in the air. Cohasset took advantage of the mistake, as sophomore Jeff Brown recovered what essentially turned out to be a long onside kick.

Despite what appeared to be a few bad kickoffs and punts from both teams, Rolfe rather candidly played down the effect of the wind and the cold.

"I'm a wimp, and I didn't get terribly cold," he said.

Durkin made the Wildcats pay for their miscue with an 8-yard touchdown run on a counter play to the right, capping a five-play, 31-yard drive entirely composed of Durkin runs.

They don't keep track of quarterback rating in high school, but if they did, Leahy's would have been close to perfect, as his one pass attempt for the night was a 41-yard touchdown toss to classmate D.J. Silvia.

Silvia went deep and got behind the Weston defense, as he had no one within 10 yards of him when the pass was thrown. He had to wait a bit for the pass to get to him, but Silvia had plenty of speed to outrun the Weston defenders trying to catch up to him.

The play made it 26-0, effectively putting the game out of reach for the visitors with 2:39 left in the first half.

"That was the one time this game to throw the ball," Rolfe said of the play, which came on third-and-11. "The circumstances dictated it; all we wanted was to get a first down."

A four-yard run by Durkin on the opening drive of the second half closed the scoring.

Rolfe says the strongest parts of his team are the offensive and defensive lines. Last Friday was a good example of that, as both played very capable games.

The O-line is led by senior co-captain Matt Casey, who plays the center position and is responsible for directing his fellow linemen at the line of scrimmage. His calls were near perfect against Weston, as the line often trapped and pulled to create opportunities for Durkin to get his yards.

Aside from Casey and junior right guard Nick Arment, who have been playing together for the last couple years, the line is young. The left side consists of two sophomores in tackle Justin Alexander and guard Nick Cambi. Starting right tackle Jake Cuneo is a freshman.

"You'd never know watching them that they are so young," Rolfe said. "They've improved a lot since the beginning of the year."

The defensive line played equally well against Weston, with the likes of seniors Kelvin Ferriera and Leo Clougherty eating up blocks to allow linebackers Casey and Matt Baroudi make big plays. Baroudi spent a good amount of time in the Weston backfield, disrupting their running attack.

All told, Cohasset (now 7-0) heads into the homestretch in good position, but still with a lot of work left to be done.

"We have to clean up some of our mistakes against Norwell and Abington," Rolfe said. "But this break gives us a chance to get back to basics and get some kids healthy."

As for the matter of confidence, Casey says it is right where it should be for the team.

"We know they're good teams, so we can't be overly confident," he said of the rest of Cohasset's schedule. "We are just going to go in with a good mindset, thinking we are going to win."

Social Service League hosts fashion night

Some of those who will be participating in the Cohasset Social Service League's Holiday Fashion Night include: Vinny Hart, director of Wellspring; Cliff Cutler, pastor of St. Stephen's Church; Jane Reardon, president of the Social Service League; and Anthony Everett, anchor for Channel 5 News.

Nov. 5, Cohasset's own clergy, police, elected officials and students will take to the runway to support the Social Service League's programs in Cohasset and surrounding communities. The Holiday Fashion Show for men, women and children is from 6-10 p.m., at historic Bancroft Hall and will feature some of the top designer labels and furs. Channel 5 news anchor Anthony Everett will emcee the event.

Since its inception in 1912, the League has helped people of all ages. From Meals on Wheels and Thanksgiving dinners to the recent character education program at Osgood School, "Peaceable Kingdom," the League has tried to identify the most important social problems and create, develop and support ongoing programs which can have a positive impact.

This September, the League approved a $10,000 donation to Wellspring in Hull, a non-profit organization that provides domestic violence intervention programs, crisis counseling and adult learning programs. The donation continues a long tradition of League support for the least served members of area communities. Wellspring director Vinny Hart is one of the runway models.

As well as offering the latest fashions, the evening will also highlight collectibles and other items available at the League's Cohasset Consignment Shop. Wine and hors d'oeuvres from area restaurants will be served. After the fashion show, there will be an auction of two items: a fur and a week-long stay at Four Seasons Resort at Troon North in Scottsdale, Ariz. Proceeds from the evening will support counseling programs offered at Wellspring. Tickets are $45 and can be purchased at the Consignment Shop or by calling the League Office, 781-383-0771.

Big Band sound is coming Nov. 6

Ed Sorrentino of the South Shore Conservatory, and his band will entertain all with the music sound of such greats as Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, Count Bassie and more. From the 30's and 40's. Sorrentino can often be seen and heard at the Radio City Hall in New York City.

On Saturday, Nov. 6, at 6:15 p.m. at Saint Anthony's Center at South Main and Spring Streets.

Come and join the fun, a dinner reminiscent of that era, prepared by Arthur Roebuck.

Sponsored by the Cohasset Elder Affairs. Tickets are $20, they will be available at 3 North Main St., or call for reservations at 781-383-9112. All are welcome.

Additional information: The Ed Sorrentino Band features the very lyrical trumpeter Jack Martin from the Harry James swing Orchestra and Tito Puente Latin Band. He has performed extensively throughout the entire United States and now resides in Massachusetts. He often can be heard and seen at Radio City Music Hall in NYC. In addition the Band also spotlights the very talented jazz vocalist Judy DeRossi who sings regularly with New England's own jazz stars, Dick Johnson and Lou Columbo. Her husband, Barry Rossi, is a gifted pianist, also appears with Johnson and Columbo as well as numerous recording projects of his own.

Social Service League hosts fashion night

Nov. 5, Cohasset's own clergy, police, elected officials and students will take to the runway to support the Social Service League's programs in Cohasset and surrounding communities. The Holiday Fashion Show for men, women and children is from 6-10 p.m., at historic Bancroft Hall and will feature some of the top designer labels and furs. Channel 5 news anchor Anthony Everett will emcee the event.

Since its inception in 1912, the League has helped people of all ages. From Meals on Wheels and Thanksgiving dinners to the recent character education program at Osgood School, "Peaceable Kingdom," the League has tried to identify the most important social problems and create, develop and support ongoing programs which can have a positive impact.

This September, the League approved a $10,000 donation to Wellspring in Hull, a non-profit organization that provides domestic violence intervention programs, crisis counseling and adult learning programs. The donation continues a long tradition of League support for the least served members of area communities. Wellspring director Vinny Hart is one of the runway models.

Some of those who will be participating in the Cohasset Social Service League's Holiday Fashion Night include: Vinny Hart, director of Wellspring; Cliff Cutler, pastor of St. Stephen's Church; Jane Reardon, president of the Social Service League; and Anthony Everett, anchor for Channel 5 News.

As well as offering the latest fashions, the evening will also highlight collectibles and other items available at the League's Cohasset Consignment Shop. Wine and hors d'oeuvres from area restaurants will be served. After the fashion show, there will be an auction of two items: a fur and a week-long stay at Four Seasons Resort at Troon North in Scottsdale, Ariz. Proceeds from the evening will support counseling programs offered at Wellspring. Tickets are $45 and can be purchased at the Consignment Shop or by calling the League Office, 781-383-0771.

Ed Sorrentino of the South Shore Conservatory, and his band will entertain all with the music sound of such greats as Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, Count Bassie and more. From the 30's and 40's. Sorrentino can often be seen and heard at the Radio City Hall in New York City.

On Saturday, Nov. 6, at 6:15 p.m. at Saint Anthony's Center at South Main and Spring Streets.

Come and join the fun, a dinner reminiscent of that era, prepared by Arthur Roebuck.

Sponsored by the Cohasset Elder Affairs. Tickets are $20, they will be available at 3 North Main St., or call for reservations at 781-383-9112. All are welcome.

Additional information: The Ed Sorrentino Band features the very lyrical trumpeter Jack Martin from the Harry James swing Orchestra and Tito Puente Latin Band. He has performed extensively throughout the entire United States and now resides in Massachusetts. He often can be heard and seen at Radio City Music Hall in NYC. In addition the Band also spotlights the very talented jazz vocalist Judy DeRossi who sings regularly with New England's own jazz stars, Dick Johnson and Lou Columbo. Her husband, Barry Rossi, is a gifted pianist, also appears with Johnson and Columbo as well as numerous recording projects of his own.

Cohasset native in Conservatory opera

When South Shore Conservatory's Opera by the Bay presents a very special production of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," Cohasset native Meredith Hansen Skinner will be among the cast.

Directed by Artistic Director Beth MacLeod and Associate Director Beth Canterbury, this "reduced" version of "The Marriage of Figaro" (cut from four to two hours) is the company's first foray into a major mainstream opera, and provides an opportunity for the four-year-old adult opera troupe to spread its wings and grow as an opera company. The production runs Saturday, Nov. 6 in Hingham and on Sunday, Nov. 7 in Duxbury.

South Shore audiences will delight as they experience Mozart's popular opera, a light and humorous tale of courtly antics in 18th century Spain. With lavish period costumes and four different settings, "The Marriage of Figaro" is an ambitious production, but one that the singers of Opera by the Bay are eager to undertake, and that audiences will surely enjoy.

The cast features singers from Cambridge to the South Shore, including many who have become familiar to Opera by the Bay audiences. Pianist Vincent Planès accompanies the singers.

"The Marriage of Figar" will be presented at the Conservatory, on Saturday, Nov. 6, 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., at One Conservatory Drive in Hingham, and on Sunday, Nov. 7, 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., at the Ellison Center for the Arts, 64 St. George St. in Duxbury. Thirty minutes prior to each performance, Artistic Director Beth MacLeod will present a lively talk about the production. Tickets, at $20 for adults and $15 for students and seniors, may be purchased through the Conservatory offices, 781-749-7565, ext. 10 in Hingham, and 781-934-2731, ext. 10 in Duxbury. Mastercard and Visa are accepted. For more information, please call Beth MacLeod 781-934-2731, ext. 20.

Diversity Committee sponsors free speaker series

The Cohasset Diversity Committee, a part of the Cohasset Parent School Organization, announces a number of events planned for the next five months. In response to the request to expand its programming and outreach to members of the adult Cohasset community, the Diversity Committee will sponsor a fall and early winter speaker series as well as a second International Day Party.

Local residents will serve as panelists and discussion leaders.

During its first 10 years, the Diversity Committee focused on being a resource for the public schools — students, parents, and staff. Existing and new programs that facilitate the understanding of diverse needs and respect for differences have been its principal focus.

International tensions and specific recent events have convinced the Committee to provide forums to engage the entire Cohasset community around issues and opportunities of diversity. The programs have all been suggested by local residents in response to questionnaires and conversations about what would interest them. Local residents will serve as panelists and discussion leaders.

The programs will take place on the second Wednesday evening of the month, from 7:30 – 9 p.m.

• On Nov. 10, several speakers will discuss how the United States and other countries are dealing with a common domestic and global policy problem: the control, treatment, prevention, and consequences of the AIDS pandemic. Health care, social, financial, governmental, and cultural issues may be addressed.

• On Wednesday, Dec. 8, the Diversity Committee will present a program about international arts and culture. The speaker will present some ideas about common and diverse trends. The evening will feature a presentation, background music, and extra festivity in keeping with the holidays.

• The subject for Wednesday, Jan. 12 is a discussion about how different customs affect the way people relate to one another. How easy is it to fit in to Cohasset, when you are from another country, or another culture, if you sound or look different from the majority? How can a welcoming environment be created, so that everyone feels valued for his or her differences?

• On March 9, facilitators from the Diversity Committee will join with a group of local residents to explore, in a group discussion with the attendees, the subject: How is the United States perceived in the world today? How can the United Nations and similar organizations provide opportunities for all nations to come to the table as equals? How much can or should individuals do to foster respect for a diversity of cultures, traditions, and priorities?

At each event, the audience will be asked to be part of the program. The speakers and presenters will serve to get the discussion started. These are not lectures.

Venues and specific speakers and panelists will be announced. There will be no charge for participation. Light refreshments will be served.

For further information, contact a member of the Diversity Committee subcommittee on the Speakers Series: Kathryn Earle, (781) 383-0061 or kbearle@aol.com; or Chartis Tebbetts, (781) 383-1662 or c-etebbetts@comcast.net.

Annual book sale donations sought

Saint Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave., is currently accepting donations of slightly worn hardcover and paperback books, DVD's, CD's and videos for it's annual book sale, part of the ecumenical Village Fair that will be held on Saturday, Dec. 4. If your book shelves are spilling onto the floor, and DVD's, CD's and videos are busting out of the entertainment center, the church has got the solution for you. Donations can be brought to the church in bags or boxes and placed inside the parish hall door marked "church offices." Alternatively, St. Stephen's would be happy to arrange pick up of your donations. For donation pick-up or more information, call Alix White at 781-383-1829. Books are sorted at St. Stephen's Church in Walton Rodgers Hall every Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to noon. Monday, Nov. 22, is the last day book donations will be accepted. Old textbooks, romance novels, water damaged or moldy books, books with note or highlighting cannot be accepted.

The book sale is a mission program of St. Stephen's Church to more strongly establish a church presence in a needy area. "It is exciting to be part of the beginning of a new church," comments the Rev. Cliff Cutler, "establishing a strong ministry for the future. God is doing a great thing in people's lives. It is such a joy to be part of that good news." Through your donation of books, DVD's, CD's and videos that are being accepted now, you will help change lives and strengthen community.

Sgt. John Conte congratulates Sgt. Shellee Peters following Peters' promotion during the Selectmen's meeting Tuesday.

Officer Shellee Peters promoted to sergeant

Officer Shellee Peters is now Sergeant Peters.

Peters was promoted during Tuesday's Selectmen's meeting; she fills the sergeant's position that was vacated when Sgt. David Pomerico retired last spring.

Chief James Hussey gave Peters, a long-time veteran of the department, high marks.

"She is someone who will perform her duties with effort and with passion, but at the same time be strong when she needs to be strong," Hussey said adding she's a good fit for the philosophy he envisions for the department. "The town should be very happy with the appointment."

Peters also scored high marks on both the sergeant's exam offered by Civil Service and a practical exam Hussey conducted at the Cohasset Police Department that involves utilizing knowledge of law and police procedures and applying that knowledge to specific situations. "She did outstanding," he said in a telephone interview.

There were two other candidates for the sergeant's position, Hussey said.

Peters has been a police officer for roughly 15 years – 13 of those in Cohasset. She will fill the swing shift, covering the days off of the sergeants who work the 4-12 and 12-8 shifts, Hussey said. There are now a total of five sergeants, including Peters, they are: Sgt. William Quigley, Sgt. John Conte, Sgt. David Cogill and Det. Sgt. Gregory Lennon.

There are two vacancies for patrol officers. Peters created one and there was a prior vacancy, Hussey said. A third officer is on medical leave and will probably retire, he said, so the department could be down three. Hussey said he is looking to possibly "lateral" officers from other towns or find candidates from the Civil Service list who are interested in coming to Cohasset.

The Ocean Course

By GREG GATLIN
KIAWAH ISLAND, S.C.

Flying into a hurricane to play golf doesn't make a lot of sense on the surface of it. But it's not every day you get to play The Ocean Course on this island where Ryder Cup history was made in 1991. And so it was that my golfing buddy (Herald photo editor Jim Mahoney) and I found ourselves on a plane headed south toward Charleston, S.C., as Hurricane Jeanne, already battering the Florida coast, started its turn north. The storm was summoning surfers to the agitated shores of Kiawah — a barrier island 21 miles from Charleston — but golfers were canceling tee times in droves.

As we made the 35-minute drive from the airport through the humid night air, we hoped Jeanne might spare us a round or two. Oak trees lined both sides of Bohicket Road as we drove through the darkness, their branches forming an eerie canopy overhead. Our destination, The Sanctuary at Kiawah Island, was a light at the end of that tunnel. When the $125 million, 255-room resort opened just two months ago, following years of planning, design changes and environmental hurdles, it brought perhaps the only thing missing from the Kiawah Island experience — an ultra-luxurious oceanfront hotel. The property is designed to look like a stately Southern seaside mansion where genteel elegance prevails. Sweeping staircases bookend the main lobby, leaving one wondering when Scarlett might make her entrance. To assure that the ocean is the first thing guests see as they walk into The Sanctuary, developers hauled in a quarter million tons of dirt to raise the lobby's level from 7 feet to 20 feet above the Atlantic. French doors, columned windows and hotel room balconies draw you to a grand lawn that leads down to the ocean and 10 miles of pristine beaches. Inside the hotel, wood-planked floors creek and groan as you walk through sitting rooms decorated to make The Sanctuary feel as if it's been part of the oceanfront fabric for more than a century.

Outside, developers transplanted 400 trees, including oaks and palmettos, to make the grounds seem as if vegetation has grown up around the hotel over the years. But it's all new, and Justin, the bellhop, pointed out modern accoutrements including wireless Internet access and hurricane-resistant balcony doors.

A quick look at the Weather Channel before bed revealed that Hurricane Jeanne was heading more inland than expected. Maybe we'd catch a break. We woke up in this spectacular low-country setting to find ominous weather moving in. The island is unspoiled, its raw beauty breathtaking, perhaps even more so when wind sweeps through sea grass-covered sand dunes, rolling surf rumbles off the coastline and dark clouds gather over miles of tidal marshes. Still, we'd come here to play, and grabbed a shuttle for the Gary Player-designed Cougar Point to tee up the first of 36 holes. If you have thoughts of playing the venerable Ocean Course in the afternoon, Cougar Point is a good warm up. Of course, with four stars from Golf Digest, the 6,875-yard Cougar is no slouch, nor are the island's scenic Osprey Point, designed by Tom Fazio, and Jack Nicklaus' Turtle Point. At the fourth hole, Cougar's gentle parkland layout suddenly opened onto panoramic views of tidal marsh and the Kiawah River spanning a three-hole stretch. Little blue herons and egrets stood sentinel over the greens and ospreys flew overhead. Accuracy is everything on the signature fifth hole, a 357-yard par-4 from the white tees, guarded entirely on the left side by marsh. Cougar's high-risk, high-reward par 5s rewarded Jim with an eagle putt on 11 (he made par), and me with two in the drink on 15.

It was barely noon when we holed out on the 18th and headed for The Ocean Course. They called it "The War by the Shore." The 1991 Ryder Cup was an epic battle that made grown men cry — literally. Designer Pete Dye's

STAFF PHOTOS BY JIM MAHONEY

Caddies are a must to negotiate the wind swept and difficult Ocean Course. This is the 14th green that is buffeted by the Atlantic Ocean.

Osprey Point's 11th hole is an all water carry to an undulating green. A startled Great Blue Heron takes flight from the shore.

Looking at the Sanctuary from the beach framed by wind-swept oat grass and natural dunes. The 275 room grand hotel is designd to evoke memories of a classic southern mansion.

brand new Ocean Course opened just in time to stage one of the most dramatic golf tournaments ever (all due respect to Brookline, 1999.) The United States' Mark Calcavecchia, up five at the turn, was found sobbing uncontrollably down on the beach after blowing his lead over Colin Montgomerie with a series of triple and double bogies. But the most gripping memory is of Bernhard Langer, who carried the weight of Europe as he stepped up to a 6-foot putt on the 18th. Langer's knees buckled as he missed, giving the Americans victory and sending them celebrating into the Kiawah surf. This course is ranked among the most difficult in the world, for one reason: wind.

Jim and I looked out at this windswept wonder and figured lunch would be a good way to start. Enjoying a tasty bowl of she-crab soup and some waffle fries on the clubhouse veranda, we eavesdropped on the table next to us, where four guys had just finished their round. One bragged about scoring a 104. "It was so windy," he said. "The caddie told me to aim for the pot bunker, but I just couldn't make myself do it." I turned to Jim and said, "If the caddie tells me to aim for the pot bunker, I'm aiming for the pot bunker." Responded Jim, "If he tells me to turn around and aim in the direction I just came from, I'm doing that." Especially with a hurricane looming, The Ocean Course gives new meaning to Gone with the Wind. My slightly tailing drive on the 500-yard second hole got picked up in the jet stream, moved from the left side of the wide fairway to the right and just kept going, winding up in one of the many waste areas for which Dye is known. Roger Warren, Kiawah's director of golf, said the wind even on a good day magnifies any weakness in your game.

Still, Warren said, nobody has ever criticized The Ocean Course as being unfair. And the course is simply beautiful, taking players through sand dunes, marshland, seaside fairways and greens. At wife Alice's suggestion, Dye elevated the fairways so golfers could see the ocean on every hole. Walking is strongly recommended. Chipping in for birdie on the par-5 eighth was a highlight for me. It was on the 13th hole that Jim and I decided that if you want to play The Ocean Course, you might as well do it on the outskirts of a hurricane. We both finished with a score of 101. Take that 104 guy. In the end, Jeanne was kind enough to take a westerly course through the Appalachians. After a heavy overnight rain, we played in glorious sunshine, sharing the Osprey Point course with basking alligators, leaping fish and all kinds of birds.

The Sanctuary at Kiawah Island's Championship Package includes three rounds of golf (one on The Ocean Course), two nights accommodations, dinner each night in your choice of several restaurants and breakfast buffet each morning. Rich Little set to make a good impression

Next Tuesday's election will do more than just determine who will serve as our nation's President for the next four years, it will also affect the material Rich Little does when he plays Plymouth Memorial Hall Nov. 12.

"I only started to do John Kerry recently," Little explained by telephone last week from his Las Vegas home. "For a long time, I wondered if I would need to. I wasn't sure he had anything to say. Now, thanks to the debates, I can do him pretty well, although I'm still not sure he has too many recognizable mannerisms."

A Kerry presidency might prove problematic for the Canadian-born master impressionist even though he says politicians are easy to do, because of the extensive television coverage they receive. Little's act often includes his finely honed impersonations of Lyndon B. Johnson, Richard M. Nixon, Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan, both George Bushes, and Bill Clinton. Even with all the comic fodder these presidents provide, Little still laments one that could have been. "Ross Perot is one I really could have had a ball with," explains Little.

Little may not get to do his impression of the diminutive Texas businessman next month, but he will present a cadre of classic impersonations from the some 200 voices in his repertoire.

"There aren't too many young people today who know Humphrey Bogart and Jimmy Stewart, but they do know Dr. Phil. He is now a part of my act. Thankfully, however, my audiences are usually old enough to still know and enjoy the people whom I admire like Frank Sinatra, Neil Diamond and Johnny Carson."

John Kerry may still be a work in progress for Little, 65, but his fellow Massachusetts senator is another story. "I do all the Kennedys, well not all the Kennedys, but Jack, Bobby and Ted," says Little. "Jack Kennedy was a very forceful speaker, Ted is much lower. Bobby, of course, often sounded kind of whiny. In front of a Massachusetts audience, I'll do at least some of the Kennedys for sure."

Rich Little will perform at Plymouth Memorial Hall, Court Street, Plymouth, Nov. 12. For tickets and information, call 866-468-7619 or visit www.ticketweb.com. Veterans will receive $5 off each ticket purchased at the PMH box office at the Radisson Hotel Plymouth Harbor, 180 Water Street, Plymouth. The South Shore Action Council, which supports 15 area food pantries, will receive $2 from every ticket purchased.

Elaine Stritch At Liberty: A legend's tribute

Near the end of her remarkable one-woman show, Stritch acknowledges a number of people - from Edward Albee and Arlene Dahl to Hal Prince - who have been kind to her over the years. The legendary performer's heartfelt expressions of gratitude provide a lovely coda to "Elaine Stritch At Liberty," a sublime evening, now at Boston's Wilbur Theatre, for which theater fans will be thankful for years to come.

In an almost 60-year career, Stritch has appeared on Broadway in "Call Me Madam," "Pal Joey," "Bus Stop," "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" "Company," "Showboat" and "A Delicate Balance." In London's West End, she starred in Neil Simon's "The Gingerbread Lady" and Tennessee Williams' "Smallcraft Warnings." Stritch won a long overdue first Tony Award for "At Liberty" in 2002. The 2004 HBO documentary of the show also earned the actress her first Emmy Award, and a legion of new fans thanks to her frank, funny acceptance speech on national television in September.

Wearing just a white silk shirt and black tights, Stritch makes it clear from her first entrance that she plans to reveal herself. And she does, detailing an early romantic misfire with Marlon Brando and later relationships with Ben Gazzara and Rock Hudson. Along the way, Stritch shares first-hand anecdotes about everyone from Ethel Merman, Gloria Swanson and Marge Champion to Noel Coward and Richard Burton. She intermingles the stories of her life with the songs that have helped make her larger than life including the Stephen Sondheim classics "I'm Still Here" and "TheLadies Who Lunch."

Stritch's talent may have kept her working since the 1940s, but for much of that time her alcoholism also led to deep loneliness. The Michigan native parses no words in describing her drinking problem. Stritch mixes the details of the many different drinks of choice that preceded her every performance with each colorful tale of her career. After a diabetic condition almost killed her in the 1980s, Stritch put the bottle down. Her career continued, however, and, even now at 79, Stritch has what she has always had - the ability to command a stage and the power to thrill and enthrall audiences.

"Elaine Stritch At Liberty" will be at the Wilbur Theatre, 246 TremontStreet, Boston, through October 31. For tickets and information, call 617/931-2787 or visit www.broadwayacrossamerica.com.

LISTEN To Life

by John Klefeker, BC-HIS
Board Certified-Hearing Instrument Specialist, MA Lic. #127

INSIDE INFORMATION

The type of hearing loss known as sensorineural, the most common type of hearing loss, occurs when the delicate hair cells inside the cochlea (inner ear) become damaged. As a result, they are unable to transform sound vibrations into electrical signals that are sent to the brain. Sensorineural hearing loss is often caused by long-term exposure to loud sounds as well as by the natural aging process. Typical symptoms of this type of hearing loss include difficulty in understanding speech and softer sounds. As a result, people have trouble hearing the voices of children and soft female voices, as well as correctly deciphering consonant sounds. Fortunately, hearing instruments can help overcome these problems.

There are more choices than ever before for consumers purchasing hearing aids. One recent count showed there were more than 600 different models from which to choose. How do you decide which is the right one for you? The best way is to place your trust in the hands of a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist with a reputation for skill, knowledge, compassion and integrity. We believe you'll find this, and much more, at FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER. We're located at 534 Main Street (Rte. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth, with a second office in Abington. PH: 781-337-1144. We accept most HMOs State GIC, Union Benefits and Mass Health.

P.S. Sensorineural hearing loss can worsen and become permanent.

Deer Hill students are going the distance

Program instills a love of running

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Deer Hill physical education teacher Michael Weydt stands on the field behind the school, surrounded by smiling children, running as fast as their legs will carry them. "Get those arms pumping!" he reminds the students, ranging in age from grade three to grade five, as they sprint in tandem during a relay exercise across the field, to be greeted with "high fives," all around when they reach their teammates on the other side.

"I'm trying to instill a love for running."
— Michael Weydt, PE teacher

For the past five years, Weydt has been holding an after-school cross-country running club for students at Deer Hill, which he says not only focuses on getting the children involved in an after-school activity which is providing exercise for their health, but also lets them socialize with their peers while feeling like they are part of a group. Since its inception, the number of students participating has continued to grow, and currently, there are more than 70 students who meet to run with Weydt for one hour every Tuesday afternoon.

Deer Hill students practice running at half speed during their cross country practice Tuesday.

"It's something you wouldn't think they would get so excited about," said Weydt about cross-country running, but it seems his own love of the sport has rubbed off on his students. Their enthusiasm is evident as they break into small groups and those who are told they will run drills on the hill behind the Osgood School, cheer and run toward it at top speed. "I'm trying to instill a love for running," he said, and if the faces of the

Town likes Kerry

But Bush wins nation

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Three Cohasset young men are no doubt smiling this week as their candidate, President George W. Bush held off challenger Massachusetts US Sen. John Kerry to win four more years in the White House.

Stephen Bumstead, 10, a fifth-grader at Deer Hill braved the chilly temperatures Tuesday afternoon to stump for Bush along Highland Avenue.

"I like Bush because he is very strong," Stephen said. "I trust putting the fate of our country in his hands.

"Freedom always costs something – Bush is proud of our soldiers in Iraq and he doesn't flip flop."

CHS students, John Keniley, 17, and Domenic Strazzulla, 17, both had similar sentiments and took their support a step further.

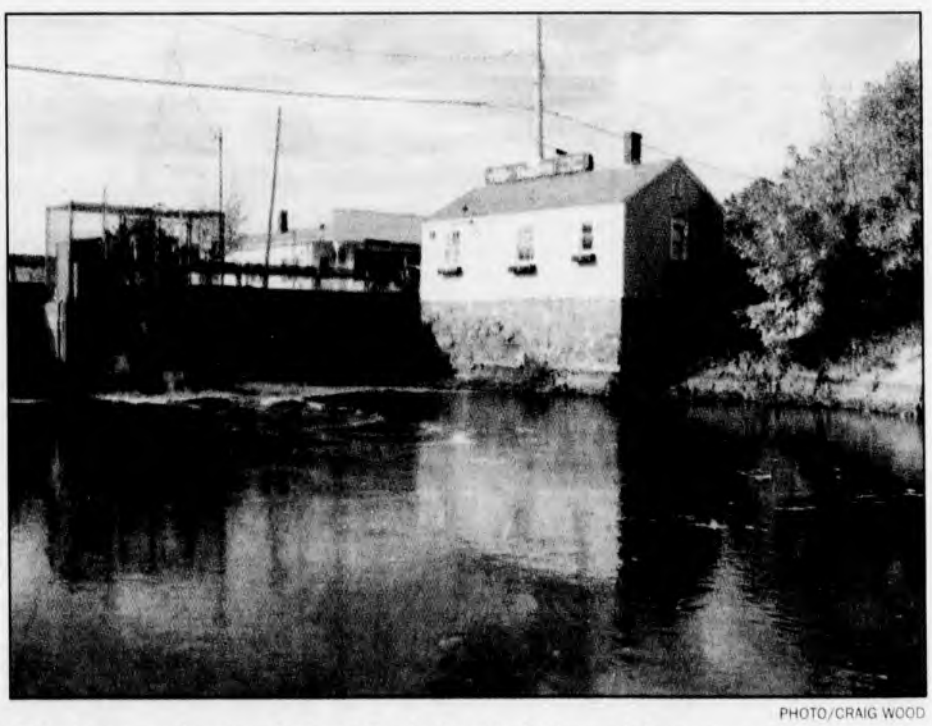
Lobbying effort is sought for repair of the West Corner bridge



By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Literally crumbling for some time, the West Corner bridge looks more like the victim of failed government bureaucracy than a symbol of cooperation and team spirit.

"If we don't maintain local unity our grassroots effort will dissolve.'
— Lawry Reid, Straits Pond Watershed Association

But if a grassroots citizens group, three towns and several environmental organizations and agencies have their way, the dilapidated culvert will serve as a beacon for what can be done when people commit to solving a problem.

The West Corner bridge houses two tidal gates that control the flow of water from the Weir River Estuary into and out of Straits Pond, a 92-acre body of water that is shared by Cohasset and Hull. The 96-year-old culvert — over which traverses one of the main routes to Hull (Rte. 228) — also holds water, sewer and gas lines. There is also a telephone conduit duct bank under the sidewalk. The Massachusetts Highway Department has rated the bridge very poor with a number of structural failures.

This photo was taken from the Straits Pond side of the bridge, and shows a view of the bridge, the two leaking tide gates and the leaking stonework in the bridge.

As Lawry Reid of the Straits Pond Watershed Association says, "if you were inconvenienced by the water main break in Hingham, imagine what would happen if the West Corner culvert failed!"

[A 20-foot break in the 20-inch water main on Kilby Street in Hingham Oct. 7 left 3,000 without water in parts of Hingham, Hull and North Cohasset].

West Corner, where East Hingham, South Hull and North Cohasset meet, was originally called West's Corner after Charles West who operated a general store there a century ago.

A meeting Monday at the Greek Church on Jerusalem Road in Cohasset provided an informational forum for area residents, town officials, and local and state environmentalists to hear an overview from consulting engineers, the Louis Berger Group Inc., about what to do regarding restoring the bridge

Veterans honored every day of the year

Daley's sacrifice is remembered

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

As Veterans Day approaches, people throughout the country will once again formally show their appreciation for those who have given of themselves to ensure the freedom of this nation. In Cohasset, a ceremony will be held at the Veterans Memorial Park to mark the occasion, but looking closely around town, it is plain to see, Cohasset honors its heroes daily.

He was described by his friends as being a "genial lad, a good story teller, and jolly."

Through various memorial squares, dedicated to those Cohasset natives who have paid the ultimate price, local veterans can be remembered every day as residents drive past. One of those veterans, Herman Edward Daley, whose date of sacrifice anniversary was Oct. 14, is remembered by a memorial square, located at the corner of Jerusalem Road and North Main Street.

Herman Edward Daley

Daley was born June 29, 1895 to Mr. and Mrs. Bartholemew Daley of Pleasant Street. One of six children, Daley had three sisters and two brothers. He attended Cohasset schools, and after graduating from high school, worked as a painter for Harry Lincoln. He later worked with the Adams Express, and at the Naval Magazine in Hingham, currently known as the Ammunition Depot on Fort Hill Street.

On July 30, 1917, Daley enlisted in the 101st Engineers- 1st Corps Cadets- and qualified for the service from there. He trained in Boston at the Wentworth Institute of Technology until Sept. 24, 1917 and left for France the next day.

Daley was a member of Company A in the 101 Infantry during World War I. He was described by his

VOTING TRAFFIC

Voting was steady all day at the Cohasset polls at Town Hall. Even in mid-afternoon, shown here, there were plenty of people casting ballots. The turnout Tuesday was about 85 percent, Town Clerk Marion Douglas says.

Candidate should have solid experience as a project manager/supervisor with strong construction and/or engineering experience, with a commitment to a public project.

Submit a letter of interest and resume, along with salary requirements and references by Nov. 24, to J. Michael Buckley, Town Manager, 41 Highland Ave., Cohasset, MA 02025.

Other articles before town meeting will be discussed by guests not yet determined at press time.

CPC fund receives dollar-for-dollar match

On Oct. 15 Cohasset's Community Preservation Fund received $254,690 from the Massachusetts Department of Revenue. This was the third consecutive year that the Commonwealth matched dollar-for-dollar all money raised by Cohasset through the Community Preservation Act.

The money received from the Commonwealth was deposited into Cohasset's Community Preservation Fund and combined with the revenues raised locally by assessing a 1.5 percent surcharge against real property values. The fund is spent on projects endorsed by the Community Preservation Committee and then approved by Town Meeting.

Recent projects include:

- purchasing several lots bordering Lily Pond (in order to protect the water supply);
- creating two senior housing units in the former Paul Pratt Memorial Library;
- constructing playing fields and play grounds, and the highly successful acquisition of the "Barnes Wildlife Sanctuary", which was purchased without any impact to the tax base.

The Community Preservation Committee recommends appropriating money from the Community Preservation Fund on projects supporting low and moderate income housing, historical preservation, and open space acquisition and preservation, CPC Chairman Stuart Ivimey explains.

The money provided by the Department of Revenue is raised by a surcharge assessed at all Recorder of Deeds offices each time someone records a deed or mortgage on the land records.

"During the most recent budget session on Beacon Hill, legislators made seven attempts to spend this money on unrelated special interest projects," Ivimey said. "But thanks to a bipartisan effort that included leadership by state Sen. Robert Hedlund and Rep. Garrett Bradley, the Commonwealth's fund was fully preserved."

Anyone interested in applying for Community Preservation funding is encouraged to contact Stuart Ivimey at (781) 383-2604.

Health board thanks town tobacco vendors

The compliance check was performed by the South Shore Boards of Health Collaborative. Checks were performed at Cohasset Food Mart, Village Wine and Spirits, Cohasset News, CVS Pharmacy, Stop & Shop, MaryLou's Coffee, Shaw's Supermarket, Cohasset Mobil, Walgreen's, Leo's Exxon, Curtis Liquors, Tedeschi Food Shops and Cohasset Plaza Liquors.

Committee openings

There are openings for residents on both the Metro Area Planning Council and Cohasset Common Historic District Commission. Residents must live on the common to become a member of the Historic District Commission. Interested residents for either opening are asked to contact the Selectmen's office at (781) 393-4105.

Special Town Meeting Warrant is taking shape

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

With the Dec. 6 Special Town Meeting just around the corner, Town Manager Michael Buckley said the town is experiencing a time crunch, as the unfinished Warrant must be in its final form to be sent to the printer by Nov. 11, and mailed off to voters Nov. 19.

In light of the deadline, two meetings have been set aside specifically for Town Meeting issues. Monday, Nov. 8 at 6:30 p.m. the Board of Selectmen will invite members of the Advisory Committee, the Capital Budget Committee, School Committee, Sewer Commission, the fire and police chiefs, the Council on Elder Affairs, the Community Preservation Committee, the Planning Board and the Water Department, to discuss the articles which pertain to each of them.

The following Tuesday, Nov. 16, at 7 p.m. the Board of Selectmen and the Advisory Committee will meet with the proponents of the two citizens' petitions — a recall petition and a Little Harbor sewer article — as well as the Senior Housing Committee and Council on Elder Affairs, to discuss their article which will ask voters to allow the Cook Estate to become eligible for a sewer connection.

In addition, Wednesday, Nov. 10 at 7 p.m. selectmen will meet with members of the Advisory Committee, Capital Budget Committee, and School Committee for a budget kickoff meeting, which will prepare everyone for the Annual Town Meeting.

Buckley has pared down the Warrant, or Town Meeting agenda, to 25 articles, or items of business, which may be pared down even more over the next couple of weeks. If after discussion it is found some items can wait until the Annual Town Meeting in the spring, they may be removed from the Warrant.

Currently, articles one and two deal with the budget. Article one requests $170,634 to cover $59,455 for Town Counsel, $93,000 for the school gas bill, and $18,179 for Tutela Engineering. Article two requests $210,000 to balance the FY 05 operating budget. Buckley said he will be preparing a document to further explain the budget items.

Article three will ask the town to allocate money for various town boards and town expenses, including legal fees, money for field improvements, and new DPW vehicles. As the budget process unfolds and the various departments meet with the board, it will be able to determine which departments have needs that should be addressed this year, and which can wait. However, most of the items in article three "leave very little room for discussion," Buckley said.

Article four also asks for appropriations, but are requests which do leave a little more wiggle room. Some of the items include Town Hall Computers, Elder Affairs Computers, police department vehicles and a school utility vehicle. The affected boards will discuss their requests before the board.

Article five deals with collective bargaining issues with the firefighters' union, and Buckley said figures are not yet in for that item.

Article six deals with the Community Preservation Committee, which will meet with the board Nov. 8 to explain any action it will take this year.

Article seven is the co-sponsored Council on Elder Affairs and Senior Housing Committee article, which will ask voters to allow the Cook Estate property into the Central Sewer District, in turn allowing the senior housing project to be considered for a sewer connection. The wording is not yet final, but the issue will be discussed on Nov. 16.

Two meetings have been set aside specifically for Town Meeting issues, Nov. 8 and Nov. 16.

Article eight also deals with the Cook property and would require petitioning the Legislature. Buckley said Town Counsel has advised the town ask the Legislature to include the property in the Central District to permanently include the property in the district. Town Counsel has not yet drafted the article.

Article nine deals with reconstructing the Border Street seawall, which will be a reimbursable cost for the town.

Article 10 will be a personnel bylaw dealing with longevity pay.

Article 11 will ask the town to approve allocating $30,000 for reconstruction improvements to the Beechwood Ball Park. Proponents for the article will be present at the Nov. 8 meeting.

Articles 12, 13, and 14 deal with the Water Department. Article 12 will ask voters to allow the Water Commission to acquire a parcel of land from the Woodside Cemetery to build a new pump station. Article 13 would allow the town to transfer money from the Water Surplus, but Buckley said the final figures for the article are not yet in. Article 14 would appropriate money for various water system improvement project.

Articles 15 and 16 are zoning articles, which will both be discussed with the Planning Board on Nov. 8.

Articles 17 and 18 have not yet been drafted, but will both deal with issues which came up during the Town Manager Act Review Committee meetings. They will deal with the Advisory Committee's role during the budget process as well as the possibility of drafting a set of budgetary checks and balances.

Article 19 has also not been drafted, but will ask the legislature to allow the town to increase the fine for illegal parking, possibly to $50.

Article 20 and 21 may be postponed, but both deal with the town's adopting the Comprehensive Wastewater Management Plan compiled by the Board of Health. Selectmen say they would like more time to review the proposal, and believe there should be at least two or three public hearings to enable the residents to fully grasp what the document says before voting.

Article 22 would compensate the Town Clerk for voluntarily taking a course to become state certified.

Article 23 would allow the town to continue sharing its spare ambulance with the towns of Scituate and Norwell.

Articles 24 and 25 are the citizens' petition articles, the first of which would ask the town to commit to the sewering of Little Harbor, and the second would allow the town to conduct recall elections. Both will be discussed in depth Nov. 16.

For more information, please call the Selectmen's office at (781) 383-4105, or attend any of the scheduled meetings. Selectmen's meetings are televised.

Sewer Commission wants to withdraw its articles

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The Sewer Commission has decided against bringing forward articles for both a bylaw change and a Home Rule Petition and those items of business are no longer slated to be discussed at the Dec. 6 Special Town Meeting. While procedurally the board was not sure whether it would need to withdraw the articles or whether they would need to be indefinitely postponed, it will do what is necessary to take them off the Warrant.

The intention of the bylaw change was to try to put an end to lawsuits from property owners who have been denied sewer access for property outside the sewer districts. The bylaw would have given sole control over the three outlined sewer districts in town — the central district, north Cohasset district, and Little Harbor/Atlantic Avenue district — to the Sewer Commission. Currently other boards often weigh in on sewer issues.

To further help reduce lawsuits over sewer access, the article would have also ensured any expansions of sewer districts would have to be approved by voters at Town Meeting. New separate sewer districts could also be created, but only when presented by citizens and voted in by citizens at Town Meeting.

"I don't like it and I don't think we need it," said Commissioner Sean Cunning about the bylaw, adding he doesn't see why a Town Meeting would be required for every proposed district change when the Commission is currently able to do it on its own.

The intention of the bylaw change was to try to put an end to lawsuits from property owners who have been denied sewer access for property outside the sewer districts.

If voters really want to see change, they always have the right to bring a citizens petition to Town Meeting, and ultimately, the town will either vote for or against the funding to complete any sewer project. In his view, giving away the board's power does not serve a purpose.

However, Chairman Raymond Kasperowicz said he wasn't convinced the bylaw was a bad idea, adding "I don't mind giving up power if it benefits the town." But on the other hand, Kasperowicz said while Town Counsel had advised the bylaw change would greatly reduce lawsuits, whether the commission is in charge or not, anyone who is denied a connection always has the right to sue, it would just be directed at the town rather than specifically the Commission.

Commissioner John Beck added the bylaw change, "doesn't give you any protection against lawsuits which are already in."

The bylaw change was intended to buy the town some time until the second article — a home rule petition —made its way through the legislative process at the State House, which could take upwards of 18 months. The home rule petition would have been similar to those in Provincetown and Nantucket which have the force of law. It would have amended the Cohasset Sewer Act to allow for "checker-boarding" of sewer districts in areas where the sewer commission deemed it necessary. The Home Rule Petition would have first been approved by voters, then approved by the Legislature.

If the commission had chosen to bring forward the bylaw, it is possible another town board would have assumed a wastewater management role. Former Commissioner Gary Vanderweil said anyone seeking a connection outside the districts would probably have needed to seek out the Board of Selectmen, which, in his view, is another burden that board doesn't need.

and tide gates. Suggestions from the crowd of roughly 35 people were encouraged.

While the bridge is a public safety issue, replacement of the culvert — including installing new, wider tide gates — would increase the tidal flow and salinity in Straits Pond and improve the quality of life for the residents who live along its shore. Better ecological balance in the pond, achievable through better flushing, could virtually eliminate its midge infestation and odor problems that can make living in the pristine setting less than ideal. The project could also restore fish habitats and help reduce phragmites, an invasive plant that chokes out other marsh plants.

Plans for more recreation on the pond, including better accessibility for kayakers are also on the table.

Efforts to replace the bridge have been ongoing for years but have a new sense of urgency.

As Reid explains, the state Transportation Bond Bill has earmarked $1 million for the West Corner bridge and culvert reconstruction but there is no guarantee of actually receiving the funding because of a borrowing cap. Therefore, the governor needs to be convinced the bridge is a priority.

This a closer look at the culvert taken from the Straits Pond side of the bridge, showing the two leaking tide gates and the leaking stonework in the bridge, at right.

Hull has assumed the leadership role for the project during the design phase, but all three towns have contributed money for design and documenting existing conditions. Hingham and Cohasset have donated $25,000 each; Hull $56,000 and the Conservation Law Foundation, $35,500 for a total of $141,000. CLF is an environmental advocacy organization.

"If we don't maintain local unity our grassroots effort will dissolve," Reid said. "If we don't hang together, we'll hang separately. What gets support (at the state level) are large-scale projects."

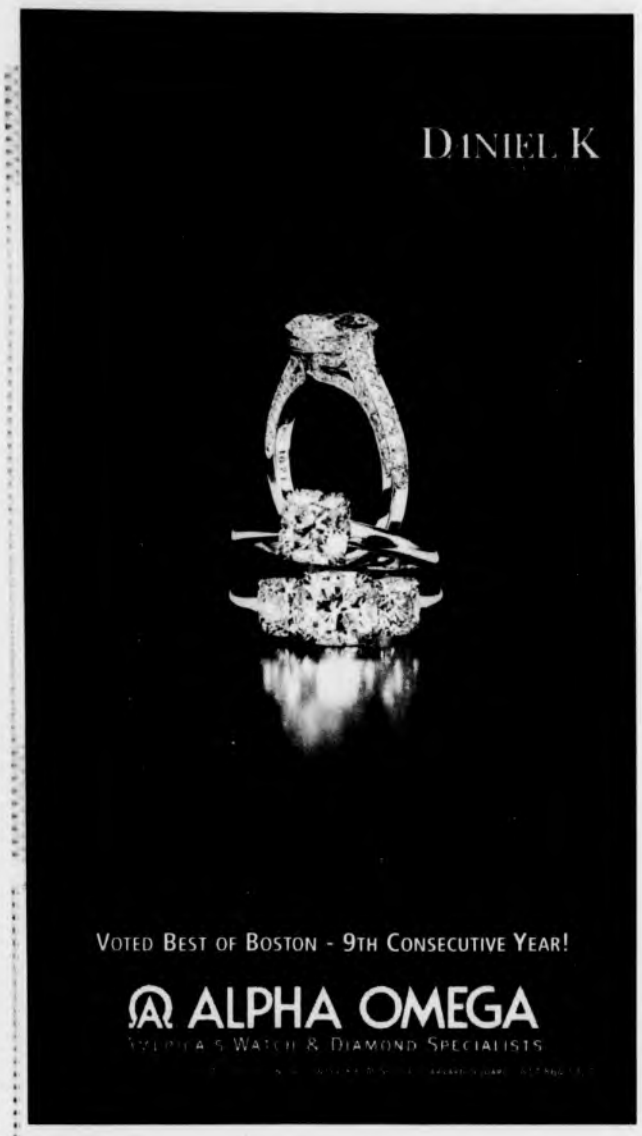
State Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, described the combined efforts of Hingham, Hull and Cohasset as "unprecedented cooperation between three towns."

In what at times resembled a physics lesson, engineers and environmentalists provided a detailed explanation of salinity levels and pond elevations and how those can relate to the width of the tide gates. The new tide gates would be fully automated, but some in attendance weren't sure the human factor could be eliminated.

Bill McNamara of Richard Road in Hull, who has operated the tidal gates at the pond for 10 years, said at times the gates have to be opened or closed in anticipation of a weather event. There's also the question of frozen ice and potential power failures and therefore a manual override would be needed.

Dick Avery of Forest Avenue in Cohasset said there has to be someone to call to answer problems. A governmental body needs to be in charge of the gates, he said. He also wondered if salt water could be kept out of the pond in the winter to allow for better ice skating and cross country skiing.

Steve Krysler of Reef Point in Hull asked that care be taken to ensure the site is aesthetically pleasing.



"It's a fantastic project," Krysler said. "I hope after all of this we get a landscape architect. It is still a pretty spot and we need to make sure it still looks nice."

The West Corner bridge is also an historic site where a grist mill once stood that would be evaluated under a regulation of the National Historic Preservation Act. There was some discussion about providing educational plaques on the bridge.

The project will be subject to state environmental review and oversight by the Massachusetts Historical Commission. Straits Pond is also an Area of Critical Environmental Concern. ACECs are afforded additional attention and protection by state agencies.

If funding is obtained and all the environmental permitting goes smoothly, construction could start in July 2006, Reid said. The engineering group took the audience's concerns and suggestions under advisement. Plans are to conduct another forum in four to six weeks, he said.

In the meantime Reid is encouraging interested citizens to contact the governor at www.mass.gov (click Gov. Romney) or phone 617-725-4005 or fax 617-727-9725 to urge Romney to commit the $1 million in funding for the project.

da, economic and taxation policies," Domenic said.

"Domenic knew I supported Bush's policies and asked if I'd stand up for him and here I am," John said.

The three boys — all not old enough to vote — were the youngest campaign workers along "election row" Tuesday, a legendary stretch of roadway bordering the Town Common where dozens of sign-holders camp out during every election.

There were plenty of Democrats and Republicans waving to voters as they drove or walked to the polls at Town Hall on Tuesday.

Unlike four years ago, Bush did not "take" Cohasset, and lost by roughly 200 votes to Kerry.

Democratic Town Committee Chairman Agnes McCann had no way of knowing the final results before the polls closed, but she predicted Kerry would win 54 percent of Cohasset votes cast for president and she was almost right on the money.

The Kerry-Edwards ticket had a total of 2,284 votes to Bush-Cheney's 2,164. It was almost exactly the reverse when Bush ran against Gore four years ago. In 2000, Bush won Cohasset by 200 votes.

McCann noted the turnout had been steady all day.

Town Clerk Marion Douglas said roughly 85 percent of Cohasset registered voters cast ballots Tuesday. She said the high turnout made the long hours at the polls fly by.

"We had more in the first hour than we had all day in the (Sept. 14) primary," she said. [The primary with no contests attracted only 4.6 percent of registered voters].

Laura Burns added a new dimension to the election. She launched a write-in campaign against popular incumbent state Rep. Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham. Burns received 116 write-in votes in Cohasset.

Burns, who was also campaigning along Highland Avenue, said the response had been "fantastic." She explained that she had stood out for many candidates in the past and not had such a positive response.

Burns ran on a platform of civil rights and doesn't think the issue of same-sex marriage — which is now legal in Massachusetts — should be put before the voters in the form of a Constitutional amendment.

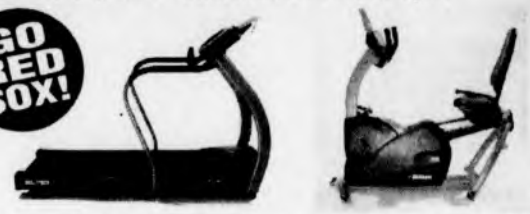
While Bradley supports same-sex marriage, he favors putting a constitutional amendment before the voters even though he would vote against it in the ballot box.

"Garrett is voting in our name [in the legislature]," Burns said, about why she felt so strongly about launching a write-in campaign. "We need to tell him what we want – I just couldn't sit on my hands."

Bradley, who was campaigning just a few feet away, said he hoped voters would judge him on the totality of his record.

"I believe in letting people be involved in the process," he said.

Speaking to supporters at an election night party at the Sons of Italy Hall, Bradley said he has "great respect for my opponent, who ran on an issue she feels passionately about."



He went on to say, "I'm humbled you sent me back for a third term. I also recognize that some of my supporters differ with me on the civil marriage issue and stayed with me anyway. I hope to earn the support of those who did not vote for me over the next two years."

District-wide (Hingham, Cohasset, Hull, and part of Scituate), Bradley got 18,151 votes to Burns' 1,107 votes.

"Casting a write-in vote is very difficult. Winning 6 percent of the vote for a write-in campaign of four weeks and five days is a grand-slam home run," Burns said. "Every successful write-in vote represents many more people who found writing-in hard to do, or didn't get the word in time. There is an enormous groundswell of voters in this district who strongly oppose writing discrimination into the Massachusetts Constitution, and this is proof positive of that."

Burns said she respects Bradley for "taking this campaign seriously. I know he listens to his voters and that he will get this message loud and clear."

A non-binding policy question placed on the ballot by the Drug Policy Forum of Massachusetts calling for marijuana decriminalization was supported by Cohasset voters, 2,867 to 1,291. Should the legislature at some point approve this proposed decriminalization, the penalty for possession of one ounce or less of marijuana by an adult would carry a $100 civil fine for both first-time and subsequent offenses rather than a criminal penalty. There were no other ballot questions.

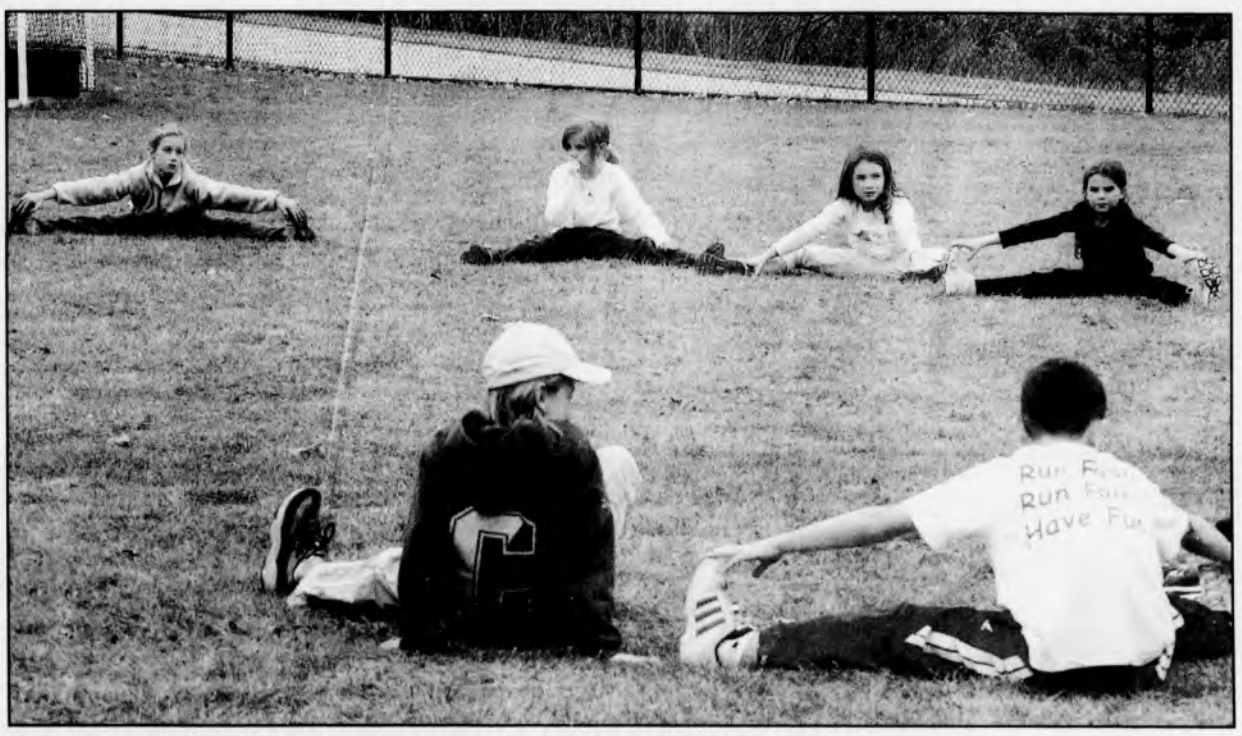
students are any indication, his goal has been accomplished.

Weydt says he has been running for more than 20 years. Although it wasn't until college that he really began taking the sport seriously, he says since then it has become a part of him which he enjoys sharing with the students he teaches. While the program is intended to give the students a workout, he said it is also about giving the students an education on how to run, and provides a way to interact with Weydt and the staff which help him run the program, in a setting outside the classroom.

Because the number of students who participate is so large, Weydt said he is very fortunate to have his intern, Peter Arena, helping out. Arena is currently working toward earning his degree from Bridgewater State College and is completing his student teaching by working with Weydt assisting during physical education classes until December.



Along with Arena, Weydt says he has been fortunate to have the help of two Cohasset High School freshman, Eric MacCarthy and Nick Secatore, who he says have been very helpful during cross-country practice. "I love having kids come down from the high school," he said, adding he wishes he had more older students who would participate in activities with the younger students because it is a win-win situation for everyone involved. The older students can feel a boost in self-esteem as they take on responsibility and work to help the younger students accomplish their goals, while the younger students can have the benefit of spending time with a good role model.

In addition, Weydt said Cassandra Garner, the technology teacher at Deer Hill, has been very generous in donating her time to the program as well as many parents.

STAFF PHOTOS/SUSAN HANEY

Stretching and strengthening exercises are part of the Deer Hill School cross country program.

Participants in the Deer Hill cross country program stretch before heading out for a run.

The students who participate in the cross country program not only meet on Tuesdays for practice, but compete in meets with the surrounding towns of Hingham and Scituate. Weydt says the different schools take turns hosting the meets and every student who participates is rewarded for a job well done. Weydt says for coming to practice, his students are given a small colorful plastic foot which can be tied to the top of the shoe on the laces. For participating in meets, Weydt gives his students a small plastic runner which can also be tied to the shoe. "It gives them a little more incentive," he said.

But Weydt's students were given an added bonus this year, as they were all given a team T-shirt at the beginning of this years' season, which began Sept. 21. The shirts, printed by Ronnie Goodwin of Goodwin Graphics, are white with blue print and feature runners on the front and the school name, and the team slogan, "Run fast, run fair, have fun," on the back.

With fun as one of the main objectives, Weydt said "Winning and losing is not stressed." In fact, every student who participates in a meet is asked to record their times in a running journal, and the next time they compete, their goal is to try to improve on their own time, and not worry about how anyone else is doing.

"They're working for their personal best," said Arena, to which Weydt added, "and hopefully they'll see progress."

As the cross-country season comes to a close, with the final meet taking place on Nov. 18 in Hingham, Weydt reminded the students at this week's practice of what they should expect. He reminded them of all the hard work they've put in, and all the drills they have successfully completed, which he added are some of the best exercises a runner can do, "especially if you want to see your time drop." He congratulated the students for working so hard and while the course will be long, he said he knows everyone who chooses to compete in this final meet has been well prepared and has run farther than the course will be, which ensures everyone will be successful. "I know you can do it," he said.

Cook Estate sent packing

Is again denied sewer connection

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

After submitting a second application for a sewer connection, Northland developers, who are working with the town to build on the Cook Estate, have once again been denied a connection.

Based primarily on the fact that the project is located outside the central district, and is therefore not eligible to tie-in to the municipal wastewater system, the Sewer Commission voted against granting the connection Monday.

The application, which was filed Oct. 26, states the discharge from the site would be treated effluent, which would mean almost drinking water quality wastewater would be discharged into the town's system. Sewage generated on-site would be treated through a membrane system, similar to the system the town's Elm Street plant currently uses. The first Northland application was filed and denied in April.

The new application states the development would discharge 14,250 gallons per day of wastewater with a biochemical oxygen demand, or BOD level of less than 5 milligrams per liter, which would be less than one pound total, and total suspended solids, or TSS of less than 5 milligrams per liter. BOD is the carbon factor in wastewater which has to be removed for it to be considered clean, and BOD has been a problem at the wastewater plant.

The application states the effluent would add to the volume of flow, but not require additional treatment from the plant, meaning the Cook Estate's wastewater impact would be minimal. In addition, the application states on-site storage would be provided on site to help with infiltration and inflow problems during storms. Infiltration and inflow, or I&I, is when water seeps into leaky pipes from the outside in, which ultimately affects capacity at the plant.

When Town Meeting voters approved the allocation of $4.5 million to purchase the Cook Estate last fall, they were assured the development would not need a sewer connection. However, testing done on site after that vote determined soils at the Cook Estate, located off Sohier Street, cannot handle the wastewater expected to be generated from the development. While engineers have looked at other areas around town to install a leaching field with a plan to pipe the wastewater off Cook site, developers say every possible alternative has been considered and nothing has proven feasible. A sewer connection would remove the cloud over the project, which is hamstrung without a wastewater solution.

Daniel Coughlin of Tutela Engineering, the Commission's engineering consultant, said in his view, the most recent Northland application is the first formal application to propose discharging treated wastewater effluent. "I don't know of another," application which has been submitted with the same idea, he said, adding, "This is something new." However, Commissioner Sean Cunning disagreed and said Cedarmere developers brought forth the exact same plan months before.

Cedarmere

The developers of Cedarmere, a 105-unit senior housing project, and the first project to file under the town's Senior Multifamily Residence Overlay District bylaw, submitted an application for a sewer connection which was denied on Oct. 29, 2003. After the Commission's denial, the developers filed suit against the town, claiming their development has the right to a sewer hookup because there is enough capacity to accommodate for the project, even though the Sewer Commission and its engineers say there is not. As part of a settlement with the town, developers offered to not only treat the effluent discharged from the Beechwood Street site to almost drinking water quality, but help fix I&I problems and upgrade the plant. "The settlement is part of the application to the sewer commission," said Cunning, and Chairman Raymond Kasperowicz agreed.

But regardless of whether the proposal has been suggested before or not, Commissioner John Beck said the board could not entertain the application. "At the risk of sounding consistent, this is not even a valid application because it's out of the district," he said, which has always been the board's position.

In addition to the project's being located outside the district, Cunning said the application may not be valid because Northland does not own the property it is looking to connect. If anyone is going to apply for a connection, he believes it would have to be the heirs to the Cook Estate which currently own the property. "I think we can count this out for a number of different reasons," he said.

High marks for reunion

Three classes made it special

By Norman S. Jason
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

A wonderful time was held by all as 73 participants gathered together for a series of reunion events, held the weekend of Sept. 10-12 in Cohasset. Among the events were a cocktail party at the Legion Hall of Friday evening, a breakfast and tour of the high school on Saturday morning, a banquet held at the Cohasset Golf Club on Saturday evening and a Sunday morning brunch at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham.

On hand were members of all three classes (1954-1956) who traveled from California, Washington, Oregon, Texas, Florida, Virginia, Michigan, Maryland and from all of the New England states. Receiving the prize for the greatest distance traveled by air to the events was Hans Koehler, Class of 1954, now of Walnut Creek, Calif.; for the greatest distance traveled by car (actually by RV) was Martha Van Buskirk Bagwell, Class of 1954, from Lake Stevens, Wash. Receiving a prize for being the participant with the greatest number of grandchildren was Joan Keefe Begin, Class of 1955, grandmother of 19 and great grandmother of 9. Walter Howe, Class of 1955, was the recipient of the prize for having the most unusual hobby, cryptography or the study and analysis of secret writings and codes. Each prize winner received a Cohasset T-shirt with a picture of Minot's Light on the front.

A steering committee, organized the events, and over the past several months, attempted to reach all members of the three classes. The members of the committee were: Norman Jason (Chairman), Janette Bailey Somerville and Donald McNeil, 1954; Judy Tilden Sestito, 1955; Jane Wilmore King, George Pope, Tim Buckeridge and Betty Bailey Ripley, 1956.

Where's the love?

Editor's note: While eating at Wendy's in Marshfield last week, we overheard two three-year-olds chanting "We hate Bush!" while their moms chatted nearby! Regardless of your political persuasion, it's time to stop the "hate" talk at home. Diane Synder wrote the following piece which provides a timeless message. – Mary Ford

"Come see what I found," invited Susan, grabbing my hand and pulling me towards a shelf in the corner of the restaurant's gift shop. The sign announcing "sale, half price" hung over a stack of folded teal green T-shirts. Susan lifted the top one off of the pile, opened it, and held it up. Across the front, in neat black letters, was printed "Where's the Love?".

I smiled, thinking back to the school year that had just ended. Susan and I are co-teachers who work with four-year-old preschoolers. We thrive on the challenge of meeting the needs of eager, active, and curious youngsters. We spend hours planning a curriculum rich with learning and creativity. We set up centers each morning that will stimulate intellectual and physical development, inviting children to make choices as they begin to orchestrate their day. One child might head to the science area, another to the sand table, several others to puzzles and table toys. The room begins to fill with sound and movement.

We plant the seeds of kindness in our classroom, nurture those seeds, and marvel at the growth.

At the top of our learning ladder, though, higher than the academic subjects, is the topic embodied in the question "Where is the love?" We answer it every day, in numerous ways. We answer it when one child sees another child in tears and walks over to give comfort. We answer it when a child spills a cup of apple juice and a friend offers to help clean it up. We answer it when one student spots another classmate playing alone and says "Do you want to play with me?"

When the inevitable conflict arises around taking turns with a toy, we find the love in two small human beings choosing words to work out the problem. The phrase "we can share it" is music to a preschool teacher's ears, the phrase "we're sharing the love" a rhapsody.

We plant the seeds of kindness in our classroom, nurture those seeds, and marvel at the growth. I remember one morning a round faced, curly haired girl running up to Susan and, between sobs, announcing "I have a wrinkle in my heart." Susan and I understood. We had told the class a story about how words can hurt. Using a construction paper heart, Susan had said, "I don't like you," and folded the heart. "Your dress is ugly." She folded the heart again. "I'm not your friend." Another fold. Susan followed this demonstration with words of kindness. "I like you. Let's play together." She unfolded the heart as she spoke. The wrinkles, however, remained in the paper heart. 20 eager faces watched, listened, absorbed the lesson. We work hard to keep the hearts in our class wrinkle free.

Susan and I left the gift shop that day with the purchase of two tee shirts. We knew what we would wear on the first day of school. Where is the love?, the logo on the shirts, would remain our theme. In each kind word and caring act that we observe in our class, we know that we are finding the answer.

Diane Snyder lives in Hingham and has been teaching at the Striar Jewish Community Center Preschool for 17 years and with Susan Brass for the past nine years.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Less jeering and more solutions

TO THE EDITOR:

Gabriel Gomez (Letter to the Editor, Oct. 28) is quite right; newcomers should be welcomed as candidates for elected and appointed offices and encouraged to participate actively in the many organizations that contribute so much to the town's quality. New ideas, positive change, willingness to examine long-established custom; all are good for us.

However, it doesn't seem to me that there is an "old guard" actively resisting new blood or new ideas. Rather, there is dismay (diluted by amusement) about the "solutions" offered that reveal innocence of the background and other relevant factors, especially when pontificated in a way that implies wisdom and insight superior to that of us local yokels. The articulate and aggressive claque that acts as if the town's officers and behavior need be trashed in order to save the town is not limited to newcomers, and I didn't mean to imply that it did.

On the other hand, much of the negative comment about the Cook estate has been by relative newcomers; the constructive effort to make it come to fruition has been by those with the broader viewpoint gained by longer experience in the town. The Town would be better served by less jeering about the project's bobbles and troubles, and by more mature interest in supporting solutions. (Not that the unhelpful behavior is limited to newcomers)!

The recall may do little harm if it does not become the ready-to-use tool of every over-reaction to miscalculation, lack of transparency or other conceived sin. I'm really criticizing something large than the recall issue: the decline in tolerance, understanding and civility in local affairs. We don't need to emulate some of our nearby towns, who haven't benefited from childishness.

HEALTH NOTES

Health issues aren't immune to politics

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Strangely, this year, some of the political issues in Cohasset deal with health. For example, the Cook Estate, sewer deliberations and, of all things, flu vaccine.

Why flu vaccine became so political is a quandary, but the Board of Health has been confronted with a number of difficult choices which not everyone appreciated when they were made. The first such decision was, at last week's flu clinic. When we announced that it would start at 10 a.m. and go to 12, people started lining up at 7 a.m.. Numbers were handed out; each number assigned a flu shot.

By 8 a.m., we observed a line of some 30 people in the cold rain and made a decision that maybe, rather than having these people treated for exposure, we should open the building early and get them dry. Well, you know the rest: By 10 a.m., the last number was handed out and a notice put up that there were no more flu shots.

By 11 we had given out all flu shots, and we had 30 complaints with one man determined to get up at Town Meeting and denounce the stupid Board of Health. That was a surprise; we usually only get that type of complaint after septic system failures. Well, we're going to try again. Next week, as indicated in our posting in today's Mariner, we will have more flu shots.

The rules have changed somewhat, but many more compliments were actually received than complaints on our performance, and so, we're going to use the same drill:

Flu clinic

Doors will open doors at 9 a.m., Tuesday Nov. 9 at St. Anthony's Parish Hall to those aged 75 and older and other high-risk adults. Numbers will be assigned each available dose, and when we run out we will post a notice so advising. Rather than requesting that you obtain a doctor's note for high risk status, please call Judy Fitzsimmons, the Town's Public Health Nurse at 781 383-2210, who will make a determination and place your name on a list. You need not call if you bring proof of your condition which has been previously accepted. Once again, don't forget to bring your Medicare B and/or your Senior Health Insurance cards., and remember to wear a short sleeve shirt. Also, remember, these shots are for Town residents only because they are being paid for by the Town.

About the Cook Estate

At last night's Sewer Commission the Cook estate was refused a hookup to the Central Sewer district because the Sewer Commission rules prohibited it. At the voting today, Martha Horsefeld, a member of the Elder Housing Committee, which favors the Cook Estate, was giving out flyers which made a very good and rational argument for the Cook Estate Development for elder housing. In today's Mariner, there is a letter to the editor which provides a reasonable option to the sewer hookup. I proposed this option at a Selectmen's meeting, but it received little response. However, those who know about wastewater disposal believe it is an ideal solution for the Cook property.

Sewer Commission decision

At Monday's Sewer Commission hearing, a vote to include in the December Town Meeting warrant a home rule petition for sewer districts to be assigned by a Town meeting vote was unanimously defeated. This decision has been under consideration for some time, and, although I know little about sewers, (a highly political issue) I favored the proposal because of a high regard for the breadth of knowledge and judgment of the Commissioners. In time, for whatever reason, the Commissioners became cool to the idea. But they still merit a high opinion. Accordingly they must have good reasons, and I support them.

Having said that, I commented at the Selectmen's meeting that, for environmental reasons, I was cool to the addition by anyone of more fresh water into Cohasset Harbor.

Steve Bobo is chairman of the Board of Health.

Recycle Cook Estate wastewater to its lavatories

COMMENTARY

RICHARD BROOKS

Relative to the Cook housing project, the private, "for profit" developer stated at last Tuesday's Selectmen's meeting that they are prepared to treat the wastewater, from the proposed 94 housing units, on the site, resulting in a treated water stream "almost as pure as drinking water" to be "disposed". They propose now to dispose of the water by seeking permission to put that stream, essentially void of BOD, into the Town Central Sewer System. [BOD or biochemical oxygen demand has to be removed for wastewater to be considered clean.] However, they are not eligible for a sewer connection and, in my professional opinion, that is not the best disposal route for many, obvious reasons.

The Chairman of the Board of Health(BOH), Steve Bobo, rose at the meeting and suggested that, given the high quality of the stream, that it be piped to a standard leaching field at Wheelwright Park, which he felt could handle the stream readily with no impact on the Park nor on the local community. That is an excellent recommendation which must be pursued by the developer, in spite of the lack of interest expressed by the developer at the meeting. This initial lack of interest raises questions! Anyway, the costs to use the Park would be attractively low, as the developer will find out when the details are reviewed.

If the developer continues to disregard this excellent suggestion by Steve Bobo then, as a Registered Professional Engineer and acknowledged Environmentalist, I propose that this clean water stream be further purified, which is easily done, and recycled back for re-use in the 94 housing units, thus saving a large portion of the costly water bill the senior tenants would otherwise have to pay and, further, eliminating the also costly sewer usage charges the senior tenants would incur. Allow me to elaborate!

Any surplus could easily be used for irrigation of the lawns and shrubs surrounding all these housing units...

First, to allay your initial concerns, this proposal is for further treating the water stream for recycle back to the housing units via a dedicated piping system for use solely in the perhaps 200-plus lavatories in the 94 units!

The relatively pure water stream from the on-site BOD Treatment facility could be readily collected and then totally purified (tertiary treatment), either by distillation or, as is more common, by activated carbon filtration, then held in an underground storage tank and recycled to the housing units solely for use in the lavatories of these units. Any surplus could easily be used for irrigation of the lawns and shrubs surrounding all these housing units or, in winter months, be allowed to evaporate during the final purification process or, given the small volume, be fed into a standard, on-site, subsurface leach field. No special "discharge permit" would be needed!

I believe the economics would be quite reasonable for the developer and the seniors occupying the housing units would save significant funds over the course of each year from reduced water bills and no sewer usage fees — which are quite high in Cohasset! I also feel the entire system would be a unique model for other developers to follow and would certainly result in Environmental and Conservation awards for all parties involved. The Massachusetts Dept. of Environmental Protection would be quite pleased as well!

As a final note, tertiary treatment of waste water streams via regenerable activated carbon beds is pretty standard practice across the USA and a very well developed technology. An excellent example is the large, municipal waste water treatment plant in Fitchburg where the technology is employed prior to discharging the purified water into the Nashua River.

If the developer adopts either of the above disposal recommendations for the near-pure water coming from the BOD Treatment facility that has already been promised to be put on-site, then I project most all of the voters of Cohasset will support having the Cook project proceed, including seniors like me and the other 400-plus seniors that reside in the Little Harbor Sewer District. All parties can win if the developer steps up and does the right thing — as was promised to the voters at the last Town Meeting. GO FOR IT!

There's nothing to fear from a Recall petition

COMMENTARY

NANCY GARRISON

There is no reason why voters or officials in the Town of Cohasset need be nervous at the thought of Recall.

Like marriage, the decision to recall is not made lightly or unadvisedly. A Recall petition, to be accepted, must be certified to contain at least 10 per cent of qualified registered voters — a considerable number. The board of registrars of voters must certify this percentage. Should a Recall ever be undertaken, it would mean that a significant number of citizens were deeply troubled. It is a serious business.

If Recall were ever to happen, it would be the strongest possible indication that a majority of voters wished to engage in well-considered reform.

Ballots used in a Recall election are eminently fair. They list the following options: a space for voting for the recall of an officer and a space for voting against the recall of that officer. Below these options is a section headed "Candidates", with directions to voters to choose one name from a list of replacement candidates, already nominated.

To recall, a majority vote is required. If a Town officer is recalled, he/she is removed upon certification of the election results by the town clerk. It is an orderly procedure.

Ballots for candidates are then counted. The candidate receiving the highest number of votes is elected to become the recalled officer's replacement. That candidate will serve the balance of the former officer's unexpired term.

It is not a vindictive sword of Damocles to hang over the heads of Town officers...

Of course, if there is a majority vote against Recall, the issue is closed.

It's as simple — yet as serious — as that. The Recall process is straightforward, like any other Town election. It is not a vindictive sword of Damocles to hang over the heads of Town officers. It is a strong incentive for our leaders to perform effectively, equitably and with transparency to best serve the electorate.

In a recent issue of the Mariner, Editor Mary Ford wrote that she believed "the best Recall is a regular election." I agree with Mary wholeheartedly. Yet she conceded that she was "not surprised" that an effort has been launched to place the Recall option before the Special Town Meeting.

Although a proposed Recall petition may seem a reaction to frustration, in fact it is the recognition of an unwelcome change — an attempt to obscure —that has become endemic among certain of our public servants. Many citizens of Cohasset now share a sense of unease at this "official" obfuscation.

Mary Ford asked, "Where do we go from here?", and I echo that question. Can those in power summon the courage to lead and at the same time be guileless? As our elected officials interact with the voters of Cohasset, whom they were elected to serve, can they put aside knee-jerk defensiveness and open the windows?

I'm waiting.

With Mary, I submit that those promoting the Recall petition should not be attacked for thinking as we do. Democracy lives in this town whose values we promote and preserve. Recall is an option, perhaps a very valuable option, as we move forward. No group or individual, who tries honestly to initiate positive reform, should be targeted as disloyal. You may not agree with me, but you must understand that I have the right to explore a means by which our town might become a better place.

Considering the benefits and possible deterrents of Recall for myself and for my neighbors. I have come to believe that this initiative can be a prudent and conservative fail-safe in Cohasset's legislative future — for there is nothing fearsome or undemocratic about Recall.

Many Massachusetts towns already have it on their books.

Seldom is Recall used, and we may never resort to it in Cohasset. But it is a tool and a safeguard, a check and a balance. And, if crisis occurs, as it already has too often in this town of ours, Recall offers a further recourse to voters that elections alone cannot fulfill.

When elections are never final

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

Back in the days when the college kids were shaving points and basketball was known colloquially as "bagball," they used to say that the score was never final until the DA looked at the films.

Now you can say the same for Election Day.

The voters finished their part Tuesday, or, rather, most of them did, I think, now it's up to the lawyers to figure out who did that shouldn't have, who should have that didn't, who left all those chads dangling and who made all those other chads pregnant.

Doesn't it make you long for the old days when they counted paper ballots by hand, announced a winner, broke out the coffee and doughnuts (on the town) and went home? No kidding, young feller, it really was that easy. And accurate, too, as far as I know.

Are you sure the folks at the polling place counted your ballot? No? Let's sue and see if they did.

I blame it on the lawyers.

Did you know that right now, only hours after the last ballot was cast, a horde of no less than 16,000 barristers — 6,000 hired by the Republicans and 10,000 by the Democrats — are poking through the remains of Tuesday's action seeking clients?

Are you sure the folks at the polling place counted your ballot? No? Let's sue and see if they did. Did you cast votes for both candidates because you were confused? Let's sue and see whose fault it was. Did your uncle send you to the wrong polling place? Let's sue and see who made him do it.

Tell me, while 16,000 lawyers are sorting through the bones of Tuesday's election, who is manning the legal parapets for Scott Peterson and Kobe Bryant and other miscreants who need teams of them to explain to 12 peers and two alternates why they didn't do it.

Where defendants used to have one, maybe two, lawyers at a time now they have one to question witnesses, another to quiz the experts, another to pick jurors, another to deliver the summation and yet another to go out for coffee, for all I know.

I used to think lawyering was a pretty exclusive profession. Then my November copy of Boston magazine arrived in my mailbox. It contains a 26-page listing of what it calls "Massachusetts Super Lawyers," and that doesn't include the ones who have their radios tuned to the ambulance channel.

If that's not enough, think of what it's going to be like when the Iraqi, Afghan and who knows who else's terrorists start bringing suit for damage done to their fragile psyches when a U. S. Marine knocked that AK-47 out of his hands in Fallujah.

Even now, the state of Massachusetts is gearing up to take on its own law school since schools like Suffolk Law and New England Law are simply not turning out enough lawyers on the cheap to satisfy the demand, which always seems to be growing and growing.

There is a move afoot to buy out the private Southern New England School of Law in South Dartmouth and attach it to UMass-Dartmouth so that kids in southeastern Mass will have a fighting chance to get a law degree and begin charging $65 a hour for their services.

No, I don't agree with Bill Shakespeare's Falstaff when he advises us to "First, kill all the lawyers." Let them live. But let's rough them up a little.

Red Sox series win puts politics on the backburner

AMY LAMBIASO

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

The end of an 86-year-old curse overshadowed any political story last week. And the way it played out in state and national politics was most interesting. During the final week before an election that could turn Massachusetts politics upside down, front pages and newscasts that would ordinarily have been dominated by campaign stories focused on baseball 24-7.

Reporters crowded Boston Mayor Thomas Menino's office to hear details of a "rolling rally" expected to draw a record crowd to the city Saturday morning. Hours earlier, Gov. Mitt Romney found himself blowtorching a "Reverse Curve" sign above Storrow Drive that frustrated fans have repeatedly altered into a now no-longer-necessary "Reverse the Curse" sign.

Media trucks lined Beacon Street early last Friday morning in preparation for an appearance by World Series MVP Manny Ramirez and team leader Jason Varitek. The punk band Dropkick Murphy's, the team's unofficial band, performed on the usually sacred State House lawn and drew more attention than a homeland security conference featuring top public safety officials from across the nation. Lawmakers swooped in for a chance to appear with the Sox stars – and to secure autographs and pose for photos. The Sox were the biggest story, the second biggest story and the third biggest story.

There were no media trucks – and only one reporter – to hear the four hours of emotional pleas for more money on behalf of vulnerable citizens who are finding it more difficult to get by in the face of government spending cuts. It was just that kind of week, one in which stories that might get top billing were suppressed by history in the making, and one in which fans wearing Red Sox gear got more attention than political candidates.

It's impossible to say conclusively how the surge of the Sox affects the legislative campaigns. But if you were an incumbent hoping voters would ignore the pleas of a challenger, you might have welcomed the obsession with the Olde Town Team.

President Bush earned a surprise, high-profile endorsement from now-legendary Sox hurler Curt Schilling. Kerry also sought to cash in on the Boston nine, sporting a Red Sox hat, and urging voters to "Keep the Faith," and never give up – the all-important lesson of the week. Ashland Democrat Karen Spilka, in a tough fight for a Senate seat, couldn't resist an opportunity to latch onto a winner. She wore a Red Sox team jersey to a campaign event outside the State House Thursday. The Democrats flanking Spilka did give the media a story to close out the week. Making unusual campaign appearances for candidates other than themselves, the state's top elected Democrats – Attorney General Thomas Reilly, Treasurer Timothy Cahill, and Secretary of State William Galvin – made a final dig at the Republican Party's campaign tactics that they say have brought state politics to a "new low."

• Reilly urges lawmakers to give illegal immigrants a break — Attorney General Thomas Reilly urged lawmakers to approve legislation that would give children of illegal immigrants a chance to attend college at the same cost as legal Massachusetts residents. Republican legislative candidates have used the issue to claim Democratic lawmakers are voting to allow illegal immigrants in schools. Reilly and other Democrats accused the Republicans of employing scare tactics. "To pick on people who can't fight back - that's absolutely wrong and it doesn't belong in politics," he said. The disputed legislation was included in the Senate's budget this year and would have provided a tuition break to those immigrants who spent at least three years of high school here and are seeking citizenship. Timothy O'Brien, executive director of the state Republican Party, criticized Reilly for supporting an "illegal" policy.

• Motor scooter bill delayed again — Legislation regulating the use and speed of motor scooters was stalled again this week after House members and aides determined the bill still has language problems. The bill has languished for weeks in the House over confusion about a single word that would make the law apply to Segway scooters. Opponents of the bill say Segways should not be regulated like motorized scooters because they are safer and are often used by those with disabilities. The bill was brought up for consideration during an informal session Thursday, but Reps. Anne Paulsen (D-Belmont), Alice Wolf (D-Cambridge) and House aides determined language differences needed to be worked out.

• State gets more flu vaccine, recipient pool restricted again — State public health officials have more flu vaccine on hand than originally anticipated, but it's not good news for all Bay State residents. The department further restricted eligibility for the limited vaccine for the elderly, pushing the age requirement from 65 to 75. Massachusetts is getting more than one million doses from the manufacturer Aventis Pasteur, 44 percent more than what officials reported. Massachusetts, like other states, is also "actively pursuing" additional doses from Canada and other countries, according to the state public health commissioner. The country is facing a shortage of the vaccine after one of only two manufacturers was shut down earlier this fall over concerns about possible contamination. Aventis shipped 600,000 doses to private entities in Massachusetts, in addition to the 407,000 doses currently being shipped to the state Department of Public Health.

• Budget season, again — Budget season is underway again as the Romney administration kicked off a series of health and human service hearings across the state. Families, advocates and patients testified on the need for stronger government programs in the areas of substance abuse treatment, state-sponsored health care benefits, and the protection of children, veterans, and the elderly. The administration is developing its priorities for its fiscal 2006 spending plan, which it will release in January.

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

MEMO TO BHRC SUBSCRIBERS: This week's report includes the roll call attendance records of your local senators. Some legislators may have poor attendance records because of a variety of reasons including health problems, family health problems or because they have been called to serve in the military. We do not ask each individual legislator why he or she may have missed roll call votes but it is something you may want to check out with legislators that have a particularly poor record. If we can be of further assistance, please feel free to contact us.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week. This week, BHRC reports local senators' roll call attendance records for the 2004 session through October 29.

The Senate has held 378 roll call votes. BHRC tabulates the number of roll calls on which each senator was present and voting and then calculates that number as a percentage of the total roll call votes held. That percentage is the number commonly referred to as the roll call attendance record.

Several quorum roll calls, used to gather a majority of members onto the floor to conduct business, are also included in the 378 roll calls. On the quorum roll calls, members simply vote "present" in order to indicate their presence in the chamber. When a senator does not indicate his or her presence on a quorum roll call, we count that as a roll call absence just like any other roll call absence.

LOCAL SENATORS' ATTENDANCE RECORDS

The percentage listed next to the senator's name is the percentage of roll call votes for which the senator was present and voting. The number in parentheses represents the number of roll calls the senator missed.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX (H 4219) The House gave near final approval to and sent to the Senate a bill amending a current law which exempts personal property in a taxpayers' primary residence from a city or town's property tax. Under current law, all personal property, including furniture, electronic equipment, antiques, jewelry and works of art are not taxed as long as they are kept in the home but a tax is imposed on any personal property which is on loan to a charitable organization. The bill would exempt the property on loan to the charity. Supporters said this legislation was filed in response to several cases including one in which a generous person loaned a 19th century piano to a museum and was subsequently presented with a property tax bill based on the value of the piano because it was no longer in his home. They argued that charitable loans should be rewarded instead of penalized. Opponents said it is unfair to the vast majority of taxpayers for the state to offer this tax break to a narrow group of wealthy people that own works of art and antiques. They noted that the Legislature in 2002 repealed a voter-approved ballot question that would help millions of taxpayers by giving them a deduction for donating money to charitable organizations.

WWII DAY (H 1201)- The Senate gave final approval to and sent to Gov. Romney a measure designating September 2 as World War II Commemoration Day to honor veterans who served in that war. The proposal provides for the ringing of church bells at 9:04 a.m. in recognition of the final surrender of Japan and the formal conclusion of the conflict.

ELDERLY ABUSE (H 1116)- The House gave near final approval to and sent to the Senate legislation requiring directors and outreach workers of local councils on aging to report suspected abuse of an elderly person to the state's Department of Elder Affairs. The measure adds these directors and workers to a long list of mandated reporters of elderly abuse including physicians, physician assistants, emergency medical technicians, psychologists, dentists, nurses, social workers, police officers and firefighters.

RELIEF FUND FOR MILITARY FAMILIES- The Taxation Committee held a hearing on a late-filed bill placing a checkoff box on state income tax forms to allow taxpayers to make voluntary contributions to a relief fund for Massachusetts families of National Guard and Reserve members. Supporters said that many of these soldiers are serving extended periods of time in Iraq and noted that the fund is used to assist their families that are struggling without the soldiers' regular income. They pointed out that taxpayers already are allowed to make voluntary donations on their tax forms to the Organ Transplant Fund, Massachusetts AIDS Fund, Endangered Wildlife Conservation Fund and U.S. Olympic Fund. They noted that a similar checkoff system has already been adopted by three states and urged quick legislative approval of the measure in order to allow donations to be made on 2004 tax forms.

ABANDONED BABIES- A new law allowing parents to leave their baby under the age of seven days at a police or fire station or hospital emergency room went into effect last week. The law, signed by Gov. Romney on July 30, provides that the state place the baby into the foster care system and begin the process of terminating parental rights. Other provisions require the state to publicize the new law, teen pregnancy prevention programs and adoption information. Supporters say that more than 40 other states have similar laws and argue that the measure would save lives and give young, scared mothers a choice. They argue that without this new law, unsafe abandonment or even the killing of babies would continue. Opponents say that the new law sends the wrong message by legalizing child neglect and abandonment for the first few days of a baby's life. They noted the state already provides ample opportunity to give up babies for adoption.

Hot House Press can write the book on helping authors

Norwell woman's novel is new release

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Finding a publisher to take on a book project from a first-time author can sometimes be a harrowing process. Without an established writing history or the celebrity to help encourage the media to promote the book, it can be tough to get the backing necessary to bring an idea from sheets of paper onto the shelves.

However, with his Cohasset-based publishing company Hot House Press, Cohasset resident David Replogle has changed all that, by bringing the publishing dreams of new writers to life.

Replogle has a long history in the publishing business and during his years as Executive Vice President for Houghton Mifflin, as well as CEO of Merriam Webster, Phaidon and Praeger publishers, Replogle said he met many talented authors. After he retired in 1992, he began doing consulting work for British and French publishing companies which were looking to set up their own companies in the United States, but he was still receiving many calls from talented first-time authors looking for help getting published. When he decided it was time to end his consulting days, Replogle embarked on a business venture which would allow him to use his experience to help budding novelists get their start.

"I wanted to help newer authors get their books published," said Replogle, adding he understands from working in the business for so long just how hard it can be for new authors to even have their manuscripts read. "We get dozens of submissions every week from authors all over the US and Europe," he said.

There are certain criteria Replogle looks for in a manuscript which lets him know it will be a success. Along with good writing and a good story, he one of the main considerations of publishing a book is its marketability. With a smaller publishing house, Replogle said it's more difficult to gain the publicity larger houses would receive, but marketing efforts for every book published by Hot House Press are national.

Under the direction of publisher David Replogle and Senior Editor Sally Weltman, Hot House Press helps new authors get their writing careers off the ground.

Most recently, Hot House Press published "Under Oath," by Norwell resident Margaret McLean. A courtroom drama set in Charlestown, Mass., McLean used her background as a Assistant District Attorney and criminal prosecutor, to craft a realistic story of murder, deception and suspense. "She had a real sense of how trials are run," said Replogle, which added to the authenticity of the story.

But getting to the point where the book was ready for publication was a process which began roughly one and a half years ago. When the manuscript arrived, Replogle knew it was a great story idea, but knew it needed more focus. With the help of Senior Editor Sally Weltman, the two began working with the story, sending it back to McLean for re-working, then completing structural editing and extensive copyediting.

"It's always an interesting challenge," bringing any book through the process, said Replogle. "Whether to entertain, educate, or inform, it takes a lot of work getting it into shape."

While a story might be first-rate, without an appealing design on the cover to draw potential readers in, even the most fantastic piece of writing could be bypassed. That is why every book which comes through Hot House Press has a professional designer working on help decide every possible design element from the most noticeable outside jacket to the cover of the book itself, all the way down to the print size and style and how to separate chapters.

As is usual during court proceedings, "Under Oath," begins with the statement, "Raise your right hand please." That simple statement was the artistic inspiration of the cover of the book — a black and white portrait of a woman's right hand, standing vertical, palm facing forward. "We wanted to get something that looked different, but was still appropriate," and by working with a photographer friend of Replogle's, based out of Florida, they got the photo they were looking for.

Before the book is actually ready for publication, proofs are printed and sent out three or four months before publication to anyone who requires an early read, such as those who might endorse the book, major newspapers and magazines, and other various media outlets. "There are lots of steps and it's a lot of work," said Replogle.

Once the book comes out, it's all about publicity which means book signings, readings, television and radio appearances, and interviews for articles. Where Hot House is a local publisher, many of the events held for books are local, with some in Boston, and some held right in town at Buttonwood Books and Toys.

Since Replogle began Hot House Press in 2000, the company has published 10 books and has six more scheduled to be printed next year. He said they publish every kind of book, from fiction, to non-fiction to educational. "We have a great time with our books," said Replogle, adding they've had a great time with every aspect of the business, including coming up with the name of the company.

Replogle explained for the past 100 years or more, general publishers have been known as "houses," for example, Random House, so he knew the name would need to incorporate the word house. "We thought, lets have some fun with it," and decided to name the company Hot House Press, with the slogan, "We grow good books," added for fun. "We can't take ourselves too seriously, but we do work hard," he said.

For more information on Hot House Press, please contact David Replogle at (781) 383-8360, or via e-mail at HotHousePress@aol.com. The Hot House Press Web site, which is currently undergoing construction, will be complete within the next few weeks and can be accessed at www.hothouse-press.com.

Boston baseball's early superstar lived in Hingham

Kelly was a legend on and off the field

By Matt Whorf
CORRESPONDENT

The 2004 baseball season is in the history books. And unless you've been cryogenically frozen inside a bubble, you're aware that, finally, the curse has been reversed, the Boston Red Sox are the World Series champions for the first time since 1918.

All of this might turn the thoughts of Red Sox fans to the many back pages of the team's long history, now just over a century old. Long-time fans and old-timers in particular might even offer unabashed reflections (even memories?) in long hours of conversation with friends, family and sports-radio talk show hosts, praising the legends of the last world-conquering Red Sox teams from way back in the 1910s and decrying the infamous sale of Babe Ruth to the New York Yankees by the beginning of the next decade. The exodus of Babe Ruth supposedly began the dreaded 86-year curse. (In addition to 1918, hometown Sox won the era's version of the fall classic for three other years during the decade, in 1912, '15 and '16.)

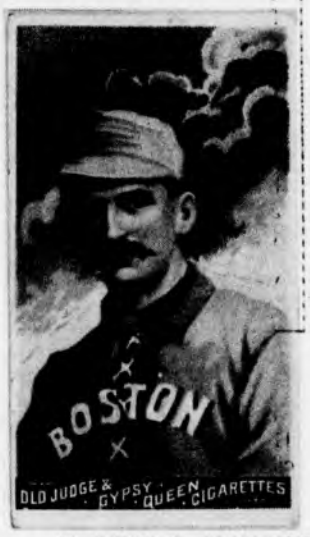
But would you like to time-travel even further back into Boston baseball history before the existence of the Red Sox that first saw the light of day as the Boston Pilgrims back in1901? Did you know the superstar of that time had a Hingham connection?

Yes, there was such an era, unbeknownst to probably most Red Sox fans today. This was the original baseball league era of 1876-1900, when there was only a National League (the American League officially began with the Pilgrims franchise as one of its original teams in1901), and when the Boston team was the Beaneaters (the predecessor to the later Boston Braves).

It was also when some of the game's more rugged, hardier souls on the playing field could play it on a gloves-optional basis, when it was not at all uncommon for players to shift around to any position from game to game, and when ballparks were more intimate, 5,000-to-7,000 seat venues, allowing for far more theatrical spoken interaction between players and fans during games.

This was also the era of Mike "King" Kelly, who is often considered baseball's first superstar...



This was also the era of Mike "King" Kelly, who is often considered baseball's first superstar — superstar in the sense of being not only an outstanding performer on the field, but also a colorful personality and fan-favorite, sort of the David Ortiz, or Reggie Jackson, of his day - and who figured prominently in all of the 19th-century baseball quirks and characteristics mentioned above.

"Mike Kelly was really the first true personality in the game of baseball," said Howard Rosenberg, an Arlington, Va. wire service report and baseball historian. "He was credited with inventing the hit-and-run play, although that has been questioned, but also, rightfully, with inventing the hook slide. He was just that much of a creative and innovative player on the field.

"And his personality was such that he was able to build that sort of instant, likable rapport with the fans," he said. "That personality additionally made him a natural in his off-season career as a popular theatre actor and performer."

A member of the Boston Beaneaters in 1887-89 and 1891-92, "King" Kelly (1857-94)was also a Hingham resident for a time in the early 1890s, as the star player's local admirers took action to arrange for a formal presentation of the house at 507 Main St. for Kelly and his wife, Agnes, in August, 1890. The house, which still stands today, has undergone much expansion and renovation over more than a century, but was a simple Greek Revival Cottage (a style resembling classical Greek temples) with several acres of farmland when the Kellys resided there.

Rosenberg is currently in the midst of a long-term project authoring a series of books honoring the legend and memory of 19th century baseball. The books are titled under the lead heading "Cap Anson," after the famous Chicago White Stockings player/manager who managed Kelly when he played for the multi-championship winning Chicago team from 1878 to '86.

A baseball trading card featuring Mike "King" Kelly.

The author's second book in his series, "Cap Anson 2: The Theatrical and Kingly Mike Kelly: U.S. Team Sport's First Media Sensation and Baseball's Original Casey at the Bat," focuses specifically on the life and career of "King" Kelly, combining Rosenberg's original text with pieced together reprints from the vast newspaper records of Boston and national sports and news media of the 19th century. The book is newly released by Rosenberg's own independent publisher, Tile Books.

Kelly's off-season career in the theatre included his many famous performance readings of Ernest Lawrence Thayer's 1888 poem "Casey at the Bat," which the author based partly on a Kelly incident.

Equally legendary are Kelly's hard-living, hard-drinking exploits off the field. The lifestyle eventually took its toll, however, and Kelly died of pneumonia at age 36 while en route by train to a theatre performance in Boston on Nov. 8, 1894.

"The whole notion that there is a rich history of Boston baseball up to1900 seems hard for people to realize today," Rosenberg said. "Baseball always seems to be very focused on the present, and in this era a lot of the pre-20th century history tends to be relegated to the history books.

"But with Boston being one of the great cities of history, I think that Boston fans in particular would be drawn to any focused, well-researched study of the city's baseball history before the Red Sox."

Rosenberg's book is available online at capanson.com and amazon.com

Williams is the genealogist of the Alden Kindred of America and works at the General Society of Mayflower Descendants in Plymouth.

The program is open to both members and non-members of the Historical Society. There is no charge for the program and light refreshment will be served.

Squares named after fallen servicemen

Herman Edward Daley is one of many veterans who have been honored by the town of Cohasset for their service. Of the roughly 250 Cohasset men and women from Cohasset who served during World War I, Daley is one of five who gave their lives, and have been memorialized with squares in town including:

- Sgt. George H. Mealy: intersection of Elm Street and South Main Street in the village
- Cpl. Lawrence B. Williams: intersection of South Main Street and Summer Street
- Pvt. John W. Sidney: the park at the intersection of Elm Street and Margin Street at the Cove
- Pvt. Joseph A. Gonsalves: intersection of Beechwood Street and Doane Street at Beechwood Corner friends as being a "genial lad, a good story teller, and jolly." He had many friends and was well liked by the other men in his regiment.

The mothers of Daley, Mealy, Williams, Sidney, and Gonsalves are memorialized at the Gold Star Mothers Monument at Woodside Cemetery.

In addition to fighting in battle, there were many personal obstacles Daley needed to overcome. Daley suffered from a fractured ankle as well as scarlet fever which put him in the hospital and off the front lines for approximately two months. Daley was discharged from the hospital in January 1918.

Daley kept a personal journal while overseas, and on Oct. 13, 1918 — the day before he died — he wrote that he had attended church in the morning and had heard the Germans had accepted President Woodrow Wilson's peace terms and were beginning to retreat. However, Daley's hopes for an end to the fighting ended the following day when he was struck in the neck with a piece of shrapnel and died in Fauburg Pave, France at just 23 years of age.

On the day of his death, one of Daley's friends, a fellow soldier, made the last entry into the book writing Daley had been "Mortally wounded by shrapnel and died before he reached the field hospital." Daley's body was buried first at Romague Cemetery, and was later returned to the United States and buried at Woodside Cemetery in Cohasset on Aug. 28, 1921.

Daley was the fifth and last man from Cohasset to sacrifice his life for freedom during World War I. His death was preceded by George H. Mealy, Lawrence B. Williams, John W. Sidney, and Joseph A. Gonsalves.

Chairman of the Veterans Memorial Committee Glenn Pratt provided the Mariner with the information for this article. Looking to surprise

Upset-minded booters roll into tourney

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

No one wants to play the Cohasset boys soccer team right now.

With eight key players lost to graduation or transfer from the 2003 team, it took a while for this team to "get it" collectively. But now that the players have "it", coach Rob Leary feels his team is primed to surprise a few higher seeds in the Div. 3 south sectionals, which got underway for the Skippers yesterday when Fairhaven came to town.

"I think we're playing a lot better right now than our record indicates," says Leary, who directed the Skippers to a 7-6-3 season, just one win over the magic .500 mark. "There could be some teams that take us lightly, with our record, so that might work in our favor."

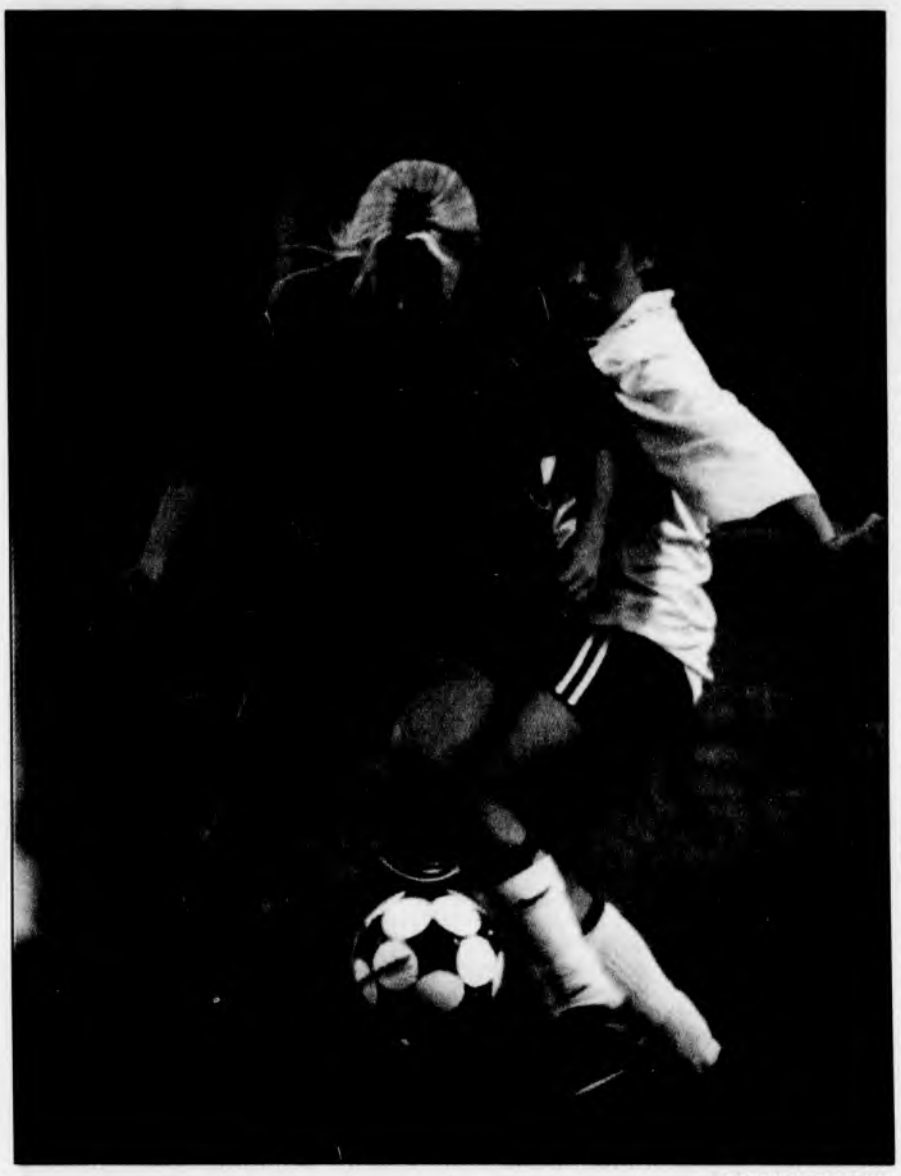
The Skippers earned the 16th seed in the Div. 3 south sectional tourney and drew a preliminary round home game with 17th seeded Fairhaven (9-8-1), of the very competitive Eastern Athletic Conference.

Should Cohasset have won this game, they'd hit the road on Sunday (2 p.m. start) to play top seeded Chatham (19-0-1), champions of a relatively weak Mayflower League. A second win would move the Skippers into the quarterfinals against either eighth seed Sacred Heart (13-4-1) or ninth seed Old Colony (12-5-1), two other Mayflower Old Colonywin here would pit them

"I really don't know much about Chatham or Fairhaven," said Leahy on Tuesday. "I do know I'm glad not to be in the bracket with (second seed) Cardinal Spellman or (third seeded) Ashland in the second round, though. Right now, though, I'd like our chances against a lot of teams."

Bold talk from a coach with a team that barely finished over .500. Clearly, though, Leahy feels he's got the horses that can back it up.

"It's like night and day between the way we're playing now and the way we played at the beginning of the season.," the second year coach offered. "We had a lot of kids playing new positions to start the season, and it took us all a while to figure out what worked best. Over the last few weeks, though, it's been like a series of things clicking into place for us."



Arguably, the player who best represents this dramatic evolution is senior captain Kevin Dinsmore. He was asked by Leary to move from outside middie to center midfield a few games into the season. He struggled at first making the adjustment from an up

CHS lady booters sneak by Holbrook to set up yesterday's tourney match at Fairhaven

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Deb Beal conceded earlier this week that she felt a little lucky to be preparing for yesterday's state tourney opener at Fairhaven rather than basketball season, the difference between the two options being a 1-0 win over Holbrook in Friday's regular season finale.

The third straight postseason berth for the Lady Skippers came down to Friday's hosting of Holbrook, a team that had already reserved its ticket for the Div. 3 state tourney.

Cohasset, as expected, carried the play on their home field, much larger than the Bulldogs familiar pitch, but the game remained locked in a scoreless tie past the midpoint of the second half.

Cohasset junior Emilie Shea scored what turned out to be the tourney clincher with 18:30 showing on the game clock, as she took a cross from sophomore Lindsay Durkin bounced it off Holbrook keeper Kristina

Hard work and commitment are what set Cohasset's James apart

By Evan Deutsch
CORRESPONDENT

We all have dreamed of it. The cameras flash, the crowd cheers, and your name spans across the cover page of Sports Illustrated. Would you give up this limelight to help out your team a little bit?

That's exactly what Junior Katie James has done for the Cohasset Field Hockey Squad. She opted out of the high visibility forward wing position and adopted the central midfielder post.

Both Head Coach Deb Bostwick and Katie recognize the midfield required a significant face lift.

"I needed more speed, power, stick handling skills, and heart on the middy line," reflects Bostwick. "Katie was the perfect candidate."

Katie embraces the new role without hesitation.

"I'm still adjusting to the change of pace," said an enthusiastic James. "You run more and score less. Not a glory position."

Her coach said James goes "all

Make that undisputed league champs.

The Norwell High golf team (8-2) needed a little help from Cohasset to win the South Shore League championship this fall. The Clippers fell to Harwich twice but twice beat Cohasset, the same team that beat Harwich twice…go figure.

Harwich had one other loss and Cohasset tied Mashpee, so the Clippers wound up with a league title all to themselves, followed by Cohasset and then Harwich.

Some might have liked to have put an asterisk next to that title, but the Clippers took a big step toward dismissing that notion when their top four play-

Cohasset gridders best not look past Abington tonight

When the Norwell High football team knocked off Abington last Friday, 38-23, the South Shore League went from a four to a three horse race.

Norwell improved to 3-0 in the SSL (7-1 overall), while Abington fell to 1-2 (5-3 overall). Cohasset, coming off a bye week, remains tied with Norwell for first place with a 2-0 record in league (7-0 overall). Hull (2-1, 5-2), another recent victim of Norwell, also remains in the Super Bowl playoff picture.

The Skippers' three remaining games, in order, are against Abington, Norwell and Hull. They'll be at Abington tonight (7 p.m. kickoff), host Norwell next Friday (7 p.m. kickoff) and also Hull on Thanksgiving Day.Even though Abington is coming off a crushing defeat at the hands of Norwell, Cohasset coach Tony Rolfe still considers the Green Wave a quality opponent, and is taking pains to keep his players from looking beyond them.

Lowe in a race to the ball and then tucked it by her off the carom.

"Sure, I'll say we got a little lucky," said Beal. "We had trouble finishing, as we usually do, and once we did, Holbrook really turned it on the last 18 minutes. We were holding on by our fingernails those last few minutes."

Junior keeper Melissa Crowley-Buck, who came on for Cecilia Chapman in the second half, made two big stops in the waning moments to preserve the win and close out the regular season with a record of 8-7-3.

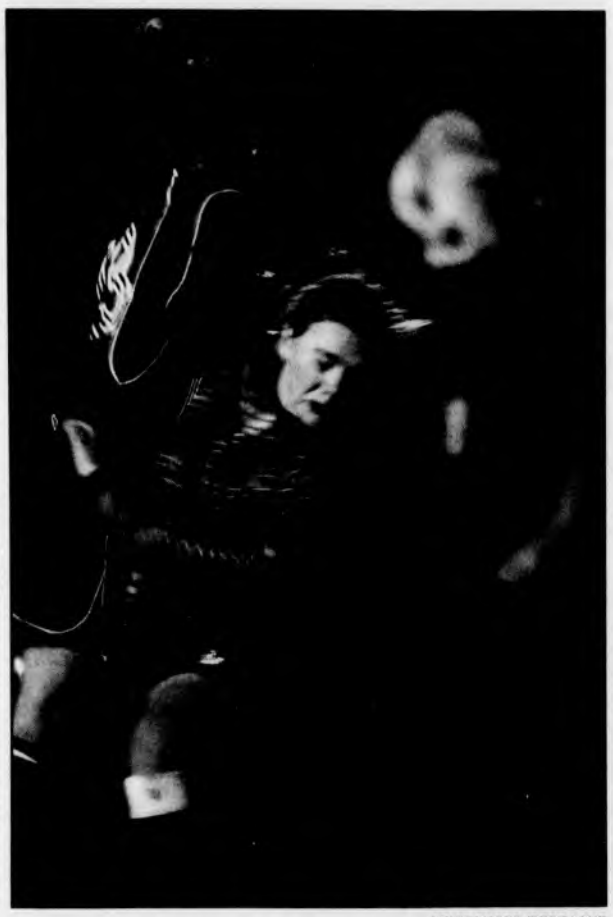
If the Skippers are to get past the first round of the postseason, something they've been unable to do each of the last two seasons, Beal feels they must shoot a lot more than they have in most games this year. Hence, the coach has run them through a series of shooting drills over the last week of practice and arranged a scrimmage with postseason bound Pembroke, coached by old JV coach Kara Connerty, in which Beal urged her girls to "take lots of offensive chances."

"I'm just trying to get the girls thinking more in terms of jumping on offensive chances," explained Beal. "We also need to keep up our intensity level. We had some pretty good intensity for senior night, but we've had trouble sustaining that in some games this year."

Senior Night

Even with the Holbrook game being critical, Beal stuck to the tradition of starting all 10 of her seniors—Chapman, Lindsey Kennedy, Casey Anderson, Daniele Hajjar, Nicole Whitney, Molly Kirk, Rachel Garber, Mackenzie Holway, Lauren Rizzotti and Christine Lovallo—for this, the final home game.

Coming on strong



A few individual players who've caught the coach's eye over the last few weeks of the regular season include Laura Novak and Katie Bolger

Novak, a sophomore, has won the starting stopper position with her steady play, and Beal pays her a wonderful compliment by saying she could be the heir apparent to standout center midfielder Nicole Whitney.

"Laura needs to work on changing speeds a bit depending on situations, but I think that will come with more experience and confidence," said Beal. "She playing very well lately."

Starting outside back Bolger, a junior, was set back a few weeks by illness early in the season, but she's been making up for lost time in a hurry, according to the coach.

"Katie has put herself into a starting position with hard work and real steady play," noted Beal. "She's really got all dimensions of her job down. She doesn't panic and just dump the ball out. She finds the right place to get it out to."

Youth lacrosse registration begins Nov. 13

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will open its sign-up for the spring season on Saturday, Nov. 13 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the auditorium at Town Hall.

This marks a shift in the way lacrosse registration has been run, and it gives families the opportunity to save some money.

Registrants on Nov. 10 will get the 2004 spring season price of $135 for one player and $250 for two. Registrants after November 10 - and sign-ups will remain open through a second in-person sign-up day in January will pay the 2005 price of $145 for one player and $270 for two.

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse is moving registration forward - it is being held simultaneous to Recreation Basketball sign-ups - to better prepare for the season ahead.

Registrations will be taken for both boys and girls in the 14 & Under (7th and 8th graders) and 12 & Under (5th and 6th grades) age groups. At the 10 & Under level (grades 3-4), Cohasset will field teams for boys and sponsor a weekly skills-development clinic for girls.

The youth lacrosse program is dedicated to introducing children to the sport. All players receive roughly equal playing time regardless of ability. Cohasset participates in the Mass Bay Youth Lacrosse League, the nation's largest youth lacrosse organization, which does not keep standings or have playoffs. Every team makes several road trips per year, which be as close as games in Scituate or as far away as Martha's Vineyard.

In addition, the program is hopeful of attending a jamboree near the end of its season, and is working to develop a special Memorial Day weekend program with teams from Vermont. The season ends with Cohasset's annual Family Day in June.

The youth program is likely to field 12 or more teams this spring, depending on demand and available coaching. In spite of that growth, roster spots at all levels will be limited and it is possible that some youngsters will be turned away.

"This year, we have changed our registration process in an effort to accommodate more families," says Chuck Jaffe, coordinator of Cohasset Youth Lacrosse. "We will have this initial sign-up in November, then allow people to mail in registration forms up until our final sign-up at the high school in early January. At that point, we're likely to be at our ideal roster sizes, meaning there will be no late registration whatsoever."

Parents who can not attend the Nov. 13 registration can wait until Jan. 8 to do it in person at the second sign-up day or can contact Jaffe by e-mail at CAJaffe@aol.com to request registration forms. Include your name, address and the number of children being registered.

The registration fee includes a uniform and a youth membership in US Lacrosse, the national governing body for lacrosse. US Lacrosse membership includes mandatory insurance coverage and a subscription to a magazine especially designed for kids. Cohasset Youth Lacrosse does offer discounts to families with two or more players; the once-a-week girls 10-and-Under clinic costs $100 per player and this year, for the first time, clinic players will receive US Lacrosse membership.

The program is limited to Cohasset residents.

In general, both boys and girls games are played Sunday afternoons. The spring practice schedule has not yet been set, although the older teams for both boys and girls typically have two practices and one game each week. The teams will begin practicing indoors in early March and begin playing games in April. The season concludes in mid-June.

In addition to players, the program is looking for additional coaches at all levels.

Lacrosse is a contact sport; at all levels for boys, practices and games include hitting. In accordance with Mass Bay Youth Lacrosse League rules, all boys must be equipped with sticks, gloves, shoulder and elbow pads, and helmets with mouthpieces. Hockey helmets are not allowed, although hockey arm and shoulder pads are (hockey gloves are not flexible enough to allow a child to manipulate and control a lacrosse stick).

The girls game has less contact, but practices will be every bit as physical and demanding as for the boys. All girls must be equipped with sticks, mouthpieces and approved goggles.

There will be more information on the Cohasset Youth Lacrosse program available at the Jan. 10 sign-up. If you need more information, or are interested in volunteering to coach, contact Jaffe at 781-383-9858 or CAJaffe@aol.com.

Seventh grade booters returns to winning ways

On a chilly, wet Milliken field, the Cohasset 7th grade boys returned to their winning ways with a 4-1 victory over Scituate last Saturday.

A quick goal by speedy forward JoDi Rosano put the team in the lead, but Scituate came right back to tie the score. Strong play up the middle from Brendan Doonan, Ollie Forrer and Andrew Littauer turned the tide in Cohasset's favor as Forrer netted a goal to put the team up to stay. Later on Andrew Littauer secured the win with two of his remarkable scoring blasts from outside the penalty area.

"Our strength up the middle makes us a tough team to beat, especially when we get a lead," said Coach Jack Dean after the game. "And when they try to get around us to the side they run into Joe Leighton or Tyler Durant who consistently get control of the ball and feed it right back up to our forwards."

Also solid in the win were the defensive trio of Andrew Graham, James Earle and Will Evans, with Evans playing well in goal in the first half.

"Another key to our success is the steady play of guys like Nick Cannon, Sam Game and Jackson Dean who rarely get caught out of position and consistently make good decisions with the ball," said Coach Dean.

The team's final game of the fall season will be at Milliken Field on Saturday at 3 PM against Stoughton.

The Mite's face-off Saturday in Bridgewater against Pembroke.

Mite C-2

The Coastal Stars Mite C2 team played to a 4 – 4 tie against the Seahawks on Sunday at Hobomock arena. For the third straight week the game was decided in the final seconds with Jo Jo Carbone scoring the game tying goal with just 40 seconds left.

Derek Benson got the game started with an unassisted goal in the first period. Brian Mathews, Ben Rice, and Jo Jo Carbone also had good scoring chances in the period.

The Stars "Red" line of Tucker Antico, Evan Antonucci, Harrison Sheldon, Andrew Kuppens, and Seamus Ryan played solid defense through out the first period against a much bigger Seahawks line preserving a one to nothing lead at the end of the first period.

The Stars "Blue" line had a number of scoring chances in the second period which culminated in a goal by Gunner McKenzie to make the score 2-2. After trailing 4 – 2 mid way through the third period, the Stars "White" line of Kyle Bowman, Mathew Johnson, Brian Mathews, Shaelyn Tobin, and Ben Rice applied consistent pressure on the Seahawk with Ben Rice scoring a nice goal to bring the Stars within one before the final shift.

With two minutes left in the game the Stars pulled goalie Chris Phillips who was once again stellar in net. Gunner Mackenzie, Jo Jo Carbone, Mats Nelson, Robert Bothwell, Derek Benson, and Kyle Bowman kept the puck in the Seahawks zone and had several scoring chances prior to Jo Jo netting the game tying goal.

Duxbury 2, Stars 1

The Coastal Stars Mite "C2" team lost a hard fought game on Sunday 2-1 versus Duxbury. The Stars goal was scored by Brian Mathews with an assist from Shaelyn Tobin.

Matts Nelson played a stand out game on defense breaking up numerous scoring chances by Duxbury. The Stars "Red" line of Seamus Ryan, Evan Antonuccio, Tucker Antico, Cole McKenzie, and Harrison Sheldon played a solid game in support of Chris Phillips who was stellar in goal.

The line of Robert Bothwell, Shaelyn Tobin, Andrew Kuppens, Brian Mathews, and Mathew Johnson, had several break away scoring chances keeping the puck in the Duxbury zone for most of the game.

Kyle Bowman, Gunner Mackenzie, Derek Benson, Jo Jo Carbone, and Matts Nelson moved the puck well in the Duxbury zone demonstrating a free flowing offense resulting in a number of quality scoring chances. For the second time in two weeks, the game was decided in the last two minutes with the Stars pulling its goalie and keeping pressure on Duxbury until the last second.

Mite B

The undefeated Costal Stars Mite B team scored early and often. At 6:03 of the first period, Patrick Graham streaked down the right side of the ice and sent a laser pass to Curtis Golden who shot a one timer past the Mohawk goalie. At 5:44, Robert Reidy picked off an errant Mohawk pass, split two defenders and whistled a wrist shot into the top right corner. Thirty seconds later, Michael Lund skated from center ice, avoiding a mosh pit of Mohawks, shifted to the right face off circle and went 5 hole. Don't leave your seat fans, @ 4:30 Graham broke up a play in front of his own goal and sent a blind pass up the boards to a rocket called Bryan Bowman. Bowman didn't waste any time shifting left to right as he rifled a shot from 30 feet that found the back of the net in a hurry.

At 8:04 in the second frame, Tucker Ambrose created his own opportunity by digging the puck out of the corner, avoiding two Mohawk defenders and sent a top shelf shot past the out-stretched Mohawk goal tender. With one minute remaining in the second period, Graham sent a saucer pass to his line mate, Lund, in the slot. Wasting no time, Lund roofed his second goal.

At the second period intermission, when asked about his unselfish play, Graham said, "A point is a point whether it's a goal or an assist." At 10:57 of the 3rd period, Graham did the scoring this time – "Just a point". At 9:40 Tucker Ambrose netted his second goal with Golden and Graham in on the assists.

Matty (Prime Time) Doyle scored @ 8:55 unassisted for the first score of the final period. At 5:58 Sam Rice broke up a Mohawk drive and sizzled a text book pass to Bowman who then scored his second goal of the day. At 4:33 Declan (The Enforcer) Leahy collided with an opposing player leaving the puck for Graham (6 pt. game) who fed Bowman –to-Rice for a picturesque left corner shot. On defense Redfearn and Evitts defended an all out Mohawk attack helping Stars goalie Kal Maier to keep his shutout intact. At 2:59 Doyle scored with assists from Ambrose and Golden. With just over a minute to play James (The Crusher) Hussey busted up a Mohawk break-away which resulted in another goal->Lund to Reidy. Final score: 12-0.

Squirt A

The Squirt A Coastal Stars improved their record to 6-1 with a gritty, 5-1 win over Brockton. The Stars jumped out front at 3:43 when Neil Conway gained control of a faceoff outside the Brockton zone and gave it to Jonathan Spitz, who fed Mike Carbone on the right. "The Sniper" carried the puck to the slot and fired to the top right corner. Early in the second, Kevin McDougall rushed the puck to the Brockton blue line and dished to Carbone. Carbone found Patrick Burchill on the right, and Burchill passed across to Jake Durkin. Durkin lifted a pretty pass to the streaking Carbone for a score into the open left side. Chris Carpenter, Patrick Burchill, Kevin McDougall, and DJ Evans killed penalty at the 8:00 mark and put short-handed pressure on the Brockton defense. With thirty seconds left, Neil Conway stole the puck and passed to Mike Carbone at center ice. Carbone broke over the blue line with Jonathan Spitz on his left and fed him in the slot. Spitz' wrister was inside the left post for the 3-0 lead after two. EJ Culhane padded the lead early in the third with a beautiful rush from his blue line down the left side. Culhane skated in front and went top right. Brockton then created some pressure, and scored at 6:30 on a break. Dan LeBlanc helped to stop the pressure with his strong defensive play in front of the net and in the corners. Chris Carpenter was denied on a rush down the left side, and Trevor Salmon's setup to John Ryan was saved. Ryan showed great hustle on the play by following the puck to the corner and fighting to get control. Salmon, Ryan, and Carpenter continued their aggressive play and crashed the net for a rebound, but they were stopped in the crease. Alec Hurd played a great game in net and was immense down the stretch, especially on a point-blank shot to the right post that he got with the skate. Patrick Burchill iced the cake when he followed a Jake Durkin rebound to the right corner and fired it in from a seemingly impossible angle with five seconds left.

Stars 4, Canton 2

Neil Conway led the scoring with a hat trick, and goalie Connor Maher anchored the defense in the Squirt A Coastal Stars' 4-2 win over Canton. Maher, EJ Culhane, Dan LeBlanc, DJ Evans, and Kevin McDougall kept the Stars in the game early with their stellar defensive play. Jake Durkin and the Stars' forwards helped to stifle the Canton attack with dogged backchecking. The Stars' offense, particularly the line of John Ryan, Trevor Salmon, and Chris Carpenter, had early chances, but the Canton goaltender proved to be a tough riddle, and the first period ended scoreless.

Canton got on the board first at 1:30 of the second period. The Stars knotted the score a few minutes later when Chris Carpenter passed to Jonathan Spitz, who fed Conway in the right circle. Conway moved in and fired to the top right corner. A minute later, the Stars took advantage of a power play opportunity. DJ Evans passed out to John Ryan on the right side. Ryan skated down the boards and fed Trevor Salmon in front for a shot to the top left corner. At 7:43, Dan Leblanc kept the puck in the zone to Mike Carbone. Carbone threaded a pass to Neil Conway in front. Conway's shot was saved, but he banged home the rebound for the 3-1 lead after two.

The Stars had near misses into the third period. Patrick Burchill's shot from the right circle glanced off the glove and hit the post. Jonathan Spitz' rebound goal was waved off on a crease violation. Meanwhile, Maher was awesome in net, stopping a flurry of shots from in front and denying a 3-on-0 break. Canton came within one at 7:37. But Neil Conway stole the puck in the slot a minute later and rifled his third goal over the goaltender's left shoulder. Canton pulled their goalie for the last two minutes. Maher made another brilliant stop on a wraparound attempt. Patrick Burchill remained snakebitten, as his shot at the open net was called back for another crease violation. Maher made a final save at the buzzer, and the Stars skated off with the win.

Squirt C-4

The Coastal Stars Squirt C-4 team rebounded from a frustrating loss last week to defeat Cape Cod 5-0. The win marked the first shutout of the season for Stars goalie Max Hemingway.

The Stars controlled the puck and dominated the play during the first period. Stars forward James Daley put the Stars up 1-0 with a blistering shot beating the stunned Cape Cod net minder. Later that period, Daley scored his second goal with an assist from Matt Tautkus.

Four minutes into the second period Stars forward Matthew Tautkus scored the first of his two goals with an assist from defenseman Nicholas Craig. Stars forwards Andrew Tautkus, Michael McPartlin and Liam Rose were solid offensively and slowed the Cape Cod attack with outstanding back checking.

The third period began with a goal from winger Ryan Melia assisted by Stars left wing Jonathan Gardner. Matt Tautkus scored his second goal to end the third period. Stars defensemen Thomas Coyne, RJ Neuls, Nicholas Craig and Tristan Wiggin kept the Cape Cod forwards in check with strong defense in their zone helping to preserve the shutout for Stars goalie Max Hemingway and down wing man to the role of essentially quarterbacking the offense, but he has made steady gains and is now at the point where Leary considers him perhaps his most irreplaceable player.

Coastal Stars netmidner Pat Healey is ready for Plymouth's shot, while Mike O'Halloran and Carter Denton get ready to clear in front of Healey. The Coastal Stars PeeWee "C3" won this contest, 11-2, on Saturday, Oct. 20.

"I told the whole team after we finally clinched the tourney spot that they should thank Dins for carrying them on his shoulders the last few weeks," said Leary. "Bottom line, Kevin is one of the toughest kids I've ever been around. He just stuck with it, and willed himself to do this job."

The coach went on to raise the level of praise even further, as he compared Dinsmore to Garrett Bates, the center middie for the 2003 Div. 3 south sectional champion Norwell team, a player most Cohasset fans no doubt remember well.

"Kevin really has been reminding me of Bates lately with the way he's attacking the game," said Leary. "He might not be quite as skilled as Bates, but he's just a notch below that. He plays the game wit hteh same relentless and tough style."

Even the 4-2 loss to Patriot League power Hanover (13-4-1), the eighth seeded team for the Div. 2 south section, in Friday's regular season finale represented a continuation of the steady progress the Skippers have been making over the last few weeks, in Leary's mind.

Hanover scored first in this one on a breakaway resulting from a through pass many in attendance felt was a clear off side violation. The Host Indians scored their second a few minutes later, but Cohasset top scorer Aidan Buick and Dinsmore sandwiched tallies around and early second half goal from Hanover to make it a 3-2 game, as it remained for the balance of the second half. The Indians finally scored the insurance goal inside the final five minutes to put an end a good deal of suspense.

"I thought we actually outplayed Hanover for good stretches in that second half, and had as many quality opportunities as them to score, maybe more," asserted Leary. "Win or lose, I felt this was a great confidence builder for us heading into tourney."

While the coach was quick to point out that he's seen progress across the board from his team and individual players , there were still a few players he made a point to single out for praise.

Leary continues to refer to his three man defensive unit of Sam MacDonald, Trevor Brady and senior tri-captain Jonathan Littauer, as "our anchors," and also lauded the way senior keeper Prescott Busk has jelled with this unit.

Up front, Buick continues to be the focal point of the offense, but Leary noted the emergence of players like hard working senior outside middie John Grimm has helped to take a modicum of pressure off Buick down the stretch.

All Stars

Four Skippers—Buick, Dinsmore, MacDonald and Brady— were named league all-stars by the South Shore League coaches and took part in Wednesday's annual SSL-Patriot League all-star game at Duxbury High Thursday. The Patriot League won the game, 5-0.

On the mend

The Skippers were expecting a lift against Fairhaven with the return of senior captain Sam Steele. The talented middie went down with a sprained knee two weeks ago in a huge 5-2 win over Norwell and has missed the last few games.

out, all of the time".

"We would have struggled without Katie this year," commented the veteran coach. "She displays a terrific work ethic. She is really the quarterback of the midfield."

Katie recognizes the important role persistency plays in success. In the summer, she runs daily to prepare for the three sports season. During the school year she leads the basketball and softball teams when the field hockey season ends.

"Field hockey plays a big part in my life," says the dedicated junior. "I love the feeling of being part of a team." When she graduates in 2006, she hopes to play Division 3 field hockey at a university in the Boston area.

In addition to her athletic performance, James also excels in academics and frequently makes the honor role. Eventually she wants to combine her love for science and athletics by majoring in nutritional science.

Katie's extra-curricular activities mirror her first rate athletic and academic achievements. In the summer she repairs and rebuilds distressed homes as part of the Appalachian Service Project. She makes prominent contributions to the school's Social Awareness Club. After school she works part-time at CVS and lifeguards at the town pool in the summer.

Perhaps one of Katie's greatest achievements lies in her consistent participation in the Girl Scouts Program. As part of her commitment, James has organized her own field hockey camp in Cohasset. For her actions she will receive the Gold Award, an equivalent to the Eagle Scout award.

Katie's close friend and teammate, Erin Liddel, sums up Katie's personality in a nutshell. "She has a great sense of humor, and is always there for you as a friend. At the same time, she knows when to roll up her sleeves and get to work."

Cohasset senior captain Tim Pilczak, a South Shore League all-star, will certainly be missed next season.

ers dominated a league wide field on Carver's home Souther's Marsh Golf Club last Thursday.

Norwell sophomore Cody Cavicchi shot the second best score of the day with a 75—just one stroke off the score of Carver's Sean Osborne on his home course—and senior captain Mike Dempsey was third with a 76 to lead the Clippers to 10 stroke win.

Sophomore Brendan Gilligan came in with a 79 to close out Norwell's scoring with 230 points, well ahead of both host Carver and Harwich, both with 240 scores.

"It was a very satisfying way to end out season," said veteran coach Ken Camerota. "We had four players who were very close to one another at the top of the lineup all year, and this kind of reinforced the quality of depth we had there."

Cohasset golfers didn't have their best day, as they finished fourth with a score of 248, followed by Mashpee (252) and Abington (260).

Each of the six teams in the South Shore League sent their top four golfers to the league meet, with the low three scores counting at the end of the day.

Cohasset sent sophomore Kevin Barber and seniors Colin Magruder, Tim Pilczak and Chris Simms. The former three golfers were also named as South Shore League All-Stars by vote of the league's coaches at tourney's end.

The Skippers qualified for state sectionals this fall for the first time since 2001 by finishing with a record of 7-2-1 in league play (8-5-1 overall), good for second place in the South Shore League. After not making the postseason cut the previous two years, Sweeney considered this season an unqualified success.

"I was pleased with the way we played on the whole," said Sweeney. "Other than that one stretch we had a few weeks ago where we lost three straight matches, and., of course, those two losses to Norwell, I thought this was a great year.

"I was happy with the way we had guys stepping it up at different times when we needed it. Our seniors were steady and did what they needed to. I'm getting back one of the best golfers around in Barber, and the way (dan Sullivan) Sullivan and (Mark) Bouchard played down the stretch I feel pretty good about the top of my order next year."

The team will lose nine seniors in all, including regulars in the rotation Magruder, Pilczak, Simms and Ricky Lordan.

Two other seniors who made their presence felt were Brian Bolger and Dan Allen. Both played big hands in the team's regular season ending 30.5-23.5 win over Quincy, Bolger winning his match, 6-3, and Allen his, 7-2.

The other three going the way of the caps and gowns are Brendan Ford, Andrew Lovallo and John DeWaal,

Potential returnees Sweeney will be looking toward to step into starting roles include junior Mike Devlin and sophomores Steven Simmons, Zach Murray and Owen Stevenson.

Prepare your gardens for winter weather

GREEN THUMBS UP

SUZANNE MAHLER

Every effort should be made to rake these drifting autumn leaves frequently until all our deciduous trees have shed their foliage. While this leafy covering may be Mother Nature's way of providing a protective winter mulch, a prolonged accumulation of leaves can actually be detrimental to many plants. The broad leaves of maples and even the smaller leaves of cherry, birch and a wide variety of shrubs are likely to mat together when they become wet. The presence of a dense layer of damp leaves can quickly suffocate underlying grass or plants and reduces air circulation around the base of shrubs which may eventually promote diseases in addition to providing an ideal refuge for foraging rodents. Instead, the leaves that have been collected can be selectively put to use.

Intact oak leaves are ideal for filling in burlap or wire protective barriers that may have been constructed to reduce desiccation around roses and hydrangeas once their foliage drops. Other types of leaves may be best used after they have been shredded with a leaf-eating device or lawnmower. This will help them to decompose more rapidly when composted or turned into gardens to bed. Plants that have entered dormancy are best cut back to 3 to 4 inches tall. A heavy-duty hedge shears can effectively reduce a jungle of dead foliage to a neat and tidy border in minimal time. I prefer to remove the majority of decomposing refuse and add it to my mountainous compost heap to minimize suffocation or diseases and damage that may be done by slugs, snails, insects, voles and chipmunks. Most perennials will easily survive our winters without a cover of mulch although fall transplants will often benefit from a light winter mulch over their root systems once the ground freezes. Be on the lookout in the coming weeks for plants that may have heaved due to alternate freeze-thaw cycles.

Most South Shore residents have enjoyed an extended growing season this year having eluded the hard frosts typical of mid-October. Once killing frosts finally blacken the foliage of tender annuals and vegetables and the leaves of perennials become brown and crispy, it is time to start the process of putting the

Before chopping all your waning plants to the ground, take a moment to observe and analyze the plants.

Before chopping all your waning plants to the ground, take a moment to observe and analyze the plants. Some seed heads and foliages provide winter interest by contributing texture, motion and sound to the dormant landscape including those of ornamental grasses and sedums. Other seed heads, especially those of coneflowers (both Echinacea and Rudbeckia), asters and goldenrod, produce seeds loved by many bird species including chickadees, titmice and goldfinches. Selective pruning of unattractive, decaying foliage will maximize the appearance of evergreen perennials and shrubs, fruit-bearing plants, and attractive seed heads.

After the borders have been trimmed and raked, lime and an organic fertilizer such as Espoma's Plantone or MNLA Plant-O-Ganic can be broadcast throughout the borders. An inch or two of shredded leaves, manure, or compost spread around perennial plants as a winter mulch later this month will gradually decompose and work its way into the soil during freeze/thaw cycles providing valuable organic material; care should be taken not to bury crowns or cover evergreen rosettes or foliage. Similarly, new beds or vegetable gardens will profit from the addition of lime and several inches of organic matter which can be turned in to improve drainage, moisture and nutrient retention, worm populations, and an overall enhancement of the soil. When spring arrives, soils will be ready for early planting.

Lawns require only an occasional mowing until the grass eventually stops growing later this month. Mower blades should be gradually lowered from midsummer heights to approximately 2 inches by your last mowing. An application of lime at any time during the fall is beneficial and early November is an ideal time to spread a winterizer fertilizer to promote a healthy root system and an early greening of the lawn next spring.

'Enchanted Evening' to glitter at YMCA

From left, Jaime Sullivan of Pembroke and Pam Keefe of Scituate, both YMCA committee members for Friday's "Enchanted Evening at Centre Court" with Valerie King of King Jewelers in Cohasset that has donated the grand prize for the event.

More will glitter than evening stars and twinkling lights at the South Shore YMCA's Mill Pond facility in Hanover on Nov. 6. King Jewelers of Cohasset has donated a diamond tennis bracelet as the grand prize in the evening's Champagne Raffle. Located on the indoor tennis courts at the Branch on Mill Street, the Y's "Enchanted Evening at Centre Court" aims to surpass the $125,000 raised at a similar event last year.

According to the Y's Linda Brown, the event has a dedicated committee of volunteers that works tirelessly to make the event a success. Event committee members gathered many contributions from local businesses that will be part of the live and silent auctions. Ticket sales have been brisk and several hundred guests are expected.

This year, King Jewelers was invited to participate and is honored to serve as the "Royal Hosts" of the Champagne Raffle. "We are thrilled to help with the work of this wonderful organization," said Valerie King, treasurer of King Jewelers. "The Y accomplishes so much for the South Shore Community that benefits everyone. It is exciting to be part of the highlight of the evening. We hope our donation of a diamond bracelet will encourage everyone to participate and give generously to this great cause."

Reminiscent of earlier times, the courts will be bedecked in greens and purples. This will add to an ambiance suggesting lawn tennis, large shady porches and flower trimmed courts of a past era. The evening's activities will include a silent and live auction, food and drink, remarks from those assisted by the organization's programs and the announcement of the winner of the diamond bracelet.

Committee members Pam Keefe of Scituate and Jaime Sullivan of Pembroke stopped by King Jewelers recently to discuss the event and express gratitude on behalf of their organization. While there, they previewed the diamond bracelet.

Sullivan spoke about the good works of the YMCA. "The Y helps everyone," she said. "When the Y becomes aware of a need in the community, it finds a way to help. There is something for everyone. It is building a stronger community. It has been great to find out that so many people are willing to help. We are so grateful to King's for their donation."

The "One in Three Teen Initiative" is a program that will be supported by this gala. The Y is committed to "provide meaningful services" to at least "one in three teens on the South Shore." An ambitious vision, this goal is part of the "Strong Kids Campaign" which creates meaningful opportunities for thousands of local children and their families.

For more information about the event, please call: 781-837-8585 x 224. For information about the jewelry, please call King Jewelers: 781-383-1755.

DESTINATIONS

New England slopes will offer more this season

By MICHAEL O'CONNOR

Skiers and snowboarders bound for New England slopes this season will find more of what they love: new trails, lifts and expanded base lodges, from the Berkshires to Mount Washington Valley and beyond. The biggest news is in Maine, where it will be even easier to reach the winter mountain resorts.

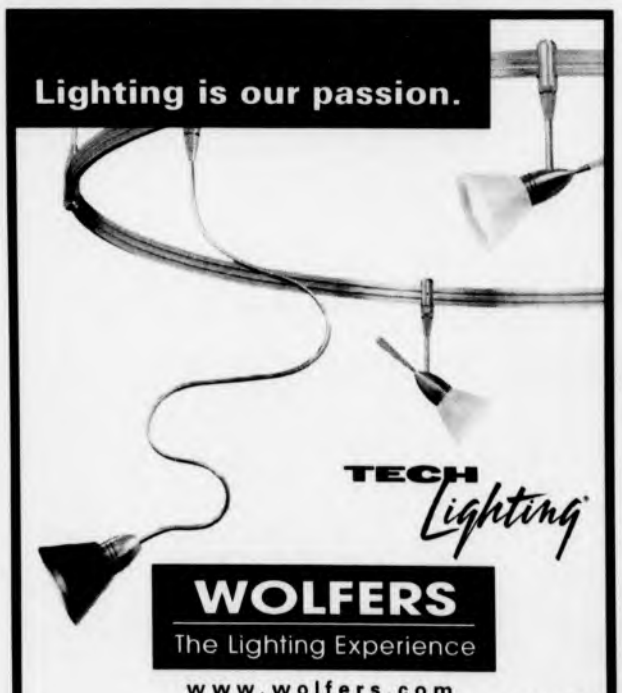
MAINE

The three chief ski routes to the Pine Tree State, Interstate 95 to Portland, and routes 26, 27 and 302, which run northwest into the mountains, have all been either expanded, repaved or otherwise improved. And the resorts they lead to have become even shinier. Saddleback, which towers over the lakeside town of Rangeley, has long been a sleeping giant in the western mountains of Maine. No longer. Last season, new ownership initiated a massive renovation of the ski area; $7 million was spent during the summer. The area has increased snowmaking capability to 80 percent of terrain, which will guarantee better cover no matter what the weather. Weekenders also will appreciate the new hotel under construction (completion set for the beginning of the '05 season). The goal is to join the big-mountain ranks of in-state rivals Sunday River and Sugarloaf. Visitors to Saddleback will hardly recognize the base lodge, which is being expanded to three times its current 10,000-square-foot size. Ski tourism officials are hoping the Saddleback renaissance will spur even more interest in the western part of the state. "It all means a lot more beds in our market," said Greg Sweetser of Ski Maine, a state skiing consortium.

At Sugarloaf, Saddleback's nearest neighbor, snowboarders and skiers alike will want to head for the new Superpipe. Longer than a football field, it replaces the existing arena. The new pipe runs on the former Gondi Line trail, one of the steepest on the mountain. Sunday River, Sugarloaf's sister resort within the American Skiing Co. fold, has completed upgrades of the two flagship hotels, the Grand Summit at the base and the Jordan Grand, located at Jordan Bowl. In addition, the Bethel area resort so popular with Greater Boston skiers and riders has completed renovations to its South Ridge and Barker Mountain lodges. Taking Route 302 from Portland up to Shawnee Peak, one finds the ski area fitting in quite nicely as an alternative to the Mount Washington Valley destinations just across the border in New Hampshire. Shawnee also now has a halfpipe located right in front of the base lodge, the easier for parents to cheer on — and keep track of — their young superstars. Over at Black Mountain in Rumford, check out the new triple chair, which increased the area's vertical from less than 500 feet to more than 1,000.

MASSACHUSETTS

Out in the Berkshires, Jiminy Peak in Hancock has added four trails, a halfpipe and a terrain park. The new trails are designated for beginners and intermediates, while the "pile and park" will sate the appetites of riders and free skiers both. Closer to Boston's western suburbs, Wachusett Mountain in Princeton has announced the completion of its Victory Bowl terrain. The new intermediate trails will include snowmaking and feature lights for night skiing, all just off Route 2. "A new Zaugg pipe groomer will bring our halfpipe to a new level," promised Wachusetts spokeman Tom Meyers.



NEW HAMPSHIRE

At New Hampshire's Waterville Valley, "adventure zones" have been created, which Karl Stone of Ski New Hampshire said, "are little oases of mogul fields or easy glades that are designed to give the whole family a taste of what free skiing is all about. Kids and even their parents can work their way up from there. Skitubing — riding inflatables down specially constructed snow chutes — is a growing draw at many resorts. Cranmore in North Conway continues to be a leader and now will be hosting Saturday night parties at the terrain and tubing parks. Loon Mountain, a sister resort to Cranmore and Waterville, has the advantage of being a two-minute drive off I-93 in Lincoln (you'll hear as many Boston accents at this destination as you will in Brighton Center). But it also offers plenty of on-mountain treats, including the Camp 3 lodge on the mountain's north shoulder, where a new sun deck will no doubt attract a midday crowd. At Bretton Woods, just west of Crawford Notch in the midst of the White Mountain National Forest, the new Rosebrook Summit will keep intermediate and advanced skiers and riders happily occupied. There's a dozen new trails and glades, all serviced by a high-speed four-passenger chairlift. This new terrain adds a more challenging experience to this huge, family-oriented mountain resort. Across Franconia Notch, Cannon Mountain has added a new beginner area, featuring an interactive theme, based on the wildlife of the White Mountains. Cannon is located in one of New Hampshire's most picturesque regions, bounded on one side by the village of Sugar Hill and on the other by the spectacular Notch. It's worth a visit whether you're a winter sports enthusiast or not.

VERMONT

Stowe has billed itself as the nation's winter sports capital since the von Trapps set up innkeeping in the nothern Vermont valley after World War II and racing great Billy Kidd emerged a decade later. But a new ski resort is emerging from the exisitng one as Spruce Peak comes into its own with a pair of new chairs, a new beginner trail and a boost in snowmaking. Look for more base area expansion (not to mention expanded real estate) as that side of Stowe blooms. "They have just done a ton of work up there," said David Dillon of the Vermont Ski Areas Association. "Things are really going well." Farther north, Jay Peak also continues to evolve and expand, with more glade terrian opening up for those who love the trees. On the hill, more than 50 condos and townhouses are being built, to complement two golf courses. In the Mad River Valley, Sugarbush has added 40 acres of glades on Mount Ellen, and one can now purchase a season pass for that area alone. At neighboring ski area Mad River Glen, home of retro skiing for purists and traditionalists, the theme for this season is continued trail maintenance to keep the mountain experience as consistent as possible. "Nothing fancy," said mountain manager Nate Martin. "Our skiers just want to come and have a great skiing experience. Our job is to make sure everything works, from the bathroom to the (legendary) Single Chair." At Killington in central Vermont, the Beach terrain park has been moved to West Mountain, home of the party hearty crowd. An expanded resort village is also in the works. Ludlow, situated on the pristine Black River, is one of the loveliest ski towns in New England and we can all thank Okemo for that. The former mom-and-pop hill has evolved during the past two decades into one of the premier winter resorts in the Northeast, with 115 trails and 18 lifts. Its profile has been enhanced by the addition of Jackson Gore, a mini-resort unto itself with trails, lifts, restaurants, a base lodge and hotel. Two more glade trails have just been added. Speaking of plunging through the birches and maples, Stratton in Vermont's southern tier has increased its glades by 30 percent with a new, hand-cut trail.

LISTEN To Life

by John Klefeker, BC-HIS

Board Certified-Hearing Instrument Specialist, MA Lic. #127

INSIDE YOUR INSTRUMENT

Regardless of instrument style, there are three types of circuitry inside hearing instruments. Analog/adjustable circuitry is built in a laboratory to meet the specifications set forth by the hearing specialist, who retains some flexibility to make adjustments. With analog/programmable circuitry, the hearing specialist uses a computer to program the hearing instrument, which will accommodate more than one program or setting. If the instrument is so equipped, the wearer can change the program to accommodate a given listening environment. A digital/programmable instrument is programmed with the use of a computer by the hearing specialist who can adjust the sound quality and response time on an individual basis. A computer chip provides this type of circuitry with the greatest flexibility.

If you have a hearing loss, you are missing more than just the understanding of words. Hearing keeps you in touch with the world, lets you respond to sound, and reassures you of changing surroundings. After age 50, a regular hearing test should be considered as important as a yearly physical checkup. FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER offers comprehensive hearing services by a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist at 534 Main Street (Rt. 18), across from the Stetson Building, in Weymouth, including testing, evaluations, fittings, a full line of hearing instruments, accessories, follow-up support, and repairs. Don't suffer in silence - call us at 781-337-1144.

P.S. When deemed appropriate, wearing two instruments may help balance sounds, improve understanding of words in noisy situations, and make it easier to locate the source of sounds.

School budget could be short some $500,000

But officials aren't discussing the issue publicly

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

With memories of a $400,000 school override still fresh in the minds of Cohasset residents — the schools could still be $1/2 million in the hole this fiscal year.

In a memo sent to Town Manager Michael Buckley, Supt. Denise Walsh stated, "I have identified a number of line items that appear to be significantly underbudgeted for FY'05. The underbudgeted amount may be as much as $500,000."

However, the apparent deficit did not take center stage at the School Committee meeting last week, the Selectmen's meeting Monday, or the Advisory Committee meeting Wednesday.

"How are we going to dig ourselves out? Where is the money coming from?"
— Selectman Ronnie McMorris

Walsh, School Financial Assistant Karen Park, and the School Committee (minus Chairman Rick Shea) came before Selectmen Monday to discuss school department requests for the Dec. 6 Special Town Meeting.

The schools will be asking for $93,000 to cover an unpaid gas bill which surfaced as FY04 came to a close June 30, as well as $65,000 in unbudgeted unemployment costs. In addition, the schools are asking for $15,000 to purchase a used pickup truck with low mileage, to replace a truck currently used by the schools which would have been costly to repair and may not have passed inspection.

At both the Nov. 4 School Committee meeting and the Nov. 8 Selectmen's meeting, only the FY04 costs were discussed, but Walsh mentioned at both, there were areas of concern where items had been significantly under-budgeted for FY05, which began July 1.

According to Walsh's memo,

Sewer battle looms

Cook Estate article is on the warrant

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

If this week's Selectmen's meeting is a gauge, then voters at the Dec. 6 Special Town Meeting can expect heated debate on whether to allow the Cook Estate project into the Central Sewer District.

What is shaping up is the potential of pitting the housing needs of the town's senior citizens against the demand for sewer capacity from existing homeowners and other proposed developments.

The Dec. 6 Special Town Meeting Warrant will include an article asking the town to include the Cook Estate – which is slated for a roughly 95-unit senior housing community – into the central district, over the objections of at least one selectman.

Selectman Chairman Michael Sullivan and Selectman Ronnie McMorris both voted to include

Turning another page in Cohasset's history

New book has a lot of 'punch'

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Its the little known facts about a town which help set it apart from others, and Cohasset's past is full of interesting tidbits. Many residents may not know American independence began with a boundary dispute in Cohasset, or that the First Parish Meeting House was a Revolutionary ammunition depot. It is also probably not a well known fact that Cohasset Harbor had five shipyards and 14 wharves, and was home to the first lifeboat station in America.

To help bring these little known facts to life, Jacqueline Dormitzer and the Committee on Town History are compiling a new hardcover book titled "A Treasury of Cohasset History." The book, which is slated to be roughly 236 pages, will serve as a complement to the three volumes of the town's history, and will be available in January.

Register to vote

Friday Nov. 26 will be the last day to register to vote in the upcoming Dec. 6 Special Town Meeting. Registration sessions will be held at the Town Clerk's office on Nov. 26 from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m. Any citizen of the United States who is a Massachusetts resident and who will be 18 years old on or before a town meeting or Election Day may register to vote. There is no waiting period to be eligible to register to vote. If you move, you may register to vote as soon as you move into your new home. Registration is closed for a brief period before each town meeting and election to allow election officials time to prepare voting lists. If you register during a "closed" period, you will be eligible to vote only in later meetings or elections. For more information, please contact the Town Clerk's office at (781) 383-4100.

Selectmen change meeting schedule

Beginning this Friday, candidates for the Town Manager position will be in Cohasset for a whirlwind weekend interviewing process. Friday, the five finalists will take a tour of the town, followed by dinner. Saturday, all five will be interviewed by the Town Manager Search Committee, which will narrow the pool down to three finalists. At that point, the names of the final candidates will become public, and Tuesday Nov. 16, the Selectmen will meet to interview the candidates in open session.

In light of the interviews, selectmen will hold their regular meeting Thursday Nov. 18. Items slated for that agenda include the MBTA, the Planning Board, and the Community Preservation Committee. On Monday, Nov. 22, selectmen may meet with Town Counsel, to discuss the sewering of Little Harbor citizens' petition as well as the recall vote citizens' petition, which will both be on the Town Meeting Warrant. Discussion regarding the article which would allow the Cook Estate into the Central Sewer District may also take place that night. Times for the meetings were not finalized when the Mariner went to press. Please call the Selectmen's office for more details at (781) 383-4105.

School strategic planning answers

School Committee member Jamie Williams said in light of the commentary she wrote regarding the Strategic Planning Session, which ran in the Oct. 29 edition of the Mariner, many people have had questions regarding how the individuals were selected to be on the committee.

She explained when the idea to begin strategic planning for the future of the schools was introduced, a subcommittee of the School Committee was formed, which included School Committee member Rick Flynn, Supt. Denise Walsh and Williams, and together they decided it made sense to have the principals of the three schools, the financial director for the schools, the special education director, the chief of police, teacher representatives — who were suggested by the teachers' union — and the PSO recommended two parents to serve as community representatives. She said after some additional discussion, the subcommittee also decided it would make sense to have two representatives from town government, and a member of the Advisory Committee was asked to participate as well as the town's financial director, who is also currently serving as the Town Manager. It was also decided the town should hire Touchstone Advisors to help with the planning process and facilitate the meeting.

Williams said the weekend session, which took place Oct. 22 and 23, went very well. "We had a wonderful working relationship," she said of the committee, adding, "It was exciting to be a part of it."

DPW asks for new vehicles

Town Meeting will be asked to approve a capital request for roughly $61,000, to pay for two new DPW vehicles. One would be a 3/4 ton four-wheel drive pickup truck with a utility body and plow for the maintenance department, and the other would be a 3/4 ton four-wheel drive pickup truck with a plow for the Department of Public Works. Both trucks will be run on diesel.

DPW Superintendent Carl Sestito said employees have been working with hand-me-down trucks from both the Water Department and the Sewer Commission, and replacements have become necessary.

Sestito said because the trucks operate around town, "It's the hours, not the miles," put into the vehicles which are the problem. He said usually, it's the body that gives out before the engine does. While he said the department also needs a dump truck with a plow, given the financial circumstances in the town, the department will work with the truck it has to keep it on the road for one more year.

Audit is underway

Melanson Heath & Company, PC of Andover began conducting a forensic audit for the town last week that is expected to be complete by the first of the year.

Selectmen ordered an audit when allegations surfaced that former Administrative Assistant to the Town Manager, Nicole N. Bartlett, is the subject of an investigation amid allegations she stole more than $200,000 from her former employer, the Children's Museum in Boston, by depositing unauthorized payroll checks into personal accounts. Bartlett was also responsible for the payroll in Cohasset, and an internal investigation began shortly after her resignation Sept. 27.

Selectmen said although it is hard to set a budget for an audit, as it will all depend on whether the firm finds anything financially amiss and must stay longer, the firm has said its hourly rates will be between $45 and $185. The Advisory Committee has approved the allocation of funds.

Committee openings

There are openings for residents on both the Metro Area Planning Council and Cohasset Common Historic District Commission. Residents must live on the common to become a member of the Historic District Commission. Interested residents for either opening are asked to contact the Selectmen's office at (781) 383-4105.

School budget could be short some $500,000

areas include transportation, cleaning/custodial services, tuition reimbursements for professional staff, special education tuition, and legal fees. In addition, the $93,000 shortfall for gas charges will need to be included in the budget moving forward, as will the $65,000 for unemployment costs.

"This isn't great accounting," said Selectman Ralph Dormitzer, adding when budgeting began for FY05, the logical thing to do would be to budget based on the past. "It's about time we got a handle on where we are."

Dormitzer also said while some of the costs, such as utilities, are a direct result of the expansion of the buildings, there should be no reason the schools weren't prepared to take on the increased costs. Dormitzer added, Strekalovsky and Hoyt, the architects for the school construction project, gave the schools good estimates in terms of the amount of utilities they were expected to use after construction. "They weren't far off," Dormitzer said, but still the amounts have been under-budgeted.

Based on the history, School Committee member Adrienne MacCarthy said people didn't know the estimates would be a real number. "Nobody believed it would happen," she said.

In addition, with the increase in size for the schools, they are being used more often, which School Committee member Chartis Tebbetts said requires lights to be on more often. "We want to reassure the community we are addressing the issue, but we can't have dark buildings," she said. In addition, the One Source cleaning company works at night, which also requires the lights stay on a little longer.

In terms of the unemployment costs, Town Manager Michael Buckley said the town is billed by the Commonwealth, and the average Cohasset employee collects roughly $14,000. Last year, the schools had six people who collected. "It's very difficult to budget," said Walsh.

School Committee member Jamie Williams said she has seen Walsh and Park working hard on the budget and while there are issues, she believes they are getting to a point where the situation can be remedied. She said the town realizes "We cannot underfund fixed costs," which is a cycle that is being broken, and she thinks the next step is to "Dig out of this hole and move forward."

However, Selectman Ronnie McMorris replied, "How are we going to dig ourselves out? Where is the money coming from?"

Walsh said that was a matter to be discussed Wednesday.

Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan said going forward, he would like the School Committee think about the cost when hiring or firing employees. He said when the schools hire someone, there is a cost to the town because it pays for the benefits for that individual. In addition, if an employee leaves, that doesn't mean the cost associated with that person completely goes away, as someone needs to pay unemployment. "Everyone needs to be aware of the costs incurred," he said.

Buckley said as of right now, one recommendation he has is to put the money for both the unemployment costs and the outstanding Keyspan gas bill into the reserve fund, which will require the Advisory Committee give permission before the money can be spent.

FY05 budget issues

Walsh said during the Selectmen's meeting that FY05 would be discussed in detail at a joint meeting of the School Committee, Advisory Committee, and Board of Selectmen Wednesday night. But that discussion did not occur during the posted meeting.

According to a FY05 budget analysis, dated Oct. 19, 2004, which Walsh provided to the Board of Selectmen Nov. 8 — but was not discussed in detail during the Selectmen's meeting — school transportation costs were under-budgeted $57,671.

Custodial services are also under budget by $84,220, which includes a $71,047 shortfall for contracted services with One Source, the company the town has contracted with for cleaning services, as well as a $17,096 shortfall for head custodian pay.

Tuition reimbursement, which is required by contract, was not included in the FY05 budget, and the school department must therefore come up with $70,000 to cover those costs. In addition, column changes, which are also required by contract and were not budgeted, will require coming up with an additional $55,000.

The budget analysis also states there are two pending special education placements, pending at $175,000 each, of which the state will pay a portion. There is currently $766,083 budgeted for special education tuitions.

Legal fees are under budget by $28,300 — $8,300 of which deals with collective bargaining and $20,000 is for hearings in process. The budget analysis said there was no budget for special education legal expenses, for which there are at least four hearings in progress.

Separation costs add up

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

During calendar year 2003, Malvey received $134,872 in salary and wages, and was the highest paid employee of the town.

Upon their departures, former Supt. Edward Malvey, former Business Manager Ivan Klimko, and former high school principal Michael Jones received payment for accrued vacation. Malvey also received longevity pay even though he was only with the school system for six years.

The separation costs were not budgeted for and totaled roughly $48,000.

According to the teachers' contract — which does not include administrators — after 15 years, a teacher has the option of receiving a $3,000 longevity bonus for each of the last three years they have worked in the system, or a lump sum of $9,000. Malvey, who worked in Cohasset for roughly 6 years, was paid $27,588 upon his departure, which according to town records includes one check for $18,588 that would be roughly seven weeks' pay, as well as an additional $9,000.

Klimko, who had worked for Malvey since 2001, received $10,791 when he left, which is a little more than six weeks' pay. Klimko's position was cut in half due to budget constraints, and Karen Park was hired to take his place. In addition, Michael Jones, who had worked in Cohasset since 2000, was given $9,438 when he left Cohasset to become principal of Lexington High School, which is the equivalent of a little more than four weeks' pay.

During calendar year 2003, Malvey received $134,872 in salary and wages, as was the highest paid employee of the town. Jones and Klimko made $101,196 and $93,724, respectively.

Police Chief Robert Jackson — after 25 years with the police department — took his vacation pay over a period of six weeks rather than in one lump sum, which is why he continued to receive roughly $1,615 per week through Sept. 17. He then began receiving severance pay, which lasted for six weeks.

Jackson's retirement in June was not immediately effective, as he agreed to stay on to help new Police Chief James Hussey through the transition period. Jackson worked until late July.

Former Town Manager Mark Haddad received about 6 months pay – or $50,000 – when he resigned in May.

Although the school budget deficit was supposed to be discussed at a joint meeting including members of the Advisory Committee, School Committee, and Board of Selectmen Wednesday night, budget talks were limited to the Chairmen of those boards, as they met in closed session prior to the open meeting.

Supt. Denise Walsh, School Financial Assistant Karen Park, School Committee Chairman Rick Shea, Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan, Advisory Committee Chairman Donna McGee, Advisory Committee member Bernadette Faulkner, and Town Manager Michael Buckley met in closed session before the 7 p.m. scheduled meeting. Without a quorum of any board, the meeting was not required to be posed according to the Open Meeting Law.

Discussion during the open meeting briefly touched on budget issues, but not those of the school department. Walsh said during the Nov. 8 Selectmen's meeting the FY05 budget trouble would be discussed in further detail at the joint meeting.

In a memo addressed to Buckley dated Nov. 2, 2004, which was provided at the end of the School Committee meeting Nov. 4, Walsh states since taking on her role as superintendent July 1, she has "identified a number of line items that appear to be significantly underbudgetd for FY05. The underbudgeted amount may be as much as $500,000." In addition, the schools are still making up for deficits from FY04, which the schools have come forward with and have asked to be included on the Town Meeting Warrant. However, the details regarding the FY05 shortfall have not yet been discussed at any open meetings.

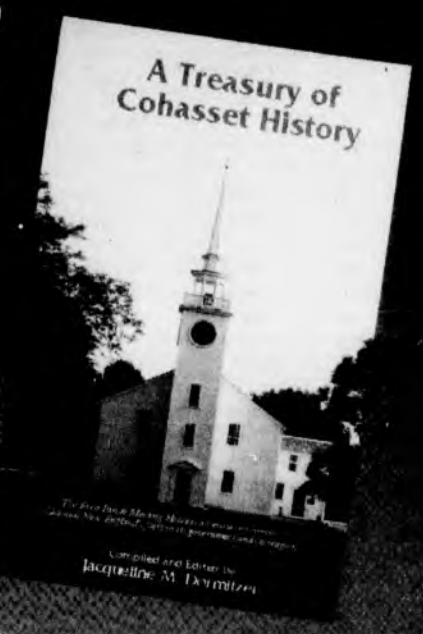
across articles and various pamphlets about the town during the course of her research for the Narrative History of Cohasset Volume III. The information she found either pre-dated the time period she was covering, or didn't quite fit into the chapters, but she knew it was worthy of setting aside for future use. "It was so happenstance," she said about the way she came across the information, but since then, "I've put it all together, organized it, and I've done some editing," she said.

Dormitzer has also written brief narratives to go along with the articles, to give readers some context. She said one of the most interesting facts about Cohasset is the story behind "Cohasset punch," which was distilled in Chicago. She said it was in fact a real beverage, which may have been a combination of rum and soda, although no one is quite sure. Although the Committee does have an archival bottle of the mixture, there hasn't been anyone daring enough to try it.

Dormitzer said a Cohasset resident used to make batches of Cohasset punch, which became a popular drink. People would serve it at local parties. However, when its inventor moved to Chicago, "They brought the secret recipe with them," she said. Dormitzer said there are still some people in town who remember when the beverage was made in town.



The book will be printed as an anthology, covering Cohasset events from the end of the ice age to World War II.

The book will be printed as an anthology, covering Cohasset events from the end of the ice age to World War II. The Committee on Town History plans to digitally publish the book, as a complement to the town's three volumes of history. Due in part to Dormitzer's volume three history, of which nearly 2,500 copies were sold, the project will be fully funded by the Committee on Town History book account. The account has also supplied the money for the digital re-publications of volumes one and two of the history, as well as the Cohasset schools' continuing first grade and middle school social studies curriculum timeline, history panels, and map reproduction.

When voters head over to Cohasset High School's Sullivan Gymnasium to attend Town Meeting Dec. 6, members of the Committee will be promoting "A Treasury of Cohasset History," and will be taking orders for the book. The book has a publication date of Jan. 1, 2005 and orders taken before the publication date will be given a discounted price of $22 each. Books purchased after Jan. 1 will be $26 each.

New cruisers, police equipment on the docket

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

On the road 365 days a year, 24 hours a day, it isn't long before a police cruiser hits the 100,000 mile mark and needs replacement.

Police equipment such as handcuffs and holsters also need replacing. Raincoats should also be uniform, said Police Chief James Hussey, as part of a presentation to Selectmen on police department needs this week.

Hussey will ask Town Meeting to approve the allocation of $56,000 for two new cruisers. Police recently acquired a new cruiser, which was approved in last year's budget. But Hussey says the department still needs to replace the two others. The department has a total of five marked cruisers.

"These are cars you want to be able to travel at a high rate of speed," said Hussey, adding when a police officer needs to get to the scene of an emergency quickly, the car the officer is driving needs to be reliable.

"They're emergency vehicles. We can't have them breaking down," he said.

Hussey said police cars usually last for roughly two to three years. He said it is good to have one car as a backup, which is used less often and may last longer.

Hussey said in municipalities where he has previously worked, new cruisers have been built into the operating budget which allows for a set replacement schedule. However, he realizes with the financial state of the town, they may need to be included as capital expenses and purchased when the money is available. "I just want whatever is best for the town," he said.

Town Manager Michael Buckley said, "In a perfect world, you budget two cruisers every year in the operating budget." He added with a fleet of eight vehicles which will need replacing every two to three years, new cruisers should be a recurring cost that is planned for. [The chief and detective have unmarked cars and there is also a police SUV for a total of eight including the five cruisers].

However, Buckley added he is "not very optimistic about FY06 at all," and thinks the town might be wise to keep the items as capital expenses for now, purchase the two cruisers, and wait to purchase any more until FY07.

Hussey said the 500-page manual with revised rules and regulations on police procedures should be professionally printed (35 copies) and put on a CD ROM, for a total of $3,200.

"I think that's definitely something we should do," said Selectman Chairman Michael Sullivan.

Hussey also said he would like roughly 25 new pairs of handcuffs at roughly $30 each, for a total of $750 as well as new raincoats for the officers. Hussey explained money has not been allocated for new raincoats in the past, and officers have bought their own, meaning different department members are wearing different color raincoats. He said the coats should all look the same and have "Cohasset Police" written across the back. Contracts require officers are provided with the appropriate equipment, which includes the handcuffs and coats. Hussey said he would like 20 raincoats at 50 inches long, which would cost $4,120, and 20 coats at 30 inches long for $3,200.

"These are cars you want to be able to travel at a high rate of speed."
— Police Chief James Hussey

There has also been a change in firearms at the station, and Hussey said officers need new safety holsters for.40 caliber firearms as well as safety belts. He said some officers have bought their own holsters, but by contract the department needs to provide them. Twenty-five holsters and belts would cost $4,750.

One item Hussey requested which may not make it to Town Meeting this year are five mobile data terminals. He said because the department has only one on-duty dispatcher, who also covers the fire department and is responsible for greeting those who come in to the station — the terminals would help relieve some of that pressure. By having data terminals in the cruisers, officers could do their own checks on the computer and file their own reports while in the field, freeing up some of the dispatcher's time.

Hussey said when the train comes to town, things will get busier and there could be pressure to hire another dispatcher. Having mobile units could alleviate that need. "It could be cheaper in the long run," he said.

The mobile units, which could be bought once then transferred to different vehicles as cruisers are replaced, would cost the town $78,993 for five. Hussey said the major portion of the expense is due to the licensing required and the software for the units, rather than the hardware, meaning it would not be advantageous to purchase less than five because the licensing will cost the same no matter how many units are purchased.

The Town Meeting Warrant has not yet been printed, and the police capital expenses request may change before then. Currently, the article has been accepted for the Warrant, but selectmen have not yet made a recommendation for the specific items it will entail. Town Meeting will be held Monday Dec. 6 at the Sullivan Gymnasium in Cohasset High School. Warrants will be mailed out to individual homes prior to the meeting.

Sides could square off in sewer battle at Special Town Meeting the proposed article on the Warrant, stating it is the board's responsibility to bring it forward to the people.

However, Selectman Ralph Dormitzer said he was opposed to accepting the article, as he believes it will legally put the town in jeopardy. Selectmen Fred Koed and Rob Spofford did not attend Monday's meeting.

"I think this will open us up to endless litigation. It's a Pandora's box," Dormitzer said.

Sewer access is a hot issue in town. Little Harbor-area homeowners have been waiting for years for the sewer. And two proposed developments, the 200-unit Avalon and 105-unit Cedarmere projects, which sought sewer connections before the Cook Estate, are still looking for capacity.

With myriad issues currently surrounding the sewer, "I can't see bringing this kind of thing before the town," Dormitzer said.

"I think this will open us up to endless litigation. It's a Pandora's box."
— Selectman Ralph Dormitzer

But McMorris accused Dormitzer of having "tunnel vision" and said the project will bring in tax revenue and will also serve as housing desperately needed to keep seniors in town.

Without a sewer connection, the Cook Estate senior housing project will not move forward.

The Senior Housing Committee and Council on Elder Affairs have joined forces to back the article which would set the stage for sewering the project, which is hamstrung without a wastewater solution.

Testing has concluded soils at the Cook Estate, located on Sohier Street, cannot support an on-site wastewater disposal system. When it became clear on-site disposal would not be an option, developers from Northland Residential, the company the town is working with to build on the site, applied for a sewer connection. Their first application was denied this April, and a second application was denied the first week of November, both times due in part to the fact that the property is not located in the district.

'Senior project' sewer option surfaced earlier

Connecting the Cook Estate project to municipal sewer is a route the town began exploring only a short time ago after on-site soil tests conducted this spring concluded soils could not support the proposed senior housing development.

However, correspondence dating back to 2002 shows the town considered the sewer as a possible means of wastewater disposal for senior housing in the past.

• On Jan. 22, 2002, Sewer Commission Chairman Gary Vanderweil wrote to the Massachusetts Housing Partnership regarding preliminary discussions held with the Sewer Commission, Cohasset Senior Housing Committee, Board of Selectmen, and former Town Manager Mark Haddad to discuss construction of up to 50 units of senior housing in town. The letter stated: "Based on planned renovations to our wastewater treatment plant, the Commission has determined that adequate capacity exists to accommodate a project of this type and size." The current commission maintains there is no wastewater capacity at the central plant.

• The Board of Selectmen met in executive session on June 3, 2003 to begin discussion regarding the possible acquisition of the Cook property, and according to executive session minutes, Selectman Ronnie McMorris asked for a clarification on the Sewer Commission's intentions to allow a sewer hook up for the property. Selectman Michael Sullivan then suggested scheduling a meeting with the Sewer Commission and Planning Board to discuss the town's option's further.

• On June 10, 2003 the selectmen met again in executive session with members of the Sewer Commission and Planning Board to discuss the potential purchase more thoroughly. Although the minutes are limited in their detail, those present discussed the best way to deal with "neighborhood concerns."

• As planning progressed, the Cohasset Water Commission shared its thoughts about the site. In a confidential letter dated September 2003, which was leaked to the Mariner, the Water Commission states "depending on the location of the wastewater discharge site, there will be similar concerns to the Avalon development," because of the nitrogen loading. (The Water Commission is currently appealing Avalon's comprehensive permit, which would allow the site to be built, saying it feels the project could have an adverse impact on Lily Pond, the town's drinking water supply.) Avalon is a proposed 200-unit 40B senior housing project, slated to be built on Route 3A.

At the time the letter was written, it was assumed the Cook project would have roughly 85 units of housing and an on-site system. The Water Commission states the project would be expected to discharge roughly 388 pounds per year of nitrogen, and even if the project was reduced to 66 units and allowed to use septic systems, it would increase the nitrogen load. Even with an alternative treatment system on the smaller development, the Commission said the nitrogen for the site would be increased even more, not to mention the nitrogen from roadway runoff which needs to be accounted for.

• This April, it was announced that the Cook Estate property would not be suitable for an on-site wastewater system. In a letter dated April 7, 2004, David Rosen of LandVest sent the town an update on the findings from the town's hydrogeologic study, performed on Cook soils by Coler and Colantonio. The hydrogeologic study was performed as a requirement for filing a groundwater discharge permit with the Department of Environmental Protection. The permit is required for any project which will discharge more than 10,000 gallons of wastewater per day, and the Cook Estate will generate roughly 15,000. Rosen informed the town that the soils were not considered favorable for DEP approval, and added, "Furthermore, the results show that the likelihood of receiving local approvals for a handful of single family homes is questionable as well."

Developers for Northland Residential, which is working with the town to build on the Cook Estate site, say they have always been pursuing the project with the intention of somehow finding a way to dispose of wastewater without a municipal sewer connection, and have exhausted every alternative means of disposal.

Unpaid Tutela sewer bill is before voters

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Clogging cassettes and citric washes due to faulty sewer pumps have eaten up the Sewer Commission budget.

Therefore, Town Meeting voters will be asked to pay $18,179 to Tutela Engineering Associates, consulting engineers for the Sewer Commission. The unpaid bill – included in Article One — includes services provided between May and July of both 2003 and 2004.

Commission Chairman Raymond Kasperowicz explained due to problems the board has had with a company that manufactures sewer pumps, the commission has spent the money needed to cover other expenses, leaving some Tutela bills unpaid.

Kasperowicz said there have been problems with the pumps provided by Interon Corporation which have required much repair. The town has experienced clogging cassettes, which have resulted in the need for more frequent citric washes.

Tutela started charging $140 an hour in May, up from $135. The $18,179 bill is a relatively small sum in comparison to the amount the town has paid Tutela over the 10 fiscal years from FY'95 through FY'04.

According to town records, between FY95 and FY04, Tutela Engineering Associates was paid $8,391,052 by the town. Boards who used the services of the company included the Sewer Commission, Water Commission, and Board of Selectmen. While the Sewer and Water Commissions have utilized the company's expertise every year, selectmen did not use its services in fiscal years 1995, 1996, 2002, 2003,or 2004.

During those years the town installed the North Cohasset sewers and expanded the Central District, including upgrading the treatment plant. The Water Department also replaced aging water mains to upgrade the system and built a new standpipe.

Of those 10 fiscal years, the Sewer Commission paid $5,225,223 for Tutela's services, while the Water Commission paid $2,944,555 and the Board of Selectmen paid $221,275. The Sewer Commission's highest expenditure was $1,137,891 in FY00. In FY04, the Sewer Commission paid $180,236, while the Water Commission paid $704,648.

The current unpaid Tutela bill breaks down as follows:

• The May 4 through May 31, 2003 invoice totals $3,244. Costs include Zenon upgrade set-up, off loading, and scheduling, as well as chemical cleaning placement and installation.

• From June through July of 2003, items included coordinating letters to the Department of Environmental Protection regarding Interon as well as various coordination of Interon related-items, project status reports for the Elm Street wastewater plant, and providing flow information for various areas around town. Costs for that period total $3,240.

• The invoice for May1 through May 29, 2004 is for $4,090 and includes hours for assembling Board of Health testing information and analyzing Lily Pond sampling reports, coordinating railroad sleeve information with Town Manager Michael Buckley, and discussions and e-mails relating to Interon problems. The board was also billed for two hours for a review of the Provincetown bylaws, which would have dealt with the Home Rule Petition article the board was slated to include on the Warrant.

• The invoice from May 3 through July 3, 2004 totals $7,603 and most of the charges involve Tutela Senior Project Consultant Daniel Coughlin's work on Town Meeting Warrant articles. Fourteen hours were billed for research and drafting of by-law and Home Rule Petition language. Six hours were billed for meeting preparation and meetings with Town Counsel regarding the Home Rule Petition and bylaw review. At least 10 hours were billed for reviewing Town Counsel's revisions to the Home Rule Petition and bylaw.

• In addition, Tutela has billed five hours for reviewing a US Filter contract amendment, and an additional two hours for a contract amendment back-up. Tutela also charged for three hours to review letters to be sent to Cohasset residents not connected to the town's municipal sewer system.

Cohasset couple displays work at Norwell's James Library

Exhibit has Italian flavor

By Matt Whorf
CORRESPONDENT

"A View of Italy," the current exhibit in the James Library gallery, is actually two views, categorically speaking.

The exhibit features two artists, the Cohasset wife-husband team of Kimberlee and Richard Alemian, who combine their talents and creative views via the respective media of painting and photography. Despite the minor technical misnomer of the title, the show lives up to the duo effort of its format, as the Alemians present their collective view of eye-catching scenery — both natural and architectural — gathered from a September, 2003 trip to Italy's Lombardy area from distinct individual perspectives.

"A View of Italy" is on view in the James Library gallery through Nov. 30.

Artists of all media are, in a certain given sense, traditionally drawn to the traditions, such as those inherent in the rich native history of Italy in this case for creative inspiration. This particular attraction seems just what has drawn the Alemians to the Old Country as well.

"Italy is always very unique. The whole color, shade and tone of the country's overall scenery are just different from anyplace else," said Richard Alemian at last week's James Library show opening.

In distinction from her husband, a semi-retired orthopedic surgeon, Kimberlee Alemian is the more career-based of the two artists. A Painting BFA graduate of Massachusetts College of Art, with an MFA in Painting from Boston University, Visual Arts Division, Kimberlee is currently an artist member with both the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset and the North River Art Society in Marshfield.

Kimberlee's collection of oil on board paintings, save or one oil on canvas, are concentrated mostly of scenes within the Lake Como area, in Verona within the Lombardy region where she and her husband stayed on their excursion. The portraits of villas and other traditional structures, most of them within waterfront settings, display an overall tastefully subtle use of light and color to create a transporting effect.

"The colors of the Lake Como region are unlike anywhere I have seen," said Kimberlee in her exhibit statement. "Rich turquoise and lavender are dominant colors that are punctuated with the gold ochres and siennas of the architecture. While in Varenna, we explored the various villages along the lake, including Menaggio, Bellagio and Como itself.

"Color and light have always been a strong component of my work and Lake Como is a delight of the visual senses," she said.

Richard Alemian has been a medical doctor by trade, but also a photographer for well over 50 years, starting as a teenager when, he recalled, his mother bought him his first camera, a late 1940s model Argus 21. These days, Richard's cameras of choice are two Canon 35mms, one for film and one for digital, while some of his exhibit pieces are printed on premium glossy paper, others on fine art paper, which is also used for watercolor painting.

Richard too demonstrates a keen eye for observing the natural with the man-made in his displayed works. Particularly captivating is the digital image of "Chiavenna, Italian Alps," portraying the quaintness of a bridge-connected village before a towering misty mountain backdrop. Other shots offer modern urban Lombardian street scenes, such as the back-alley imagery of "Red Hydrant, Lucca" and the sidewalk cafe patrons of "Bar Duomo, Pisa."

Said Richard, "My interests, other than pretty scenes, are composition, color (usually intense), light, texture and geometric lines. Color and sometimes contrast are controlled using Adobe Photoshop. None of the photos have been cropped. Keeping the viewer's eye in the picture is my goal."

More information about the Alemians, plus JPEGs of painting and photo works, can be found at kcalemian.com and richardalemian.com.

GIMME SHELTER

Scraggles

Scraggles is a beautiful, gray, short-haired, two-year-old cat that loves people and play. Scraggles must have had a very sheltered life before she arrived, as she becomes stressed somewhat easily and will pant if in distress.

Sometimes, especially if there is a veterinarian involved, Scraggles will drool in fear. Not a true fan of other animals, Scraggles is in search of a home of her very own, a quiet place with lots of gentle affection and attention.

If you can provide Scraggles or another cat a home, call the Scituate Animal Shelter, 781-545-8703. Visit the shelter on line: www.town.scituate.ma.us/animalshelter/

OPINION

Sea of red ink for the schools

Like it or not – schools have to be run like a business while they educate our young.

Not all school superintendents are well versed in crunching numbers, some prefer to be "ivory tower" intellectuals pontificating about educational philosophy from on high.

With the $500,000 "surprise" in the school budget revealed this week in a memo to Town Manager Michael Buckley – it appears our previous $140,000-a-year school superintendent may fall into the latter category.

The school budget – whose bottom line is approved by voters – allows considerable "wiggle room" to accommodate unforeseen expenses, such as an unexpected influx of students requiring specialized programs and instruction.

The school department can use money from line items for supplies or maintenance, for example, to cover another expense without having to seek Town Meeting approval or a transfer from the Advisory Committee.

However, despite the flexibility inherent in the school budget, something went seriously awry with school accounting. It hasn't taken long for the new Supt. Denise Walsh to unearth shortfalls and "unbudgeted and under-budgeted" items for fiscal years '04 and '05.

Now in the interest of "moving forward," "strategic planning," and "responsible budgeting" – the taxpayers will be asked to ante up.

Unfortunately, nothing is that easy. Clearly members of the School Committee need to be held accountable for lack of oversight regarding the budget and explain what went wrong. But they seem more interested in damage control.

The $500,000 issue got short shrift at last week's School Committee meeting with much more time spent on reports from Camp Bournedale and the jazz band – two worthy endeavors but paling in comparison to the business at hand.

There seems to be an effort at obfuscating the "big number" by letting the bad news out little by little. At Monday's joint meeting with the Selectmen, the School Committee and school administration adeptly danced around the big picture.

Selectman Ronnie McMorris was told she was out of step when she asked where the money would come from to dig the school department out of the hole it's in. She was told the matter would come up at the Advisory Committee meeting Wednesday.

Then Wednesday night, instead of airing the budget issue openly at the Advisory Committee meeting as promised — the school administration, School Committee and Selectmen chairmen, two members of the Advisory Committee and the Town Manager met earlier. We sat at the Advisory Committee meeting posted at 7 p.m. and the issue never came up.

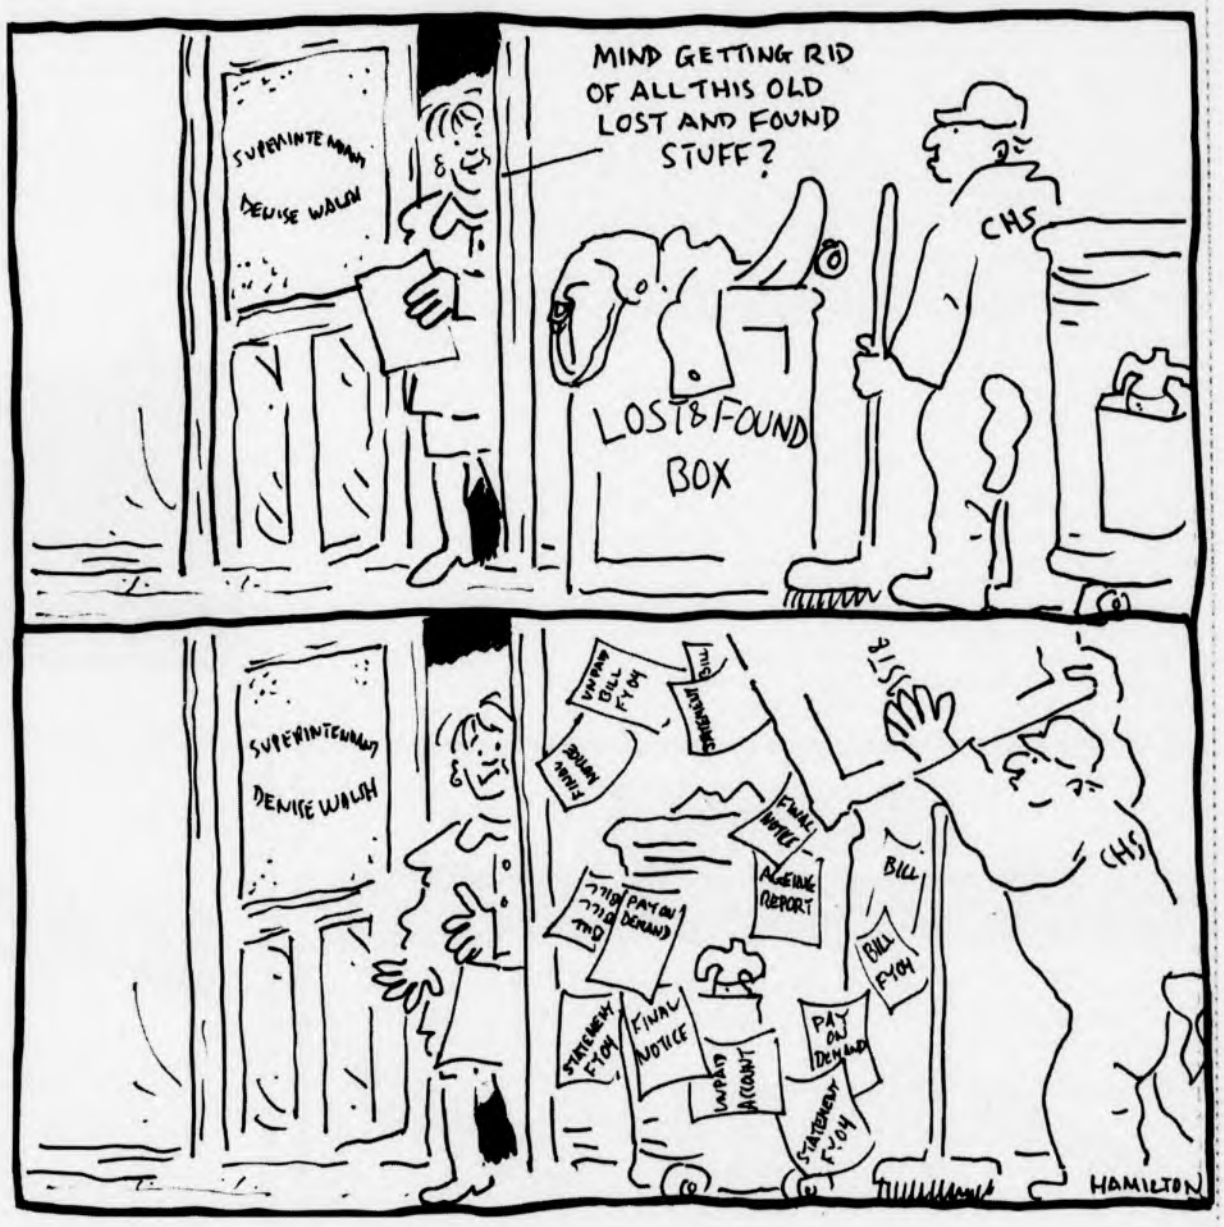
Cohasset taxpayers have built a new school and renovated and expanded two old ones. They've supported innumerable overrides; last year's was solely for the schools.

Still cuts had to be made. A Cohasset mom launched a grassroots effort last spring to raise money to retain three teachers in the belief that the administration and School Committee had used their sharpest pencil on the budget, going over every line item in excruciating detail.

Yet here we find out that contractual items such as tuition reimbursement, column changes and separation costs were unbudgeted.

Huge hikes in utility costs for our newly expanded and renovated school buildings weren't factored into the budget. Taxpayers will have to foot the bill for both the FY04 deficit and the FY05 under-budgeted utility cost hike.

Clearly, none of this is Dr. Walsh's fault. She inherited a budget that was out of whack. The prior administration apparently ignored some sizeable bills. How could that happen?



The FY06 budget season is nearly upon us. There's little doubt in our mind that another override is on the horizon.

Here at the Mariner, we pledge to provide our readers with as much information on the process as we possibly can. In that vein, we're printing the budget sheets and Dr. Walsh's memo which are public documents.

We hope from this point forward, the School Committee and new administration will work in a totally up-front, open and transparent fashion.

Cohasset taxpayers, who have stepped up the plate so many times, deserve no less.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Spending is up — way up!

TO THE EDITOR:

Is it time for sensors yet?

I don't know what I found most disturbing at the Monday night Selectmen's meeting.

There is the $93K school utility bill from last year that was under-budgeted even though the estimate from the architect was pretty accurate. It is so amazing that on some issues like a utility estimate the powers that be didn't take the architect's advice. But on other issues like energy and maintenance efficiency suggestions from the Design Review Board and concerned taxpayers they deferred to the architects. The architects who were paid millions of Cohasset tax dollars.

Next is the $100K that is being tossed around for light sensors that will cut the school's energy costs. One must realize that as far back as 1996 during discussions for the building of the new Osgood School these sensors had been suggested. Two architects for the three schools and the School Building Committee decided that they didn't want to use such technology, which by the way has been in existence for years. Instead we have been having our town unnecessarily illuminated causing both a huge energy waste of tax dollars and a nuisance to the neighbors. But of course it was explained that public safety demands that the driveway of the elementary campus be always lit. I don't know why public safety isn't an issue on the town common, especially the back right corner. which is pitch black and felt very unsafe on election night.

Another line item is the increase needed for the cleaning contractor. What did they expect when instead of providing easily maintained learning spaces we had to have cathedral ceilings, forums, etc., etc.

Now we are in the process of hiring a special maintenance person for the town buildings, someone who is able to work the complicated computer systems that control the lights, heating and a/c and even the doors in some buildings. What have we gotten ourselves into?

The lighting issues, the difficult to clean high open spaces and the refusal of the architects to use dual fuel rather than just gas burners at the Middle/High School when we had new oil tanks, has cost the taxpayers untold thousands already that should have gone to education programs. And this is just the beginning — it is a gift to the town that will keep on taking.

And it isn't just the schools with their hands out. As always overtime in police and fire is out of control. I distinctly remember at a previous town meeting that we were promised that by increasing the staff at the fire department by four that we would be cutting down the o/t drastically and it would virtually pay for the four employees. Now we find out that we need to have several more paramedics before the OT will supposedly go down. Also two of the five towns dropped out of the unmanned ambulance agreement. Maybe it is time for a new ambulance study to look into privatization.

And remember when we just did the rehab to the firehouse that had a $100K extra because the architect (the same one who did the Deer Hill and Middle/High) made a mistake. Well now we need a new generator because the one we have is inadequate. It will only cost $25K with another $13K to hook it up and build a pad. Hmmm, why wasn't that part of the major renovation?

It is always difficult to figure out how a 10-year-old garaged fire truck could have extensive rust and need major refurbishing. That question did come up at the meeting but was not really answered. What kind of maintenance program are we using?

I remember when we went to dispatchers to free up public safety personnel and save the town substantial amounts. The day we had the windstorm with the power outages appeared to the chief to be an indication that our dispatchers needed a staff increase to handle the workload during freak storms. The chief has come up with a possible solution to help alleviate some of the dispatch work and it would only cost $78K for mobile data terminals for five marked police vehicles. That way the police in the field could check license plate numbers without having to call dispatch. There is always the possibility that even with these units that the powers that be will still be looking to increase the dispatch staff.

Our Special Town meeting this year is in December during the season of giving. Is that wishful thinking on the part of our town officials.

Gambling with sewer not a safe bet

COMMENTARY

LOUIS S. HARVEY

Cohasset is making a million-dollar gamble with the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) on one-hand and real estate developments on the other. The gamble is that we can avoid the $3,650,000 per year fine for the environmental damage caused by inadequate sewerage of Little Harbor and Atlantic Avenue.

Cohasset has no more sewer capacity. So, in order to comply with the DEP, save the environment from further damage, provide for future growth and for contingencies, Cohasset has proposed to expand the sewer capacity. This intent was acceptable to the DEP, which confirmed that the plan submitted several months ago was satisfactory. That plan did not include connecting any new development projects to the expanded sewer (intended to meet DEP requirements).

The DEP has indicated that Cohasset faces a fine of $10,000 per day ($3,650,000 per year) until we comply, if we fail to comply with the plan. This fine would be in addition to the cost of constructing a sewage plant and would mean higher taxes and lower budgets for years, until the requirements are met.

The discussion of connecting new developments to the planned sewer system expansion flies in the face of this $3,650,000 per year risk. While engineers discuss how much capacity can theoretically be added, there has been little or no discussion of the risks if the forecasts are wrong.

If we take this $3,650,000 per year risk we must assume that everything will go right. We must believe that there will no construction problems such as delays, cost overruns or unexpected hazards. We must assume that existing residents will not expand use in the decades to come including no increase family size or waste disposal. Further, we must assume no increase in federal or state regulation of waste disposal and no errors in estimates or unexpected problems. Is it reasonable to assume that we can forecast so accurately that it is worth the multi million-dollar risk of putting the critical Little Harbor Atlantic Avenue environmental problem on the back burner?

The argument for taking the monumental risk has been the desire to meet the needs of senior citizens. This is a vitally important goal and one that should be pursued with great vigor. The fact is, however, that the needs of senior citizens can be successfully met in a far more economical and environmentally friendly way than building separate old-age communities.

Most seniors prefer to stay in their lifelong homes if they can afford it and if someone would take care of the day-to-day needs ... mowing the lawn, plowing the snow, fixing the roof, community activities, taking care of the heat and all the chores that loom large as age takes its toll. These and all the other needs can be met in a far more compassionate way.

There are economical and practical solutions to the goal of meeting the needs of seniors that do not involve putting the Town at financial risk. Instead of uprooting seniors from their lifelong homes, perhaps it would be less risky and more practical to establish the services that seniors really need at an affordable cost.

I propose creating a commission to develop a solution that is in line with what seniors really want and stop gambling with our future.

School memo on the budget

Supt. Dr. Denise Walsh sent the following memo dated Nov. 2 to Michael Buckley.

Mr. Michael Buckley
Interim Town Manager

Dear Michael:

This correspondence is to follow up on our recent telephone conversation regarding the school department budget for FY05. As I shared with you, since taking on this responsibility as Superintendent of Schools on July 1, I have identified a number of line items that appear to be significantly underbudgeted for FY05. The underbudgeted amount may be as much as $500,000.

The major categories of concern that appear to be underbudgeted are: transportation, cleaning/custodial services, tuition reimbursements for professional staff, special education tuitions, legal fees, unemployment and utilities. This fiscal reality is made even worse by the fact that we are still making up for deficits from FY 04.

We will do our best to cut back in spending in areas that we can but you will notice that many of the underbudgeted line items are fixed costs or are in areas where we are mandated by law to provide services, or we have a contractual obligation.

At this time, I am requesting assistance from the town in two areas. I am requesting first that the town at the Special Town Meeting support the payment of an unpaid gas bill for heating at Cohasset Middle High School FY04 in the amount of $93,474.31. Also that the amount of $93,500 be added to the FY05 budget to help support this years underbudgeted amount.

Secondly, in FY 04 there was $20,000 budgeted for unemployment costs. The actual unemployment costs however were $85,000, leaving a deficit of $65,000. I am requesting from town meeting also the $65,000 for FY04 unemployment costs as well as an additional $65,000 for FY05. In the future, I would like to discuss the possibility of budgeting these costs outside of the school department's operational budget, similar to how other benefits are budgeted.

In closing, there is one additional item for consideration at: the Special Town Meeting and that is the replacement of the small truck used for trash pick up removal as well as moving furniture and equipment within the district. This truck at a cost of $14,800 would be utilized by both school department and DPW. Unfortunately, safety concerns are forcing me to bring this request to you during these difficult fiscal times.

As always thank you for your support. If you have any questions, please call.

Sincerely,

Denise M. Walsh, Ed.D.

HEALTH NOTES

Nearly 20 percent have diabetes

And many don't know it

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

A recent major clinical trial indicates that those at high risk for Type 2 diabetes can sharply lower their chances of getting the disease with diet and exercise.

November is National Diabetes Awareness Month. An estimated 18.2 million persons in the United States (i.e., 6.3 percent of the population) have diabetes. However, 5.2 million (29 percent) of these persons have not had their condition diagnosed. Persons with diabetes have a risk of premature death that is approximately two times greater than that of persons without the disease. From 1980 to 2002, the number of persons with diabetes in the United States more than doubled. In 2000, diabetes was the sixth leading cause of death in the United States and cost the nation more than $132 billion dollars in health-care expenditures.

Throughout this month, the Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report (MMWR) which studies the results of our national medical program, will publish reports related to diabetes, including reports on diabetes among certain racial/ethnic populations, diabetes and obesity, diabetes and vision impairment, and psychological distress associated with the disease. These reports are invaluable to health-care officials. They broadly and generally describe our success in meeting the health care challenges of our nation in sufficient detail as to be relevant to communities such as Cohasset .

During November, the CDC, along with 59 state and territorial diabetes-control programs and other partners, will highlight activities that increase awareness about diabetes and women's health. More than 9.3 million women in the United States are now living with diabetes. This month, the CDC will release a 30-minute video that emphasizes the healthy behaviors and coping skills that women have learned from adolescence through their older years to help manage their disease.

Diet and exercise

A recent major clinical trial indicates that those at high risk for Type 2 diabetes can sharply lower their chances of getting the disease with diet and exercise. "In view of the rapidly rising rates of obesity and diabetes in America, this good news couldn't come at a better time," said Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy G. Thompson in announcing the findings Aug. 9 at the National Institutes of Health (NIH). "So many of our health problems can be avoided through diet, exercise and making sure we take care of ourselves."

The study also found that treatment with the oral diabetes drug Glucophage (metformin) reduces diabetes risk, though less dramatically, in people at high risk for Type 2 diabetes.

Participants who were randomly assigned to intensive lifestyle intervention reduced their risk of getting Type 2 diabetes by 58 percent. On average, this group maintained their physical activity at 30 minutes a day, usually with walking or other moderate-intensity exercise and lost 5 percent to 7 percent of their body weight. Participants picked randomly to receive treatment with Glucophage reduced their risk of getting Type 2 diabetes by 31 percent. The study, called the Diabetes Prevention Program (DPP), compared diet and exercise to treatment with Glucophage in 3,234 people with impaired glucose tolerance (IGT), a condition that often precedes diabetes. The trial ended a year early because the data had clearly answered the main research questions.

The DPP, conducted at 27 centers nationwide, is sponsored by the NIH. It is the first major trial to show that diet and exercise can effectively delay diabetes in a diverse American population of overweight people with IGT, a condition in which blood glucose levels are higher than normal but the individual is not yet considered to have diabetes. Forty-five percent of the participants enrolled in the DPP were from minority groups that suffer disproportionately from Type 2 diabetes: African Americans, Hispanic Americans, Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders, and American Indians. The trial also recruited other groups known to be at higher risk for Type 2 diabetes, including people age 60 and older, women with a history of gestational diabetes, and people with a first-degree relative with Type 2 diabetes.

Volunteers in the diet and exercise group achieved the study goal, on average a 7 percent —or 15-pound —weight loss, in the first year and generally sustained a 5 percent total loss for the study's duration. Participants in this lifestyle intervention group received training in diet, exercise (most chose walking), and behavior modification skills.

Additional information about diabetes is available from CDC at: www.cdc.gov/diabetes.

MEDICAL MALPRACTICE COURT (H 4850) House 156-0, Senate 38-0, overrode Gov. Romney's veto of a budget provision creating a special commission to conduct an investigation into the feasibility of creating a specialized court to hear cases of medical malpractice claims. The commission would report its findings and recommendations to the Legislature by February 1, 2005. Override supporters said it is time to look into establishing a separate court that would be presided over by medical professionals and experts to handle the escalating number of medical malpractice cases. Override opponents said the Romney administration is already working with the Harvard School of Public Health to develop a pilot plan that would replace the jury trial system for medical malpractice cases. The plan would create a new system to resolve these cases by an administrative tribunal similar to the current system used for workers' compensation claims. In his veto message, the governor said that he does not believe that it is necessary to establish a commission through legislation. (A "Yea" vote is for the special commission and investigation).	Y	Y
$460,000 FOR INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INVESTMENT (H 4850) House 134-21, Senate 36-2, overrode Gov. Romney's $460,000 veto reduction (from $960,000 to $500,000) in funding for the Massachusetts Office of International Trade and Investment (MOITI). Override supporters said MOITI boosts the economy and creates jobs by working to attract foreign companies to Massachusetts and increases exports by marketing Massachusetts businesses internationally through trade shows and foreign trade missions. They argued that the full $1.1 million is necessary to ensure that the MOITI has sufficient funds to do its job. In his veto message, the governor said that he reduced the funding to an amount consistent with his original fiscal 2005 budget recommendation. (A "Yea" vote is for the $460,000. A "Nay" vote is against the $460,000).	N	Y

ABOLISH PREMARITAL BLOOD TEST (H 75)- Gov. Romney signed into law a bill repealing the law requiring couples to have a premarital blood test to determine if either person has syphilis. Supporters have filed this bill for many years and argued that this antiquated and expensive requirement costs million of dollars and was established during a syphilis outbreak in the 1930s. They noted that thousands of tests annually only reveal three or four cases of syphilis and argued that this money could be better spent in other healthcare areas.

WWII DAY (H 1201)- Gov. Romney signed into law a measure designating September 2 as World War II Commemoration Day to honor veterans who served in that war. The proposal provides for the ringing of church bells at 9:04 a.m. in recognition of the final surrender of Japan.

VIDEOTAPING NUDITY AND BOOTLEGGING MOVIES (H 4863)- The House has approved the Senate version of legislation making it a crime to videotape, photograph or electronically surveil another person who is nude or partially nude, without the person's knowledge and consent. The proposal imposes up to a $5000 fine and/or 2.5-year prison sentence on violators. The also bill outlaws the videotaping of movies in movie theaters and imposes up to a two-year prison sentence and/or $100,000 fine on first-time offenders and up to a $250,000 fine and/or five-year prison sentence for subsequent offenses.

STATE COLORS (H 2694)- The House gave near final approval to and sent to the Senate a proposal designating blue, green and cranberry as the state's official colors.

REGULATE MOTORIZED SCOOTERS (H 5125)- The House approved a new version of a bill regulating gas and electric-powered motorized scooters by putting in place many restrictions that currently apply to motorized bicycles. These restrictions include requiring operators to be at least 16 years old, possess a valid driver's license or learner's permit and wear a helmet; subjecting the vehicles to most state traffic laws and banning them from sidewalks and bike paths and limiting their speed to 20 miles per hour. Two additional restrictions that are not currently placed on motorized bikes but would be placed on motorized scooters include banning the scooters from being operated before dusk and after dawn and mandating that they be equipped with directional "blinkers" in the back. Supporters said that these inexpensive, under $400 low-riding scooters are basically unregulated and are being used by people of all ages across the state. They said the vehicles are "an accident waiting to happen" and should be quickly regulated by the state.

REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS- Last week's election results indicate that the Democrats gained two seats in the Massachusetts House and one seat in the Senate. The 2005-2006 House will include 138 Democrats, 21 Republicans and one unenrolled member while the Senate will be comprised of 34 Democrats and six Republicans.

Cook Estate project is good for Cohasset

TO THE EDITOR:

When I think of things that are needed in Cohasset, number one on my list is drumming up additional sources of revenue so that all of the financial burden of running a town of 7,000-plus people does not fall upon the residential rate payers. Second on my list, is abiding by a mutually agreed upon Master Plan whereby we satisfy our responsibilities to provide the level of affordable housing as directed by the Commonwealth. Finally, I think we must offer alternative housing options for our seniors allowing them the option to continue to reside in the community where they raised their families.

We already provide excellent schools, a fine library, open spaces, beaches and ocean which our citizens can enjoy so when you get right down to it — there aren't very many other items that are necessary and within our control.

There is a plan for the development of the Cook Estate on Sohier Street, which I truly believe the citizens of Cohasset must get behind in order to satisfy the items on the "wish list" noted above. The sale of the Cook property will provide the Town with an immediate $700,000 and annual payments of $470,000.

As a residence for those 55 of age and older, the Cook development will not strain our schools and will in part satisfy our obligations under 40B. The project, it has been learned, will need to build an on-site sewer treatment plant, but it needs the town's endorsement to pump its treated water into the town's Central Sewer District, which has the capacity to handle it. All costs associated with this hook up, will be at the developer's expense and approval for this hook up will be on the Warrant at the December Town Meeting.

We need to get behind this project and vote to approve the Cook property's request to hook up to the town's Central Sewer District. The Cook Estate has been extremely patient, but time is running out! If the town does not approve this hook up, the town will lose control of the Cook property. The risk is the site could then potentially be sold to another developer who could develop 10 "McMansions" putting unforeseen strain on our schools and not providing the annual revenues that a 55+ development would offer. This would also prevent seniors from having the opportunity to continue to live in the town they love.

We need to think long and hard about the future of Cohasset. Development of the Cook Estate should proceed with the town's oversight, as a residence for those age 55 and over. We need to vote to support the hook up to the town's Central sewer treatment plant at the December Town Meeting. We cannot afford to let this opportunity slip through our hands.

Community support urged for Cook project

TO THE EDITOR:

Two worthy objectives need not be mutually exclusive. The objectives are: (1) preserving the capacity allotted to the Little Harbor area and (2) saving the Cook estate project from failure and replacement by a development of "McMansions," by allowing its clean treated waste water to be discharged to the ocean via the Cohasset sewage treatment plant. Surely, with forbearance and intelligent public-spiritedness we can find a way to achieve both objectives. (Other means of disposing the clean treated water have been discussed, but it is uncertain that any are capable of sufficiently timely resolution of permitting, cost or other issues).

The Cook estate project will provide much needed housing for seniors wishing to move from their homes to residences more suitable to their less active lifestyle, and who would prefer to remain in Cohasset rather than relocate to Linden Ponds, Pine Hills etc. Most seniors move to such housing rather than continue the work and expense of upkeep of their homes, whether or not there is senior housing available in their own town. Their former home may then be occupied by a younger family with children in school, but that will happen whether the senior can find senior housing in his or her own town, or has to seek elsewhere. The town benefits, as well as the Cohasset resident whose wish to remain here is satisfied, because our town, rather than some other town, reaps the benefits of tax revenue from the senior housing. The existence of senior housing in our town neither increases or decreases the load on the schools, regardless of where our seniors move to. So let's have the tax advantages of keeping as many seniors here as possible, while providing them with the opportunity that all of us may want in the future! If the project moves to fruition, the town should receive a one-time profit of about $700,000, and annual real estate tax revenue of about $470,000, with little increase in the town's annual operating budget. Maintenance of roads, grounds and buildings is paid for by the condominium association.

The Senior Multi-Residential Overlay District Bylaw adopted two years ago at Town Meeting was the response to residents' outcry for senior housing and the product of 10 years of effort. Fortunately, the Cook estate became available, contiguous to some Town-owned land. The combination of the two, together with the co-operative attitude of the Trustees of the Cook estate, made possible the excellent concept adopted at town meeting last year, to provide a mix of market-rate units and affordable housing, some rental and some to be purchased.

Although preliminary tests indicated that the real estate could accommodate on-site

Interbasin Transfer Act application approved

Stage set for water sale to Hingham

The state Water Resources Commission, by a 7-0 vote, has approved the Interbasin Transfer Application filed by the Cohasset Water Commission,

This permit will allow the Cohasset Water Department to transfer up to 310,000 gallons of water a day from the South Coastal Basin (Cohasset) to the Weir River Basin (Hingham) to provide water to the Linden Ponds (Erickson) development in Hingham.

"The Water Commission has signed contracts to sell up to 310,000 gpd to Linden Ponds over the next 20 years," said John McNabb, Chairman of the Water Commission. "This sale of water will provide revenue to help us to continue our aggressive water system improvements program, while not depleting our supply.

"This sale of water will provide revenue to help us to continue our aggressive water system improvements program, while not depleting our supply."
— John McNabb, Water Commission

"Cohasset uses about 710,000 gpd, while the water supply system is capable of safely delivering more than 5,200,000 gallons per day," McNabb said.

The Water Dept. also needs a Water Management Act Permit Application, filed with DEP, to withdraw an additional 380,000 gallons per day from the Cohasset water supply to serve Linden Pond

To provide the water to Hingham, the Water Department will install a new 12-inch water main along Route 3A from Hingham Lumber to the Hingham Line and will construct a new pumping station near the Hingham town line.

Copies of the applications are available for review at the Lily Pond Water Treatment Plant, the Town Clerk's office at Town Hall, and at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. Notice of these applications will be published in the Aug. 25 Environmental Monitor, which can be viewed at:

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

disposal of wastewater, more intensive examination conducted by the contractor (Northland), unfortunately revealed that the site could not absorb the projected 14,250 gallons per day of treated wastewater from an on-site treatment plant. (Projected by the arbitrary regulatory formula; the actual discharge will be somewhat less). Bitter complaints about the alleged misjudgments and false promises that got us into this predicament are counterproductive; what's needed is recognition of the benefits of the Cook project and an open-minded willingness to work for a solution.

If this clean treated water were to flow through Cohasset's sewage treatment plant on its way to an ocean discharge, it would increase the plant's total discharge slightly but would not diminish the treatment plant's existing or potential future capacity to serve future tie-ins, and specifically the Little Harbor area. Nevertheless, this ideal solution is of concern to the Sewer Commission and homeowners in the Little Harbor area, primarily because of concern that an undesirable precedent would be established for tie-ins in advance of serving their area. The Agreement for Judgment mandates that this area be sewered (but doesn't in itself preserve the treatment capacity to do so), and is supplemented by a DEP moratorium on upgrades of residential leaching fields to Title 5 standards.

In reality however, precedence probably will have little impact on how the large potential treatment capacity of Cohasset's plant is utilized.

Given the desirability of this project for the Town, it is essential that we work constructively with Northland to develop off-site means of disposing of the treated effluent. The technical, regulatory, financial (and political) issues must clearly be capable of timely resolution, otherwise the option to obtain the property must be terminated. The Trustees of the Cook estate have been very accommodating, but in the end must honor their instructions and cut us loose at some not-so-distant-future point in time, if a viable solution is not forthcoming. The property then will go on the market again, and Cohasset will not only have lost this ideal opportunity to profit financially while fulfilling some of the need for senior housing, but can expect yet another development of large houses.

Sand removal causes waves at Sandy Beach

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The Sandy Beach Association and Conservation Commission are working with Town Counsel to remedy a situation which has surfaced with the Department of Environmental Protection.

"We all believe this isn't a dune."
— Debbie Cook, Conservation Commission

A pile of sand, which the DEP classifies as a sand dune, was removed from the beach this June, in an effort to help clear the view for motorists exiting the beach. Sand dunes prevent beach erosion and protect natural features of the land from water and wind erosion. The sand removal coincided with the town's annual clean-up of the parking lot.

Every winter, strong winds and storms blow sand from the beach onto the lot. In the late spring, the town hires a contractor to use heavy construction equipment to push the sand back onto the beach. The removal has caused the DEP to threaten enforcement action against Cohasset for both removing what it feels should be a protected dune, and aggressively pushing it back onto the beach with construction equipment.

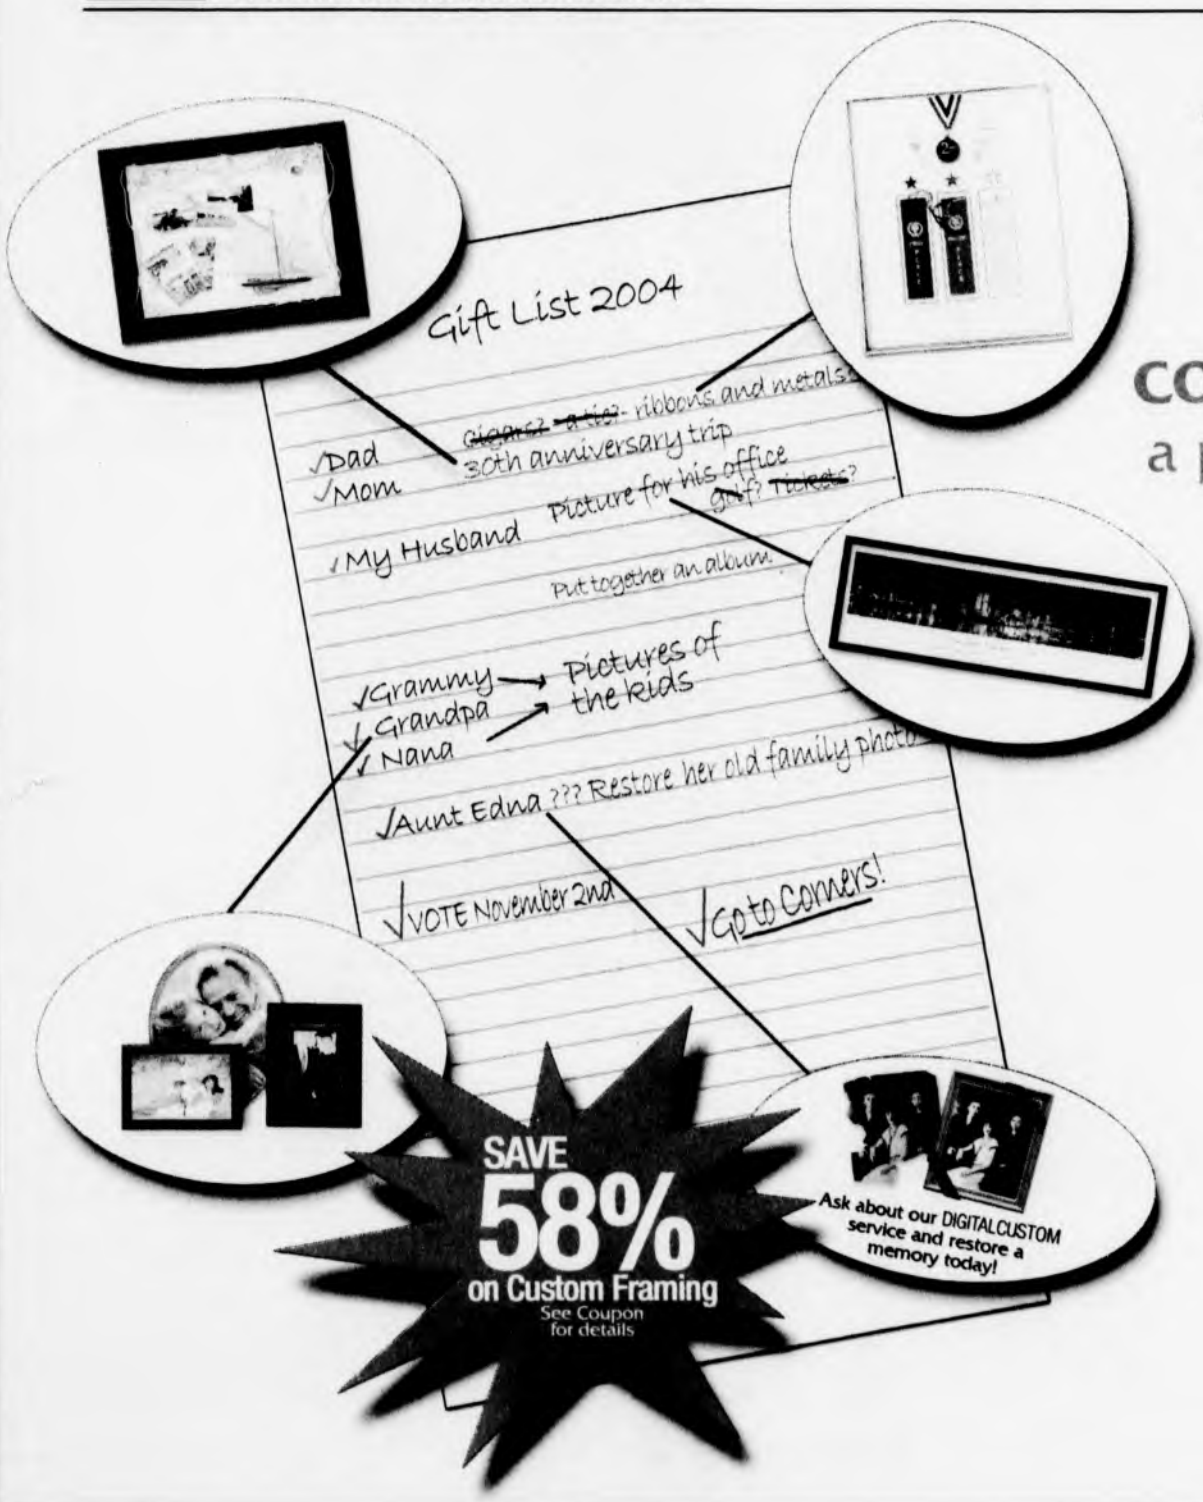
"We all believe this isn't a dune," said Debbie Cook, chairman of the conservation commission. The commission believes that sand, which is not contiguous with the beach, does not "nourish" it in any way, and is located on top of a parking lot, cannot be classified as a dune. The roots from plants growing in the sand cannot penetrate the hard surface under it, and do not completely anchor the sand in place.

The Sandy Beach Association owns the beach and the town owns the parking lot, which has brought the two together in the matter. Cook said her board gave permission to the beach association to remove the sand to improve site lines for motorists, and while more sand was removed than had been anticipated, the town says it was posing a safety issue. However, DEP believes the Conservation Commission should not have allowed the extensive removal, as vegetation had taken root in the sand, which they believe qualifies it as a dune, which should therefore be protected.

However, the orders of conditions outlined for the beach association and the conservation commission clearly include dune maintenance, and Cook said the sand pile was never recorded as a dune which either group must maintain. The DEP approved those orders.

The DEP has said it expects the town to come up with a plan to replace the dune or face the consequences. DEP would like to see the town put the sand back where it was and it wants vegetation planted along the seawall to protect the beach from erosion. Another dune abutting the seawall was damaged by the construction equipment that pushed sand from the parking lot onto the beach.

Members of both town groups say the DEP did not contact them before coming down to the beach for an inspection and only visited the town in response to a resident's complaint over the removal of the sand dune earlier this summer.



The town will participate in an enforcement hearing with the DEP Nov. 16.

Santa Claus is coming to town!

The South Shore Community Center invites family and friends to join in the holiday spirit at the Jingle Bell Walk. The Jingle Bell Walk, a Cohasset tradition offered by the SSCC, begins at 2 p.m. on Nov. 26, when Santa Claus arrives by boat with his elves at Cohasset Harbor (Border Street). After Santa distributes jingle bells to the children, he and his elves will board a hayride and the walk continues along the sidewalks of Elm to Main Street in Cohasset. At 2:30 p.m. the South Shore Community Center welcomes everyone to partake in cookies, a beverage and a holiday-sing-along. Holiday music and carols will also be sung by all.

Santa will be upstairs in the Center to pose for pictures with you and your children. Please stroll through the village to share in the local shops' holiday ambience.

At 3 p.m. on Cohasset Common there will be a "Turkey Tot Trot" for ages 3 to 10. You may register the day of the event for $3 per participant. Proceeds will benefit the Nursery School. All participants will receive a prize.

Listen to the bells of St. Stephen's playing from 2:30 to 4 p.m., while enjoying a hayride around the Common. Hayrides will be available from 3 to 4 p.m. At 3:45 p.m., gather around the Cohasset Common to listen to the Rusty Skippers Marching Band. The festivities culminate on Cohasset Common at 4:15 p.m. with the lighting of the tree.

There is something for everyone this year at the Jingle Bell Walk. It's a great way to appreciate the picturesque surroundings, while involving the whole family in a Cohasset tradition.

In the event of rain, all outdoor activities will be cancelled and Santa will arrive in the Community Center Gym at 2 p.m.

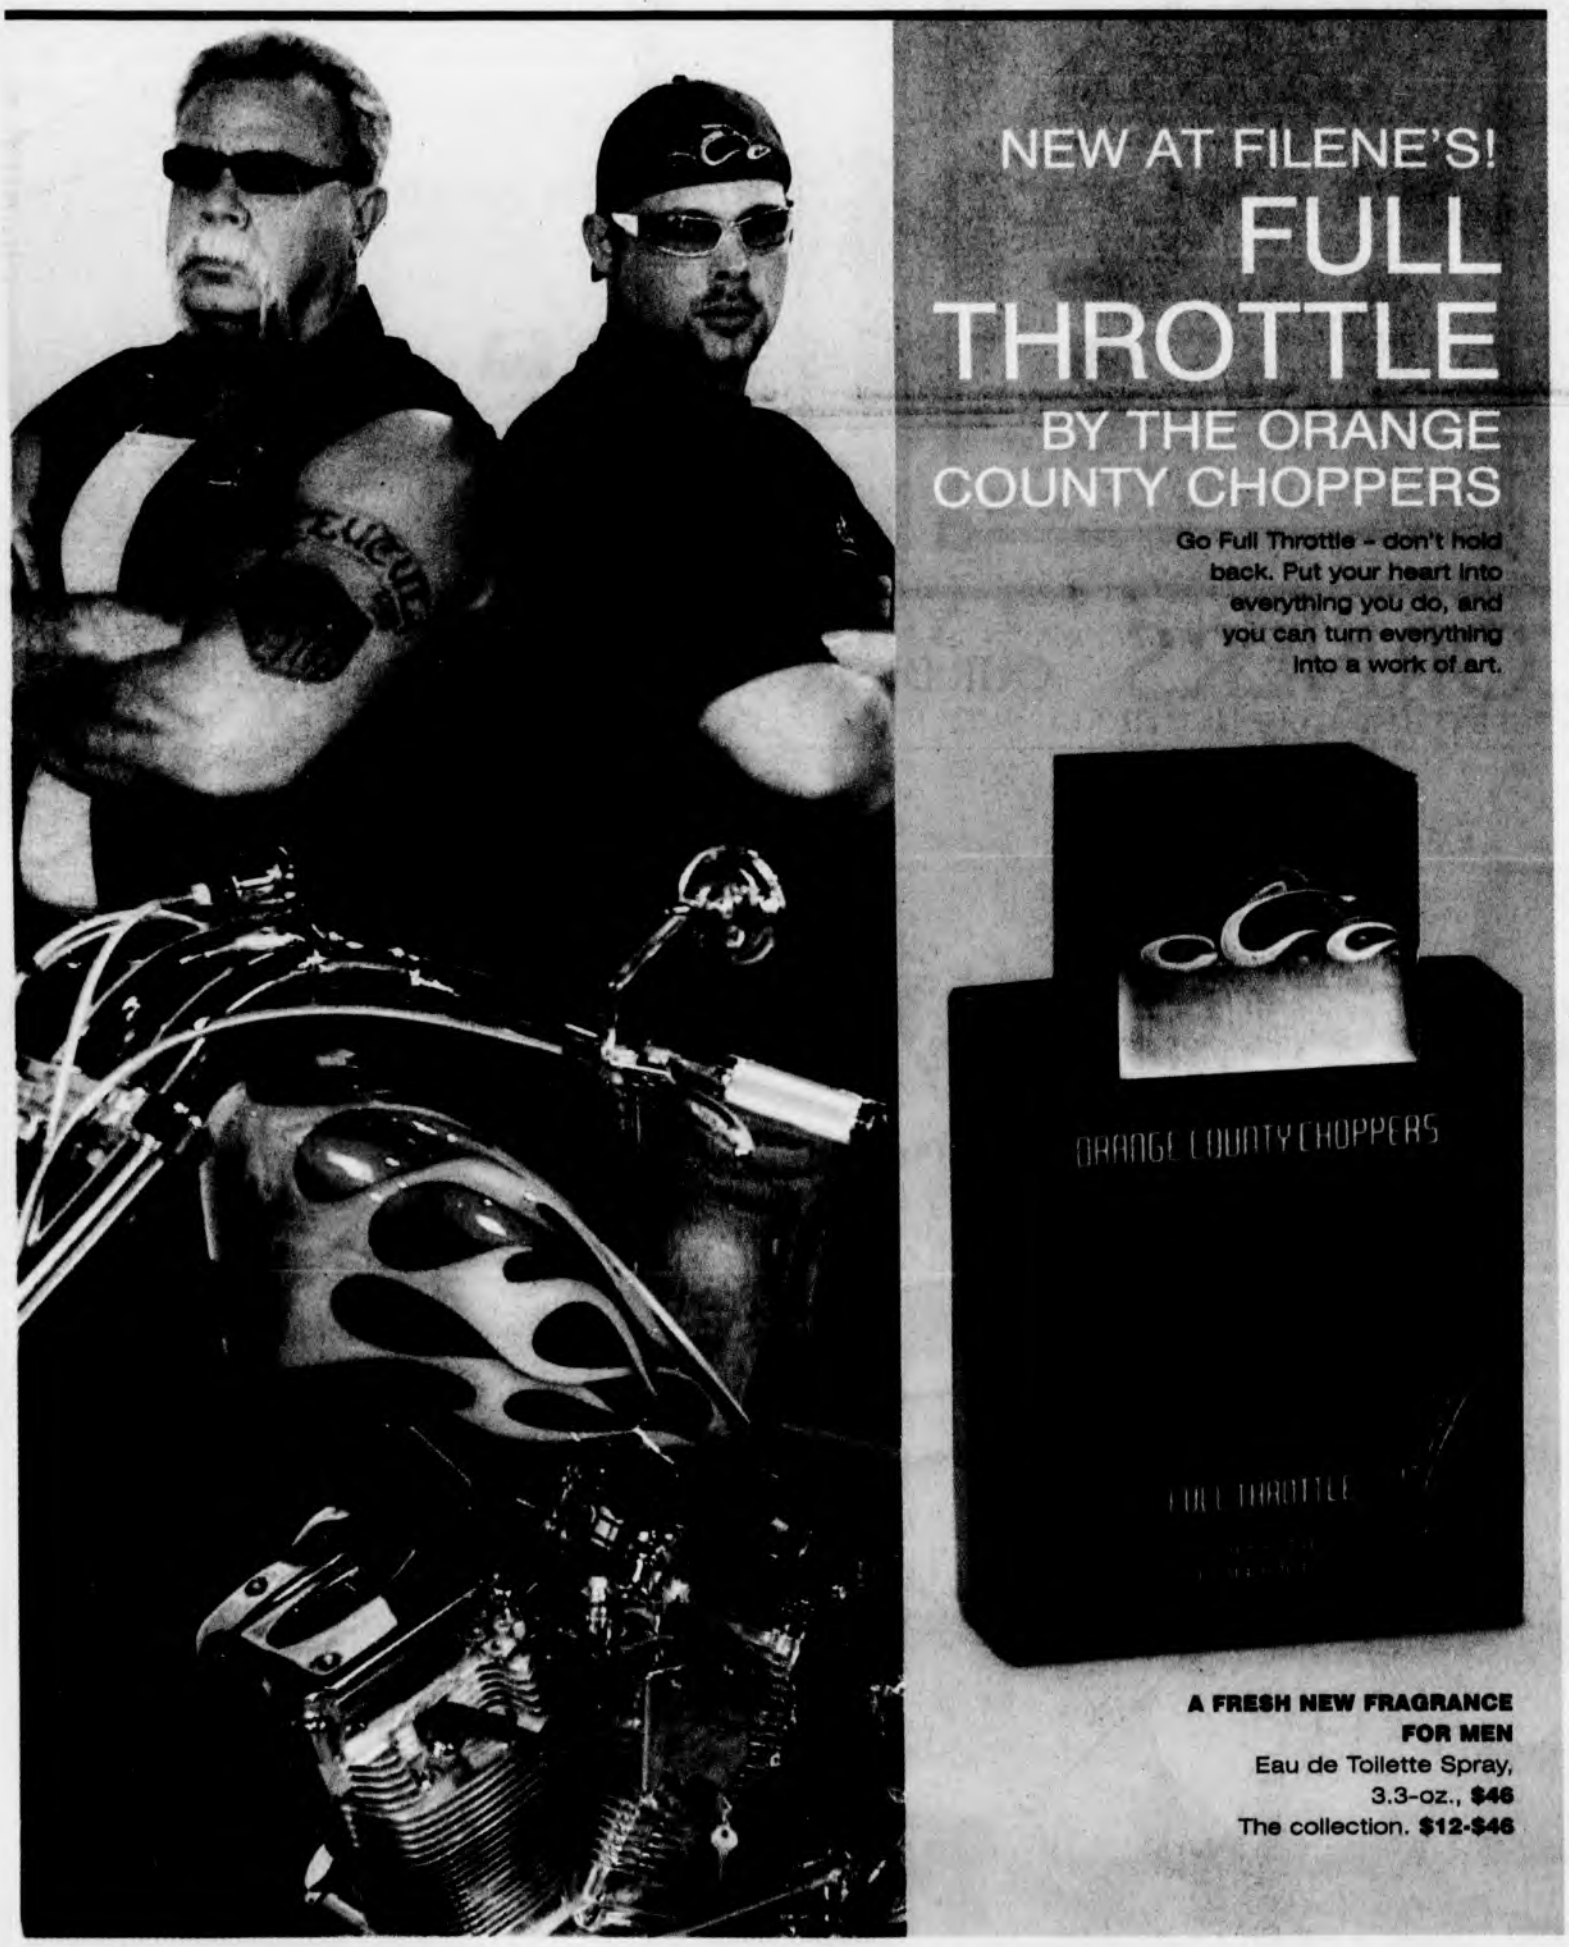
Local talent at Coffeehouse Nov. 20



The classically trained, Renaissance-oriented Bedlam Boys will be featured at Hingham's Coffeehouse off the Square on Saturday, Nov. 20, at 8 p.m. The Bedlam Boys will be preceded by Hingham's own Jane Gilmartin.

Their name is "Bedlam," though their music is anything but, as Grant Foster and Gregor Harvey combine vocal and instrumental talents to create a unique sound. The concert will feature traditional songs and tunes from Ireland, Scotland, and England and adaptations of great poetry from Shakespeare to Yeats, arranged with a nod to modern folk music.

Preceding the Bedlam Boys is Jane Gilmartin, a young singer of old songs. As a teenager she sang along with punk rock records and then discovered "all those beautiful Renaissance ballads interpreted by Steeleye Span, June Tabor, and the Watersons." Jane was fascinated by those songs because they were like "little pieces of common history, passed down through the ages."

Join the Coffeehouse audience for an evening of 16th-Century "oldies but goodies."

The Coffeehouse off the Square is at the Old Ship Parish House at 107 Main St., Hingham Square, just up from the Loring Hall Theatre. Admission is $10 at the door. An open microphone precedes the concert. A variety of coffees, teas, and desserts are available for 50 cents. Net proceeds go to the Unitarian-Universalist Service Committee.

For all the marbles

Winner of Norwell-Cohasset grid showdown will be SSL

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

So, here we are, right where most of us in the know guessed we'd be: Norwell at Cohasset on Friday (7 p.m. kickoff) for all the marbles in the South Shore League football race.

Cohasset (8-0, 3-0 in SSL play) remained on track for the winner-take-all showdown with a 30-23 win over SSL rival Abington on Friday, while Norwell (8-1, 4-0) tuned up with a 41-7 non-league win over Plymouth South.

Hull (6-2, 2-1), an Oct. 15 Clippers victim and Cohasset's Thanksgiving day opponent, has already been eliminated via the tiebreaker formula.

This marks the fourth year in a row the Clippers and Skippers have gone into this late-season clash with a shot at the SSL title. Cohasset took the title in 2001 and '03, while Abington was champion in 2002. The Clippers have finished in second place all three years.

The 2004 Norwell and Cohasset teams feature similar styles. Both teams rely on steady defenses that don't give up big plays and a smash mouth game on offense.

Senior captains Greg Thornton (1,500 rushing yards to date) and Brian Ware are a very effective tailback-fullback tandem. Ditto for Cohasset's senior duo of Joe Durkin and Ted Straughn. Cohasset quarterback Crandon Leahy can also lug the rock effectively, as witnessed by his six rushing TDs to date.

Friday, 7 p.m. kickoff

In nine games, Norwell has outscored its opponents, 263-81, while Cohasset checks in with a 189-66 count through eight games.

On defense, the Skippers returned eight of 11 starters from last year's SSL champion team. The Clippers didn't get off quite so easy, but they've still put together a very solid unit. A good portion of the 81 points

CHS field hockey hopes to ride momentum into 2005

By Evan Deutsch
CORRESPONDENT

You will not find Cohasset hoisting any banners to the gym ceiling in honor of this season's field hockey team. This team has paved the way, however, for future field hockey teams lucky enough to benefit from this year's hard work.

Some fans may have turned their back on Cohasset's 2-7-1 league record team. The smarter fans did not and for good reason.

Defensively speaking, the Lady Skippers migrated from misery to mastery. In September, you could barely feel a pulse in the team arm when the players lost to Hanover and Notre Dame Academy by the respective scores of 9-1 and 4-0. Then they turned the corner, losing games by only a goal or two.

"I feel the team improved on defense a lot. Aaron Bigley remained consistent in the net for much of the year," said coach Deb Bostwick.

Junior Erin Liddell also showed enthusiasm about her team's Lost opportunity

Boys soccer team edged by top seeded Chatham in second round

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Rob Leary began to get a bad feeling after his Cohasset boys soccer team narrowly missed on a quality scoring opportunity early in the second half on Sunday, his team up 1-0 at the time.

That "feeling" proved prophetic, as Leary's Skippers went on to lose the second round state tourney showdown to top seeded Chatham (20-0-1), 3-1.

"Had we scored there, I feel pretty certain we'd have won this game," said Leary, whose team finished up the season with an 8-6-3 record, which included a 2-0 first round win over Fairhaven last Thursday. "I don't think Chatham has been down 2-0 all year, and we would have been able to take a bit different approach if that had happened. And [Chatham] might have become a little more desperate."

The play that could have changed the complexion of the game dramatically started when Cohasset top scorer Aidan Buick broke free in the box and was taken down from behind before he could get a shot off. The ball squirted to freshman Mike Grimm, though, and he sent his pressured shot just over

EXTRA POINTS

MIKE SPELLMAN

This is the best job I've ever had, and I'll be surprised if I'm saying otherwise whenever my professional life ends.

Hence, it is extremely hard to walk away. Family and financial considerations, however, must win out.

Y'know, a lot of squirming and second guessing has accompanied those occasions in the past where I've offered things up of a personal nature. Obviously, putting yourself out there is never easy. Beyond that, there's always that fear that people aren't the least bit interested. It just wouldn't feel right, however, if I didn't at least risk embarrassment this one last time. Thanks in advance for indulging me.

What I take with me from this job is four and a half years of great memories, and for that I have an impossibly long list of people to thank.

Let me try anyway.

Thanks to Mark Skala and Greg Mathis for taking a chance on someone who'd been out of fulltime journalism for a while.

scored against them have come late in games after the matter had already been decided.

For whatever all that's worth

Before any of this could take place, the Skippers needed to play a very dangerous Abington squad this past Friday night. The Green Wave (5-4, 1-3 SSL), coming off of two tough league losses to Hull and Norwell on consecutive weekends, were looking to get back in the win column. Having competed for league titles in each of the past three years and winning twice, how Abington would respond ithout a title on the line remained the big question.

Across the field, Cohasset entered the game ith a 7-0 mark. The combined record of the Skippers opponents, however, was 6-29. Obviously that too left a question mark.

The questions about Abington were quickly answered as the Green Wave jumped out to a 7-0 lead on their opening possession. On the 13th play of the drive and facing a third-and-19, quarterback Tim Wells lined up in a shotgun formation. Wells took the snap, found a gap on the left side and bounced outside toward the sideline on a draw. When he stretched for the pylon, Wells's 24-yard touchdown run completed Abington's 75-yard drive.

Cohasset, which was coming off a perfectly timed bye before closing the season with the Abington, Norwell and Hull gauntlet, looked a little rusty most of the first quarter. Following a Cohasset punt, though, it was Abington which looked as if it had not played in close to two weeks. The Green Wave turned the ball over on each of thier next three possessions and would not run a clean play until there was just under two minutes left in the first half.

Abington's first fumble came inside its own 20-yard line as Cohasset's Kelvin Ferriera fell on the loose ball at the 11. Two plays later, Joe Durkin took a sweep right for a four-yard touchdown run. A quarterback draw from Crandon Leahy gave the Skippers the two-point conversion and an 8-7 lead.

The Green Wave gave the ball right back to Cohasset on the ensuing kickoff as a fumble recovery by Colin Conway wound up on Abington's 30-yard line. Durkin went off tackle for 25 yards on the first play and five more yards on the second for the Skippers' second score, increasing their lead to 14-7. Abington's Tom Delaney made a tough solo tackle on Teddie Straughn to prevent the two-point conversion attempt.

On Abington's next play from scrimmage, a botched center-to-quarterback exchange landed in the belly of Leo Clougherty for Cohasset's third fumble recovery. Starting at the Green Wave 33-yard line, the visitors needed only three plays to get in the end zone. Durkin once again sliced through Abington's defense for a 14-yard touchdown. Straughn's second two-point attempt gave the Skippers a 22-7 lead with two minutes remaining in the half.

Three Abington turnovers inside its own 35-yard line led to 22 Cohasset points.

"Those turnovers turned out to be huge for us," said Cohasset coach Tony Rolfe. "We capitalized on them, but we gave some back in the second half."

As the second half started it was Cohasset's turn to let Abington back in the game. A fumbled exchanged turned into a fumble recovery by Wells at the Skipper 36-yard line. The Green Wave gave it right back on the next play when Silvia intercepted Wells for the second time in the game at his own five-yard line.

A Delaney third-down tackle on Durkin forced Cohasset to punt inside its own 15-yard line, which gave Abington a first down at the 38. Whitman started the drive with an 18-yard sweep around the right end. Two plays later, Matt Jones slipped on a trap for a 12-yard touchdown run. Following Wells completion to Devon Davis for the two-point conversion, the Green Wave closed the gap to 22-15.

Cohasset opened the fourth quarter in the middle of a 10-play, 50-yard drive. Behind the running of Durkin (27 carries, 164 yards) and Straughn, the Skippers would get a first-and-goal at the Abington three-yard line.

On second-and-goal, Leahy took the snap and immediately rolled to his right. Abington's Dan Hoffman, playing defensive end, fought through two blockers to stretch the play out and force Leahy to cut up inside. Leahy lost the ball on a hit from Hoffman, and Jon Conway recovered it for Abington at the nine-yard line.

The Green Wave eventually turned the ball over on downs at their own 38. Cohasset again took advantage of good field position and got inside the Abington 10 on runs of 11 and nine from Durkin. Abington's defense stayed tough and forced the Skippers into a fourth-and-goal situation at the 11-yard line.

Cohasset came out on fourth down with a slot formation to the left, forcing a shift in the Green Wave front. Leahy took the snap and raced to the right side for the touchdown. Straughn's two-point conversion increased the lead to 30-15.

Abington come back to score Wells returned Carroll for a six-yard touchdown pass. Davis again snagged a pass from Wells for the two-point conversion to make it a 30-23 game.

Cohasset's recovery on the ensuing onside kickoff secured the Skipper victory and set the stage for next week's match up with Norwell (8-1, 4-0 SSL).

Cohasset/Norwell football advisory

At 7:00 pm, this Friday night (November 12), the Norwell – Cohasset Football game at Cohasset's Alumni Field will decide the South Shore League Championship. The winner receive a bid to the M.I.A.A. Division 3 Super Bowl Playoffs. We are anticipating a large crowd. Here is some information to assist fans coming to the game.

Admission

Admission to the game will be $4 for adults, $3 for children (10 years of age and over) and $3 for senior citizens. There will be an entrance gate on both the home and visitors sides. Once you have entered the facility you may not leave and be readmitted.

Children

Every child who is not a high school student must be supervised by an adult. We have had problems with groups of unsupervised kids wrestling on the hill next to the home bleachers, trampling the newly landscape hill on the back turnaround, and not watching the game. The purpose of the event is to watch the game and to support the team not to play tackle football on our back practice fields. We strongly suggest parents supervise their children before someone gets seriously injured.

Parking

Parking is limited, so carpooling will be much appreciated. After all of the school parking lots are filled, street parking will be utilized. Please be aware of our neighbors' driveways and lawns when parking around the school. There are a number of spots available at Milliken Field, and the visitor's side entrance will be open for admission. Police officers will be present to assist you with parking.

Restrooms

Restrooms will be open in our gym lobby located directly off the back turnaround circle. The lobby will remain open throughout the game for people to warm up and get out of the cold weather.

Concession Stand

The concession stand will be located behind the Press Box and will be operated by the Wrestling Boosters Club. Pizza, hot dogs, cold drinks, and plenty of hot chocolate will be available.

Do's and Don'ts

We expect positive cheering and good sportsmanship from the fans on both sides. Taunting, profanity, and negative cheering directed at players, coaches and officials will not be tolerated at Cohasset. Please do your part to be a good sport.

Alcohol, drugs and tobacco products are not allowed on school grounds at Cohasset Middle-High School. Friday nights have been a family event. Please don't do anything prior to or during the game to change this.

There are no dogs allowed in the facility during the game. We are expecting a large crowd so please leave your pets at home.

If you see problems in our stands or on school grounds please find an Athletic Department Staff member in a blue jacket to assist you.

Conclusion

The players and coaching staffs from both schools have had outstanding seasons. On behalf of the athletic departments and school administrations from both schools and the entire South Shore League we hope everyone comes to support their team in a positive way.

Coyle, Ed Baker, Matt Gill, Seth Jacobson and Paula Woodhull for all your help and support.

Thanks to all the paginaters who, time after time, never failed to amaze me by somehow making my harried and confusing layout designs work. Specifically, thanks Mary Murray, Paula O'Brien and Linda Smith for the patience. I know there were times I really didn't deserve it.

Thanks to photographers Chris Bernstein, Bert Lane, Susan Haney, Robin Chan and Alan Chapman for always making my sports pages at least look good. Thanks even more for all those times you answered the phone and agreed to drop everything in order to honor a last minute photo assignment.

Thanks to Anne Rodwell for coming through for me more times than I can count.

And an extra special thanks to Julie Nevero, the cuter and cleverer of the Mariner sports editors. It's been a blast.

Thanks moreover to all of these folks for making this such a fun place to toil, not to mention a hard place to leave.

As for the actual "work"…this has been as good as it gets, as far as I'm concerned.

In my mind, I reached the pinnacle of sportswriting through this job.

I will tell anyone in this industry who'll listen, flat out, there is nothing better than covering high school sports. This is a personal feeling that's again become crystallized in my mind all too clearly this week, as it seems to every time postseason rolls around. Getting to not only watch, but report on the manner in which these high school athletes put absolutely everything they have on the line to represent their school and their town— all the while dealing with the reality that the next loss will signal the end of an era, the final time they will be playing with individuals they've called friends and teammates dating back to their earliest memories— is a profoundly moving honor.

This kind of athletic backdrop can never be duplicated or come even close to being matched.

In terms of volume, it's difficult to imagine anything matching the widespread fervor this region experienced over the Red Sox this fall and the Patriots last winter. However, if it's pure unadulterated pride and passion from a sports following you want, the Sox and Pats have nothing on…say, what the Scituate boys lacrosse team did this past spring, going from a team that won just five games total in the previous three years of the program to winning more than double that amount in 2004 and marching to the state quarterfinals. Ditto for what the Cohasset High girls tennis, Scituate High girls tennis and Norwell High baseball teams accomplished this past spring with their postseason runs.

I love the Sox and Pats as much as anyone. I was literally shaking as I watched the final innings in both the Yankees and Cardinals series, just as I also was when Adam Vinatieri was lining up both of his Super Bowl clinching field goals.

Still, in my quiet and reflective moments, it's pretty difficult to ignore how absurd these emotions are. In this age of the professional athlete, with salaries and free agency run amok, all we're really rooting for is laundry and corporate entities.

It is also in these quiet and reflective moments that I realize just how lucky I've been to do what I've done since July of 2000.

And I have tasted life on the other side. I covered the Celtics for five years, 1990 through '95, the end of the Bird Era. I got to speak regularly with Chief, Kevin, DJ, Reggie, Dee and Larry. It was a pretty exciting time, to say the least. I've also covered the Red Sox, done interviews with Roger Clemens, Mo Vaughn, Nomar Garciaparra, Jim Rice and Yaz (these latter two as coaches…I'm not that old), to name a few of the highlights.

Yup, it was loads of fun. I was living out a boyhood dream.

But, you know, I never really felt honored to be doing any of this. In fact, I never even felt much appreciated. Those were jobs. OK, pretty cool jobs, but jobs still the same. And the longer I did them, the more they felt that way. There were always four or five other reporters there, looking to tell pretty much the same story I was. And if I wasn't there, someone else would have told it. And it's not like the athletes I was covering really thought all that much about what I was writing or the mental efforts expended to report or frame things just so.

Conversely, in my soon to be former capacity, I'd stumble into a sense of honor on an almost weekly basis. I've chronicled treasured personal histories, something I've been reminded of frequently by both humbling expressions of appreciation and complaints from folks who'd felt I'd dropped the ball or come up short of the mark. But even these latter contacts proved, more often than not, to be personal motivators. It was great to know people cared that much.

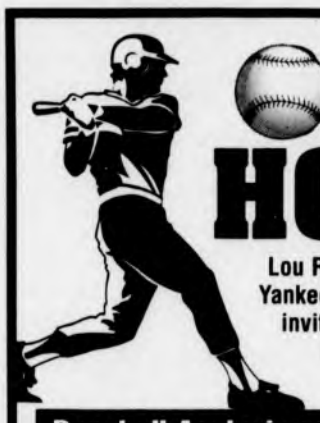
I felt honored to be on a cold and windy Sandwich High soccer field this past Saturday night when the Silver Lake boys soccer team—decimated in 2004 by graduation and the split of Pembroke from the school system, and then for this game by a couple of key injuries—nearly pull off an upset over much higher seeded Sandwich. This game had to go 100 minutes (the regulation 80 plus two 10-minute overtime periods), the set of five penalty kicks each and then finally three rounds into sudden death penalty kicks before it was decided: Sandwich 2, Silver Lake 1. The much deeper Blue Knights team, now a perfect 10-0 on their home field for the season, substituted liberally throughout the game. The Lakers, with starters Rob Massman and Ben Warren out with injuries, pretty much went with the same 11 players throughout the second half and two incredibly intense OT frames. When it finally ended, with Sandwich players swarming their keeper wildly and SL players collapsing to the field in agony, all's I could do was think of how fortunate I was to be there on the sidelines to witness it all.

I felt honored to be there when the Cinderella 13th seeded Scituate High boys basketball team finally fell this past winter to top seeded Norwell in the sectional semifinals, after three wins on the road over higher seeded teams, just as I felt honored exactly two years earlier when the reverse scenario played out. The range in human emotion alone at both venues made it so.

I felt honored to cover the 2001 Norwell High hockey team that stunned us all by barely squeaking into the postseason and then marching all the way to the sectional semifinals, where it became the only team to truly throw a scare into Hanover on its unbeaten drive to a state championship.

I felt honored to cover the 2003 Braintree High boys lacrosse team, a program in just its fourth year that made it all the way to the state semifinals before falling to eventual state champion Beverly. I was also honored to cover the Braintree High boys gymnastics team that won its second straight state championship this past winter season.

I could go on an on and on…the unbeaten 2002 Cohasset High hockey team, the 2003 Scituate High hockey team, with all those great personalities, that made it to sectional semifinals, the 2003 Silver Lake boys soccer team that broke a school record for wins in the final year before Pembroke left the SL region, the three Cohasset High wrestlers (Matt Baroudi, Joey Kehoe and Phil Strazzulla) who won state championships in front of their hometown fans in dramatic fashion this past February, the 2004 Norwell baseball team that went from worst to first in the South Shore League and then marched to the south sectional semifinals …



Of greater honor still has been getting to know and work with so many coaches who truly do it the right way, folks like Jeff Doyle, Ron Ford, Tom Giacomozzi, Al Gallotta, Tony Rolfe, Jim Sullivan, Torin Sweney, Rita Dennehy, Kevin Greer, Scott Payne, Ken Camerota, Bruce Emerson, Dana Battista, Bob Fisher, Jim Cassagrande, Ken Owen, Derek Sulc, Tom Jacobs, Bill Donovan, Scott Turley, John Willis, Frank Granara, Ben Virga, Joe Darche, Fred Watson, Deb Beal, Matt Poirier, Kevin Duggan, Mike Breen, Mike Merrick, Bob Beatty, Jack Browne, Paul Hurley and so many others. There's even a few in there with whom I've been fortunate enough to become friends.

Of greatest honor, though, has been the position I've been placed in to observe the individual growth and development of young athletes, both on and off the field of competition…

In short, it's been an incomparable honor.

the cross bar.

"I don't know if (the referees) would have awarded a penalty kick if the ball hadn't gotten to Mike," said Leary. "It looked like a missed call to me, though."

It was Grimm who had scored the game's first goal, as he collected the ball in a scramble after junior Brandon Smith had served a corner kick in, and punched it home. This was just the 10th goal scored against Chatham this season.

This came midway through the first half, with the wind at Cohasset's back on the elevated Chatham High pitch.

"Wind was definitely a factor on that field," reported Leary. "I chose to take the wind at our backs in the first half, because I thought if we scored first we might be able to stun them a little bit. It almost worked."

With the wind going their way, the host Blue Devils tied the game at 1-1 13:40 into the second half when Jonathan Pierre proved quickest in a scramble. Chatham got a free kick just outside and to the right of the penalty area. Pierre initiated the play before Todd Monson's free kick bounced behind the wall. Christian Messersmith appeared to get a foot on the ball for Chatham before it came to Pierre, who banged home his first goal of three goals.

Messersmith also set up Pierre's second score seven minutes later when he headed down a Shawn McGlynn cross from the left corner for Pierre to run on to and chip home to give Chatham its first lead.

Messersmith also assisted on the third score with a cross. A second of confusion between a couple of Cohasset defenders gave Pierre the time he needed to step forward and finish his hat trick.

Chatham fielded a much larger team than the Skippers and, led by defenders Greg Horne and Zach van Esselstyn, played a more physical style.

"The game could have turned on one play, but Chatham did beat us fair and square," asserted Leary. "They're a very good team. There's a reason they're the number one seed. But we played very well as a team and I thought this was a very evenly played game.

"It was a great soccer game, and a lot of fun to watch."

Head Coach Rob Leary has some words for co-captain Kevin Dinsmore during Cohasset's 2-0 victory over Fairhaven last Thursday night.

Skippers 2, Fairhaven 0

The boys did manage to extract a little revenge from Fairhaven on Thursday night, as, earlier in the day, the Fairhaven lady booters had knocked off the CHS girls in the first round.

A light drizzle began to fall in Cohasset just before the boys 6 p.m. start. That continued throughout the game, with a few periods of heavier rain mixed in, making for some slippery conditions. Alumni Field itself, however, held up remarkably well.

Junior Ben Libby gave the Skippers the only goal they'd need 15 minutes in, sliding into the goal box to punch home a feed from senior John Grimm. The play started when junior Aidan Buick spotted an overloaded left side of the penalty area and alertly switched fields, sending a long volley across to Grimm in the right side of the penalty area. Grimm beat his mark with a nifty move toward the end line and then slid the ball across the crease area, where Libby was able to slide into it just ahead of the diving Fairhaven goalie to slip it inside the right goal post.

The Skippers continued to dominate both in terms of possession and territory for the balance of the first half, with league all-stars Buick and senior Kevin Dinsmore doing a sensational job of settling the play.

Fairhaven did come close to scoring on a counterattack just before the halftime break, though, as the ball was knocked behind Cohasset keeper Prescott Busk on a collision with a Fairhaven forward. The ball caromed free to another Fairhaven player, but junior Trevor Brady raced in front of the shot labeled for twine to take it off his midsection, and then cleared it out of harm's way.

Fairhaven became increasingly desperate over the course of the second half, and kept bringing extra players forward trying to capitalize on several deep pushes. The Cohasset defense bent, but did not break, and Fairhaven's offense-first gambit backfired as Buick was sent in alone on a long clearing boot by Dinsmore near the 60 minute mark and tucked it past the Fairhaven keeper with a nifty chip off the outside of his right foot.

Cohasset defenders Jonathan Littauer, Sam MacDonald and Brady did a nice job of keeping the play in front of them over the final 20 minutes against the even more desperate Fairhaven measures, and Busk made a couple of nice plays as well, including a straight out dive to take the ball off the foot of a Fairhaven forward who'd gotten behind him just as he was preparing to step into it.

development.

"We really learned from the rough start. Almost every player picked up the intensity as the season went on," she said. "Hopefully, our last game against Hull gives us a preview of what lies down the road."

The Hull contest proved tighter than the Bush-Kerry race. The first half ended with a 0-0 tie on the scoreboard, not a surprise with the two teams so equally matched.

Cohasset struck first in the second half with a Brooke Allen shot, assisted by Liddell. The Pirates refused to give in and quickly fired two rockets into the back of the Cohasset goal.

Bostwick called a time out and flipped on her motivational switch.

"Are you going to let Hull win this way and give up with 18 minutes left in the game?" Bostwick asked her players. "Let's wake up and win this for our seniors!"

The Skippers took to heart their coach's speech. Junior Katie James tied the game with a goal, again assisted by Liddell, on an offensive corner.

With only 1:20 left in the game, Katherine Whoriskey fired a textbook pass to Mia Lieb-Lappen, who deflected the ball into the Hull net. Time ran out and the Skippers had dazzled their fans.

"This was a great way to end the year," remarked star Lieb-Lappen. "If only the season were longer. We were definitely on a roll."

A happy Bostwick added, "I am absolutely thrilled with the team's improvement over the year. The progression was phenomenal. The team began to gel by the end of the season."

The Skippers will lose six senior leaders to graduation: Co-captain Allison Dean (a league all-star), co-captain Christina St. Pierre, Liz Condos, Colby Durant, Allison Fludder, and Courtney Hurley.

"I am absolutely thrilled with the team's improvement over the year. The progression was phenomenal. The team began to gel by the end of the season."

CHS field hockey coach
Deb Bostwick

After rebuilding this year, the Skippers look forward to the potential victories in store for them next season. With 13 juniors on the team now, the Skippers will have plenty of experience and time to buff up their skills.

A key to their success lies in their ability to improve on the offensive side of the game.

"I would like to see much more offensive play and more goals scored," Bostwick said. "We will need quickness in our midfield and no kick balls."

Bostwick and her players hope their experience and perseverance will pay off in the 2005 season. Maybe we could borrow a little magic from the Red Sox and Patriots camps.

Coastal Stars Report

Mites A

The Coastal Stars Mites A team continued their winning ways with a 10-3 decision over the Duxbury Mite A team Saturday at the Asiaf Rink in Brockton. The win extends the team's overall season record to 4-1-1. The game featured a balanced attack with six different Stars skaters scoring, great defensive play and strong goaltending by netminder Jeffrey Nagle. The Stars first goal came early in the first period when Left Wing Brandon Winn scored an unassisted goal. Winn also scored the second goal of the game off of a great pass from Right Wing Brendan Crane halfway through the first period. The final score of the first period was the result of some more great team play, with Defensemen Sam Topham passing the puck to Winger Patrick Holway at the blue line, who skated in on the break away and lifted the puck over the goalie's glove. The Stars were ahead 3-0 after the first period. Although Duxbury scored its first goal midway through the second period, the line of Jeremy Duchini, Garrett Leahy and Charley Michalowski applied constant offensive pressure leading to two goals from Charley, who recently rejoined the team after breaking his arm at the beginning of the season. Center Kenny Parnell's hustle and backchecking helped to keep the Duxbury team from scoring any more during the second period. The Stars continued its team play with an excellent centering pass from Dave Cataldo to Brendan Crane to make the game 6-1 after two periods of play. Throughout the game Coastal Stars defensemen, Charlie Blackington, Sam Topham, Matt Burchill, Martin Buckley and Tommy O'Brien played a solid game limiting the Duxbury skaters offensive opportunities. Scoring in the third period came from Colin MacDonald, Patrick Holway and David Cataldo off of his own rebound. Although Duxbury was able to score two more goals in the third, the Stars Mite A team held on for their fouth win of the season. The boys face a strong Norwood team this coming

Squirt C-4

The Coastal Stars Squirt C-4 team beat the Seahawks 5-3 at Pilgrim Arena in Hingham on October 30th. Forward James Daley stole the spotlight scoring four times to keep the Stars in the lead for all three periods.

Skating from mid-ice, Daley opened the scoring for the Stars at 11:32 into the first period with a wrist shot that sailed over the left shoulder of the Seahawks goalie. On his next shift, Daley tucked another wrist shot in the net, giving the Stars a 2-0 lead. The Stars jumped ahead to a comfortable 3-0 lead when forward Ryan Melia fed line mate Andrew Tautkus a perfect pass, which Andrew handedly fired into the net.

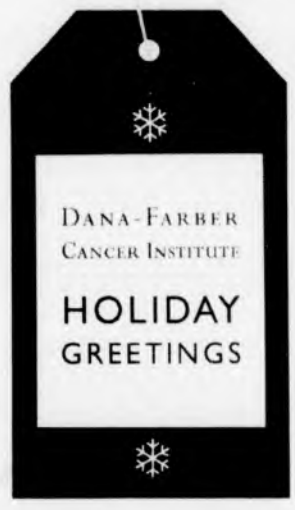
The Seahawks made several scoring attempts, testing the defensive team of Nicholas Craig and Thomas Coyne. Craig and Coyne managed to shut the Seahawks down on repeated drives for the net. Goalie Max Hemingway kept his composure when Seahawks forwards fired four consecutive shots on net. Hemingway kicked, swatted and dove on the puck to keep the Seahawks scoreless in the first.

During the second period, Hemingway continued to impress by turning aside many shots from the Seahawks. Defenders Jonathan Gardner and RJ Neuls were solid behind the blue line, sending the puck into the offensive zone where Daley could utilize his wrist shot once again and earn his third goal, putting the Stars ahead 4-0. At the end of the second period, the Seahawks began to come to life, scoring their first goal.

During the third period, the Seahawks scored twice, threatening the Stars early lead. Going into the final minutes of the game, with the score 4-3 Stars, the Seahawks pulled their goalie, giving Daley the open net and the opportunity to sink his fourth goal and secure the win for the Stars.

Solid team play by Matthew Tautkus, Michael McPartlin, Liam Rose, Tristan Wiggin and Seamus Feeney contributed to a real "team win", giving the C-4 squad a 3-1-1 record.

Mite C-3



Saturday's game was a nail biter till the end as Frank Lemieux's Mite C-3 team fought their loss to Hanover, 2-3. The action-packed first period was filled with tremendous defensive plays by Boudreau, Calapa and Neuls. Lemieux's powerful breakaway had fans on the edge of their seats and Santos got the Stars on the board with 2:20 left in the first. O'Brien made some key moves shooting the puck into the Hanover end, keeping the opposition on their toes. Despite Hanover's 6 shots on goal, Stars goalie Comeau only allowed the one goal, ending the first period 1:1.

The excitement continued in period 2 as McDermott and Barnhard had great shots into the Hanover end. Kaetzer also did his job getting the puck into the Hanover end and keeping it there. Boudreau foiled a Hanover breakaway, poking the puck away. Later, Boudreau and Parker had firey breakaways on Hanover. Cole's fancy stick handling and shot on goal added to the energy of the second period

Stars effort continued to shine in period 3 with McQuinnan and Cullen keeping up the fight making awesome defensive plays. With 9 seconds left in the third, Comeau had an unbelievable save on a Hanover breakaway.

The Stars Mite C-3's face WHK2 on Saturday.

SPORTS NOTES

Youth lacrosse registration begins Nov. 13

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will open its sign-up for the spring season on Saturday, Nov. 13 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the auditorium at Town Hall.

This marks a shift in the way lacrosse registration has been run, and it gives families the opportunity to save some money.

Registrants on Nov. 10 will get the 2004 spring season price of $135 for one player and $250 for two. Registrants after November 10 - and sign-ups will remain open through a second in-person sign-up day in January will pay the 2005 price of $145 for one player and $270 for two.

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse is moving registration forward - it is being held simultaneous to Recreation Basketball sign-ups - to better prepare for the season ahead.

Registrations will be taken for both boys and girls in the 14 & Under (7th and 8th graders) and 12 & Under (5th and 6th grades) age groups. At the 10 & Under level (grades 3-4), Cohasset will field teams for boys and sponsor a weekly skills-development clinic for girls.

The youth lacrosse program is dedicated to introducing children to the sport. All players receive roughly equal playing time regardless of ability. Cohasset participates in the Mass Bay Youth Lacrosse League, the nation's largest youth lacrosse organization, which does not keep standings or have playoffs. Every team makes several road trips per year, which be as close as games in Scituate or as far away as Martha's Vineyard.

In addition, the program is hopeful of attending a jamboree near the end of its season, and is working to develop a special Memorial Day weekend program with teams from Vermont. The season ends with Cohasset's annual Family Day in June.

The youth program is likely to field 12 or more teams this spring, depending on demand and available coaching. In spite of that growth, roster spots at all levels will be limited and it is possible that some youngsters will be turned away.

"This year, we have changed our registration process in an effort to accommodate more families," says Chuck Jaffe, coordinator of Cohasset Youth Lacrosse. "We will have this initial sign-up in November, then allow people to mail in registration forms up until our final sign-up at the high school in early January. At that point, we're likely to be at our ideal roster sizes, meaning there will be no late registration whatsoever."

Parents who can not attend the Nov. 13 registration can wait until Jan. 8 to do it in person at the second sign-up day or can contact Jaffe by e-mail at CAJaffe@aol.com to request registration forms. Include your name, address and the number of children being registered.

The registration fee includes a uniform and a youth membership in US Lacrosse, the national governing body for lacrosse. US Lacrosse membership includes mandatory insurance coverage and a subscription to a magazine especially designed for kids. Cohasset Youth Lacrosse does offer discounts to families with two or more players; the once-a-week girls 10-and-Under clinic costs $100 per player and this year, for the first time, clinic players will receive US Lacrosse membership.

The program is limited to Cohasset residents.

In general, both boys and girls games are played Sunday afternoons. The spring practice schedule has not yet been set, although the older teams for both boys and girls typically have two practices and one game each week. The teams will begin practicing indoors in early March and begin playing games in April. The season concludes in mid-June.

In addition to players, the program is looking for additional coaches at all levels.

Lacrosse is a contact sport; at all levels for boys, practices and games include hitting. In accordance with Mass Bay Youth Lacrosse League rules, all boys must be equipped with sticks, gloves, shoulder and elbow pads, and helmets with mouthpieces. Hockey helmets are not allowed, although hockey arm and shoulder pads are (hockey gloves are not flexible enough to allow a child to manipulate and control a lacrosse stick).

The girls game has less contact, but practices will be every bit as physical and demanding as for the boys. All girls must be equipped with sticks, mouthpieces and approved goggles.

There will be more information on the Cohasset Youth Lacrosse program available at the Jan. 10 sign-up. If you need more information, or are interested in volunteering to coach, contact Jaffe at 781-383-9858 or CAJaffe@aol.com.

Basketball registration

Registration will be held for boys and girls, grades one through eight, 2004/'05 Cohasset Recreation/Boosters Basketball Program Saturday, Nov. 13, from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall Auditorium. The fee is $75 per player.

This program will be held on Saturdays starting Dec. 4, with evaluations meeting each Saturday through mid-March, 2005. Basketball will not meet during any school vacation periods.

Cohasset Village Fair returns Dec. 4

Cohasset Common, dressed in its holiday lights, anticipates the excitement of the return of the Village Fair on Saturday, Dec. 4, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In preparation hundreds of volunteers are busy knitting, sewing, baking, decorating and creating beautiful handmade decorations, gifts and culinary treats to support this important holiday fundraiser. At the Second Congregational Church the hand-knit and fleece scarves and headbands in local school colors are only one of the many great gift ideas. The multi-talented volunteers create handbags, dried wreaths and holiday garlands – all on sale at the Second Congregational Church.

The Greek Orthodox Church's popular Café and General Store at Town Hall is testament to the wonderful variety of offerings at the fair. Homemade baklava and spanakopita are just a few of the treats you'll find at Town Hall alongside beautiful fresh holiday greens and decorations.

First Parish Unitarian Universalist's popular Swedish Bake Shop was established years ago by parishioner Sine Pounder who owned her own bakery in Cohasset. She recruits and trains new Swedish bakers every year who begin baking at 5 a.m. on Saturday to make the more than 1,500 popular cinnamon buns sold at the fair every year. Volunteers both young and old contribute to the makings of the fair. The church school at First Parish will once again create their famous soup mix festively packaged for gifting.

The volunteers from St. Stephen Episcopal Church have been busy baking cakes, pies, toffee and fudge, and collecting hundreds of used books, CD's, tapes and videos that will be sold at St. Stephen's Book Sale. Their Bake Shop and Country Store serves soups, coffee, tea, cocoa, soft drinks, hot dogs, bagels, muffins and donuts. Volunteers from Cohasset's Appalachia Service Project are also actively involved in planning and running the Children's Secret Room inside St. Stephen's Church, where young children can select and wrap a "secret" gift for Mom or Dad, or a sibling or pet, and have it ready to go under the tree. All gifts are just $1 - $4.

Baker Sine Pounder with Anne Reel and daughter Charlie were hard at work preparing Swedish pastries for last year's fair. The Swedish Bake Shop will be back again this year.

The fair is an important fundraiser and supports many local charities including the Cohasset Food Pantry, Father Bill's Place, The Mary Martha Learning Center in Hingham, Wellspring in Hull, and Cohasset's Appalachia Service Project. The Village Fair is sponsored by the First Parish in Cohasset Unitarian Universalist, the Second Congregational Church, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, the Nativity Assumption of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church, and the non-profit Cohasset Appalachia Service Project (ASP). All proceeds support the work of the churches, local charities and ASP's home repair program.

"Nantucket" and other works by Jeanne L. Replogle are on exhibit at the Paul Pratt Library.

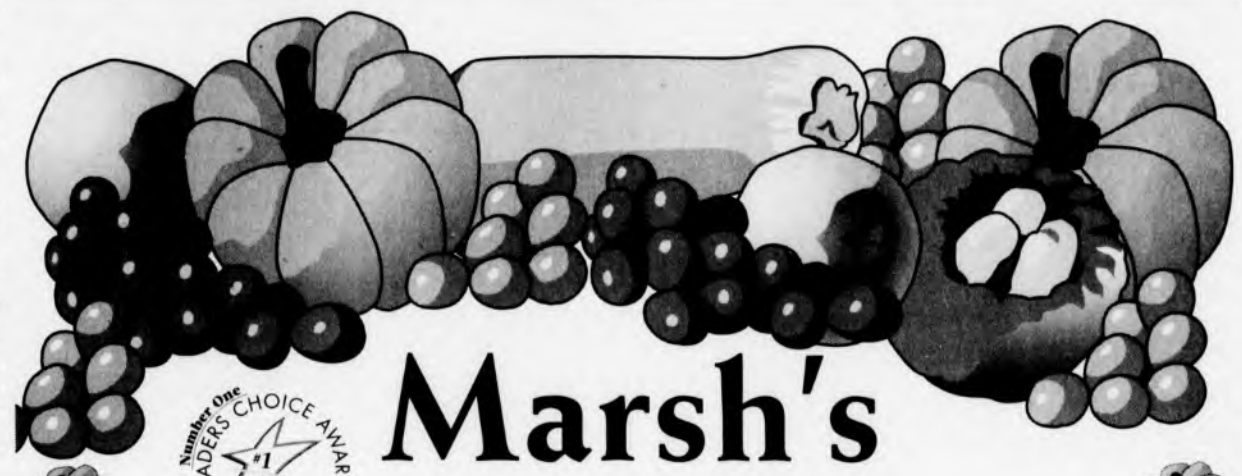
Reception Saturday for Jeanne Replogle

Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 35 Ripley Road, is hosting an exhibition of Jeanne L. Replogle's recent paintings through Dec. 31. A reception will be held Nov. 13, from 5 to 7 p.m.

Since childhood Jeanne Replogle has studied art. Beginning as a realistic landscape, still life and portrait painter in oils on canvas, her style of painting evolved toward a more imaginative folk art genre in the past two decades, generally using acrylics on masonite board.

Her commissions from private collectors are spread across the country, depicting individual homes, families, wedding parties, and other special occasions or events. These commemorative paintings become family heirlooms. Other commissions include corporations, banks, and universities.

Recently, Replogle was curator and exhibitor in a major show for the South Shore Art Center, where she is a Gallery Artist. She has participated in many other shows in the Greater Boston area. Her work was selected for the "Arts Around Boston—2000" show, and she has been juried into the "Two Collection" for WGBH television for the last three years.



This year she was included in "Who's Who of American Women." Replogle is an artist member of the American Society of Marine Art (ASMA), and has just finished three marine paintings for the Hughes Gallery in Florida.

During the past four years, she has been commissioned by Boston area galleries to do a series of original "New England Heritage" paintings. They are then reproduced as limited edition prints. These include the towns of Hingham, Duxbury, Cohasset, Plymouth, Norwell, Hanover, Scituate and Edgartown.

The decorative, whimsical and often maritime aspects of her work have engendered an increasingly appreciative public. Her studio is in the beautiful seaside town of Cohasset, where she resides.

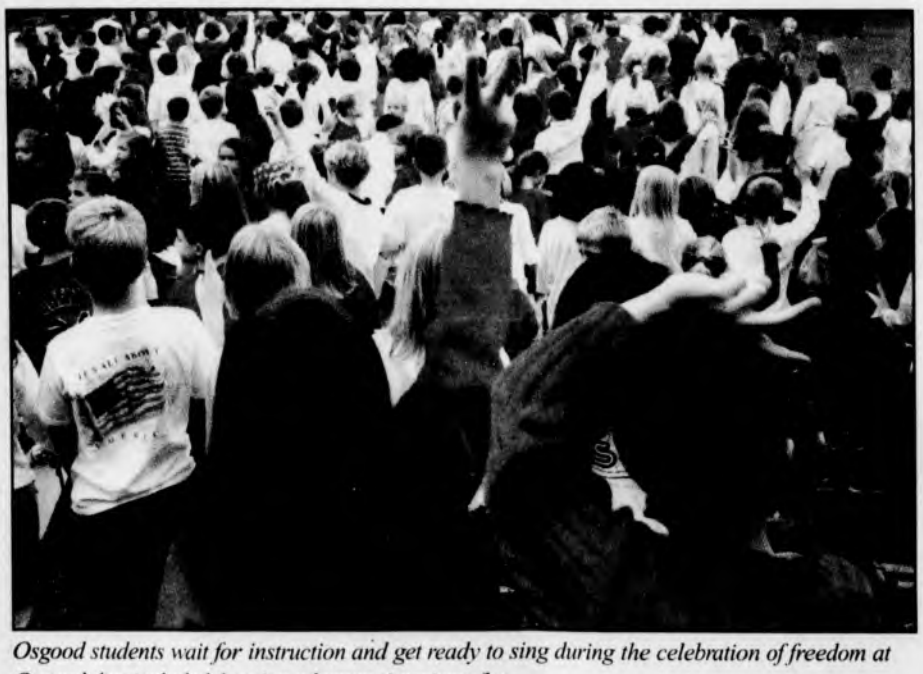
Osgood students bring American flag to life

The human flag is the culmination of many student activities that were planned with the specialists at the Osgood School. These specialists are Anne McCarthy, Derry Schwantner, Betsy Ogden, Jack MacInnis, Rose Hathon and Kevin Dykas. The library, technology, art, music and physical education departments integrated their curriculum in a "Celebration of Freedom" coinciding with Election Day, Nov. 2, and Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

Second-graders analyzed the "Pledge of Allegiance" in the library. Using dictionaries to define unknown words, students came up with a 2004 kid-friendly version.

I promise to take care of the flag
And the country it represents.
America is a country that...
~ votes for their president
~ tries to make good laws and good choices
~ can't be separated or split up
~ has freedom
~tries to be fair to all.

In art class, second-grade artists painted a folk-art flag that proudly hangs in the forum area of the Osgood School. First-grade artists created American flags out of house shingles and along with the kindergarten artists they made red, white and blue 'vote' posters. All students learned patriotic songs in music, which they shared on Election Day when they created a human flag.



In computer class the children went to a kid-friendly veterans Web site where they learned some cool facts about veterans along with the history and proper display of the American flag. This Web site is www.va.gov/kids/k-5. In gym, Osgood students learned the concept of formation and coordinating motion for the flag which all came together in the back yard of the Osgood School where technology coordinated and filmed the "human flag in motion."

All the Osgood students were asked to dress in appropriate colors — kindergarten in blue, first grade in red and second grade in white Tuesday, Nov. 2. You could tell they were excited about this project because every student was color ready that day. The video will be shown at the Osgood Holiday Concert Dec. 16 and will also be included in the Osgood School video yearbook.

Sixth-graders share their camp experience

School Committee hears presentation

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Continuing a 10-year tradition, Cohasset's sixth-grade students packed up some belongings to spend a week down at Camp Bournedale in Plymouth recently. During the day, students learned about the environment, the arts, and the sciences. At night, they slept in cabins with a group of their classmates, learning a little more about themselves and each other.

This year, sixth-grade teachers, Elizabeth Cisneros, Nancy Magnussen, Stephanie Noble, Sue Horigan, and Vickie Sullivan, spent all five days at the camp, bunking up in a special house designated for teachers only. Horigan said this year, many administrators and classroom aides came down to offer their assistance during the day. To help out during the night, parents volunteered their time and slept in a special section of each cabin.

"We usually need 50 parents for four nights," said Horigan, adding every year, the teachers feel a little panicked they won't have enough coverage, but "we often end up with more parent volunteers than we need."

Sixth-grade students Danny Aherne, Charlie Coffman, Emily Toomey, Merrick Sease, and Mike Monaco, were chosen by their teachers to give a presentation to the School Committee on their experiences at Camp Bournedale. Students in the sixth grade wrote about their time at camp, and the five who made the presentations read selections penned by their classmates.

Mike talked about rocketry class and said how much fun everyone had watching a flaming rocket shoot toward the sky.

Danny's presentation covered the experience in "adventure class." He said the students were asked to complete a number of tasks, always working as a team. He said there were many obstacles to overcome, including the "wheel of doom" and the "pit of frustration," which required students to hold on tight to a rope and swing over a pit without touching the ground. The mission was only successful if everyone in the group completed the task.

Charlie talked about the class called "Lobster Tales," which introduced students to the life of lobstermen. Charlie said the students learned about other creatures lobstermen sometimes catch. He also said some students saw harbor seals during their outings. The campers learned about how lobster traps work, and Charlie explained if the lobstermen cannot get to their traps in time, the clips which hold the animals rust off, allowing them to escape.

Emily spoke about the coastal ecology class students participated in. She said they learned about pollution and how to prevent it, and had a scavenger hunt on the beach. One day when it rained and students couldn't go out on the beach, Emily said one group stayed inside and dissected a fake dolphin.

Many students participated in ceramics during their time at camp, and Merrick said they learned about how to make a clay mold. Each student chose a mold to paint, and Merrick said explained they learned how to paint using a dry brush technique. By painting with a base color first, then using another paint over it, the sculpture looks textured. Some student works are on display in a glass case at the middle school.

Mike talked about rocketry class and said how much fun everyone had watching a flaming rocket shoot toward the sky. He said the camp leader would shoot other rockets in the air, and told students if they could catch the rocket in their mouth when it came back to earth, they would win $5 and if they could catch it in their hands, they would win an ice cream sundae.

Horigan said by participating in the Camp Bournedale experience, the sixth-graders learned how to live with other people in tight quarters; how to make schedules, and that they could be independent enough to sleep away from home for an entire week. Horigan said from reading journal entries that students wrote while at the camp, she can see how much they've grown from the experience, and the many lessons learned.

South Shore PAL soliciting

The South Shore Police Activities League (P.A.L.) has been soliciting over the telephone in Cohasset. South Shore P.A.L. is based in Duxbury and helps fund various programs there, as well as in Quincy and Whitman and should not be confused with Cohasset's P.A.L.S. (Police Assisting Local Schools) program.

"Cohasset Police have received calls from Cohasset residents asking if we are soliciting for our Police Assisting Local Schools (P.A.L.S.) program," Chief James Hussey said. "I just want to make sure Cohasset residents understand the difference and to what they are donating."

Police arrested three in October

October was a quiet month for the Cohasset Police Department; there were three arrests, one for minor in possession of liquor, one for operating under the influence of liquor, and finally one for breaking and entering. Police Chief James Hussey said.

During the month of October the police department investigated 20 motor vehicle accidents, three of which resulted in personal injury. There were 47 motor vehicle citations issued totaling $975 in fines. Additionally, there were 27 parking tickets issued totaling $675 in fines, said Hussey.

There were 47 motor vehicle citations issued totaling $975 in fines.

Also in the month of October the emergency dispatch center received a total of 966 calls for police services of those 131 were Emergency 911 calls.

In the month of October there were three reports of breaking and entering: two from a business, and one from a residence. There were also eight criminal complaints issued for the month, Hussey said.

Holiday boutique offers gifts from the heart

By Mary Jane Hanron
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

The season of family gatherings approaches as the Parish of St. John the Evangelist in Hingham presents its fourth annual Holiday Boutique this Friday and Saturday, Nov. 12 & 13. This two-day festivity promises to delight visitors with new and extraordinary items as well as familiar favorites for which the event is known.

Many participating artists and merchants unite entrepreneurship with charitable works. Fascinating, poignant stories inspire their creations. Meeting these people is as much of a gift as the items on a holiday shopping list.

Kate Roland of Noteworthy with her Oma bags that are placed beneath the tree with the hope that Santa will fill them. According to Boland, the bags, which are an Irish tradition, are made in various sizes of colorful fabrics and ribbons. Look for the Oma bags and much more at St. John's Holiday Boutique Friday and Saturday.

Among those joining the event for the first time is Suzanne Philby, owner of Main Street Stitches, who will be offering knitted creations. Her work began as a hobby which she shared with others by teaching them to knit scarves. She organized sessions when people of all ages would gather to knit and then donate the products to charities and shelters. Now newly named, her pastime has become a business of handmade products created from yarns of varying textures and hues. Shawls, ponchos and scarves will be available in her display.

Philby also has created wristlets which she describes as" a cuff with a button that is really beautiful and warm!" Look for whimsical Christmas stockings two-and-one-half-feet long when visiting this display! Philby reflected upon this hobby turned vocation. "Knitting brings people together. It is something that people can have in common; children, grandparents, teachers and friends. It is relaxing and makes time to enjoy each other," she says.

Coming to Hingham from Framingham is Ilma Paixio, founder of Handeira Linens. Her products are created in Brazil in a small tribal village where women are lace makers. The fine and intricate art of hand made lace is evident in her collection of linens, baby items and christening clothes. Proceeds from the sale of these items support the village in which the linens are made.

Upon learning of the plight of these people, Paixio developed a program to help them with medical needs, vision care, education and various ways to become more independent. Her devotion to this cause has given new hope and optimism to the village occupants. Women are able to teach younger girls the art of lace making, keeping the tradition alive. "I hope people will value these beautiful pieces and keep them for a long time. The workmanship is so lovely," Paixio says.

Paixio, recipient of an award from the Entrepreneurial Foundation of New England, will have items in all price ranges beginning at $15. Each sale will support a specific project. "Selling a doily will feed a family for 10 days," she says. "Proceeds from selling a large tablecloth can support the village for a year. It truly takes a community to raise a village."

Paixio looks forward to introducing Handeira Linens to Boutique visitors. "Helping someone else always brings rewards," she says.

"Three Wishes Artwork" will be another pleasurable Boutique destination for shoppers. Laurie Ingersoll, owner describes herself as "a self-taught artist." Previously a biochemist, she combined her knowledge of science with imagination to make jewelry, key rings and gift items. Also in her area at the Boutique will be "Art from the Heart" ;collections of holiday cards created by handicapped artists. Ingersoll shared a heartwarming tale about one very innovative drawing of the Three Wise Men wearing sunglasses. "I asked why the wise men were wearing sun glasses," she says. "The answer was, 'the star is so bright, they need them!'"

Ingersoll says the inspiration for her business is her three children. "I named my business for them," she says. She looks forward to participating in the St. John's event. "I enjoy being creative in different ways," she says. "I love color. It makes people happy. There isn't anything bigger in life than helping someone else and making the day brighter."

The gentler pace of Ireland's lifestyle stirred a lovely family tradition resulting in the creation of Oma bags. According to Kate Boland, the bags are made in various sizes of colorful fabrics and ribbons. They are placed beneath the tree with the hope that Santa will fill them. Throughout the years these attractive cloth containers serve as a fun alternative to a stocking and a practical option for paper gift wrap.

Returning to the Holiday Boutique will be some of the local community's own businesses, among them "Noteworthy" and "ekdesigns".

Also contributing to the elegance and tradition of the affair are the members of St. John's. The Youth Group will present its magnificent selection of potted bulbs and arrangements, perfect for holiday blooming. Edible goodies and delectable confections will be available thanks to the efforts of parish bakers and the able organization of the Needlepoint Guild. As always, the "Café" will be serving its renowned specialties. The Parish invites the public to partake in this event. Bring your shopping list and complete your buying early as you discover countless treasures inspired by dreams, devotion, compassion and spirituality.

The Parish of St.John the Evangelist is located at 172 Main Street, Hingham. Proceeds from the event support Parish operations and works. Hours for the Holiday Boutique are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. both Friday and Saturday. For more information, please call :781-749-1535.

LISTEN To Life

by John Klefeker, BC-HIS
Board Certified-Hearing Instrument Specialist, MA Lic. #127

THE ADVANTAGES OF GOING DIGITAL

While an analog hearing instrument picks up the vibrations of sound waves and transforms them into a single (yet complex) electrical current, a digital hearing instrument picks up the sound and transforms it into mathematical units. The signal is then divided into many tiny parts. The pitch and the volume can be measured precisely. And, because the digital signal is so robust, it can be reshaped accurately, without affecting the overall quality. Compared to analog hearing instruments, digital instruments provide dramatically improved sound. The technology allows speech to be treated without adding unwanted elements, making it crisper and cleaner to the ear. The difference between analog and digital hearing instruments is akin to a phonograph record and a compact disc.

There is a continuing trend toward digitally engineered hearing instruments today. The result is smaller, more powerful devices, with better wearing comfort, sound quality, ease of operation, and long-term dependability. Come hear what all the excitement is about at FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER. And while you're here at 534 Main Street (Rte. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth, have a free hearing test and discuss your concerns with a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist, a professional who has received special training in the evaluation of hearing and the rehabilitation of hearing loss, typically with hearing aids. PH: 781-337-1144.

P.S. Hearing instruments can help with sensorineural hearing loss, which involves malformation, dysfunction, or damage to the inner ear.

Island vibes

Bermuda visitors can groove to their own beat

By Arthur Pollock

A Bermuda weekend getaway always sounded like a good idea. When the opportunity arose to attend the Ninth Annual Bermuda Music Festival last month, it didn't take long to swing my vote. What I didn't count on was subtropical storm Nicole attending as well. Bermuda is just over an hour-and-a-half plane ride from Boston, a lot quicker than trying to get away to Caribbean destinations, which can keep you airborne for three or four hours. Amid a long line to enter the country at customs, the sun was shining and a band was playing to welcome us.

In another hour my wife and I would be sitting smugly on a pink sand beach, gazing at calm turquoise waters, sipping Bermuda's famous adult beverage, the "Dark and Stormy" (Gosling's Black Seal caramel-flavored, 151-proof rum mixed with ginger beer). Our hotel, the Pompano Beach Club in Southampton, on Bermuda's southwest coast, is a comfortably casual property in a beautiful setting with a cliff-side pool and private beach. It was started back in the 1950s by a gentleman from Waban, Mass. Throw in two 24-hour hot tubs, boat rentals, golf and tennis and there was really no reason to venture too far away. But we wanted to play tourist, so we climbed the steps of Gibbs' Hill Lighthouse, in Southampton Parish, for "the Queen's view" of the island. Then it was onto the Aquarium, one of Bermuda's most popular attractions, with its 145,000-gallon coral reef tank. Also not to be missed is the Underwater Exploration Institute, with its fantastic collection of exotic sea shells from all over the world. We lunched at the White Horse Pub, the island's oldest, in St. George, the second oldest English town established in the New World. You can sample rockfish, wahoo fish or fresh tuna, and, of course, the ubiquitous fish chowder, made with (what else?) Gosling's rum.

Several times a week at Kings Square you can watch a re-enactment of the "dunking of the nags and gossips," Bermuda's 18th century form of justice similar to New England's old tradition of dunking suspected witches underwater. The weather was still holding up when our first night at the music festival began. The festival offers mostly smooth jazz, in keeping with the mellow vibe of the island. Held at the Royal Naval Dockyard, it boasts a unique stage, built out of scaffolding in the water. Behind is the expanse of gorgeous Atlantic Ocean, and in the early evening the front row of seats is just a few feet from the ocean (by the end of the concert the water receded to just several feet from the stage). It has to be one of the prettiest settings for a concert anywhere. With a gentle breeze blowing and a few sips of a Dark and Stormy or Rum Swizzle (rum, sugar, club soda and lime juice), the music goes down just as nicely. Several thousand people can fit in the open-air facility, and area restaurants offer a variety of local dishes from food stands that ring the seats æ take your pick from dozens of choices, among them, ox tails, curry goat or jerk chicken. After a variety of Bermudan talent, headliner Seal took the stage and put on a satisfying show. Perhaps too satisfying æ as some fans rushed down to the stage to be close to the smooth, British balladeer, several fell on their keisters, due to the water-slicked concrete.

The next night, the weather gods were not as cooperative, and the scene started to literally resemble a Dark and Stormy. About half of the night's performers managed to get through their sets before the heavens opened up, washing out headliners Isaac Hayes and the OJ's. Heavy morning rains the next day did not bode well for the festival, but they did not put a damper on our trip to Hamilton, Bermuda's charming capital, for some serious shopping on Front Street. Behind the pastel-colored storefronts are reasonable prices and, best of all, no sales tax. Here you can check out Trimingham's, a landmark since 1842. You may just walk out wearing pink Bermuda shorts and knee-high socks. For lunch, visit Harbourfront restaurant, which serves excellent sushi as well as Continental and Mediterranean specialties. And after your meal, you can fire up an expensive Cuban cigar if you like (there are no nonsmoking signs in sight). Continuing downpours and gale-force winds throughout the afternoon made it clear we would not be hearing the romantic soul music of that night's festival headliner, Anita Baker, anytime soon.

Luckily our hotel had a fine restaurant and we spent most of the evening eating and drinking and listening to the surprisingly romantic sounds of the howling wind. As the sun peeked out the next morning, we snuck in a midmorning horseback ride at Spicelands Riding Centre in Hamilton. Despite a midride downpour, this was a highlight of the trip, as we rode through picturesque allspice woodlands and hisbiscus hedges and ventured onto sandy Warwick Long Beach. The winds started to pick up and rain began to fall in earnest, as we arrived back at the hotel, cutting short my hot-tub time. By late afternoon, the Ministry of Tourism threw in the soggy towel declaring Nicole had defeated Anita Baker's music. It was small comfort that the locals told us it hadn't rained like this in months.

As a consolation prize, we were invited to an indoor performance that night by a group from Philadelphia called Kindred the Family Soul, who put on a stellar performance. They cleverly did a medley of hits from Issac Hayes, the OJ's and Anita Baker, so we could go home saying that we did indeed hear some music from the scheduled headliners. Though I didn't get my music fix totally satisfied, being in Bermuda more than made up for it. Tropical storm or not, as first-time visitors my wife and I fell for this picturesque island. To quote Mark Twain, "You go to heaven, if you want. I'll stay here in Bermuda."

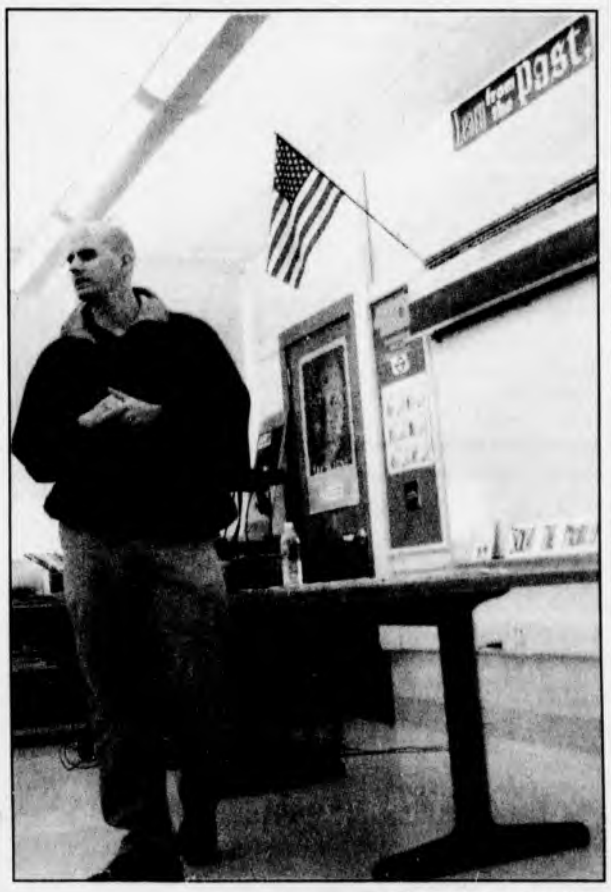
Paying the price for bad choices

Teens hear ex-con's story

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

For the past 14 years, students from Scott Newkirk's Cohasset High School social studies classes have been traveling to the Massachusetts Correctional Institute at Norfolk for a field trip they will never forget.

Abiding by the strict clothing regulations for visitors, students make their way through metal detectors, and are given an up-close look at the life of an inmate. Sixteen months ago, one of those inmates was Gator Collet.



But now, after he served 10 years for manslaughter, students had the opportunity to meet Collet in the classroom where he turned the tragic events of his past into a vehicle to convey the message that violence is never the answer and choices made can save a life.

As Community Resource Director for Project Youth, a non-profit organization for violence prevention, Collet travels to area high schools, telling his story in the hope others won't repeat his mistakes.

Standing before roughly 30 students in Newkirk's class, Collet asked for a show of hands to indicate how many anticipate they will one day go to jail. With not one hand in the air, Collet told students that is what he would have said too.

"I thought it was never going to happen to me. I believed you came from a bad neighborhood and had been arrested a bunch of times," he said, and living in New Bedford in an upper-middle class family, and being someone who didn't drink, did-

Some members say they were left in the dark

The way school budget talks were handled last week is still having reverberations at Town Hall.

Heated discussion erupted during the Advisory Committee meeting this week, as member Pat Waters said closed-door budget talks the committee chairman and vice chairman attended the week before could have put the board's credibility on the line.

The school budget could be facing as much as a $500,000 deficit for fiscal year '05, which started July 1, just as fiscal year '06 budget talks are set to get underway. The news is significant for taxpayers in light of the fact last spring the town passed a $400,000 override for FY'05 earmarked solely for the schools.

The Advisory Committee makes recommendations to Town Meeting on financial and other matters.

The discussion also goes to the heart of "transparent" government – a catch-all phrase for openness. Transparency was at the center of last spring's heated election for both the School

Seeking special citizen

In keeping with an 11-year tradition recognizing an individual for outstanding service to the community or a special achievement — the Cohasset Mariner is now accepting nominations for the annual Citizen of the Year Award.

Here at the Mariner, we invite our readers to take this opportunity to nominate a person who has made a significant contribution to Cohasset. This is a community award: the Mariner is the mean by which we are able to recognize, thank and honor those around us who make the quiet, generous contributions that make our town a wonderful place to call home.

Last year, Cohasset Mariner readers honored Marjorie "Marjie" Murphy as Citizen of the Year. The mother of three and grandmother of two touched countless lives through her roughly 25 years as school librarian at Deer Hill.

The deadline for nominations for the 2004 Citizen of the Year is 5 p.m. Friday, Jan 7. Please see the nomination form on page 7. The form may be photocopied.

SOUTH SHORE'S FINEST

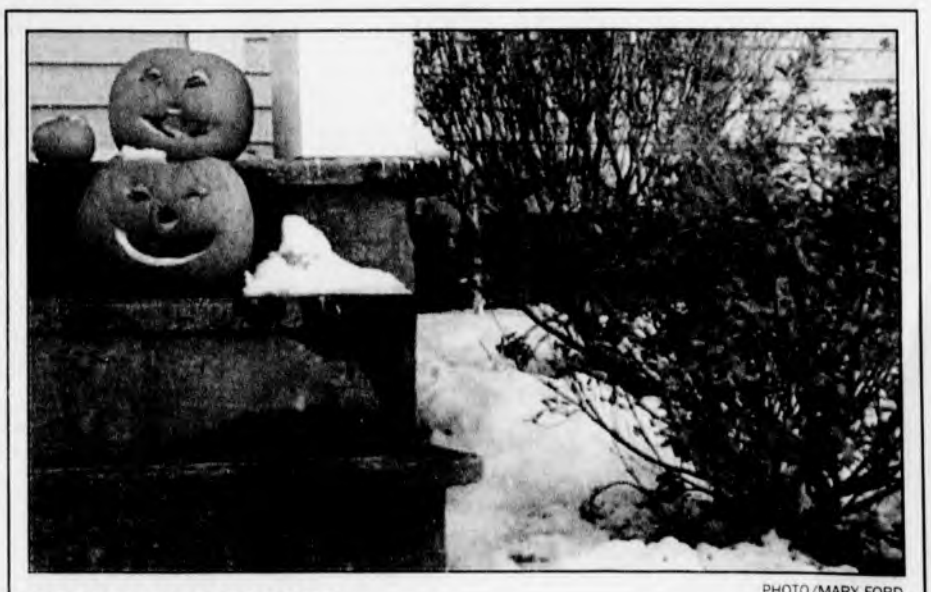
Cohasset's DJ Silvia (13) and his teammates have once again proven themselves to be the best team in the South Shore League. For the second straight year, the Skippers put away Norwell to take the league title. This time, they did it in dominating fashion with a 20-0 victory on Sunday. After the annual Thanksgiving battle with Hull, Cohasset will take on the Tri-Valley champion in the first round of the MIAA Div. 3 football playoffs. For more see sports.

14-home subdivision slated

Off Beechwood St. near train crossing

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

There could soon be a new subdivision in Cedarmere's backyard, as developers have come forward with plans to build single-family homes off Beechwood Street, adjacent to the proposed senior housing site.



The entrance to the proposed subdivision is near the intersection of Beechwood and Norman Todd Road.

"There will be a variety of shapes, but a similarity to give the neighborhood an identity."
— Architect Jim Sandell

Property owner Anthony Nader and his development team came before the Planning Board Monday during a public hearing to give a preliminary overview of the proposed project. Plans thus far include building 14 single-family homes on the 18-acre parcel of land.

Architect Jim Sandell — who also designed the buildings for Cedarmere, a proposed 105-unit senior housing development slated to be located just up the road from Nader's "Highland Estates" — has proposed building shingle-style homes on the property. He said the property can be described as "woody" but also has a good amount of ledge, a

CPC fund receives dollar-for-dollar match

On Oct. 15 Cohasset's Community Preservation Fund received $254,690 from the Massachusetts Department of Revenue. This was the third consecutive year that the Commonwealth matched dollar-for-dollar all money raised by Cohasset through the Community Preservation Act.

The money received from the Commonwealth was deposited into Cohasset's Community Preservation Fund and combined with the revenues raised locally by assessing a 1.5 percent surcharge against real property values. The fund is spent on projects endorsed by the Community Preservation Committee and then approved by Town Meeting.

Recent projects include:

- purchasing several lots bordering Lily Pond (in order to protect the water supply);
- creating two senior housing units in the former Paul Pratt Memorial Library;
- constructing playing fields and play grounds, and the highly successful acquisition of the "Barnes Wildlife Sanctuary", which was purchased without any impact to the tax base.

The Community Preservation Committee recommends appropriating money from the Community Preservation Fund on projects supporting low and moderate income housing, historical preservation, and open space acquisition and preservation, CPC Chairman Stuart Ivimey explains.

The money provided by the Department of Revenue is raised by a surcharge assessed at all Recorder of Deeds offices each time someone records a deed or mortgage on the land records.

"During the most recent budget session on Beacon Hill, legislators made seven attempts to spend this money on unrelated special interest projects," Ivimey said. "But thanks to a bipartisan effort that included leadership by state Sen. Robert Hedlund and Rep. Garrett Bradley, the Commonwealth's fund was fully preserved."

Anyone interested in applying for Community Preservation funding is encouraged to contact Stuart Ivimey at (781) 383-2604.

Norfolk Registry online research

Register William P. O'Donnell, D-Norwood, has announced expansion of research information online at the Registry of Deeds Web site, www.norfolkdeeds.org. Document images for the years 1974 through 1995 are in the process of being included in the Web site library.

"We have completed the first part of this project," stated O'Donnell, "which covers the years 1994 and 1995. Additional years will go online in the coming weeks, with a goal of having all documents back to 1974 available by early next year."

Indexes (summaries) from 1974 to date are currently online, but up to now, document images (copies of the filed documents) were viewable only for documents filed from 1996 forward. "The ability to look at the actual documents on the Internet is a great help to researchers," O'Donnell continued. "These improvements will improve the usefulness of the system. We are continuing our efforts to improve this service and welcome comments and suggestions."

The Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry receives and records hundreds of thousands of documents each year and is a basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate and accessible land record information. For more information visit www.norfolkdeeds.org or call 781-461-6116.

Could big housing projects provide a budget cushion?

Forum slated on pros and cons of more development

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

It's budget season and in Cohasset, that translates into looking at creative solutions to prevent the dreaded "O" word from surfacing again.

With more tax revenue for the community and the potential to generate income from sewer connections, the Avalon, Cedarmere, and Cook Estate multi-unit developments are looking to some citizens like a way to obtain the funds necessary to dig the town out of a hole and avoid another override situation.

News surfaced last week that the FY'05 school budget could be facing a $500,000 deficit just as FY'06 budget talks are set to get underway.

However, development can have both positive and negative effects on a town. Increases in school enrollment can offset gains in tax revenue and multi-unit projects can eat up sewer capacity for existing homes. The Advisory Committee plans to tackle these issues at a forum that includes other town boards on Monday, Nov. 22 at 7 p.m.

Assuming the projects are coming, it will be a benefit for the town to receive more income in a time when it is desperately needed, Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan said. If the projects are provided sewer connections, the town could gain roughly $5 million in one fell swoop, as sewer connection fees are collected up front.

"I know some people don't want (the projects) at all, but assuming they're all coming, you strike the best deal for the community," Sullivan told the Advisory Committee last week during a discussion on the issue.

Town Manager Michael Buckley said at the same meeting, from a financial standpoint, he thinks the Cook Estate and Cedarmere projects have the ability to generate some positive tax revenue to the town. Later, in a telephone interview, he said in his view, neither one would put that much of a burden on town services because they do not attract children because they are age-restricted developments.

As for Avalon, Buckley said, "I have a hard time saying that's a good thing." With the way family dynamics have changed over the years and many children splitting their time between homes, he said it is very possible with the excellent reputation of Cohasset's schools, students could use an Avalon address to attend school in the district, although they may live in a neighboring town.

Together, Buckley said the three projects (Avalon, Cedarmere and Cook) could generate roughly $1.2 million in annual tax revenues, in addition to the one-time betterment and connection fees for the sewer. If all three projects were to connect, the town could bring in from $5-$6 million.

Sullivan said in addition to the revenue benefits, "It would also max us out on 40B projects." Chapter 40B is the state law that allows developers to skirt local zoning in exchange for providing affordable housing. The town is currently trying to meet a 10 percent affordability threshold set by the state to get out from under the threat of more 40B projects.

Avalon is a proposed 200-unit, 40B project slated for Route 3A opposite Good Sport and the Pizza Zone. All units will be rentals and will therefore all "count" toward the town's affordable housing stock even though only 25 percent of the apartments would be affordable. The state counts all apartment units toward the town's 40B threshold because it wants to encourage more rental housing.

To help fend off 40B projects and have more control over the process, the town drafted and passed its own bylaw — the Senior Multi-family Residence Overlay District bylaw. Cedarmere, a 105-unit housing project slated to be built on 41-acres off Beechwood Street, has filed under the bylaw and received a special permit from Planning Board for the development. The Cook Estate project, slated to build 95 units on Sohier Street, will file its plans with the Planning Board and go through the same process.

With the three projects possibly coming to town, Sullivan said the senior bylaw would sunset, meaning the affordable housing quotient would be filled, and the bylaw would no longer be necessary. In addition, he said the projects will provide much needed senior housing in town, which would allow Cohasset to keep many longtime residents who are looking to downsize from their family homes. "People don't like the idea of growth, but we could max out and we do want diversity in our housing stock," he said.

However, Selectman Ralph Dormitzer, who was also in attendance at the Advisory Committee meeting, strongly disagrees with Sullivan and doesn't want to sell the town's sewer capacity to new developments. He said there are existing homes currently experiencing septic trouble that could be remedied with a sewer connection. "Title 5 and sewer standards were put in place to protect the health of the people and our coastline," he said, adding the environment should be dealt with first, not the interests of a private developer.

Advisory Committee member Merle Brown also said the town would receive a one-time payment from a sewer connection. But Sullivan said the projects would bring recurring tax revenue as well as water usage fees and sewer service fees.

Advisory Committee member Bernadette Faulkner said seeing the projects only in terms of the revenue they can bring, "doesn't reflect the whole picture." She said there will be children added to the school system as a result of all three projects. Seniors will move into the Cook and Cedarmere opening up their homes to young families with children. She added Avalon is not age-restricted and children could potentially move into those units which have two bedrooms.

"People don't like the idea of growth, but we could max out (on 40B projects) and we do want diversity in our housing stock.
— Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan

However, School Committee member Adrienne MacCarthy said seniors are going to move out of their family homes eventually anyway, and in her view, "I'd rather keep our seniors in town." But Advisory Committee member Tucker Glavin said there would be a natural turnover of homes without the proposed projects, and not a doubling of turnover "in a one- or two-year process."

Supt. Denise Walsh said while she thinks revenue from housing being built is good for the town — for every child which enters the school system, it costs the town between $7,000 and $13,000. In addition, with the normal growth the schools experience, there were more than 50 new students who enrolled this year. She noted there are two teacher's salaries paid for by private fund-raising efforts that couldn't be absorbed by the budget. If there is a sudden influx of students, there will be more money needed for the schools to help provide the materials and staff.

Brown added senior housing is more likely to use the services of the fire and police departments, especially the ambulance service.

Sullivan said in light of the financial situation, there are only so many places the town can turn.

"When you see the possibility of $1 million," development begins to look like a good option, he said.

To help iron out the details of the impacts new development will have on the town as a whole, the Advisory Committee will host and Chairman Donna McGee will moderate a joint meeting with other town boards including the Sewer Commission, Planning Board, Wastewater Committee, Water Commission, Zoning Board and Board of Health, Monday Nov. 22 at 7 p.m. Although a location was not set at the time the Mariner went to press, the public is welcome to attend. For more information, please contact the Selectmen's office at (781) 383-4105.

Advisors are at odds over non-posted school budget session

Committee and Selectmen seats.

Waters said he arrived at Town Hall (Wednesday, Nov. 10) for a meeting posted for 7 p.m., which he believed was slated to be a joint meeting to discuss the budget, with representatives from the school department, Board of Selectmen, and the Advisory Committee. He also said comments made by the superintendent of schools during the Selectmen's meeting two days before led him to believe the Advisory Committee would be provided a budget update.

Waters and some other board members waited that Wednesday night in the downstairs meeting room for others to arrive for the scheduled meeting. However, unbeknownst to Waters, some of the committee members he was waiting for were already in the building, as budget talks were in progress upstairs. Waters said he only found out about the closed meeting after reading the Mariner.

"What could be so sensitive that there was an inability to be given notice the event would take place?" he asked.

Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh, along with School Financial Assistant Karen Park, School Committee Chairman Rick Shea, Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan, Advisory Committee Chairman Donna McGee, Advisory Committee Vice Chairman Bernadette Faulkner, and Town Manager Michael Buckley attended the budget meeting, which took place prior to the Advisory Committee scheduled meeting.

Without a quorum of any board, the meeting was not required to be posted under the Open Meeting Law.

Waters noted Walsh came to the scheduled 7 p.m. meeting and "made no presentation." Looking back, he feels the conversation which took place upstairs superceded what was going to happen at the posted meeting.

He said the Advisory Committee needs to be very careful about being open. When the Advisory Committee members come to a meeting expecting to have a discussion on a particular topic, but not a word is spoken about the budget when everyone is in the room, it leads him to believe: "The topic we came here to discuss was already discussed. I find it to be inappropriate and perhaps I'm in the wrong place."

McGee, the Advisory Committee chairman, took umbrage at Waters' remarks.

"I resent you doing this," said McGee, adding the committee has always operated in a transparent fashion and Waters was wrong to suggest otherwise. "The chairman and the vice chairman were invited to a meeting and we attended," said McGee.

McGee explained when the superintendent said at the Selectmen's meeting last Monday (Nov. 8) that you would be hearing more about the budget at the Wednesday meeting, the you she was referring to wasn't Waters and the public, but the board members who would be invited to the earlier (non-posted) meeting that coming Wednesday.

"I don't understand why you're so upset," added Faulkner, the Advisory Committee vice chairman. "If you feel the need to go to every single meeting," that is something the board will need to discuss, she said.

McGee said she asked members of the board to stay after the scheduled meeting to enable her to update them on what happened during the closed meeting. She also said she made phone calls to the board members who did not attend the scheduled meeting to update them as well. She said Waters attended the meeting, and he should have stayed after to be informed about the earlier meeting.

However, Waters said, "To explain it to me after the fact is the problem."

"The point is, I had no notice and no idea it took place or that it was going on," said Waters, adding he is the committee's liaison to the School Committee. He said if there is something in the bylaws that allows meetings to be conducted in this manner, he is completely opposed and thinks the policies and procedures should be revised. He said if that is the way the board wants to operate, that is something "I will not be a part of."

Faulkner said Waters was "out of line in suggesting anything was inappropriate," adding there are many people working on solving problems in town, and the superintendent of schools asked for representatives from the boards to attend the meeting. "There has been misinterpretation by many people in this room," she said.

Faulkner also said it was her understanding the Mariner obtained the budget information it acquired by picking it up somewhere without permission. However, McGee said she did not think that was true, as it was her understanding the Mariner was provided the information as part of the School Committee's correspondence. [In fact, the Mariner was handed both Supt. Walsh's letter to the Town Manager and budget information sheets — which were printed in last week's Mariner — along with as other correspondence, by the superintendent's administrative assistant during the prior Thursday's School Committee meeting.]

McGee told Waters if he was so upset, he should have called her during the week to discuss it, but Waters said he thought it served no purpose to call her about a meeting after it had already taken place. "I'm part of a group," he said, adding he feels he shouldn't be kept in the dark. He said after the Mariner article came out, when people asked him about the closed meeting, all he could say was, "I don't know," and that shouldn't be the case.

Faulkner said, "I think you're reading much more into this and into people's motives or intents. It's a pretty straightforward explanation."

Not alone

But Waters was not alone in his interpretation.

Advisory Committee member Tucker Glavin said he agrees with Waters 100 percent. "The Superintendent was (at Town Hall) last Monday and last Wednesday, and we never discussed the elephant in the room (the $500,000 deficit)." He went on to say he trusts the board and appreciates what McGee and Faulkner said, but "It appears what happened last week was a very well orchestrated event."

"I have to stop this," said McGee. "If what (the superintendent) did last week wasn't transparent, I don't know what is," she said. She went on to say the superintendent didn't have to come out with the information she did about the budget, and she is trying to involve people to help things moving forward.

However, Advisory Committee member Susan Kent said the superintendent "doesn't have an option," of not bringing budget information forward. If she finds there is $500,000 which can't be paid for, that should be discussed in the open, Kent said.

Kent also said she understands small meetings sometimes need to be held. She said when she was chairman, she would often hold meetings in small groups, and would send out an informational e-mail to let everyone know where and with whom she would be meeting.

"Sometimes it's the right time to get together and have a small group," she said. However. "When there's $500,000 out there, I think that's something we should talk about. Last Monday (at the Selectmen's meeting), we were all Mickey the dunce. I don't blame you for being insulted," she said to Waters.

Highland Estates project planned characteristic shared by many other pieces of land in Cohasset.

Sandell said he would like to see the least amount of ledge blasted as possible, and as few trees cut down as possible on the site, which is why he designed the homes to fit in with the natural features that currently exist. "We want to preserve as much of that as we can," he said, adding placement of the homes and their design take the natural shape of the land into account. "We're trying to tuck the houses into the landscape," he said.

The homes will have two floors with the main living areas located on the first. There will be large dining and family areas as well as outside porches. One master bedroom and three other bedrooms will be located on the second floor.

Sandell said in order to build the homes in accordance with the landscape, each will have a slightly different design from the next, to conform to its individual lot. "There will be a variety of shapes, but a similarity to give the neighborhood an identity," he said.

Traffic engineer Tim Wagner of Fay, Spofford, and Thorndike said traffic studies he has conducted indicate travel on Beechwood Street will not be greatly affected by the development. "Fourteen residential units aren't going to have much impact at all," he said. Wagner estimates during top commuting hours, there will be an increase of roughly 11 trips in the morning and 13 in the afternoon. He added there will be roughly 134 total trips generated daily from the development, which will increase total traffic on Beechwood Street by only 3 percent. "There isn't going to be a change in the level of service," he said.

There will be a grade crossing for the Greenbush line commuter rail train located closer to the South Main Street end of Beechwood Street, and Wagner said his study does not currently take that change into account. He said he will look into the changes slated to take place, but said from his experience, train crossings usually help with traffic, as it ensures motorists will decelerate as they approach. The entrance to the development will be located roughly 300 feet from the train crossing.

The developer's drainage expert Frank Holmes said there will be some challenges ahead to ensure water from the development does not flow in such a way as to impact abutters' property. Planning Board Chairman Al Moore said as the process unfolds before his board, that is an issue that will be thoroughly discussed.

Moore suggested taking an inventory of all the trees of significant size as well as specimen trees on the site before any changes are made to the landscape. While it will be necessary to clear some trees for the homes as well as the drainage system on the property, having a map of the most important trees to save may result in changes to the plans. Member Bob Sturdy added in his view, it is more important to save the trees "with something to them, not the utility poles with a sprinkle of foliage at the top."

Members of the Planning Board will take a tour of the site Saturday, Nov. 20 at 10 a.m. The meeting will be posted as a public meeting, and members of the public are allowed to attend. For more information, please contact the Planning Board office at (781) 383-3517.

Town Manager finalists named

After months of sifting through résumés and whittling down the number of applications, the Town Manager Search Committee has unanimously selected three candidates it will recommend to the Board of Selectmen for its consideration.

The finalists, William R. Griffin, Town Administrator of Bourne, Robert T. Markel, Town Administrator of Norfolk, and James R. Merriam, former Town Administrator of Wrentham, will be interviewed in succession Saturday, Nov. 20, with the first appointment scheduled for 9 a.m.

"We are very pleased with the experience the three would bring to the town," said Search Committee Chairman Rob Spofford.

The interviews are open to the public and will be shown on the local cable channel. For more information, please contact Chairman of the Search Committee Rob Spofford at (781) 740-8990 or (781) 383-8338.

Cohasset artist shares her creative side

Work is on exhibit at Paul Pratt Library

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Creativity flows out of Jeanne Replogle's hands. Out of seashells she has collected from trips to the Caribbean, she can fashion a decorative Christmas wreath. With a bit of handiwork, she can cross-stitch a beautiful bedroom quilt, and has the perseverance it takes to see through a seven-year project of that size. But at the heart of her creative soul is an absolute love for painting which has continued to grow since she was seven years old.

Although many artists have a specific genre of art they prefer, Replogle said she is constantly stretching her talents and trying new techniques. "It's an ongoing process," she said, which gives her art show, currently on display at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, an interesting mix of work. Although she is a member of the American Society of Marine Artists, and therefore paints many seaside scenes, some are very realistic, and some have the fanciful qualities of contemporary folk art.

"Contemporary folk art should always have a sense of whimsy," she said, and looking at her creations, which feature mermaids swimming alongside fishermen who have had a long day at sea, her paintings are not only beautiful, but fun. Some of the lands in her folk art are based on real-life places, as one features a lighthouse — one of her favorite objects to paint — which is located off the coast of Plymouth, England.

But living in Cohasset, she is surrounded daily by nautical inspiration, and has painted a very realistic Minot's light at sunset. A resident of Rice Island, Replogle said she and her husband David can see the beautiful sunrises and sunsets, which captured her interest one day, and she said she just had to paint it. She has also painted many lighthouses on Cape Cod, as well as the Scituate lighthouse, which in one painting is located on top of a beautiful cliff. "I move lighthouses and the ocean with impunity," she joked.

Replogle has had a lot of training, as she was an art major in college and attended the Chicago Art Institute. She said she still continues to teach herself new techniques and experiments with different paints and surfaces frequently. She said one of her latest challenges has been learning to paint a realistic fog, which she said is "very difficult and sort of a stretch, especially painting with acrylics." Because oil paints stay wet, she said it is easier to blend and thin out to create a convincing fog, but with acrylics, it poses an interesting challenge, which she thrives on.

While seascapes are a common theme for her artwork, Replogle is also well-known for her renderings of town landmarks. She said many towns have commissioned her work, and they always dictate the different buildings they would like to see included in the final painting. "You really need to map out where things are going to go," she said, "It's like putting together a jigsaw puzzle."

Jeanne Replogle in her studio with one of her paintings. Her work, which is well known throughout Cohasset, is currently on display at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Replogle has painted pictures for many towns on the South Shore, featuring their most beloved areas or buildings in town, including Cohasset, Scituate, Hanover, Hingham, Weymouth, Duxbury, and Norwell. She said traveling to some towns she was less familiar with to take photographs of the desired historical buildings, she and her fine art agent, Pam Henry would often find themselves on a wild goose chase. "In every painting, it's a history lesson," she said.

In addition to the work she does on the canvas, Replogle said she has been known to paint objects given to her by decorators, and has even splashed some paint around her own house. Around her fireplace, Replogle has painted all the shore birds she sees out her windows, and in the bedroom which has the quilt she cross-stitched, she has painted matching flowers on a trunk at the foot of the bed. "David used to be afraid to go on business trips and leave me home with the children for fear I'd paint them," she joked.

But Replogle has painted her children, as they are featured in some of her many works of art. Her five boys, Bill, Bruce, Stewart, James and John, are shown in one painting of Replogle's which she has lent to the show, but is not for sale, where all five are swimming together and swinging off an apple tree into the water below. "I have this one in my bathroom at home," she said, which is where it will return.

When Replogle isn't painting, she can be found teaching art classes. She said every Wednesday for the past 15 years, she has been meeting with a group of women to paint. "It started out being girls I played golf or bridge with," she said, and now some of the women have gone on to sell their own works of art, bringing the talent full-circle.

Jeanne Replogle will have her work on display at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library until Dec. 31.

COOK PROPERTY RALLY

The Friends of the Cook Property Project will be holding a rally on Saturday, Nov. 20 on the Cohasset Town Common from 11 a.m. to noon. Please join us for some hot cider and hot topics.

HALL OF FAME

A very proud daughter wanted to let us know that her dad, Mike Abbruzzese, was honored last Sunday Nov 7 in Hartford, Conn. as one of 18 inductees to the Hartford High Hall of Fame for his exceptional sports achievements and leadership, in particular, football.

He was co-captain of the 1951 Hartford Football team which won State, District and Triangular League Championships. Mike was voted All-State and All-District Center, and was also a three-sport player for his school in 1952, including baseball and track. His success in Hartford led to a full scholarship at BU where he enjoyed another 4 years of outstanding football. Mike credited his opportunity to play football at Hartford Public High School for giving him the opportunity to go to BU, where he majored in marketing, and met his wife Anna.

At BU, he was voted into the "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," and was the 1956 Outstanding Senior ROTC Graduate. Subsequently, he served as an officer in the U.S. Army from 1956 to 1959.

Mike & Anna, their children and families were all on hand for festivities in Hartford last week. Among them, happily, are two generations of football players! Also in attendance at the event were Mike's former Hartford and BU team mates who traveled distances to be part of the celebration. Congratulations to you Mike from your family and friends in Cohasset!

GRIDIRON FUND DRIVE

The Gridiron Scholarship Fund Drive will be taking place on Sunday, Nov. 21 during the afternoon, rain or shine. Cohasset High School football players will deliver their 2004 football program book to town residents and seek donations. This Book Drive is the Gridiron Club's major fund-raiser. The donations help to support and promote Cohasset Football and especially to provide scholarships to deserving student athletes who have participated in the Football Program. Please come and cheer on the team at their Thanksgiving Game at 10 a.m. This exciting annual event will be played on Alumni Field against Hull.

VILLAGE FAIR

Cohasset's Village Fair is planned for Saturday, Dec. 4 from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Join the Village churches and the non-profit Cohasset Appalachia Service Project as they work together to create this wonderful holiday marketplace on and around the Common.

The Estate(ish) Sale (formerly Jumble Sale) is back at First Parish. Beautiful handmade decorations and ornaments, fresh holiday greens and great gift ideas abound at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, the Second Congregational Church, First Parish Unitarian Universalist, and Town Hall. The food alone is well worth a visit — baked goods and a snack shop, fancy French herb rubs, homemade clam chowder, and a Swedish Bake Shop all on the Common. Santa will be the guest of honor from 11 - 2 p.m., and the Rusty Skippers play their free Holiday Concert at noon in the First Parish Meeting House.

Proceeds from the fair support the charitable work of the churches and the ASP.

BRICK BY BRICK

It's not too late to add your family's name to the brick walkway at Our World Children's Global Discovery Museum located at 100 Sohier St. Funds generated from the museum's Brick by Brick program will directly support the continued maintenance of the new outdoor playground and indoor play area along with the acquisition of additional play structures and museum exhibits. Your donation of $100 to the Brick by Brick program will be recognized with an engraved brick. Each brick is a creative and enduring way to honor families, children, grandparents, teachers or members of the community. And they make ideal holiday gifts too! To reserve your engraved brick, please call Debbie Kuppens at (781) 383-6399. Orders will be accepted until all spaces are sold! All donations are tax deductible.

That is all for this week. Make sure to send in all of your news, event information and stories no later than this coming Monday at noon to be included in next week's column. Deadline is a day early due to the Thanksgiving holiday. Happy Thanksgiving, everyone!

Hospice is here to help

It's a subject most of us aren't comfortable talking about. Yet it is one we are all forced to deal with at certain points in our lives, often times in crisis when we aren't at our best.

But there is a much easier way to approach the subject of a loved one's death and end of life issues. It's called planning. We plan for so many other momentous occasions in our lives – weddings, births, vacations, you name it. Somehow, though, we fail to plan for what the South Shore Hospice calls "the most important trip" one will ever take.

Yet even when Hospice is called in — usually too late or at the last minute in many cases — family members beg Hospice workers not to tell the dying where they are from. In those final days and hours, some family members still can't bring themselves to admit their loved one is near death.

That is so unfortunate, especially given the planning resources at a family's disposal if Hospice is called in time to help participate in end of life choices. The South Shore Hospice group, an affiliate of South Shore Hospital, has a complete team available to families — primary nurses, home health aides, social workers, chaplains, volunteers and physicians. They are all trained to assist and care for the dying and aid family members in any way possible cope with this life-altering experience.

"We have an incredible team approach and would love to see more families take advantage of that benefit," explains Mary Beth Barry, director of Hospice of the South Shore. "It can be a huge frustration because we often come in at the end, and it ends of up being crisis management instead of a transitional approach to end of life care."

Each year November is chosen by Hospice groups throughout the country to promote and educate the public on what their organizations offer. They see the awareness campaign as perfectly suited with the season of giving thanks and remembrance.

"Hospice should be a part of life, not death," Barry notes. "We find our patients are our best teachers about living, not dying. They are such a gift to each family member, if only they open up to it."

Hospice espouses many admirable goals. The organization recognizes its mission is to help a patient live until they die, not help them die. Nearly 98 percent of all South Shore Hospice patients die at home, close to their families and things they hold dear.

Each year, South Shore Hospice assists between 400 to 500 patients, with this year's figure perhaps even higher. On average a patient is with Hospice from 15 to 17 days. But that length could easily be longer if more early referrals are made, but often times doctors don't talk to patients and patients don't want to hear all other measures have been exhausted.

Hospice is assisting more and more non-cancer patients, those with heart disease and Alzheimer's, for example. Patients with "life-limiting prognoses" and their families also need not wait for the doctor to make the referral, they can make the call if they feel it is appropriate. Hospice is covered by several insurance carriers, but a patient and family are never denied Hospice care because of an inability to pay.

In almost all cases, family members have told Hospice workers "we wish we had let you in sooner." Don't be one of those families who regret not calling Hospice. Bringing in the Hospice team and planning the inevitable may be one of the more important gifts you can give someone you love.

Third time a charm for Recall Petition?

TO THE EDITOR:

This will be the third time that a citizen's petition has brought the right of recall before a town meeting. Previously in March of 1997 and 1998 this concept was presented to town meeting for consideration. Needless to say the same objections were voiced.

For some reason there is a faction in the community that wants to deny the rest of us this basic right and they consider recall to be a very negative initiative. Those of us who have attempted to add recall to our by-laws regard it as an empowerment and safety net if circumstances ever spiral out of control. With events that have been unfolding in the last few years some may consider that Cohasset has gone completely off the deep end.

Unfortunately we have a vocal group in town that appear to be against giving the taxpayers more rights. Conversely is the group that believes in more disclosure about the operations of the town, more participation through information to determine the spending of their tax dollars and the ability to remove an elected official in a more timely fashion who is obviously detrimental to the welfare of the community.

The contention that all of our elected officials, all of the citizens they appoint to town boards and the people they hire are 'nice' is not a good enough reason to deny the rest of us rights. We can go through a litany of names of identified 'nice' people that have given us bad advice or left us with a terrible mess. Blind trust is a principle that we can no longer afford to follow.

On the flip side, those who want to engage in dialogue that is in opposition to a certain majority are not 'evil'. Asking probing questions, demanding answers and offering alternatives and options to matters that affect our pocketbooks is not being divisive. Rather it is being fiscally responsible and using the tools that we must to help differentiate between the actual needs and wish lists presented at town meetings. The objective is to have the best that our community can afford without affecting diversity and putting an oppressive financial burden on ourselves and future generations.

In the past few years there have been other defeated citizens' petitions meant to increase rights and information to the taxpayers which some have considered to be contentious. They are: the right of local binding initiative petition, the actual override amounts voted at Town Meeting posted at the ballot box, and the bringing of financial matters outside the budget to the ballot box so that those unable to attend town meeting still would have a voice.

Citizens petitions that passed include: a by-law change providing a 30-day review of collective bargaining agreements to the advisory board before town meeting, changing the form of government from executive secretary to a town manager, the breakdown and an explanation of the total tax rate on the real estate bills and Pay As You Throw which has been saving the town tens of thousand in SEMASS fees since 2000.

I am hoping that in the light of recent circumstances, at this next town meeting attendees will be able to listen to discussions on this matter with an open mind and not be clouded by emotion. Maybe the third time will prove to be the charm for adoption.

Don't expand Central District

TO THE EDITOR:

December's Town Meeting will contain an Article asking the Citizens to expand the boundaries of the Central Sewer District to include the planned Cook Estate. The Town should vote no. The reasons are self-evident.

The Town must sewer existing residences first. Cohasset has entered into an Agreement with the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) to reduce Town pollution. The Agreement specifically targets pollution in the Little Harbor Watershed area. Installing on-site wastewater systems in the Little Harbor District is not an option, as they will not eliminate enough pollution to meet current and future State standards. A sewer is the only reliable and permanent option. With Town Meeting approval in the years 2000, 2001, 2002 and, again, in 2004, the Town has spent $500,000 for the plan and initial design phase of the sewer system for the Little Harbor District. To further this goal, in February of this year, the Town submitted to the DEP the updated sewer plans for the Little Harbor District, which the DEP accepted. The Little Harbor District must receive sewer capacity fist.

The Town has limited sewer capacity. Despite the expansion of the Central Treatment Plant, sewer capacity will remain limited. Contrary to popular argument, there is no capacity for both the Little Harbor District and the Cook Estate. Should additional capacity exist upon completion of the Little Harbor District, a fact that can only be demonstrated once Little Harbor is hooked up, homes in other environmentally sensitive areas deserve priority. Examples include additional homes abutting Lily Pond, and the homes along South Main Street in the Gulph River Watershed.

The Cook Article asks that we vote to hook up a proposed new development. Undeveloped land is not a source of our Town's pollution and deserves no hook-up consideration. Developers should not get town sewer. Period. Manipulating our sewer district to accomplish this end is simply wrong. Derailling the ongoing Little Harbor project and jeopardizing this Town's Agreement with the State is irresponsible and risky.

Can the Cook Estate project be saved? Maybe or maybe not. It is unfortunate and unfair that our Senior Citizens were placed in the position of relying on a sewer hookup that the Town has no right to give. Developers have little incentive to seek alternative options when they believe that they can access a municipal sewer. Nevertheless, here in Cohasset as in other towns that lack sewer access, new developments are being, and will continue to be built, including senior housing.

Why Recall article is a bad idea

TO THE EDITOR:

My immediate reaction to the "Voter Recall" article being promoted for the Special Town Meeting in December was that it is a terrible idea. That was about two weeks ago, and on reflection, nothing has changed.

Cohasset is a small town run largely with the assistance of small boards elected for short terms. The individuals who put themselves up for election or accept appointments are volunteering their interest, time, expertise, experience and whatever else they may bring to the table for no guarantee of any greater reward than the satisfaction that comes from trying to do the right thing. Certainly they do so with their eyes open to the potential for public scrutiny of their performance, which often abounds, whether or not it may be merited. My observation over time is that their fortunes as public officers tend to rise or fall on their perceived performance, and is tempered by the strength of their personal determination to serve.

What the Recall notion suggests is that there are people who in the short time they hold an office would be performing so abominably that it cannot be tolerated, and that there is no way to address the situation short of an emergency election. What it would allow is an election that is called by a group of 100 people, who do not have to specify a reason, and get 400 more people to agree.

This is a scare tactic, not a good tool for governance. There are so many real ways to hold a person accountable, given a compelling reason and (presumably) 500 voters' concerns. Granted, they all require some actual attention to the substantive issue, some diligence, honesty and effort in articulating the problem and its possible solution. A recall procedure skips past all that to an arbitrary showdown, for any — or no — stated reason, and is costly to boot.

On the scale of a town of this size, this process amounts to "spectator" politics at its worst, and is the last thing we need.

No simple solution to water taste and odor problems

The Water Commission has released its taste and odor report and the actions they have taken so far to improve the aesthetic quality of the tap water.

"Our 25-year old treatment plant is being extensively upgraded and improved across the board to provide state of the art water treatment."

— John McNabb, Water Commission

"Our Taste & Odor Study," said John McNabb, Chairman of the Water Commission, "shows that our tap water displays complex, layered taste and odor characteristics that do not appear to have one cause or a single simple solution. Furthermore, the study shows that our customers have taste and odor problems throughout the year and throughout the distribution system and that this is a pervasive problem that needs, and is getting, a lot of attention from the Board of Water Commissioners. We are committed to solving this problem as soon as we can."

McNabb said, since completing the study in July, the Water Commission has conducted follow-up water sampling and analysis and have started to take actions to improve taste and odor of tap water.

"We have already taken action by: adding potassium permanganate to the treatment process, which will neutralize some tastes and odors out of the water, and moving the location where chlorine is added to the water in the treatment plant, which will reduce the amount of chlorine that needs to be added to protect public health as they water travels through the distribution system," he said.

"We are also implementing a comprehensive water treatment optimization project, which is still underway, where we will fine tune the entire treatment process to ensure that we are always providing the highest quality drinking water and are minimizing taste and odor as much as possible. Our 25-year old treatment plant is being extensively upgraded and improved across the board to provide state of the art water treatment," McNabb said.

At the December 6 Special Town Meeting the Water Commission will request authorization to borrow $2 million to provide funds to continue with these improvements.

"The projects in this request include: installing mixers in the two water storage tanks to constantly cycle the water and therefore reduce water age, installing baffles in the clearwell in the treatment plant which will allow us to further fine tune and reduce the amount of chlorine to the water, and conducting comprehensive pilot studies to evaluate major retrofits to the plant such as microfiltration, granulated activated carbon, and ozonization," McNabb said.

Mailed to customers

The "Taste and Odor Study" included a Comprehensive Water Quality Survey that was mailed to all 2,500 water customers, on March 3, 2004, to solicit consumer input regarding water use patterns and the perceived aesthetic quality of Cohasset's water. The Water Commission received 472 responses, which showed that the major taste issue was metallic taste (42 percent), followed by sour/acidic taste (12 percent) salty sweet (5 percent) – and that 31percent reported no taste! The survey showed that the major odor issue was earthy/musty (25percent), marshy/swampy (20percent) and chlorinous (17percent) – and that 25percent reported no odor. Overall ratings on a scale of 1 (poor) to 5 (best) were: (1) poor, 25percent, (2) 24percent, (3) 23percent, (4) 20percent, and (5) 9percent.

Following the customer survey, detailed laboratory testing was completed, on April 26, 2004, on 50 samples randomly collected throughout the water service area. The comprehensive sampling event included 1) in home testing for pH, temperature and chlorine residual; 2) laboratory water quality testing of samples collected from ten locations; and, 3) professional Flavor Profile Analysis to identify the predominant taste and odor characteristics of the water.

McGuire Environmental Consultants, Inc. completed a professional Flavor Profile Analysis, on April 27-30, 2004, on all 50 samples using 10 panels of four people each to evaluate the water. This analysis indicated that Cohasset's water displays characteristics predominantly described as having musty, old pipe, metallic or damp paper odors and flavors.

McGuire also noted that, although many of the odors and flavors were not aesthetically pleasing, the reported intensities were all in the very weak range, with an intensity rating that was 2 or less on a scale ranging from 1 (low) to 12 (high).

Copies of the full "Taste & Odor Report" are available review at the Lily Pond Treatment Plant, the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, and at the office of the Board of Selectmen at Town Hall. A PDF file of the report will soon be placed on the Water Commission's web site, www.cohassetwater.org where it can be viewed and downloaded.

Who's the top citizen in Cohasset this year?

Letters of nomination are also accepted and should be mailed or sent by fax to The Cohasset Mariner, 73 South St., Hingham 02043. Our fax number is 781-741-2931. Nominations may also be sent by email to mford@cnc.com.

This is not a popularity contest. Following the close of nominations, a selection panel — after reviewing the names submitted by poring over the nomination letters and comments — will select the 2004 Citizen of the Year, who will be named in January 2005.

Nominees may be someone in elected office, a member of an appointed town committee, teacher or school administrator, clergy member, firefighter, police officer or other municipal worker. And the nominee may be a person in the business community, sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has freely given of his or her time and energy for a worthwhile Cohasset project or cause.

This year's recipient will be the11th person honored as the Cohasset Citizen of the Year, joining past recipients:

1993: the late Gerard T. Keating, "Mr. Cohasset": for his more than half-century of contributions to the community, including serving as chairman of the Council on Aging, chairman of the school committee, president of the hockey boosters club, vice president of the Cohasset Historical Society, director of veterans services, and lector, eucharistic minister and usher at St. Anthony's Church.

1994: Joseph D. Buckley, for his work behind the scenes helping seniors understand the complexities of the healthcare system and to access health benefits through SHINE (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders), his service on the Council on Aging, and volunteer work over the years with the Boy Scouts, Little league, Sunday School and more.

1995: Dr. Robert T. Sceery, for his more than 40 years of dedicated service as a pediatrician in town and school doctor. He also served on the board of health and led the fight back in the 1970s to sewer the town. He is also a familiar figure at town meetings where he speaks his mind on important issues.

1996: The Rev. Gary Ritts, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, for being a positive force for good through his work with the Appalachia Service Project (ASP), an ecumenical volunteer effort involving Cohasset teenagers. ASP is a home building ministry in central Appalachia.

1997: Anna Abbruzzese, for all her volunteer work including preparing and delivering meals for the Pine Street Inn, driving the senior shuttle and coordinating the Gourmet Cooking Club at the Council on Elder Affairs; and her many efforts to help revitalize Cohasset Village through the Farmers' Market and much more.

1998: Katherine Stanton, for her tireless service to the town and its citizens over the years. She also volunteers as a case reviewer for the state Dept. of Social Services, served on the school committee and recreation committee, and along with her family was involved with the creation of the Cohasset Sailing Club.

1999: the late Clark Chatterton, for his generosity of spirit and deep caring for his fellow man, his years of work as a teacher and athletic director at the high school, including innumerable efforts helping others behind the scenes. He also helped raise money for many causes including Alumni Field and the American Cancer Society.

2000: former state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray for a lifetime of service to her hometown, first as den mother and Little League mother and Girl Scout leader, and then as selectman. She was also honored for her public service as state representative for more than two decades and for always putting her constituents first.

2001: Glenn Pratt for his dogged determination over 20 years to see more cemetery space in town, remembering local soldiers who made the ultimate sacrifice, helping to lead the effort to expand the community center, serving as an elected official, and spearheading the effort to build a memorial to local mothers who lost sons in wartime.

2002: Arthur Lehr for more than 50 years of volunteer service on worthwhile projects including the Boy Scouts; serving on the Zoning Board of Appeals and as a Registrar of Voters; Clerk of the Works for the DPW garage, Little League Complex, and Mariners Park; serving on the Recycling Committee, as town Civil Defense Director, on Gravel Pit Reuse Committee and more.

2003: Marjorie Murphy for touching countless lives through her roughly 25 years as school librarian at Deer Hill. With eyes that twinkle and an infectious smile, Mrs. Murphy – fondly known as Marjie — devoted her life to helping children discover the wonders of reading and the value of a good book.

Paying the price when you make the wrong choices

n't do drugs, and did well in school — he would have said he didn't fit the description of someone who goes to jail.

"Every day in life we're faced with choices. Some seem so simple, we just react, but that could be the one that changes your life forever," he said.

On April 12, 1993, at just 16 years old and in his junior year of high school, Collet made a choice which changed his life and the lives of many fellow classmates forever. Looking for a fight, he and two other friends — Karter Reed, a friend from another high school, and Nigel Thomas — entered Dartmouth High School. Wanting to ensure a fellow student who attacked Thomas earlier would never bother him again, the boys were armed with weapons, including a baseball bat, billy club, and a length of pipe.

"This time, we were going to make sure it was a fair fight in our favor," said Collet. The three charged into the school and Thomas had second thoughts. Collet recalls him saying, "No, don't do it," but they carried on and burst into a classroom looking for the student.

Collet recalled standing at the front of the classroom with the bat in his hands, he scanned the room for his target, but didn't see him there. As he looked over the faces of the students, a friend of the student they were looking for, Jason Robinson, spoke up.

"To this day, I still don't even know what he said," said Collet, but he and Reed lunged forward anyway. Two teachers grabbed Collet from behind, dragging him to the ground, where all he could hear was screaming and crying.

Both Collet and Reed had been carrying pocket knives that day, and with one quick motion, Reed plunged the knife into Robinson's stomach, severing his aorta. That one wound, inflicted by a 3-inch knife, caused Robinson to die on the way to the hospital.

"Never did I think it could happen," said Collet, adding the three had only intended to start a fight, but the violence that took place that day ended in three charges of first degree murder.

"I couldn't understand how Nigel (Thomas) could have been charged with first degree," as he changed his mind and ran away from the classroom, not entering with the other two. But because he had entered the building with the intent to carry out a violent crime, he was considered just as guilty.

"Every day in life we're faced with choices. Some seem so simple, we just react, but that could be the one that changes your life forever."

— Gator Collet, convicted of manslaughter

Collet and Reed were arraigned as adults even though they were only 16, and Thomas, at 15, was arraigned as a juvenile because of his lesser role in the events. Thomas was required to move to Denmark to live with his father, while Collet was given the option to plead guilty for manslaughter, and receive a 17 to 20 year sentence. Reed will spend his life in prison.

"They offered me 17 to 20 years and I was happy to plead guilty," said Collet, and as a result of good behavior, he was released on probation after 10. He added while the students in the classroom might think they have an idea of what prison is like from television or movies, or taking a trip to the facility, "nobody ever tells you what it's like to wake up every morning regretting every decision you've ever made. I go to sleep and wake up every day knowing that in my lifetime I'm never going to be able to give a mother her son back."

Collet added that every day he thinks about how Reed should never have been in that school. "I asked for his help and he said 'Gator, I don't want to go, but I won't leave you here'."

Now 28, Collet stands before students on a regular basis, asking them to please, when they take a look at him, "See failure, regret, and see something you, in your lifetime, never want to experience. I don't want to see any one of you become what I became." He encourages students to listen to their parents and teachers who try so hard to instill the messages that could prevent tragedies from happening. "I spent 10 years of my life in prison because I didn't want to listen. Realize all the people trying to make sure this doesn't happen to you."

Collet hasn't spoken to Thomas since the day of the incident, and while he said he talks to Reed about once a month, he has never visited him in prison and doesn't plan to. He said he is very fortunate to have a good job, in addition to the work he does with Project Youth, and he has plans to get married in February. He was also going to put in an offer on a house this week. While he will never forget the past, Collet is doing the best he can to move on in his life, and hopes if nothing else, his experience will serve as an example for others.

"If I had stolen money, I could give you that back and then some, but I can't give this back. All I can hope is that if one of you are in a situation like me someday, you'll think of what I've said."

Sewering must be done for right reasons

GARY VANDERWEIL

Presently, different interests are competing to obtain whatever exists of Cohasset's sewer capacity. There is a great deal of noise and confusion, and many conflicting opinions and capacity estimates.

It is important for people to realize that the Town should not parcel out sewer capacity based on who makes the most noise, or who pulls strongest on our heartstrings, or who threatens the largest lawsuit. Rather, it should be parceled out rationally and scientifically, the way we have always done it, and that has been to base sewer allocations on environmental and public health concerns.

Since 1965, our sewers have always been designed to reduce or prevent environmental damage to our waterways. Our job is not done; our waterways are not yet protected. Before allocating sewer to new developments, we must finish the job, including further protection of our reservoirs.

I cannot agree that the need for empty-nester homes at the Cook Estate outweighs our need for environmental protection, so I am opposed to the Town Meeting article requesting sewage for this project.

The Town's waters have been degraded or threatened for years by inadequate septic construction and inadequate subsurface materials. The most critical areas were the first to be corrected, as follows:

It is important for people to realize that the Town should not parcel out sewer capacity based on who makes the most noise, or who pulls strongest on our heartstrings, or who threatens the largest lawsuit.

- The original 1965 sewer was installed to eliminate pollution of Cohasset Harbor originating from downtown and homes on the inner harbor.
- We developed the North Cohasset Sewer District in 1997 to eliminate pollution in Straits Pond.
- We expanded the Central Cohasset Sewer District to avoid further threats to Cohasset Harbor by the Hillside/James Brook area and by the homes along outer Cohasset Harbor and Border Street.
- We added the Lily Pond District to protect our water supply from homes within 400 feet of the reservoir.

But important work remains. If further capacity is developed by negotiations with Hull, or by reducing Inflow/Infiltration into our system, or by gaining operational experience with our plant, there are areas of Town that still must be addressed in order to protect our waters. With our limited plant capacity, these areas must be given priority over new development.

Our areas for priority sewer service, as capacity becomes available, are:

- First of all, Little Harbor, as already planned and as agreed with DEP.
- Then, Rust Way and Old Coach Road, which are designated expansion areas of the North Cohasset District.
- Then, Jerusalem Road and side streets between Linden Drive and Atlantic Avenue, in order to protect Massachusetts Bay.
- South Main Street and side streets from Summer Street to the Scituate line, in order to protect the south side of the Gulf River and Cohasset Harbor.
- To protect Lily Pond, extend the Lilly Pond District further up and down King Street, and around onto Beechwood Street to the Bound Brook area.
- A district must be created at the end of Beechwood Street to protect the Aaron River Reservoir. Because of its distance from the Central Plant, this would be served by a satellite plant.

Once capacity is obtained for these areas, we can began to allocate it to new developments, but doing so today, would, in my opinion, be a mistake.

Cook Estate is different from one voted a year ago

KAREN QUIGLEY

One year ago the citizens of Cohasset voted to approve the Cook Estate project. The vote at Town Meeting was predicated on certain facts presented by our then Town Manager and Board of Selectmen. How have these facts stood up to the test of time?

We were told it would provide housing options to allow seniors to remain or return to Cohasset. Is this the best we can do for a broad spectrum of our seniors? Or is it a subsidized, age-restricted community for those of our seniors who are downsizing from larger homes? The facts support the latter. All the townhouses will be at market rate which is listed in Northland's bid as $550,000 to $625,000. What will it be at the time building begins?

Our seniors who are having a difficult time paying real estate taxes and for the upkeep of their homes today will not get relief. They will pay both real estate taxes and condominium fees. Will these additional costs be affordable to our seniors living on fixed incomes?

The needs of our more financially secure seniors can be met by other age-restricted communities — existing and proposed.

Of the rental apartments, 9 two-bedroom apartments are at market rate with a proposed rental of about $1,800. The affordable component consists of 28 one bedroom apartments which have a proposed rental of about $800-$1,250. Also note that this large structure is sited downhill overlooking the Stop & Shop parking lot so as not to detract from the overall appearance of the development.

Additionally, the makeup of the affordable units has been changed since Northland's bid proposal. Instead of 30 affordable units there are now 28; instead of 5 market rate units there are now 9.

We were told it would preserve Open Space. Although the Senior Overlay Bylaw limits the amount of impervious surface, the high purchase price dictates the developer must place as many units as possible on the site to make a profit. Instead of utilizing cluster housing the site design is more urban sprawl. Housing and infrastructure are sited right up to wetland and waterway buffer zones.

The promised acres of open space are in reality wetlands and cannot be developed. The acreage on the other side of Sohier Street deeded as conservation land does not qualify under the Senior Overlay Bylaw for development as it is not contiguous.

They will pay both real estate taxes and condominium fees. Will these additional costs be affordable to our seniors living on fixed incomes?

Where are the strong permanent development controls and additional buffer protection for wetlands and wildlife habitats? We were told the 10-acre town-owned parcel is of no value to the Town unless it is sold for development. Since last year, we have voted millions of dollars for the Water Commission to purchase land around Lily Pond in order to protect our drinking water. The 10-acre parcel we are bundling with the Cook Estate property is comprised largely of wetlands, and acts as a buffer zone to Peppermint Brook which is the main tributary to our drinking water. Why are we spending millions of dollars to purchase land, and then selling land we already own that is already protecting our drinking water?

We were told the development would have an onsite wastewater solution, would not be hooked up to Town sewer, and would have no effect on the limited existing capacity at the sewer plant. We are now being told the only way for this project to move forward is to be hooked up to Town sewer. This has negative ramifications. If the developer is allowed sewer access, the Town will most likely face legal action from Cedermere and Avalon — two developments denied access, and which stand in line ahead of Northland. (In addition to these, we should not overlook the development proposed on Beach Street.)

Legal action will most likely occur regardless of their success in developing alternative wastewater solutions. We will, once again, pay huge legal fees, and then face the possibility of having to build (at great cost) another sewer plant to serve the needs of the Little Harbor area which must be sewered as mandated by a Superior Court Order and the Department of Environmental Protection for Cohasset to cease its pollution of our coastal waters in violation of the Clean Water Act. The $1 million dollar ($425,000 short of the $15,000 per household the rest of the Town will pay) hookup fee Northland is willing to pay won't cover the cost of a new plant.

There are 420 households, approximately 1,500 residents — including 400 seniors — who live in Little Harbor and who will face significant financial penalties vis a vis Title 5 if we give their long-promised capacity to developers. Why is a developer more deserving?

We were told senior housing has no effect on our schools. This is just not true. If, as is purported, there are 60 Cohasset seniors prepared to move into the Northland development, they will sell their homes all within a short period of time. Normal attrition will not apply. Younger families will purchase these homes. It is very possible that 50 new students will enter the school system within one year. At $9,000 per student — a total $450,000 in increased school costs — this would negate any gain from real estate taxes.

We were told it will not cost the town anything. There are already at least $196,000 in paid and accrued (disclosed) costs associated with this development. What will be the legal costs associated with suits from Cedermere and Avalon. $200,000 is probably a fair figure and would not include payments the Town will be required to make to the plaintiffs to recover their capital expenses in pursuing other wastewater disposal means. What is left of the profit from the sale? Enough to offset the $500,000 we have already spent on studying the Little Harbor area? Where is the windfall profit we were promised?

Before you vote on Dec. 6, consider the long-term, wide-ranging ramifications to our Town of voting to approve sewer access to a developer. This is not a senior issue. This is a growth & development issue. Cohasset has many resources — intellectual, financial, and community spirit. We should be able to do better for our seniors and our Town.

HEALTH NOTES

Recognizing strokes and heart attacks

Web offers some do-it-yourself tips

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

There are a lot of things going around on the internet that make one wonder. For example, here's a piece which is circulating as an email. "Is It A Stroke? Sometimes symptoms of a stroke are difficult to identify. Unfortunately, a stroke victim may suffer brain damage when people nearby fail to recognize the symptoms of a stroke.

Now doctors say any bystander can recognize a stroke by asking 3 simple questions: 1. Ask the victim to smile. 2. Ask him or her to raise both arms 3. Ask the person to speak a simple sentence. If he or she has trouble with any of these tasks, call 9-1-1 immediately and describe the symptoms to the dispatcher.

After discovering that a group of non-medical volunteers could identify facial weakness, arm weakness and speech problems, researchers urged the general public to learn the three questions. They presented their conclusions at the American Stroke Association's annual meeting last February. Widespread use of this test could result in prompt diagnosis and treatment of the stroke and prevent brain damage." This information comes from the American Stroke Association's web page link:

www.strokeassociation.org/presenter.jhtml?identifier=1200037

The Stroke association is an advocacy organization for stroke health care professionals who sponsor an annual Stroke Conference from which a speaker gave the above advice. The American Stroke Association does not provide this guideline. It's message about detecting stroke is:

"Call 9-1-1 Immediately If You Experience Symptoms: • Sudden numbness or weakness of the face, arm or leg, especially on one side of the body • Sudden confusion, trouble speaking or understanding • Sudden trouble seeing in one or both eyes • Sudden trouble walking, dizziness, loss of balance or coordination • Sudden severe headache with no known cause • Learn to recognize a stroke.

What to believe: it's up to you to decide.

The point that should be made about all of this is that you, as an intelligent person should react carefully and thoughtfully (and also, for a possible stroke, quickly) in an emergency.

The next example is about possible heart attacks: " Is It A Heart Attack?"

A cardiologist says if everyone who gets this e-mail sends it to 10 people, you can bet that at least one life will be saved. Read this... It could save your life!! Let's say you're driving home alone. Suddenly you start experiencing severe pain in your chest that starts to radiate out into your arm and up into your jaw. You think it's a heart attack and you begin to feel faint. The person whose heart is beating improperly and who begins to feel faint, has only about 10 seconds left before losing consciousness. However, these victims can help themselves by coughing repeatedly and very vigorously. A deep breath should be taken before each cough, and the cough must be deep and prolonged, as when producing sputum from deep inside the chest. — A breath and a cough must be repeated about every two seconds without letup until help arrives, or until the heart is felt to be beating normally again. — Deep breaths get oxygen into the lungs and coughing movements squeeze the heart and keep the blood circulating. The squeezing pressure on the heart also helps it regain normal rhythm. In this way, heart attack victims can get to a hospital.

Aside from the fact that it's incredible that a responsible cardiologist would be advocating sending spam, it's interesting to find out where this message came from. According to CBS News, it came from Dr. Tadeusz Petelenz who said the technique, called cough CPR, forces blood to the brain while the heart is starting to fail and keeps patients conscious long enough to call for help. It may also rectify their heart rhythm, he said at a meeting of the European Society of Cardiology.

A rebuttal came from a web service, Trend Micro , a Japanese company which publishes a listing of hoaxes, on the web. It's description of this particular "hoax" is, in part given below: This email hoax started circulating on the Internet in June 1999. The email message also suggests that this "cough CPR" technique was recommended by Rochester General Hospital and The Mended Hearts support group. Rochester General Hospital has denied this, and Mended Hearts released a disclaimer. Further, the American Heart Association does not recommend that the public use this method in a situation where there is no medical supervision.

What to believe: it's up to you to decide. Frankly, if you're having a heart attack on the expressway and you can't think of anything else to do, it's probably OK to try coughing. Almost everywhere else, there's a defibrillator nearby and someone trained to use it.

Making money on the Red Sox

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

I got a letter from the Danbury Mint the other day offering me a keepsake reminder of the 2004 World Champion Red Sox, a detailed replica of Fenway Park, if I would send them $199, payable in five installments of just $39.80 (plus $7.80 shipping and service).

The 14 by 11-3/4 inch replica comes complete with lights that work, hand-painted bricks and flags (no grass, though), seats atop the Green Monster and Coca Cola bottles in left field, the Budweiser sign behind the Pesky Pole in right field, and a certificate of authenticity.

What would I do with a 14 by 11-3/4 inch replica of Fenway Park?

What would I do with a 14 by 11-3/4 inch replica of Fenway Park? Could I leave it out on display with three curious cats roaming the premises? Should I lock it in a closet and take it out to show visitors? Or should I put it in a safe deposit box at the Rockland Trust Co.?

While I was considering this problem, I read that Shreve, Crump & Low, which bills itself as the "Official Jeweler and Timekeeper of the Boston Red Sox," is offering a sterling silver pin with the Red Sox logo for $75 and the same thing in 14 karat gold for $325.

Great with "plaids, stripes and curse breaking," the hype says.

It has occurred to me that a whole cottage industry has grown up around the first Red Sox World Series victory since 1918 and it promises to bring its industrialists more money than the talents of Manny Ramirez and Pedro Martinez combined.

Just I case I wasn't interested in a miniature replica of Fenway Park (and I wasn't), the Danbury Mint followed up with another enticing offer — 22 karat gold baseball cards featuring the individual Red Sox players, with a deluxe collector's album thrown in at no cost.

This, says the hype, "is sure to become one of the most desirable collectibles ever issued," and it will only set you back $9.95 (plus 95 cents shipping and service) per card.

The Boston Globe, which had already completed its season-long collection of individual Red Sox pins, opened up again to offer five new player pins and a World Series pin in an album for only $24.95. The full set of 24 player pins will cost you $125.

Even the Sporting News is getting into the act with "Curse Reversed," a 144-page "spectacular keepsake book forever commemorating the historic season of the 2004 World Champion Boston Red Sox" for only $25.95 in hard cover, $16.95 in soft.

Of course, every true Sox fan will have to have the framed "Reversed" collage including 8 by 10 photos of Babe Ruth and the 2004 World Series celebration plus a copy of the contract selling Ruth to the Yankees stamped "Reversed 11/27/04 @ 11:39 p.m."

It's only $169.99 from Steiner Sports Memorabilia — "Don't wait . . . Call now . . . Supplies are limited!"

Somehow I wish Great Expectations would call again. It might not be so frantic.

CHAMBER CHATTER

Coffee Corner

In its ongoing effort to provide different kinds of networking opportunities to it members, the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce is coordinating a weekly networking opportunity with the Scituate Chamber that's called Coffee Corner. There will be a networking event every Tuesday morning from 7:30 to 8:30/9 a.m. at different locations in Cohasset and Scituate. The Coffee Corner is open to everyone as an opportunity to promote their business. New locations will be added and a revolving schedule will be established. The larger picture surrounding Cook Estate

TO THE EDITOR:

The proponents of the Cook Estate ask us to judge the project based solely on its own merits without looking at the reality of the larger picture. Unfortunately, the time has ended when we could look at the Cook Estate project in a vacuum and decide whether it would be good for the town. The decision to sewer this property has more far reaching implications than gaining some senior housing for the town. If we go down this path, we risk losing our ability to sewer Little Harbor and other existing residents who have long contributed to the sewer expansion while waiting their turn to be connected. We risk large fines and a return to mandatory inspections, resulting in the upgrades or complete replacements for all septic systems in the Little Harbor watershed. We risk gaining 400 new units of housing in our town and all the impacts associated with this amount of growth.

When the Cook project was presented, the Selectmen stated it was doubtful Cedarmere and Avalon would progress because they had wastewater disposal problems and could not tie into town sewer because the capacity did not exist. We were told Cook would not need to tie into sewer, the developer would be required to build an on-site wastewater treatment facility and it was our best chance of getting additional housing suitable for seniors in our town. We were told the town would walk away if things didn't work out as planned.

A year has past since the town meeting where Cook was approved. Now Northland, the Cook developer, says they can not proceed without a sewer connection. Northland has applied to the Sewer Commission twice and been rejected. The Senior Housing Committee and Cohasset Elder Affairs are sponsoring a warrant article asking the town to change the boundaries of the Central Sewer District and to allow this property to connect to town sewer. They say there will be minimal impact if we first treat the wastewater on site and dispose of "grey water" only into the sewer system. This was an idea that Cedarmere proposed as a settlement to end their lawsuit. The Sewer Commission did not respond to their offer, and it rejected this same proposal from the Cook developer.

What impact will this article have on the other developments in line for sewer? Cedarmere and Avalon both approached the Sewer Commission for capacity long before Cook was even presented to the town. Cedarmere has filed a lawsuit for sewer capacity and Avalon has taken the position that the ZBA approval specified they should be given a priority if any excess capacity exists. Common sense tells us that if we approve this article we will probably lose lawsuits to both Avalon and Cedarmere while generating large legal bills.

What impact will this have on the rest of the town? The result could be that all 400 units of new housing will be given sewer access and we put the Little Harbor expansion as well as connections for any other existing homeowners at risk. If the DEP feels that the Town hasn't demonstrated its commitment to finally resolve the Little Harbor pollution issue to the degree that the DEP feels is reasonable, the town to could be assessed fines of up to $10,000 per day. Again, the homeowners in this area could face mandatory inspections and astronomical costs to replace failing septic systems. If we add 400 new residences to our town, it will be an increase of over 14% of our existing housing stock. This much growth will have an impact. Our schools and town services will be affected. The costs could far exceed any compensation the town receives from the sale of its property.

There are hundred of seniors in the Little Harbor area who would benefit from a sewer connection and the opportunity to have amnesty if their systems fail between the date of any resolution of the Judgment, and the Town's own completion date for the LH project of August 2009. A vote against the article to include Cook in the Central Sewer District is not a vote against the seniors and it should not be characterized that way. It is recognition that this article, while well intentioned, has the potential to cause more harm than good, not only for our seniors but for the rest of the town as well. We can't look at this article in a vacuum; the potential cost is just too high.

Four questions for the Board of Selectmen

TO THE EDITOR:

Anna Abruzzese absolutely is correct when she suggested in her letter to the editor last week that it is counterproductive to dwell on the past decision-making process by the former Board of Selectmen and the former Town Manager concerning the proposed senior housing project for the Cook estate.

While it may be true that had the former Board been the project managers on the hit TV show The Apprentice, they all would have heard the words "You're fired," from Donald Trump in view of their gross mismanagement of this project (not to mention their deliberate sidestepping of the Open Meeting Law by which they devised this project behind closed doors over a period of months), we must look at the project as it stands today and determine whether it still makes sense for our town.

I believe that in order for the present Board of Selectmen to establish their credibility on this issue for the Special Town Meeting on Dec. 6, they must have definitive answers to the following four questions:

1) If the proposed 95 units of housing on the Cook estate are allowed to tie into the town's central sewer district, will there be enough capacity in the central sewage treatment plant for the homes in the Little Harbor district also to tie in at a later date? The selectmen immediately should hire an independent engineering firm, not someone hired by the proposed Cook estate developer, to give us that answer.

2) If we vote to allow the Cook estate property to tie into the town sewage plant, will there be possible legal ramifications vis a vis the requests of Cedarmere and Avalon Bay to tie into our central sewer district? Some have suggested that we may be opening up a Pandora's Box of legal difficulty for the town which could lead to a judge ordering the town to allow Cedarmere and Avalon to tie in, thereby surely dooming Little Harbor's chances of ever having enough capacity in the sewage plant. The selectmen must obtain an opinion from a lawyer who has expertise in this area to provide Town Meeting members with the information we need for an informed decision.

3) Depending upon the answers to the first two questions, what is the possible legal and financial exposure for both the town and/or Little Harbor homeowners in terms of the consent judgment with state environmental regulators under which the town has agreed to clean up the pollution in Little Harbor? That judgment establishes a schedule of fines amounting to thousands of dollars per day for every day that the town is not in compliance with the judgment. Homeowners could be subject to immediate Title 5 inspections and be required to expend huge sums for new septic systems. The selectmen need to obtain an independent legal opinion from a lawyer who specializes in this field of law so that Town Meeting members will know what the possible ramifications could be if we allow the Cook estate to tie in to the central sewage plant and if that decision ultimately results, directly or indirectly, in an inability to sewer Little Harbor in a timely manner.

4) Since we now know that the Cook estate property is capable of development for no more than a "handful of single family homes" because of poor soil conditions, what is the fair market value of that property today? Certainly, it cannot be anywhere near what the former Board of Selectmen agreed to pay for it, yet I have not read anywhere that the present Board of Selectmen has sought to renegotiate the price of the property as any rational person would do based on the facts as we know them today. Allowing the Cook estate to tie into our sewer plant is an improvement to the property which should inure to the financial benefit of the town, not to the seller, who stands to make a windfall profit. The selectmen should hire a real estate appraiser immediately to give the present fair market value of the Cook estate and renegotiate with the seller so that we do not overpay for this property by millions of dollars.

In sum, the former Board of Selectmen amply demonstrated its ineptitude in the real-estate development business given the fiasco in which we now find ourselves. If the present Board of Selectmen is seeking to convince us to continue with the Cook estate project, then we need all of the facts, from reputable experts, so that we can make the correct decision this time around.

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Cohasset Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.
THE HOUSE AND SENATE. BHRC records local representatives and senators' votes on two roll calls from prior sessions. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.
SAFE DRIVER STUDY (H 4850)
House 141-15, Senate 33-4, overrode Gov. Romney's veto of a budget provision requiring the Registry of Motor Vehicles to create a commission to study their policies, programs, test materials and publications to ensure that the requirements encompass and promote the safety of drivers and pedestrians. The commission would report its findings to the Legislature by June 1, 2005. Override supporters said it is time to mandate a review of these policies and materials to ensure that drivers learn the proper rules of the road and know the material well enough to obtain a license. In his veto message, the governor said that the Registry is already engaged in policy review. He noted that if such a study is necessary, it can be done administratively and does not need to be authorized by the Legislature. (A "Yea" vote is for the study. A "Nay" vote is against the study).
SAFETY ON PUBLIC CONSTRUCTION SITES (H 2367)
House 154-0, Senate 37-0, overrode Gov. Romney's veto of a bill amending the public construction bidding laws to require, effective July 2006, all workers on public construction projects to have at least ten hours of Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) safety training. Employers would have to show documentation of each worker's completed training along with the company's first payroll report. Any worker that is found working on the site without documentation would be subject to removal. Override supporters said this new pro-worker requirement is an important one that would help ensure the safety of workers. They argued that the state and local communities should not award public construction contracts to companies that are not paying enough attention to worker safety. In his veto message, the governor said the legislation is flawed because it allows work to begin on a project prior to the time companies have to prove that workers have completed the course. He noted that it is unfair to allow a worker to be removed from the site simply because he or she is found working on the site without documentation. The governor also said that the bill would increase the cost of construction projects and argued that there does not seem to be a valid reason to subject only public, not private worksites, to this requirement. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill).
ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL
"THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW"- December 1 is the deadline for legislation to be filed for consideration during the 2005-2006 legislative session. Many late-filed bills are admitted to the Legislature following the deadline but most proposals are filed by December 1. Massachusetts is one of a handful of states that give citizens the "right of free petition"— the power to propose their own legislation. A citizen's proposal must be filed in conjunction with his or her representative or senator or any other representative or senator. Many legislators will file a constituent's bill even if they do not agree with it. In those cases, the legislator files the bill "by request"— indicating that he or she is doing so at the request of the constituent. Citizens that are interested in filing legislation should contact their representative or senator or any other legislator.
EXEMPTIONS FROM CONFLICT OF INTEREST LAW (H 5113)- The House and Senate gave final approval to and sent to Gov. Romney a proposal requiring the State Ethics Commission to develop a list of exemptions to the existing conflict of interest law. Supporters said that the measure was supported by Gov. Romney, government watchdog groups and legislators. They noted that current law is too vague and that a specific list of exemptions would simply provide clear guidelines for public employees to follow. They argued that this would ensure easier compliance with the law and reduce the number of individual inquiries on specific matters to the commission.
BOOTLEGGING MOVIES AND VIDEOTAPING NUDITY (H 4863)- The House and Senate gave final approval to and sent to Gov. Romney legislation outlawing the bootlegging videotaping of movies in movie theaters and the videotaping or photographing of a person that is nude or partially nude, without the person's knowledge and consent. The penalty for illegally taping movies would be a two-year prison sentence and/or $100,000 fine for first-time offenders and up to a $250,000 fine and/or five-year prison sentence for subsequent offenses. Violation of the nude taping ban would result in up to a $5000 fine and/or 2.5-year prison sentence.
RESTRICTIONS ON MOTORIZED SCOOTERS (H 5125)- The House and Senate gave final approval to and sent to the governor a bill regulating and imposing restrictions on gas and electric-powered motorized scooters. Supporters said that these low-riding scooters are unregulated by the state and are being used by young people with no driving experience. They said local police departments have received numerous complaints about the dangers of the vehicles and argued that it is time for the state to step in and regulate them. Provisions include requiring operators to be at least 16 years old, possess a valid driver's license or learner's permit and wear a helmet; banning the vehicles from sidewalks and bike paths; limiting their speed to 20 miles per hour; barring their operation before dusk and after dawn and mandating that they be equipped with directional "blinkers" in the back. Both branches also attached an emergency preamble to the bill in order to make the law effective immediately instead of in 90 days. Supporters noted that the preamble was attached in order to take care of the problem immediately. They argued that this would prevent the mass purchase of the vehicles during the Christmas holiday by users who would be prohibited from driving them in three months.

Leaky Big Dig sure to have lots of political fallout

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

CRAIG SANDLER

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

The public and the political world witnessed an odd phenomenon unfold last week: the Central Artery Tunnel appears to have extensive, expensive defects, but officially, no one was responsible for causing them.

It's a state government project, but Gov. Mitt Romney said he was just an observer — waiting to see what the project's overseer, the quasi-independent Massachusetts Turnpike Authority, was going to do about it. It's a turnpike project, but the head of the authority said neither he nor his authority should be held accountable for the defective concrete panels and numerous leaks plaguing the notorious underground highway. Matthew Amorello said the problems were the responsibility of the Big Dig's prime contractor, Bechtel Parsons Brinckerhoff, not the turnpike. But Bechtel was taking no blame, making no statements, and identifying no one as in charge and therefore accountable. Other contractors insisted they had done their work properly and could not be faulted.

So, while the governor told reporters "you wonder who in the world was asleep at the switch," by week's end the story so far was that the errors and defects just happened. Just as no one yet knows how widespread the tunnel leakage problems are, no one had come forward to acknowledge committing any mistake or causing any problem. Last Friday, a day after saying it was too early to say who was to blame for the leaks, Romney targeted Amorello, saying he had lost confidence in him, questioning his qualifications, and requesting his resignation.

Meanwhile, an ugly political truth dawned. The largest public works project in history was turning into one of the largest public relations problems in the annals of Massachusetts. The Big Dig appears now to have fully failed to fulfill a often-heard prediction: that once the tunnel opened and the bridge was done, the overruns and missed deadlines would fade into inconsequence, subsumed by appreciation of the expertise that went into the work and the newfound ease of travel. But now, the Big Dig is officially not just over budget and late, but faulty too, and not having the impact on traffic flows that many expected. More than just a scandal, the Big Dig has also become a joke. But it's dark humor — it's clear that many motorists don't trust assurances that the tunnel is safe, and they want to know who's going to do something about it. In political life, that's the worst-case scenario. Reaction was swift. The opening rounds were announced last Wednesday (Nov. 11), as the chairmen of the Transportation Committee set Nov. 30 as the tentative date for an oversight hearing at which, they made clear, they expect all those involved to explain themselves. Meanwhile, Attorney General Thomas Reilly warned that water is collecting on the roof of the tunnel, a point the authority had not mentioned at a press conference hours earlier, and told reporters there was the problem of who to go after, since no one will admit making any mistake. Reilly vowed to determine who's at fault. "A big question in our minds is who knew what and when," he said.

This latest crisis of confidence in the project hit suddenly, when the Boston Globe reported the findings of a team of slurry wall construction experts hired to trace the cause of a tunnel-wall breach in September. That team found there are "400 or so" leaks plaguing the brand new I-93 north tunnel, and they will take up to 10 years to repair. At week's end, the Globe was asking what Amorello knew about the problem, and when he knew it. Memos surfaced last week suggesting the problems were reported internally at the project in both 1999 and 2001.

The true extent of the defects remains unclear and under review, but two consequences seem certain. One is litigation, probably lots of it. The other is that if no one is willing to step forward and accept any blame, the public will assign blame on its own — to everyone.

• Romney and Johnston both say they'll stay put — Fresh off an election in which his party did well nationally and he did terribly locally, Gov. Romney met with White House Chief of Staff Andrew Card, and Romney's future in Washington was discussed. Romney emerged saying he wouldn't accept a job in D.C. even if it were offered. The governor said he'd promised to serve a full term, and he intended to keep the promise. Meanwhile Romney's chief electoral nemesis, Democratic Party Chairman Philip Johnston, at first said he planned to leave his post, and then said an outpouring of support from party members had caused him to change his mind. Now, Romney must decide whether to run again for governor in 2006, but Johnston's decision making is uncluttered. He'll be seeking to oust Romney, or his equivalent, from the moment intentions are declared. Others making known their desire to keep their present jobs: Darryl Crate, the state GOP chairman, and Brian Lees, the longtime Senate minority leader. Both said they'll seek the support of their peers in upcoming state committee and caucus elections.

Sewer existing homes first!

TO THE EDITOR:

The Cohasset Central Sewer Treatment Plant is operating very close to its design level capacities. This stark fact has been stated repeatedly by the Cohasset Sewer Commission, and confirmed by the consulting engineering firm based upon recent test data. The plant's "flow capacity" is the volume of sewage flow entering the plant, (Cohasset's plant has a permit capacity of 300,000 gallons per day), and, more importantly, its "biological capacity" is the pounds of BOD (biological oxygen demand) removed from the sewage flow (Cohasset's plant has a permit capacity of 630 pounds per day). Neither capacity limit, especially the BOD capacity, can be exceeded on a regular basis and meet the State permit obligations for the operation of the plant.

Regardless of the variations of the entering raw sewage stream in terms of gallons per day, if the total BOD level in that flow exceeds the capacity of the plant to remove it, then the plant would be in violation of its State permit to operate. Because of high BOD measurements this summer, the plant's biological loading appears to be near capacity. Thus, BOD is the limiting factor in taking on new hookups. The State severely limits and monitors the amount of BOD discharged into its coastal waters, in this case Cohasset Harbor. Environment and permit violations are what caused Cohasset to enter into litigation with the State in the first place, and must be avoided in the future.

The average daily and monthly levels of BOD per gallon of sewer flow entering the plant, as well as the volume of raw sewerage, vary up and down depending upon the season of the year; the local weather (wet or dry); and other factors. This is to be expected, but it means that the system has to be operated in a fashion so that in a worst case scenario the capacity limits are not surpassed, or if so, only occasionally and not by much. This spring during some of the wet weather the volume inflows were greater than the plant's capacity. Some of this is due to leakage of ground water into the system and can be fixed by finding and sealing the leaks. However, neighboring Scituate has been trying to find and stop leaks in its system for five years at a cost of $1.5 million with little success. so far. Until practice shows that these leaks have been minimized, the Sewer Commission has to include this leakage in the inflow volume of the plant and can not safely add new discharges into the system without jeopardizing our permit. Furthermore and more serious is the BOD load on the plant. Based on the higher summer measurement, the Sewer Commission believes that only about 22 new houses can be added to the Central Plant without jeopardizing its present permit and if the plant is expanded, its ability to handle the Little Harbor/Atlantic Avenue District as required by the Consent Decree. Beyond the 22 homes there is presently no assured available capacity.

People who argue that there is now available capacity are arguing from a sunny day perspective and not from the daily operation of the plant and the need to meet the permit capacity limits on the rainy bad days as well as the sunny ones. There is no assured available capacity. The plant's BOD capacity has been reached.

The existing Cohasset Central Sewer Plant was designed to be upgraded and expanded. This has happened once and this Plant can accommodate one more major expansion, subject to State and Federal permitting. Under this expansion the volume permit could increase from 300,000 gallons per day to 450,000 gallons per day and the BOD removal capacity could increase from 630 pounds per day to 945 pounds per day. These capacities are only just sufficient to meet the Town of Cohasset's agreement with the State to eliminate the pollution in the Little Harbor/Atlantic Avenue watershed by sewering that District.

As is commonly known, Cohasset is under a Superior Court Consent Decree with the State to cease its long term and on-going violation of the Clean Water Act - the environmental pollution of Little Harbor and our coastal waters with fecal coliform bacteria. The Attorney General, the Department of Environmental Protection and the Town of Cohasset have mutually agreed that sewering the Little Harbor/Atlantic Avenue watershed is the most efficient, least costly method for Cohasset to comply with the Court order. The Town has submitted a detailed plan and schedule, which includes the above expansion of the Central Sewer Plant to comply with the Consent Decree. That plan and schedule has been accepted by State officials. If the Town now authorizes this capacity to be used for other purposes, the Town will be in violation of the Consent Decree unless it shows the State that it has another way of curing its violation of the Clean Water Act. The choices facing the Town are to commit this additional capacity for Little Harbor, implement another solution that all agree will be much more expensive, face daily fines of up to $10,000 a day or $3,650,000 a year, or other punitive sanctions. The State has waited 26 years and now insists that Cohasset takes care of existing obligations.

In addition to the costs of meeting this Court order and potential fines, the Town would still need to appropriate funds to expand the plant's capacity for the Cook development and probably Cedermere and Avalon, thus diverting the limited, future capacity away from its planned use to comply with the Court order, as approved at three prior Town meetings with funding for initial planning and engineering (approximately $500,000 thus far).

Therefore the rallying cry "SERF," Sewer — Existing — Residences — First!

Supports amending Recall article

TO THE EDITOR:

I have been following with interest the proposal to add a provision for a recall petition which is to be voted on at the forthcoming Town Meeting.

Although the concept makes sense, the timing is wrong for the Article as currently written.

This has been a difficult year for the town, for reasons we are all aware, and we are now in the process of selecting a new Town Manager. To put the Article forward in its current form will only increase friction between our citizens and seems an unnecessary distraction to the important job ahead, which is to make the town run efficiently and in the best interests of all of us.

I understand the proponents are planning to amend the Article in such a way as to delay the effective date of any potential recall for three years.

To me that makes sense. The recall provision will add a layer of protection for all of us; and the delay in implementation will effectively insulate the current boards from its provisions, at least for the three year period.

Let's pass it, make it effective three years from now, and get on with the more important business of running the Town.

Cohasset Harbor Resort holiday charity events

Atlantica will hold its annual "Pie in the Sky" pie sale to benefit Community Servings, a Roxbury based food shelter Monday, Nov. 22 at 11 a.m. The staff of Atlantica will gather together for a "bake off," with the goal of making and baking 30 pies. Proceeds will be given to the shelter, and the sale of each pie will allow a family of four to sit down and share a Thanksgiving dinner — a meal they would not otherwise have.

Atlantica will also open its doors to serve a special pre-Thanksgiving luncheon for Cohasset Elder Affairs Tuesday, Nov. 23 at 11 a.m. Approximately 75-100 senior citizens have been invited to join in the festivities. Many of the guests once worked at the famous Hugo's, which has since been transformed into Atlantica Restaurant.

All food, staffing, and use of the facility for both events is donated by Atlantica and the Cohasset Harbor Inn.

A familiar sight on Sunday: a Cohasset defender stopping Norwell star running back Greg Thornton at the line of scrimmage. In this case, it's Teddy Straughn.

Cohasset gridders roll over Norwell to sew up playoff berth

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

The story of Cohasset High's surprisingly easy 20-0 win over Norwell on the gridiron Sunday night could be seen pretty plainly on the face of Norwell coach Jim Sullivan.

It was a cross between consternation and utter shock that adorned the visage of the normally even keeled and accommodating veteran coach, as he waved off reporters' question at game's end and suggested: "You should probably go talk to Tony," referring to his CHS counterpart, Tony Rolfe.

It was tough to blame the Clippers' coach for the emotion that provoked this uncustomary behavior. After all, this game, delayed from Friday night by snow, was being touted as a classic smash-mouth battle between two South Shore League titans, with a Div. 3 Super Bowl berth at stake to sweeten the pot.

But it was the host Skippers who did all of the smashing.

Behind dominant play in the trenches on both sides of the line of scrimmage, the host Skippers out-gained the Clippers in yards by a 137-24 margin in the first half, and a pair of short touchdown runs by senior quarterback Crandon Leahy took them into the break with a 14-0 lead.

Whatever measures the Clippers coaches took during the half in hopes of regrouping were quickly dashed, as the Skippers D picked up right where it left off, stuffing the Clippers on three straight plays to open the second half. Then, on 4th-and-10, Cohasset senior defensive tackle Kelvin Ferreira popped clean through the line of scrimmage and stuffed Adam Nogueira's attempted punt, and Leo Clougherty recovered the ball at the Norwell 22-yard line. Two plays later, Leahy found senior fullback Ted Straughn 20 yards downfield on a designed rollout to the right. Straughn hauled in the well placed lead pass and bulled over the lone defender between himself and the goal line, making it a 20-0 game with 6:57 to play in third quarter.

The closest Norwell came to scoring all night was the Cohasset 46-yard line.

That proved more than enough for the Cohasset defense, which held the Clippers to just three first downs and 64 net yards for the game. The closest the Clippers came to pay dirt all night was the Cohasset 46-yard line.

"We had very solid play on both sides of the line of scrimmage," acknowledged Cohasset head coach Tony Rolfe, who, with the win, sewed up his second straight South Shore League title and third in four seasons.

The seventh year Skippers coach insisted his team did nothing fancy. He did say, however, that he and his staff spent more than the standard amount of time preparing for this winner-take-all showdown.

"We've seen [Norwell] play a lot," said Rolfe. "We went back and looked at as much film as we could. We looked at game films from five years ago. We knew some things to look out for. We just played a basic defense, though. There was nothing fancy about it."

Perhaps the single biggest key to the win was the Skippers' ability to stop explosive Norwell tailback Greg Thorton. The speedy and deceivingly strong senior entered the game with over 1,600 yards on the ground for the season and had gone over 100 yards in each of team's first nine games. The Skippers - led by big efforts from Ferreira, Clougherty and senior captain Mat Casey - held him to just 66 yards on 23 carries, and better than half of those yards came after Cohasset's third TD.

When asked to explain how this happened, Norwell's coach Sullivan said simply: "Their defense penetrated and just beat our offensive line all night."

Conversely, the Skippers got a huge effort from their lead back, senior captain Joe Durkin. He went for 114 yards on 12 first half carries and finished with 144 yards on 21 carries.

Durkin set the tone on the game's second play from scrimmage when he cut it inside on a designed sweep left, one of the Skippers most effective plays all

Coming up: Hull

By Mark Goodman
MGOODMAN@CNC.COM

With a playoff berth already clinched, the only thing Cohasset has to play for in its annual Thanksgiving Day game with the Hull Pirates is pride.

That should be enough, however, for head coach Tony Rolfe to get his players motivated.

Hull (7-3, 2-2 league) is certain to come out extremely motivated for the game on Thursday, for multiple reasons. The first of those is the result of its last game, a rather shocking loss to Carver, one of the lower-rated teams in the South Shore League.

Cohasset vs. Hull
Thursday, 10 a.m.
Cohasset High School

The Pirates will also be looking to avenge last year's holiday result. In a rather sloppy game in Hull, the Skippers came out on top in a close one, 7-6.

This is the 18th year of Cohasset-Hull Thanksgiving football. The Skippers hold the all-time advantage in the rivalry, 10-6-1.

Rolfe says his defense will have to step up big against a potent Hull offense that can put points on the board. The Pirates are third in the league in scoring, averaging over 22 points a game.

Talent at the skill positions is Hull's strong suit, according to Rolfe, and that is where of lot of Cohasset's defensive focus will be.

Girls soccer: gains and losses

CHS says good-bye to 10 seniors, hello to young talent in '05

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

In the throws of an athletic season, it is not easy for a coach to see all that far through the trees.

It is only at season's end, more often than not, that those in this profession recognize the forest that has popped up seemingly out of nowhere.

At times, Cohasset girls soccer coach Deb Beal seemed worn down and even exasperated by the day in-day out grind of the recently concluded 8-8-3 campaign, but now that it's over…

"It is amazing how quickly the season goes by," observed the Lady Skippers head coach. "Imagine we started in the 90 degree summer heat and now it is freezing outside.

"The season held many ups and downs. I saw many good things happen, though. Overall I am very pleased with the way the season ended and I think we laid the foundation for some good times ahead."

The Cohasset girls qualified for the Division 3 state tourney for a third straight year and were promptly ousted for the third straight time, this time in Fairhaven by a 3-0 score.

Naturally, there is a degree of disappointment accompanying the continuation of this record of futility.

The season's end is always a disappointment, especially when it ends on a loss that we let slip through our fingers," said Beal. "Looking at the seeds in the Division 3 South, it really makes you think 'Wow, I wish we didn't tie Mashpee twice and give up a late goal to Abington.' The way the season and bids would have played out are all 'shoulda, coulda, wouldas,' but I think we had a better shot with a better record."

Nevertheless, there is still an appreciation of what was accomplished.

"Quite a few players were asked to play new positions this season and they adapted to the changes quickly and effectively," said Beal.

On this front, the coach was particularly proud of four seniors.

"Christine Lovallo played a new position at sweeper. Danielle Hajjar went from stopper to outside defensive back. Nicole Whitney moved from the outside midfield to the center midfield and Mackenzie Holway took on more of a consistent role in the stopper position."

These are just four of the 10 players the Skippers will lose to graduation.

Foothold on the future

Pieces in place for bigger and better things in 2005 for CHS boys

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

For the first time, Cohasset High boys soccer coach Rob Leary feels he has a foothold on the future; excuse the pun.

"Next year will be my first one I won't feel like I'm starting from scratch," said Leary, who directed the Skippers to an 8-6-3 record and into the second round of the state tourney this fall, his second season at the helm. "We're losing some good players, and there are still some positional things to figure out, but we've got a lot more answers than questions."

The Skippers will lose seven seniors to graduation, including tri-captains Jonathan Littauer, Sam Steele and Kevin Dinsmore, all starters. The other four players going the way of the caps and gowns are John Grimm, a starter on the wing who finished the year strong, Colin Regan, Jake Kovach and Toby Norman.

Dinsmore, an SSL all-star center midfielder who Leary called "our heart and soul leader and one of the toughest players I've ever coached," will be the most difficult to replace.

"Kevin really carried us down the stretch the last few weeks," said Leary. "We moved him from the outside to the inside at midfield early on, and it took him a while to adjust. Once he did, though, he was just unbelievable. We were a much better team at the end of the year than at the beginning, and he was probably the biggest single reason why. He's also one of the toughest and hardest workers I've ever coached, so it was great to see that pay off for him."

Of course, Steele was a valuable complement to Dinsmore in the middle of the field and Littauer, a starting fullback, seldom came off the field.

"Sam is a very skilled player," said Leary. "We saw how valuable he was when he missed the last few [regular season] games with an injury. He was a big part of our success.

"And Jon [Littauer] was such a hard worker. He wasn't as big or maybe even as talented as some of the other defenders in the league, but he made himself a very good player because he just outworked people."

Grimm had suffered leg injuries in his sophomore and junior seasons, but really found his game and confidence over the second half of this season.

"John really came into his own

SEE CHS BOYS, PAGE 18

FROM CHS BOYS, PAGE 17

down the stretch," said Leary, a former head soccer coach at Rockland High School. "He was another big reason we were a much better team at the beginning than we were at the end."

That said, Leary will still be starting his third year at the Skippers' helm in much better shape than he did his second. Graduation 2004 claimed nine players, all of whom saw regular playing time. This group included South Shore League all-stars Chris Clark, Conor Buick, Craig Laugelle, Dave Santiago and Jesse Brewer.

Junior Aidan Buick, an SSL all-star and All Eastern Mass selection, will again be a huge piece of the puzzle whether he moves to center midfield or remains at striker. He finished among the league's leaders in scoring this season with 15 goals and 14 assists, easily the best totals in both categories for the Skippers.

"Moving Aidan into the middle is something I'm considering," said Leary. "He's such a skilled overall player and sees the field well. It's tempting to leave him up front because he's such a big scoring threat. I do think, though, we've got a few other guys who can put the ball in the net."

Specifically, those players are juniors Ben Libby, a skilled and intelligent player, and Nils Sceery, a large and powerful athlete. Both figure prominently in the front field picture for 2005, as does freshman Mike Grimm (John's younger brother), a gifted all-around athlete.

Defensively, the Skippers return three-fourths of what was a very good unit this fall. Juniors Trevor Brady and Sam MacDonald were both deservedly named to the South Shore League all-star team and fellow junior Prescott Busk was a steady performer between the pipes.

Returnees to the midfield who will be expected to play a bigger role in 2005 are juniors Brandon Smith and Chris Ofsthun.

As for this year's team, removed a few days from the second round 3-1 loss to top seeded Chatham, Leary seemed quite satisfied with what was accomplished.

"It took us a while to figure things out, which wasn't surprising after all the changes we had to make, but we really came together the last few weeks," he asserted. "We became a very good team."

STAFF PHOTO/BERT LANE

The Skippers went 8-6-3 this season, and are hopeful for a better record and longer postseason run in 2005.

Coming up: All-Scholastics

Over the next several weeks, the sports editors of the Cohasset Mariner and other surrounding weeklies in the area will be putting together our All-Scholastic teams for the fall high school sports season.

The All-Scholastic golf team will be coming out in next week's edition. Our editors are in the process of surveying all golf coaches in the area to put that team together. There will be a group of All-Scholastics, and a group of honorable mentions.

Those designations will be decided by the editors, with input from the coaches.

If you are an athlete that is selected to one of our All-Scholastic teams, you will be contacted by one of our editors in order to obtain a photo that will run with the write-up of your accomplishments during the 2004 season.

After golf, there will be teams comprised of the best area athletes in cross-country, volleyball, field hockey, boys and girls soccer, and football.

In addition to Cohasset, athletes from the following communities will be represented: Weymouth, Abington, Rockland, Holbrook, Hingham, Braintree, Scituate, Norwell, Marshfield, Hanover, Kingston and Scituate.

We at the Mariner hope you have enjoyed our coverage of CHS sports during the fall season, and will continue to follow your favorite teams in these pages this winter.

SPORTS NOTES

Youth lacrosse sign-up open through Jan. 8

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse completed its initial registration day for the Spring 2005 season on Nov. 13, but registration will continue through Jan. 8.

Parents can come to a second sign-up day - scheduled for 9 - 11 a.m. at Cohasset High School on the first Saturday in January - or can request paperwork via e-mail and return it by January 8.

"The one thing that became clear during the initial registration day is that we are not likely to have any roster spots after January 8," says Chuck Jaffe, director of Cohasset Youth Lacrosse. "We will take everyone who signs up during the registration period, even if it puts us above our ideal roster sizes, but it's very likely we'll be full once the registration period closes."

To that end, Jaffe suggests that parents who have any concern about forgetting or missing the Jan. 8 final sign-up simply drop him an e-mail at CAJaffe@aol.com <mailto:CAJaffe@aol.com> or call 781-383-9858, telling him the number of children they are registering for the season.

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will field boys teams in the 11-and-Under (grades 3 and 4), 13-and-Under (grades 5 and 6) and 15-and-Under age groups. It will field girls teams in the two older age groups and will hold a 90-minute weekly clinic for the youngest girls.

At all levels, practices should not conflict with most other youth sports activities.

Registration for 2005 costs $145 for one player, $270 for two players and $390 for three. The girls clinic for players in grades 3 and 4 costs $100 per player or $90 if another family member is participating on one of the teams.

To receive forms or get more information on Cohasset Youth Lacrosse, call 781-383-9858 or e-mail CAJaffe@aol.com <mailto:CAJaffe@aol.com>.

Cohasset Soccer Club 2004-2005 indoor program

The Soccer Club will be offering an indoor training program again this year for players in grade 5 and above on Fridays at the Hingham Sports Center. This indoor season will start on November 19th and continue through March 25th. We will play every Friday except on 11/26 (Friday after Thanksgiving), 12/24 (Christmas Eve), 12/31 (New Year's Eve) and 02/25 (February vacation). During each session there will 45 minutes of skills training followed by 45 minutes of scrimmage.

The cost for the full winter indoor program will be $225 per player. If two or more players from the same family register, the subsequent player registrations will be $200. This includes 15 weeks of indoor training and one indoor game session comprised of 7 team games during January through March plus playoffs for teams making it that far. The deadline for registration is November 19th.

Scheduled times for each age group are below.

BU12 Friday 3:30-5:00
BU10 Friday 4:15-5:45
GU10 Friday 5:00-6:30
GU12 Friday 5:45-7:15
GU14 Friday 6:30 - 8:00

Registration forms are available at the Town Hall or players can be registered at the Hingham Sports Center during the first session to be held on November 19th.

Cohasset Alumni Soccer Game

Saturday, November 27, 2004 is the date for the annual Cohasset Alumni Soccer game. Last year's inaugural event ended in a 2-2 tie with over 40 players returning from a span of 30 years of Cohasset Soccer. This year two games will be played. The first game will be the first women's game to be held. The game will be played at 12:00 at Alumni Field (field conditions permitting). The second game, the men's game, will be played at 2:00pm at either Alumni field or Milliken field depending on field availability. All CHS graduates who played on soccer teams from 1973 (our first team) are invited to participate. The format will be a normal 90 minute game with graduates of odd numbered years playing against graduates of even numbered years. Please contact Jeff Donze if you are interested in playing in the men's game jeff.donze@comcast.net or 781-383-9734 or Alyssa McNamara if you are interested in participating in the Women's game Alyssa@McNamaraFinancial.com or 781-962-6049. More details on a social get together after the game will be coming in future announcements. Please check our web site www.cohassetsoccer.com for updates.

season, and went 71 yards untouched before finally being run down from behind by Thornton at the 5-yard line.

"That run set the tone, and got us all pumped up," said Durkin. "Our [offensive] line came up huge. They were opening up holes left and right and the defense came up big when we needed them to."

Said Rolfe: "That's the way [Durkin] has played all year. We have been putting up 30 points all year, and so much of it has to do with him. He's such a solid runner. He sees the field real well and makes good decisions."

On the next play, Leahy faked a handoff to Durkin up the gut and then scrambled around left end to punch it in. The senior QB called his own number on the 2-point conversion as well, making it an 8-0 game just 1:23 in.

After forcing the Clippers three-and-out, Straughn hauled in the line drive punt from Nogueira on the run and brought it back 29 yards to the Norwell 27-yard line.

The Skippers kept the ball on the ground the entire time during its eight-play, 4:46 scoring march, which culminated when Leahy plunged in from one yard out. The conversion rush failed, but Cohasset had a 14-0 lead with 1:19 left in the first quarter.

Win or lose to SSL rival Hull on Thanksgiving, the Skippers will move on to face the Tri-Valley Conference champion for the second season in a row in the first round of the Div. 3 Super Bowl playoffs, as this win also secured the deciding tiebreaker in the league title race.

Hull (7-3, 3-2) and Norwell (8-2, 4-1) both have only one loss in SSL play, but two overall. So, even if the Skippers (9-0, 4-0) lose on Turkey Day, they'll still have the league's best overall record.

Coach Rolfe, however, did not want to hear anything about tiebreakers.

"There are still a lot of reasons we want to beat Hull on Thanksgiving," he said. "We'd like an undefeated season and, obviously, we'd like to go into the playoff game on a high."

It was believed the CHS football team has not gone undefeated since 1959.

The Clippers will face Hanover on Thanksgiving for the 39th straight year and are looking for their ninth win of the season, which would be the program's best total since the 1999 Super Bowl season.

Digging down deep

You know that old adage" "Hard work is its own reward?"

Well, the members of the Cohasset High football team got some first hand verification of that popular truism, as their hard work on Saturday literally helped pave the way for their victory on Sunday.

CHS players, coaches, and parents spent four hours on Saturday shoveling snow off of Alumni Field to get it ready for the next day's game, and then threw a pizza party for everyone afterward.

Coming up: Hull

FROM HULL, PAGE 17

"They've been able to put a lot of points on the board," said the coach. "We need to stop the deep pass, and stop their running backs from getting big carries."

Stopping running backs has been Cohasset's forte all season long, and never was that more evident than Sunday against Norwell. The Skippers D held one of the area's best backs, Greg Thornton, to under three yards a carry.

Rolfe is looking for a repeat performance from that unit on Thursday.

"We need our defensive line to play as well as they did against Norwell," he said. "It all begins with them."

The starting D-line of Kelvin Ferreira, Joey Kehoe, Scott Wakefield and Leo Clougherty have done a good job all year long of filling potential running lanes for opponents, and allowing linebackers like Matt Baroudi, Matt Casey and Teddie Straughn to make stops at the line of scrimmage.

The offensive line, led by Casey and junior Nick Arment, has also had a very good year. Rolfe looks to the guys in the trenches on both sides of the ball for strong performances, calling that group "the foundation of every football team."

"I've been doing this long enough to know that you can't do it without a good offensive and defensive line," Rolfe said. "You can do it with mirrors, bells and whistles for so long, but the time comes when you have to be able to push people around. That's what we did against Norwell."

As for the offensive side of ball, Cohasset supporters can expect to see a lot of senior running back Joe Durkin. The co-captain has run for over 1,500 yards this season, stringing together one 100-yard game after another. .

If the Skippers have to throw, they have a reliable passer in senior quarterback Crandon Leahy, who also presents a running threat to the Hull defense. Leahy has a good target in 6-1 receiver DJ Silvia.

"It's going to take a total team effort," Rolfe said.

The game starts at 10 a.m., but fans should plan on getting to the field as early as possible, as this will be one of the highest-attended athletic events of the year.

The week after Thanksgiving, the Skippers will face the Tri-Valley champion in the first round of the Div. 3 EMass playoffs. The leader of that conference right now is Holliston (9-1, 8-0), who is averaging over 31 points per game.

Medfield and Westwood, who defeated Cohasset in the playoffs last year, are also in the mix. The Skippers will know their opponent after Thanksgiving.

STAFF PHOTO/BERT LANE

Joe Durkin (20), who has rushed for over 1,500 yards so far this season, will need to have another big performance if Cohasset is to defeat a solid Hull team on Thanksgiving.

CHS says good-bye to 10 seniors

Lovallo were South Shore League all-stars and starred at arguably the two most important field positions. Hajjar, a marking defensive back, was the team's third all-star.

In addition to these three players and Holway, the team will lose Molly Kirk, Lindsay Kennedy, Lauren Rizzotti (four goals), Rachel Garber, team leading scorer Casey Anderson (10 goals), and keeper Cecilia Chapman to the caps and gowns. All were regulars in the rotation and Beal notes "each one is irreplaceable."

Nevertheless, the coach insists "the future also looks bright."

Beal rolled the dice a bit this season by giving significant minutes to five sophomores - Emily Coggins, Lindsay Durkin, Lara Novak, Caren Garber and Christina Pinkus - ahead of a few upperclassmen. Durkin and Pinkus wound up tying for second in the team scoring race with five goals apiece. All things considered, Beal said she was "thrilled with the results" of this gambit.

"The experience each gained is not measurable," she said. "The age of the athlete is irrelevant. It is the skill. Look at Freddy Adu – 15 years old and playing in the MLS for D.C. United. Players learn more by playing than by watching and practicing. We need to build a stronger foundation and teach the system of play earlier to have more success.

"The five [sophomores] that I took and the remaining six or seven that played junior varsity all gained an enormous amount of game experience this season. There was not one sophomore who didn't play a major amount of minutes this season. I am excited for seasons to come with these girls."

Juniors Katie Bolger, Charlotte Sida, Emilie Shea, Cassie Rosano and Melissa Crowley-Buck, who split the goalkeeping responsibilities with Chapman, also played critical roles with the Skippers this season and Beal made a point to laud all of their performances as well.

As for promises for 2005, Beal refuses to make any.

"Do I have a plan? Of course I do," she noted. "Will I tell you it now? Not a chance.

"Let's see who works hard in the off season. Let's just wait and evaluate who comes back next August in game shape and ready to stir the South Shore League up.

"Next year's seniors are a small group and will be far outnumbered by the underclassmen. I need strong leadership from the five of them and I am confident in their abilities."

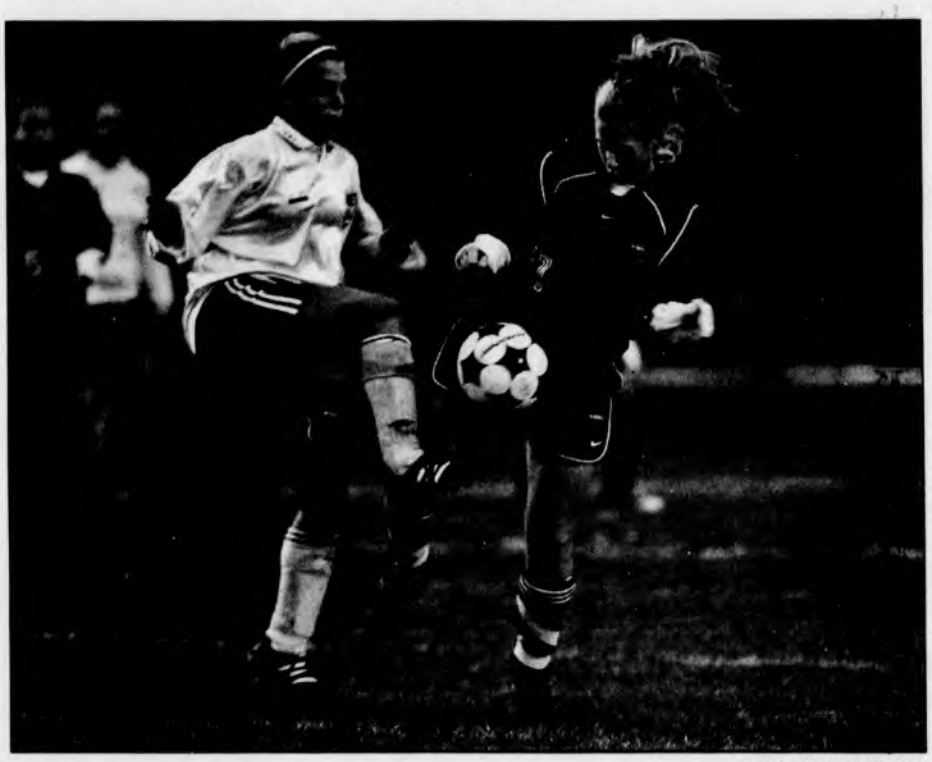
Captains were named at the annual break up dinner on November 16. Beal noted "I think it will be interesting."

Also at the banquet, the varsity team members named their Most Valuable Player, Most Improved Player, Unsung Hero, Top Offensive Player and Top Defensive Player.

Beal did not tip her hand prior to the banquet, noting only, "From the ballots collected from the girls, most of the votes are obvious, which proves that these individuals caught the attention of their teammates and did a great job."

Optimism is further spurred by the junior varsity team finishing with an impressive record of 13-3-1 under first year coach Carla Gigon.

Goalkeeper Shalea Daly finished off her great season by playing in the Fairhaven game.



"I think with some off season coaching and consistent practice she can play keeper," said Beal. "She is a smart player with the determination a coach loves to see."

JV standouts Anna Haggerty and Meg Anderson also dressed for the tournament game.

"They did a great job all season long and I wanted them to get a taste of what is to come," said Beal. "I know that Jen Dinger, Molly Trahon, Jess Bilbo and Jessica Hinman all worked hard and it didn't go unnoticed by myself or Carla.

"Colleen Richardson and Haley Haracz played tough defense, while Jamie Genovese and Kara Wilcox combined with Anderson and Trahon to lead the scoring charges. Freshmen Abby Foley and Siobhan Fludder played well also.

"Looking to the future I see a young team with a lot of potential and hopefully we will continue to grow and mature into an even better than before team."

Santa Claus is coming to town!

Jingle Bell Walk is a local tradition

The South Shore Community Center invites family and friends to join in the holiday spirit at the Jingle Bell Walk. The Jingle Bell Walk, a Cohasset tradition offered by the SSCC, begins at 2 p.m. on Nov. 26, when Santa Claus arrives by boat with his elves at Cohasset Harbor (Border Street). After Santa distributes jingle bells to the children, he and his elves will board a hayride and the walk continues along the sidewalks of Elm to Main Street in Cohasset. At 2:30 p.m. the South Shore Community Center welcomes everyone to partake in cookies, a beverage and a holiday-sing-along. Holiday music and carols will also be sung by all.

Santa will be upstairs in the Center to pose for pictures with you and your children. Please stroll through the village to share in the local shops' holiday ambience.

At 3 p.m. on Cohasset Common there will be a "Turkey Tot Trot" for ages 3 to 10. You may register the day of the event for $3 per participant. Proceeds will benefit the Nursery School. All participants will receive a prize.

Listen to the bells of St. Stephen's playing from 2:30 to 4 p.m., while enjoying a hayride around the Common. Hayrides will be available from 3 to 4 p.m. At 3:45 p.m., gather around the Cohasset Common to listen to the Rusty Skippers Marching Band. The festivities culminate on Cohasset Common at 4:15 p.m. with the lighting of the tree.

There is something for everyone this year at the Jingle Bell Walk. It's a great way to appreciate the picturesque surroundings, while involving the whole family in a Cohasset tradition.

In the event of rain, all outdoor activities will be cancelled and Santa will arrive in the Community Center Gym at 2 p.m.

Village Fair is Dec. 4

Hosted by three of the Town's churches and the non-profit Cohasset Appalachia Service Project (ASP), the Village Fair has been a wonderful holiday tradition for more than 60 years. Volunteers from First Parish Unitarian Universalist, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, the Second Congregational Church, and the ASP work together to create this holiday marketplace.

- The Second Congregational Church (next to Town Hall) opens its doors to their holiday boutique filled with beautiful hand-crafted holiday gifts and decorations.
- First Parish's Estate(ish) Sale (formerly known as the Jumble Sale) will thrill all with its treasures in their Parish Hall at 23 No. Main Street.
- Don't miss the Swedish Bake Shop at the First Parish's Parish House – stop by and warm your spirit with their popular home-made cinnamon buns served with coffee, tea or hot chocolate. Many volunteers begin very early in the morning under the direction of Sine Pounder to create these delicious treats. Tickets will be on sale for the 26th annual Christmas Concert by the Unicorn Singers held December 12th at 4 p.m. at First Parish's Meeting House.
- Saint Stephen's Country Store is the place to find the perfect hostess gift and wonderful Herbes de Provence. The Bake Shop is famous for its homemade toffee, fudge, cakes and pies, while their Snack Bar will offer donuts and bagels, hot dogs and homemade soups. Volunteers have been busy collecting hundreds of used books, cd's, tapes and videos to include in their popular Book Sale.
- Santa Claus will be the guest of honor on the Common (or the Second Congregational Church Nursery in inclement weather) from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Children can visit with Santa and have a picture taken by an ASP volunteer. Don't miss your child visiting the Secret Room at St. Stephen's Church where ASP volunteer elves help little ones select and wrap the perfect surprise for Mom and Dad, a sister or brother, or even the family pet! All gifts are priced for a child's wallet and start at just 50 cents. Proceeds support ASP's home repair program.
- And don't miss The Rusty Skippers who perform their Annual Holiday Pops Concert at First Parish Meeting House on the Common at 12 noon the day of the fair. A free-will offering for the Cohasset Food Pantry will be taken.

'The Eclectic Gardener' is on sale now

Cohasset announces publication of "The Eclectic Gardener," a reflection on the pleasures of gardening and the related activities that we enjoy. For many months, Garden Club members have been editing their collective interests and expertise to share in a 12-month format. Local artists illustrate the new book with original watercolors and drawings. A new painting by Cohasset artist JoAnne Chittick appears on the book's cover.

The entire Community Garden Club has contributed in some way to this labor of love, and members are happy to be able to present it in time for holiday gift giving.

"The Eclectic Gardener" will appeal to everyone who enjoys the beauty of nature, as well as its bounty. Favorite recipes are included in each monthly section, along with suggestions for nature walks and birding observations. Children's activities and herb lore are shared, and the text includes extensive information on design and arrangement of flowers. The year-long format presents a progression of horticulture tips from experienced gardeners, and there are sections for book owners to file information and to keep their own journal notes.

The entire Community Garden Club has contributed in some way to this labor of love, and members are happy to be able to present it in time for holiday gift giving. Copies are $25 and may be reserved by calling 781-383-2486. Profits from the sale of "The Eclectic Gardener" will be used to fund the scholarship and community projects sponsored by the Community Garden Club of Cohasset.

Cohasset Jewelers' pin sales help in breast cancer fight

Special bracelets are also offered

Cohasset Jewelers has raised more than $33,000 for the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation through the sales of their signature breast cancer ribbon lapel pin. The 14K gold piece was originally designed by Cohasset Jewelers owner, Mark Cirone, in honor of his wife Sharon, who has valiantly battled the disease for 9-1/2 years.

In what started and remains a total philanthropic endeavor, Cohasset Jewelers in Tedeschi Plaza continues to encourage sales of this pin and donates 100 percent of the proceeds from the sale of its breast cancer ribbons with all of the proceeds benefiting the charity.

"Through the sale of these ribbons I want to increase breast cancer awareness and let people know that the fight is not over. I also want to make a substantive contribution to help fund a cure for this insidious disease."

— Mark Cirone, Cohasset Jewelers

The exclusive pin consists of 18 pink cubic zirconia stones mounted in a substantial 14k yellow gold ribbon. Heavy enough to go through a denim lapel and graceful enough to be worn on a silk gown, the pins sell for $250.

"It feels wonderful to make such a large contribution and realize our efforts are truly helping people afflicted with this disease," said Cirone.

"My goal is twofold," explained Cirone. "Through the sale of these ribbons I want to increase breast cancer awareness and let people know that the fight is not over. I also want to make a substantive contribution to help fund a cure for this insidious disease."

Cohasset Jewelers' efforts are joined by breast cancer survivor, Elizabeth McQuade, founder of In the Pink, who was inspired to create breast cancer bracelets after her diagnosis with the disease in the spring of 2003. McQuade started making Breast Cancer Awareness Bracelets on an impulse and in a very short time she has donated more than $4,500 dollars to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation through the sale of these bracelets.

Now available at Cohasset Jewelers, the bracelets come in assorted styles and sell for $80 and are made from Swarovski crystals, Bali sterling silver and genuine cultured pearls.

McQuade met Cirone in May of 2003 when she came in to buy a Breast Cancer ribbon after being diagnosed with Breast Cancer two months earlier. "It's fantastic working with Mark in this effort" says McQuade. "We are on the same page and are both committed to making a difference by the monies we contribute to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation."

"Elizabeth is a great person," added Cirone. "It takes a tremendous amount of courage to be able to give in the face of adversity and Elizabeth represents the very best of what the human spirit is all about."

The ribbons and bracelets provide hope and encouragement to those who wear them. The styles are at the height of fashion with pink being the "in" color for jewelry and also the color that symbolizes breast cancer. More importantly, they receive the satisfaction of knowing that a substantial part of their purchase goes directly to help those affected by this disease.

Cohasset Jewelers can be reached at (781) 383-1933. Also, visit Cohasset Jewelers on the web at:

www.cohassetjewelers.com.

In the Pink bracelets can be found at Cohasset Jewelers. McQuade can be reached at 781-383-1559 or:

www.Beinthepink.com

NE Artisans Showcase Dec. 4

Santa by Tim Jumper of Hingham.

Saturday, Dec. 4, will mark the debut of a new event, the first annual New England Artisans Showcase, to be held at the Sons of Italy Hall on Route 3A in Hingham.

Twelve craftsmen, most of whom are former exhibitors from the Hingham Winterfest Folk Art and Craft Show, will offer their work for sale at this one day show. Winterfest will not be held this year, but you will still have a change to buy from some of your favorite artisans.

Many of the exhibitors have been listed in the directory of Early American Life Magazine's 200 best craftsmen issue and have had their work featured in other national publications. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and admission is free. For more information, call 781-749-6764.

Bird walk around Straits Pond

The Straits Pond Watershed Association will sponsor a Bird Walk around Straits Pond, Sat. Nov. 20, 8 to 10 a.m. with Sally Avery. Participants should meet at the base of Summit and Atlantic Ave., near the Cohasset/Hull town line. Call 781-925-9066 for more information. Straits Pond is located in Hull and Cohasset and the West Corner area which includes part of Hingham. The event was rescheduled from Nov. 13 due to last week's snowstorm.

Rowing race hosted by Lifesaving Museum

The sport of "fixed-seat/open-water rowing" is rapidly expanding into the mainstream as evidenced at the hotly contested "Icebreaker: Northeast Regional Youth Open Water Rowing Championships," hosted by the Hull Lifesaving Museum every year in Boston Harbor. This year's event will take place Saturday, Nov. 20, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Windmill Point Boathouse in Hull. Call Lory Newmyer at 781-925-5433 for more information.

The most highly-skilled youth open-water rowers in all of New England — from New York City, New Haven, Conn., Lake Champlain, Vt., Maine's North Haven and Vinalhaven and in Massachusetts, from Boston, Hull, Hingham, Gloucester, Hanover, and Kingston — compete for the coveted "Key to the Harbor," and bragging rights for the rest of the year. More than 200 teenagers participate every year in big, traditional rowing boats they have built themselves.

The Icebreaker is more than a conventional race. The day is comprised of a series of grueling round-robin-style sprints, with crews asked to test their mettle against each other, the winds and currents, and their own mounting excitement and exhaustion. The event culminates with a 25-boat nautical mile sprint across Hingham and Hull Bays. During the course of this one event, the youth crews cover greater distances than collegiate crews race in an entire season. This is an unequalled spectator event, and a rare chance to see every pilot gig and coxed-four in the region up close and at work. Participation in this event is by invitation only.

Getting a head start on the holidays

'Lord of the Dance' back for Thanksgiving

Next weekend, after you've had your fill of turkey and all the fixings, you may be able to burn off some calories just by watching Michael Flatley's "Lord of the Dance," which features a cast of 40 in a show filled with heart-stopping dance, colorful costumes, dramatic music, elaborate sets and state-of-the-art pyrotechnics

The international Irish dancing phenomenon, "Lord of the Dance," returns to Boston's Wang Theatre, November 26-27, on a tour that has played to over 50 million people in 45 countries. The troupe of performers, who have an average age of 22, stretch every boundary of a traditional form of dance that has evolved for more than 2,000 years.

"This show is not ballet. It's not tap. It's not flamenco. It is something I created from scratch, because nothing else was just right," according to Flatley.

LISTEN To Life

NO REPLACEMENT (THERAPY) FOR HEARING

Hormone replacement therapy (HRT) for the relief of such menopausal symptoms as hot flashes and night sweats has already been called into question, having been linked to increased risk for breast cancer, heart attacks, stroke and dementia. Now, a pilot study has linked HRT to hearing loss as well. According to researchers from the International Center for Hearing and Speech Research at the University of Rochester and the National Technical Institute for the Deaf at the Rochester Institute of Technology, older women receiving HRT performed 10% to 30% worse on hearing tests than women not receiving HRT. While further studies are sure to follow, this initial finding is one more reason to weigh HRT very carefully.

We bring you this column on hearing in order to better educate our friends here in Weymouth on the importance and benefits of taking care of their hearing and thus enhancing their quality of life. If you are having trouble hearing, or if a family member seems to be experiencing hearing difficulties, we welcome your call at FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER 781-337-1144. We offer comprehensive services by a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist at 534 Main St. (Rt. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth, including testing, evaluation, fittings, a full range of hearing instruments and follow-up care.

P.S. The study mentioned above noted that the hearing loss among women receiving HRT was most noticeable when background noise made understanding sentences difficult.

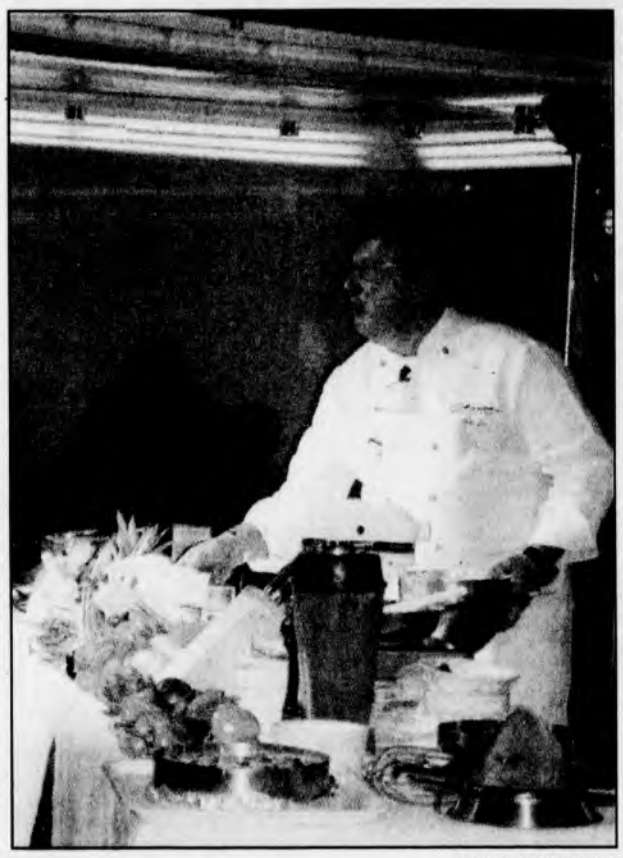
Celebrity chefs, shore excursions spice up Seabourn cruise

By FRAN GOLDEN



Celebrated chef/restaurateur Robbin Haas was showing cruise passengers how to make his tuna ceviche with lime-soy-coconut marinade when he pulled a Julia Child. "Did I forget to put soy in the (handout) recipe? Add a cup of soy sauce," Haas told the attentive crowd of about 70, who were following his cooking action on an overhead screen. Around the small theater pens were pulled out, the additional ingredient written down. Haas, whose contemporary Latin restaurant Chispa opened a year ago in Coral Gables, Fla., also showed how to make his sinfully delicious guava cheesecake, telling an elderly audience member, "It's all about the guava, baby." The demonstration was as good as anything you'll see on the Food Channel, but live, with samples of the dishes carefully passed out by waiters and accompanied by wines. All very civilized; all very entertaining. During a Q&A, Haas was asked the secret to the crispy top on creme brulee. The bearded chef told his elegant questioner to go to Sears and buy a blowtorch. "It's no harder than flicking a Bic," Haas said. As a top luxury line, Seabourn is known for fine, top restaurant-quality cuisine. Its annual Great American Food and Wine Festival is icing on the cake for foodies. Sailing down the eastern seaboard (this year from New York to Nassau in the Bahamas), the cruise features guest chefs and special food-related shore offerings.

The line also hosts visiting chefs on other select sailings as part of its Chef's Circle program. In addition to his cooking demonstration, Haas prepared a meal for passengers in the ship's dining room one night, his exquisite main course offering of tenderloin of beef with cabrales cheese crust on boniato-calabaza hash a true incentive to visit his restaurant for more. The full October sailing was for 13 nights, but you could pick up the ship in Alexandria, Va., for a seven-night cruise, which is what I did. During the first half of the cruise, New York-based celebrity chef Charlie Palmer, the line's culinary consultant, was the visiting chef and led a shopping tour where the goal was fresh fish, cannolis and prosciutto. I missed that. But on the latter half of the sailing there was also much time to talk food, eat and learn. Frankly, I don't know all that much about Southern cuisine. So it was a delight to visit such ports as Charleston, S.C., and Fernandina Beach on Amelia Island, Fla., where Southern cooking's the thing. A great introduction was offered on the Historic Charleston and Lowcountry Cuisine shore excursion ($129 per person). Tenth generation South Carolinian Amanda Dew Manning, a lowcountry food expert, was our guide. After a brief city tour by bus æ with glimpses of the historic downtown, waterfront mansions and Citadel æ Manning took us to Magnolias (185 E. Bay St.), where chef/owner Donald Barickman (he also owns Blossom and Cypress in Charleston) is credited with creating new South Carolina cuisine.

But before you can understand the new you have to understand the past, and Manning took us through South Carolina food history in a PowerPoint presentation. Influences on South Carolina cooking came from American Indians, slaves from Africa, and Europeans (including French Huguenots), Manning explained. She said Charlestonians in the early days drank a lot of wine because the water was bad. "We still drink a lot here," she said. Historic foods include rice, corn and pork. She talked of the virtues of stone-ground grits and grits vs. hominy, hoppin' John (black-eyed peas and rice) and game meats such as wild turkey and possum, as well as South Carolina's big peach crop and the local American Classic Tea, the official tea of the White House. Chef Barickman stopped by to explain his "uptown, down South" concept. "Grits are on the menu morning, noon and night," he said. We dined on pimiento cheese spread served with flatbread and house-made potato chips topped with blue cheese and scallions, spicy shrimp and sausage with tasso gravy over creamy white grits, and a sweet biscuit with strawberries, orange custard sauce and whipped cream. Visitors are advised to pick up a bag of Magnolias' stone ground grits for $5, buy a copy of the chef's cookbook ($19.95) to learn the proper preparation. For more on Manning's tours, call Carolina FoodPros, 843-723-3366, or go to www.carolinafoodpros.com.

Walking back to the ship, on Manning's advice I stocked up on South Carolina's delicious treat benne (sesame) wafers and artichoke relish at Gita's Gourmet in the historic Charleston Market. Later on Amelia Island I got more of a homegrown lesson on Southern cooking. The Florida House Luncheon & Stroll shore excursion ($55 per person) in historic Fernandina Beach was a walking tour highlighted by a visit to the Florida House Inn (20 S. Third St.), built in 1857. Ulysses S. Grant, Jose Marti, the Rockefellers and the Carnegies have all slept here. We sipped tasty mojitos and dined "boarding-house-style" on Southern treats including fried chicken, chicken with dumplings, field peas, biscuits with orange butter and banana pudding. I asked one of the seniors serving the meal how to make the delicious field peas (little red beans). "Honey, you take a ham hock and you put it in a pressure cooker with the peas and some salt and pepper and water, and you let it go."

The Dec. 12 sailing of the Seabourn Pride will feature Rob Feenie of Lumiere in Vancouver, considered one of the finest restaurants in Canada. His specialty is French meets Pacific Rim. Fares are from $2,757 for the weeklong sailing from Barbados to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Arrangements for Chef's Circle cruises in 2005 are still in the works. Next year's Great American Food and Wine Festival will be Oct. 16-30 on the Seabourn Pride. Fares are from $6,948 per person. For reservations, call your travel agent or go to www.seabourn.com.

Cohasset chooses new Town Manager

Should come on board in two months

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Members of the current Board of Selectmen haven't always been in agreement. But Saturday, all five were unanimous in their first choice for Town Manager – William R. Griffin who is currently the Bourne Town Administrator.

Although Griffin, 51, a Plymouth resident, was the third finalist Selectmen interviewed during a marathon meeting Saturday at town hall, he finished at the top of the list.

"Bill has the passion, enthusiasm and conviction," said Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan. "He has the gut feeling that this is the right thing for him and my gut feeling is I agree with him."

Pending the results of an in-depth background check and employment negotiations expected to take roughly two weeks, Griffin will take over the reins at town hall in about two

Winds of change at Sandy Beach

New dune could help control erosion

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The landscape at Sandy Beach could soon be changing as the Department of Environmental Protection said it would like to the town form a new dune, to help control erosion from traveling sand. In addition, it would like to see a maintenance plan drafted for the beach, which would regulate what the Sandy Beach Association and town can do on the site.

After a concerned resident reported the town had removed a dune from the parking lot, the DEP paid the town a visit this spring. In addition, it was reported the Sandy Beach Association had used heavy equipment on the beach to bring sand from the parking lot, back onto the beach.

As a result, members of the Sandy Beach Association, Conservation Commission, Town Manager Michael Buckley, and various DEP members and affiliates, met in Boston Nov. 16 for a hearing to determine whether the town had violated any regulations, and how it should proceed from here.

The DEP is not going to require the town to replace sand which was removed between the beach parking lot and Atlantic Avenue this past spring. President of the Sandy Beach Association Robin Lawrence said it has said a new dune, to be located on the beach, will need to be established along the sea side of the current rock wall. Although plans could change depending on the maintenance plans the town and the Sandy Beach Association submit, the former strip of sand running along Atlantic Avenue may be gone for good.

"DEP would like us to establish a frontal dune," said Lawrence,

Giving thanks to those who serve our country

Cohasset resident Dennis Reardon lost his life during Vietnam at the young age of 24.

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Sitting around the holiday table, many families will count their blessings this Thanksgiving. Some will be thankful their loved ones have returned home safe after serving on active duty in the armed forces, while others will be thankful there are brave men and women who have answered the call of duty to serve and protect our country, and have paid the ultimate sacrifice.

The sacrifice of 1st Lt. Dennis Joseph Reardon is remembered every day by those who pass by the memorial square dedicated to him on the corner of Elm Street and Stephen's Lane near the police department entrance, just three houses down from the home he grew up in, 84 Elm St. As a living tribute, members of one of the Cohasset garden clubs planted a very rare cucumber tree, (Magnolia acuminata), which has continued to flourish since the 1960s.

Well known around town, Reardon, whose nickname was "The Duck" was often spotted riding his motorcycle up Jerusalem Road. His quick smile and irresistible sense of humor help those who knew him continue to remember him today.

Reardon grew up in Cohasset and attended the old Ripley Road School, the Deer Hill School, and graduated from Cohasset High School in 1963.

History in the making at Osgood

Hands-on program for kids after school

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

In a corner of a classroom in the Osgood School, three little boys wearing brown vests play under a wetu — a small Native American hut. As they role-play and pretend to grind corn, under a structure they helped build, they are learning a valuable lesson about community and culture, the history of our country, as well as everything they have to be thankful for.

Every day, after school, a group of students ranging in age from kindergarten through grade two make their way to the school's Enrichment Program. There, guided by teacher Grace Griffiths, they are given inspiration for their imaginations, which since early October, has focused on Christopher Columbus, followed by Native American culture, leading up to the Pilgrim's first Thanksgiving.

"Because they're enrichment, the activities don't follow a curriculum format," said Griffiths, although with her extensive teaching background, she said she tries to parallel curriculum with play. However, she said the children have so much fun with the activities, "They have learned a lot by accident."

"They have learned a lot by accident."
— Grace Griffiths, teacher

Griffiths said the students have learned all about hunting and gathering, and the importance of being able to use what you have to fulfill your needs. She said every child "hunted and gathered" a "brown bag-skin," to fashion their own Native American vest, many of which say "Shaws" or "Stop & Shop" on the inside. The children also learned how to smash berries into a beautiful colored ink to paint with, and each child made their own pictograph.

The children have also been learning about music and have listened to many different forms with different rhythms. Griffiths said they have also learned about different kinds of numbers including Roman numerals and tallying with lines.

"We've also done a lot of cooking from scratch," she said, adding the children love being hands-on with projects and recently made corn muffins. She said every child also made their own wreath to bring home, fashioned out of bittersweet and grapevines.

The children have also been taught about Native American folklore and if they sit quietly enough, Griffith said they are able to hear the "voice of the turtle." She said by using the turtle as a metaphor, children can see turtles sometimes feel like they want to hide inside their shell because they are sad
